W. J. Erickson is still ahead of the Imperial Vandeville Company, which is playing somewhere in Canada.

L. L. Cronkrite is out on the coast, advertising agent at the leading theatre at Oakland, Cal.

Edward L. Jones was expected in to spend a week or two at the camp, but did not arrive on account of being too busy, advertising Foley's Medicine.

Nick Pettit is still with the Ringling Show and expects to arrive at winter-quarters some time in October.

St. Paul Local No. 45, seems to do well with John Ellinger as its president. Val Bosh'll is in Chicago at the Star and Garter.

ZACH LUCKENS,
Treasurer No. 10.

CIRCUS GOSSIP.

Lee Syle, who has been with the advance of the Campdell Brothers' Circus, is now agent for the Runkin and Lawrence Musical Comedy Company. Mr. Syle is handling the work ahead, and George L. Dunbar is back with the show.

Willis Bloom, one of the A-1 banner men in the business, is now with "Kid" Wheeler's flying brigade of the John Robinson Circus. The brigade has won an enviable reputation under the careful management of Mr. Wheeler, and the work is being excellently done. Pat Langau, Fred Day, William Wits, A. E. Wilson and Mike Hawley form the personnel of the brigade.

Mack's Wagon Show is now in its seventh week in Connecticut playing to good business. A complete roster of the show follows: A. L. Mack, proprietor; the Simpsons, breakaway perch and impalement act; the Great Malette, wire artist; Henry Starita, equilibrist and trapeze artist; Wm. Nichols, contortionist and singer; Ed Acker, comedian and acrobat; Johnny Bales, principal clown, assisted by Danny Evans and Joe Barnes. The band is under the direction of Wm. Griswold, and includes Field Midgeley, Ed Lansing, Joe Day, Wm. Horne, Dick Burge, Harry Sturgess, Frank Knight, Jack Malley, Frank Harvey. The big top is in charge of J. Murray, with six assistants. Bob Daly is boss hostler, with three assistants, and Roy Cottrell, advance representative, with two billposters.

Connected with the Barnum & Bailey Show are 150 people that belong to the Loyal Order of Moose. They have their own chartered lodge, something that perhaps no other or trav-signs on each side and which read, Buffalo Bill's Wild West & Pawnee Bill's Far East. The apto travels overland just one week ahead of the show. It was in Ft. Scott, Kan., September 2 and received much favorable comment from press and public.

The following is the category of acts with J. S. Robertson's annex and supplementary exhibitions with the Sun Bros.' Shows: Dudley No Komie, Simian musical marvel; Daplyn, royal English comique; Lient, Allen Bryan, ventriloquist comedian and vocalist; Miss Adele Drew, musical act; Robertson's Original Baboon Theatre; Sisters Bryan, scientific boxers and fencers; Col. Henri Slegmund, eight-foot German giant; and Captain John Cardona's spectacular lion act.

The Daisy Lawrence Dog & Vandeville Shows report good business in Illinois, after a two months' tour of Wisconsin. It is the intention of the outfit to stay out until October 15. The roster is as follows: Daisy Lawrence, sole owner; gers carries a bunch of fine, reliable, hustling butchers, who are well dressed and use courteous methods. The majority of these have been with him all season.

A correct roster of the Forepangh-Sells advertising car No. 2 follows: Tom Dransfield, manager; C. T. Douglas, secretary; D. F. Worth, boss billposter; J. Shallicross, G. Bateman, H. Hartwell, M. Biller, Chas. Smith, Wm. Smith, J. G. Hick, R. Perkins, H. Itkin, Wm. Scott, Chas. E. Staver, W. H. Holland and Peter Hurst, billposters.

The Barlow Dog & Pony Show closes its season October 7 at South Milford, Ind., the winterquarters and home of the show. The outfit made Illinois, Iowa and Indiana. During the winter, dogs and ponies will be trained and the show overhauled for next season. This season was the fourteenth for the Barlow Show.

Great Everett and Lady Raffles have severed their connection with the Barnum & Bailey Circus to take up their long tour of the country with their own company of fourteen people, presenting their Temple of a Thousand Mysteries. Mr. Everett has purchased $3,000 worth of illusions to be used on the trip.

The Sun Bros.' Shows recently played Jackson (Breathitt County), Ky., attracting good crowds. The night show was particularly well patronized. Good order characterized the entire day and night, in fact, there was no need of the tin star brigade or the white-ribboned fraternity.

Cole and Rogers' Railroad Shows have enjoyed a very prosperous season since opening at San Antonio, Tex., February 5. The outfit has shown in the following states: Texas, Okla-home, Kansas, Missouri, Colorado, Wyoming, Utah, Oregon, Washington and is now in Idaho.

W. S. (Dad) Chambers is the trainmaster with Sun Bros.' Shows, having joined the aggregation April 15 at Muscon, Ga. He handles eight cars which are of first-class and superb design, being patterned after the latest edicts of the M. C. E.

A. A. Holly, driver, employed by the John Robinson Shows, sustained a sprained leg September 4 at Memphis, Tenn., when he fell off one of the circus wagons during the parade. He was taken to the city hospital for medical attention.

The Byron Spann Show, which opened in May, is touring Southern Jersey to good business. One of the features is Zella, the strong man. The outfit will stay out until October. Mr. Spann will have a wagon on the road next season.

Walle showing Port Huron, Mich., August 27, a colored canvassman, known as Ringling, with the Barnum Show, was drowned. He was seized with a cramp while in bathing and sank before help could reach him.

Mrs. Florence Darling, who was ill for several weeks in the hospital at Lafayette, Ind., returned to the Barnum Show. Mrs. Darling will resume her work with the Selgriat-Silbon Aerialists shortly.

George Stumpf, superintendent of stock, Prof. F. Allisapaw, superintendent of elephants and animals, who opened with the Selis-Floto Shows at Albuquerque, N. Mex., April 1, will close in Texas.

Clark's Georgia Minstrelia with the Downie & Wheeler Shows were augmented the past week elling amusement organization can boast of. At Jackson, Mich., September 1, they had planned to initiate a large class before the local lodge, but, on account of limited time, were unable to do so. Nevertheless, they, as well as the Moose members of the Honeyboy Evans' Minstrels, who appeared in Jackson the same date, were royally entertained by the Jackson Moose, who held open house from the arrival of the first train until the departure of the last one. During the day the Barnum hall team defeated the minstrel nine, 7 to 0.

On the No. 1 advertising car of the Yankee Robinson Circus are F. C. Stern, car manager; Ed Leise, boss billposter, assisted by W. F. Perkins, Chas. Monroe, Lester Stien, Lester Bateman, Jesse Bond, Wm. Holmes, Chas. Davis, Lee Handorf and Chas. McGinnies; T. J. Brophy, in charge of lithographs, assisted by M. O. Kelly; A. L. Hightower, chief banner squarer, assisted by Jack Mitchell and G. Goodso; M. Lowery, official programmer; Chas. Bohlen, chef; Doc Miller, pastemaker and porter. Ora L. Hoffman is still working on the excursion business, also doing the stenographer's work on the car.

The Two Bills Show is attracting considerable attention through the West by a new advertising scheme they have. It is a large automobile float with an independent engine, which manufactures electricity for the large electric Harry Lawrence, manager and clown; Ahle Sachs, roman rings and ladder; LeRoy and Boro, serialists and sketch artists; LeBlanco, contortionist; Herman Hein, advance man; Ed Hammond, boss hostler; W. E. Skidmore, musical director.

There is rivalry for billboards in Georgetown, Del., between the Frank A. Robbins and the Downie & Wheeler Shows. Although the first-named is not booked to exhibit there until September 28, some special paper has already been put up. The Downie & Wheeler Shows are scheduled to exhibit September 22, four days ahead of the Robbins Show, but so far no bills have been posted.

In making the run from Calgary, Alta., to Vancouver, B. C., a distance of 687 miles, which took over 48 hours, Mr. Backman's thoroughbred Arabian stallion was killed outright in a wreck of the circus train. Two cars were completely demolished, two horses killed and one employee severely injured. The C. P. Railroad, however, assisted the show to get in on time to give a performance.

Oscar Rodgers continues as privilege manager with the Sun Bros.' Show and has been successful all season; in fact, to date has broken all records for candy stand receipts since the inception of the show twenty years ago. Rod-

Miss Lola Jameson underwent a successful operation for appendicitis at Harper's Hospital, Detroit, Mich., August 25. She will not rejoin the Sells-Floto Shows this season.

General Agent Oliver Scott of the Robinson Ten Big, dropped in for a day at Washington, Mo. He was en route West and stayed only a few hours.

The Downie and Wheeler Side Show, under the management of William Miller, is getting more than its share of the business.

August 27 was a big day at Decatur, Ill., for Dick Elliott's Wild West. The outfit played to 2,600 paid admissions.

About thirty members of the Auger Bros. show visited Gollmar Bros. Show at Tipton, Ia.

Major C. F. Rhodes is now located in Douglas, Ga., where he will remain until January.

CIRCUS DAY.

"Mornin' Clem."

"Hello Lem, come to the circus?"

"No; had to get a plow point. What brings you here to-day?"

"Just had a little business, that's all."

"Big crowd here."

"Yes, there is."

"They got lots of fine horses."

"Yes, they have."

"Never saw such big elephants, did you?"

"No, never did."

"Must cost some money to feed all that stock."

"You bet."

"Wonder what town they came from?"

"Cornin', I guess."

"Wonder where they go from here."

"Don't know."

"Do they have a free show?"

"Guess so."

"Suppose they'll have all they advertise?"

"Never do."

"Queer folks, ain't they?"

"Yes, they be."

"Wonder where they sleep?"

"Don't know."

"Guess they ain't very long lived."

"No, guess not."

"It's a hard life."

"Yes, it must be."

"I never saw 'em unload, did you?"

"No, never did; quite a sight, I guess."

"Every man seems to know his place."

"Have they got three rings?"

"Guess so."

"Fahaw, wouldn't care a darn to see that. Give me a good, old-fashioned, one-ring circus."

"Me too."

"Never will forget old Dan Rice's Show."

"Gee, that was a dandy."

"Well, I'm getting hungry; guess I'll look for our folks, might just as well look for a meal in a haystack as to try to find anyone in this crowd."

"I'm glad I seen ya, Clem."

"So'm I Lem. Come up and see us sometime, won't ya?"

"Yes, I will. Hulda and I calculated to come over right after hayin', but didn't get around to it."

"Say, Lem, where do you sell your milk now?"

"Cheese factory."

"I take mine to the creamery. Think you do better there?"

"Guess so."

"Frost hurt your potatoes?"

"No, guess not."

"Is George working for Ed's folks?"

"Was last I knew."

"Did the hay crop pan out good?"

"Just fair, that's all."

"Well, Lem, I must be goin'. Good-bye."

"Good-bye, look out for pick-pockets."

"You bet I will."

Supporting Harry Corson Clarke and Margaret Dale Owen on their farewell tour of the West, will be found Katherine Edson, William Holden, Betty Tracy, Elmer Ballard, Vail Hobart, Eugene Geer, Maybelle Alberta, Harry Morgan and A. J. Hotchkiss.

Joe M. Galtes engaged Nellie McCoy for the part of the Dancing Princess in the company supporting Kitty Gordon in The Enchantress, the new opera by Victor Herbert. Fred De Gress and Harry B. Smith, which Mr. Galtes will produce the last week in September. He has placed Miss McCoy under a four years' contract.

GENERAL FAIR NEWS

Extensive Preparations Being Made in Baltimore by Promoters of Industrial and Pure Food Show—Secretaries' Reports and Fair Notes

INDUSTRIAL SHOW AT BALTIMORE.

Baltimore, Md., Sept. 9 (Special to The Billboard).—The Industrial and Pure Food Show will open at the Fifth Regiment Armory, September 18 and will continue until October 7. This show is a great undertaking and will be a gigantic exhibition. It will be superior to any exhibition that has been previously attempted here. The building has a floor space of 60,000 square feet and the plans for the arrangement were made by a skilled architect so as to assure uniformity in design and general proportion. The show will afford a picturesque scene for elaborate color scheme. There will be so much of interest that the patrons can not fail to express delight with the wonderful array of exhibits.

The industrial portion will contain many of the Baltimore-made products and there will be many nationally famous food products on exhibition. There will be enough pure food on show to delight any housekeeper.

Besides the food section, there will be much more to interest the spectators. The Federal Government will assist in making the show interesting and attractive. President Taft has offered Pauline Wayne, the famous White House cow, to be the star feature in the pure food section so that people can see real milk. Through the Maryland delegation in Congress, the consent for Pauline's appearance was obtained. The Post-Office Department will send many of its relics that are now at the Smithsonian Institution. The Department of Agriculture will send an exhibit but what it will contain has not been stated. The War Department will be well represented and Secretary of War Henry Stimson sent a list of articles that will be in the exhibit. The articles are: General Thomas' office wagon of the Civil War, the original model of the Arlington National Cemetery at Washington, the model of the United States Army mine planter, relief map of New York harbor, relief map of Gettysburg battlefield, model of snagboat H. G. Wright, three models of United States Army Transport Sherman, 4.7 models siege howitzers, three models rapid-fire field guns and limber, Gatling gun and carriage, Vickers-Maxim gun, 30 caliber automatic gun, wheel mount, samples metallic cases and sectionalized projectiles, five models showing development of ocean vessels in the nineteenth century, model of the ocean-going suction dredge Atlantic, field wireless telegraph set on table, telautograph and other features. The Navy Department will be well represented with models of famous warships and some of them are: The Brooklyn, the flagship of Commodore Schley; the Saratoga, the former flagship of Rear-Admiral Sampson; the North Dakota, the Oregon and others.

The Maryland Geological Survey and the Good Roads Commission will have exhibits to show what has been accomplished in good roads about Baltimore. The state will have other department exhibits. The Shellfish Commission will show some of the inhabitants of the Chesapeake Bay. All the city departments will show progress. The Sewerage Commission will show how they spent the $25,000,000 sewer loan and what the taxpayers got for it. The Electrical Commission will show how the city looked before and after the wires were put under ground. The Water Department will show some of the marvels of the (quick) water service. The free Public Bath Commission, the supervisors of city charities, the city engineer's department, the building inspector's department, the city librarian, Harbor Board, Commission on city plan, Board of School Commissioners, the Municipal Art Commission and others will be represented with their respective exhibits.

Many European firms have expressed a desire to send exhibits and this show will be an affair of some importance. Many big cities have their annual exhibitions for the display of industrial progress and this Baltimore show will be on a larger scale than any industrial exhibition that has been attempted. The leading manufacturers and merchants as well as the state and city officials are keenly interested in this affair. An effort will be made to have President Taft touch a button to start the festivities at this show on the opening day.

On the opening day the show will open at 7:30 p. m. and other days it will open at 1:30 to 5:30 and from 7:30 to 11:00 p. m. The promoters will distribute 500,000 tickets.

FAIR SECRETARIES' REPORTS.

Good industrial conditions, a fine line of exhibits and amusement attractions tended to partly overcome the handicap of bad weather at the Logan County Fair, Bellefontaine, O. The attendance the first day was 2,000, weather fine; second day, 3,500, rain; third day, 5,000, rain; fourth day, 4,000, rain. The list of attractions were Lambrigger's Zoo, Hill's Wild West, Altair's Trained Horse, Willoughby's Athletic Show, Hall's Cigarette Stand, Myers' Monoplane. The privileges included G. Sharrock, refreshments and lunch; Grand Woolley, return balls; C. Olson, burnt leather; H. Hornberger, fountain pens; G. Seifer, cane and knife stands.

The Crawford County Fair Association's fair was held at Marengo, Ind., August 22, 24 and 25. The attendance on the first day was 2,000; second day, 7,000; third day, 1,000. Rain on the latter day kept the attendance down. Racing and baseball were the principal amusement attractions. The entries in the stock exhibits totaled 1,167, the largest in the history of the fair. The privileges were: Games, wild west, minstrel, riding devices, jewelry wheels, jungle birds, etc.

The Mexico Fair Association's event was held at Mexico, Mo., August 22 to 26. It was unfortunate that rain compelled the postponement of the fair on the second and third days, but the attendance on the other days was very good. First day 4,000; fourth day, 9,000; fifth day, 5,000. The industrial conditions in this neighborhood are very good, all the factories advertising for men, and as a result everybody had plenty of money and the various amusements did very well. The list of attractions included 25 concessions: refreshment booths, restaurant, plantation show, freak show, merry-go-round, etc.

Good weather, the largest farm machinery exhibit ever on the grounds, a large poultry and pigeon show, and a good line of amusement features combined to make the Maryland State Grangers Fair, at Taucetown, Md., August 8, 9, 10 and 11, a most successful one. The attendance on the first day was 2,376; second day, 5,721; third day, 13,293; fourth day, 4,709. The big free act was The High Diving Girl, in a 65-foot plunge into a tank of water. Among the privileges were Merry-go-round, Ferris Wheel, Miniature Railway, African Dip and all kinds of games.

Best and most profitable in history of association is this year's record of the annual fair of the Lincoln County Fair Association, held at Fayetteville, Tenn., August 23, 24 and 25. Attendance first day, 3,000; second day, 6,000; third day, 5,000. The features were big horse shows in the mornings, and harness and running races in the afternoons. The list of privileges included: plantation show, merry-go-round, Ocean Wave, bull dog show, shooting gallery, baby rocker, fortune telling, lunch and refreshment stands, etc.

Bad weather caused considerable falling off in attendance at the annual fair of the Summer County Fair and Sales Association, at Gallatin, Tenn., August 24, 25 and 26. The attendance and weather conditions were as follows: First day, 900; cloudy; second day, 3,500, rain part of the day; third day, 1,800, rain all day. A special train of eight coaches and forty automobiles were used to transport the crowds to the fair grounds. The entries and attractions were larger and better than ever before, with Military Co. and Jumping Dog as free acts. Among the privileges were: novelty, restaurant, cat rack, knife rack, candy wheel, soft drinks, etc. Mr. Scottabelle of Kentucky presided as judge in the ring.

Threatening and rainy weather was the only drawback to the Madison County Agricultural Society Fair at London, O., August 22, 23, 24 and 25. The attendance on the first day was 4,000; second day, 7,000; third day, 17,000. The weather on the second and third days was cloudy and threatening, and on the fourth day it rained so hard all day that the fair was declared off. Industrial conditions in this neighborhood are good, and the fair was a success despite the above stated handicap. The list of attractions were Brown and Johnson Minstrels, Cryan Bailey Show, Water Show. The free acts were Gus Henderson and The La Nots. The privileges included merry-go-round, can racks, pictures, come-back ball, candy, soft drinks and others.

The annual event of the Fergus County Agricultural Association at Lewistown, Mont., was held August 14 to 18, inclusive. The attendance on the first day was 450; second day, 700; third day 1,600; fourth day, no fair, on account of rain; fifth day, 670. The Cosmopolitan Carnival Co. furnished the attractions and did a good business; this company was the most satisfactory of its line ever engaged by this association. The free acts included: Dodge Flak, with Bobby, educated horse; Roman Rings and Trapeze Act; Milton, ninety-foot dive into net. Among the privileges were: Goose pond, novelties, hoop-la board, spindle Syrian and Mexican drawn work, peanuts and pop corn, pop, ice cream, etc.

The Gallia County Agricultural Society's Fair was held August 23, 24 and 25, at Gallipolis, O. The attendance on the first day was 3,000; second day, 5,000; on the third day it rained all day, and cut the attendance to 2,500; had it not been for this the attendance on the last day would have been a record-breaker. This association has a fine grounds, lighted at night by electricity. Good industrial conditions prevail, and a fine industrial exhibit was one of the features. The list of attractions included Flying Bicketts, baseball games, state experimental station, races, floral hall, poultry and stock shows. The principal free act was the Flying Bicketts. Among the privileges were: Lunch stands, merry-go-round, hoop-la, shooting gallery, baby rack, throwing games of all kinds, shows, etc.

30,000 people attended the Ulster County Fair at Ellenville, N. Y., Aug. 22, 23, 24 and 25. Industrial conditions in this neighborhood are good, and as a result the fair was well attended and the privileges all did a good business. The free acts included balloon ascensions, colored troupe, pie-eating contests, battles royal, bicycle riding, hitching contests, auto and running races. Among the big list of privileges were candy, lunch and refreshment stands, photographs, horse and toy whips, cane and baby rack, optical goods, African Dip and Dodge jewelry, chinaware, postcard booths, striking and weighing machines, Hindoo show, etc.

The annual fair of the Lebanon Valley Fair Association, held August 22, 23, 24 and 25 at Lebanon, Pa., would have been the most successful in the history of the association had it not rained on the last two days. The attendance on the first day was 8,000; second day, 15,000; on the third day it rained in the morning, but despite this record crowd of 40,000 was in attendance the fourth day. It rained heavily, cutting down the attendance and forcing the declaring off of the races. Every inch of space was taken in the exhibition hall and it was impossible to accommodate all the exhibitors of stock. There were five acres of agricultural implements, automobiles, etc. The new $50,000 grandstand pleased everybody. More improvements will be made next year, a larger exhibition hall and a new horticultural hall will be built. The list of attractions was high-class, furnished by the Jackson Hippodrome Co. and included King Kelly, basketball, in triple parachute drops; Edward Bard Troupe, aerialists; Count Togo, slack wire artist; and the De Homans, as free acts. A fifty-piece band was also one of the daily features. There were privileges of all kinds and the biggest midway ever at the fair. All did well in spite of the rain. No gambling was permitted.

The Tuscola County Agricultural Society's fair was held at Vassar, Mich., August 23, 24 and 25. The weather was fine all three days.

GIBSON CORN CARNIVAL

Five big days—October 10-14. WANTED—Ferris Wheel, good clean shows. All streetmen make big money. No bad locations. L. C. WRIGHT, Pres. IRA GILMORE, Concessions, Gibson City, Ill.

The attendance was 4,600 on the first day; 12,000 on the second day; and 11,000 on the third day. The fair attractions were appropriate. Michigan Circuit races and one band concert. There was also a complete line of concessions. The races were the best in the history of the association and a number of track records were broken. The entire fair was a great success, both financially and otherwise.

One of the largest of the Indiana fairs is that of the Shelby County Joint Stock Agricultural Association, held annually at Shelbyville. This year's dates being August 23 to September 3. Despite the fact that Shelby County and vicinity was suffering from a damaging drought, the fair was a big success. The attendance was very good—5,000 on the first day; 9,000 on the second day; 12,000 on the third day; 21,000 on the fourth day; and 10,000 on the fifth day. Exhibits in the horse, cattle, hog, sheep, agricultural, women's, mechanical and buggy departments and in the speed ring were all good. Live displays, and every department was well filled with exhibits. The speed ring was filled with entries and paid in full. In thirty-eight years this fair has never pro-rated a purse or premium. The free acts were: Ruth Four, child driver on racetrack; Sarum Family, black rope, etc.; Jack Arnold, heavy weight lifter and contortionist; and others. There was a complete line of concessions, including merry-go-rounds, Ferris wheel, Ocean Waves, swings, Ben Holmes' Wild West Show, candy, ice-cream and refreshment stands, etc. This fair pays no dividends on stock, but all earnings go toward the improvement of its grounds and buildings.

The 1911 St. Louis County Fair at Hilling, Minn., August 24, 25, 26 and 27, was the best fair ever held in St. Louis County. It was a success in every respect. The attendance was unusually large—1,500 on the first day; 2,000 on the second day; 3,000 on the third day; and 5,000 on the fourth day. Had the weather been good the last two days the grounds would have been taxed to their capacity; as it was, the grandstand did not seat one-half of the people. The free acts were a real high class each day, which were highly satisfactory to either the management or the patrons. The carnival company who were to furnish the other free acts did not show up, so a hand contest between all county boys was put on instead and proved a huge success. The racing program was a very good one, and the auto and motorcycle races were also enjoyed. There were thirty-eight privileges and concessions, all of whom did a good business. For next year the grandstand will be enlarged and a new agricultural building erected.

FAIR NOTES.

The Winnebago County Fair was held last over the Illinois State line, near Beloit, Wis., August 29, 31 and Sept. 1. This is an Illinois fair, but promoted by Wisconsin people. The fair had not been successful in previous years and had gone out of existence. The putting of track, grounds and buildings in shape was a huge expense, but the attendance was large enough to pay all these expenses and leave a little balance to go on next year. A large exhibit of agricultural machinery was shown. The horses were full of fine stock, and there was an excellent display of flowers, agricultural products, machinery, etc. Liberal race purses were offered, and as a result a field of 120 horses were entered, the largest card ever offered in this part of the country. Jimmy Ward, the aviator, gave six thrilling flights in his "Shooting Star." The management were well pleased with results, and are determined that next year's fair will even be better.

The Danville Fair, Danville, Va., this year will be most complete in every detail. Department managers are vying with each other in an effort to surpass the showing made in former years, and results will surprise the visitors. In the horse and cattle exhibits this year will be seen some of the prettiest pure bred animals in the country. Farm products will be seen in larger quantity and greater variety. Tobacco and corn displays promise to be among the most attractive features of the fair. The large premiums offered this year induce most general interest in the approaching exhibition that has been realized heretofore. No expense is being spared in making the amusement feature more extensive and elaborate. The midway will be up-to-date in every respect, and the shows will be of proper tone to appeal to everybody. Objectionable performances will be prohibited. Date for fair this year, Oct. 17, 18, 19, 20.

The Curless Exhibition Company is furnishing the aeroplane attraction, with Aviator Chas. F. Walsh at the Four-State Fair and International Sheep Show, Ogden, Utah. Don Phillips' Italian Band has been engaged for the concert, afternoon and evening. The big Sheep Show has over 3,000 entries and the Registered Dairy Cattle Show and Sale has over 200 entries. The railroads have come through this year with a one-fare rate for a radius of about 600 miles. The prospects point to a big attendance.

The New Castle County Fair at Wilmington, Del., August 29 to September 1, was greeted by the heaviest rains in that section of the country in years. There was only one day that the fair could do any business, and then the mud was so bad that it was impossible to walk around the grounds. California Frank's Wild West Show was to be a three days' attraction, but on account of the inclement weather was only able to give two performances.

At the Tillman County Fair Association, Frederick, Okla., the American Aerial Company's Curtiss biplane showed week of September 5 to 9. The biggest and best attendance in the history of the Association was registered. The Latham Greater Shows, featuring Captain Cotton's high dive and balloon ascension, were extra at the fair.

SKATERS AND RINKS

Interviews with Skate Manufacturers Disclose Certain Facts Pointing to a Prosperous Season—General Review of Skating and a Forecast for the Coming Season

By JULIAN T. FITZGERALD

Inquiring into the prospects for roller skating for the coming season, I find that the skate manufacturers have made great preparations to handle a vast amount of business, both in this country and the foreign trade. Mr. Lee Richardson, of the Richardson Ball-Bearing Skate Co., had the following to say: Indications are that the roller skating game will be more popular throughout the country the coming season than during the past two or three years, although the domestic business the past season was in excess of that of the previous year. We are receiving numerous inquiries regarding new rink equipment for rinks which were in operation previous to two years ago, but which have done little during the last two seasons. Our inquiries from foreign countries are numerous, and we are booking large orders for rinks in the Far East, South America and Australia, and we anticipate an active demand for skates during the coming season.

The Chicago Roller Skate Co. sold on August 29, to the Sans Souci Rink, Chicago, an equipment of 1,000 pairs of skates. This rink has been equipped with Chicago Roller skates, which were sold to them five years ago. Alhambra, Mich., has also been equipped with a full line of Chicago skates. President Walter Ware of the Chicago Roller Skate Co., says there seems to be a good demand for skates in general, and we believe the skating game this fall will be good. We have shipped skates of different grades all over the country and abroad. The largest rink we equipped abroad was the Coliseum Rink at Sydney, Australia, managed by James C. Bendroth. Two thousand pairs of our skates were purchased. To me the skating game looks as prosperous as any season we have had the past two years.

GENERAL REVIEW OF SKATING.

In order to convey to the readers of The Billboard, many of whom are anxious to know the life of roller skating, I have herewith land, Grand Rapids, of the larger cities, and a few of the smaller towns in between. In each one of these places I learned that the skating game was good, and that they expected the same results the coming season as they experienced the past season. Many of the rink managers who have held on for a year or two, are getting wise to the fact that they must keep the ball a-rolling by applying their patrons with a trifle more than a floor to skate on. They are coming to the front as up-to-date managers, and looking ahead for something in the amusement line that will pull another big night. These are the ones who will prosper and keep the life in the game for an indefinite period. One of the good attractions to be used as a drawing card, is a good race once in awhile. But then this does not need to be run to death, unless the size of the city or town will warrant the running of races often. One of the best in the racing line is a handicap race. If you can get enough skaters to make it exciting enough. Still another is a half-hour or hour team race. These races have been known to pack other popular rinks who cater to racing as an attraction. There are many other kinds of races and special parties that can be put on as an attraction, and a great many of these local events can be run successfully, and at a very moderate expense. Something must certainly be done to keep life in this great healthful exercise. Now when I express my opinion as I have in these lines above, and speak of roller skating as the most pleasing and healthful exercise in all this world, I hope my readers will not form the impression that I consider myself authority on the life of skating, as I know no more about the duration of this sport than any one else; but the prospects look very bright at the present time.

ORIGIN OF THE ROLLER SKATE.

Few among roller skaters of the present day know anything of the history of this great

HONESDALE RINK, HONESDALE, PA.

compiled a little history and the possibilities for the future. The subject having been up for discussion so often lately: "How long is roller skating going to last?" The same question has been asked by thousands for the last three years. Of course no one can tell exactly how long the "craze," as it is often called, will live; probably from two to four years more, but roller skating in a moderate way will live for many years to come. I find that although there is little difference, if any, in the majority of large rinks, a few of the smaller rinks have fallen off in attendance, but not enough to cause any great stir. Still it seems as though there is always another new rink to take the place of the one that has gone out of business. At any rate, there are reports of new rinks opening up in different parts of the United States, and the new ones seem to offset the closed ones. I spent ten days of my vacation this July learning facts about the roller situation, and visited Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Toronto, Detroit, Cleveland, Grand Rapids, of the larger cities, and a few of the smaller towns in between. In each one of these places I learned that the skating game was good, and that they expected the same results the coming season as they experienced the past season. Many of the rink managers who have held on for a year or two, are getting wise to the fact that they must keep the ball a-rolling by applying their patrons with a trifle more than a floor to skate on. KRUEGER MAKES GOOD.

Al Krueger, the latest addition to the large field of professional skaters now performing at Riverview Rink, Chicago, put one over on the professional stars when he won the final of the one-mile race skated August 27, in one of the most exciting races witnessed at the big rink in some time. This being Krueger's third professional race, the interest was all

The subject of this sketch, R. R. Coburn, won his honors in the early '70s, and later skated exhibitions in all the large cities throughout the United States and Canada in company with Capt. John Miller, of Detroit. Mr. Coburn is now fifty-seven years of age, and is still enthusiastic about skating. He resides in Chicago, and is an officer of the Lincoln Park Skating Club, and an active member of the Western Skating Association.

Another says: "I would not exchange my Organ, that was purchased from the No. Tonawanda Mus. Inst. Works, for any band I ever saw, and I have never had one bit of trouble since I put it in 6 months ago."

Both of these men have used bands in Rinks for years and know what they are talking about. Names furnished if wanted. NORTH TONAWANDA MUSICAL INSTRUMENT WORKS, centered in Tyrrell, who was the fastest skater in the West some time back, and Fred Martin, the Californian, who has been having things all his own way. Little was thought of Krueger, except by a few of his friends who knew what was in him, and all eyes were on Tyrrell and Martin. In the final, Al let Tyrrell sprint to the front, when he had five laps to go, and kept to second position until he had three laps to go, then he let out all the speed that was in him and was never headed, winning the race, with Martin a close second and Schwartz third. The time for the mile was 2:37 3-5, banked track.

FRED MARTIN'S RECORD.

Fred Martin, for the past three years floor manager of the Auditorium Rink, San Jose, Cal., has been showing some wonderful speed the past year. Although he had a record in 1910 of winning 68 out of 75 races in San Jose and capturing the Santa Clara County Championship in 1909, and made one of the fastest records behind a bicycle, his time being 2:33 2-5 for a mile, his record this year is greater, for he has met and defeated some of the best skaters in the profession.

Martin severed his connection with the Auditorium Rink, San Jose, Cal., January 12, and left for Los Angeles, where he skated a one-hour race, going the full distance alone, and defeated a field of six two-men teams, skating 17 miles and 14 laps on a 10-mile track.

His next championship race was for the final of the Coast championship, against Fred Wolfe, in which he won every one of the races, from the one to five miles. He skated his last race in Los Angeles in a twelve-hour race against twenty-seven starters, and won this event, covering 160 miles and breaking all long distance records.

Martin left Los Angeles March 15 and arrived in Detroit, Mich., March 19, just in time for the first heat in the championship meet held there March 19-23. He finished second in the one mile and won the two mile championship.

From Detroit, Fred went to Grand Rapids, Mich., and met and defeated Jack Fotch the best two out of three races, and then came to Chicago. Since his arrival in Chicago he has competed in several races and has met and defeated such great skaters as Henry Becker, champion of Chicago; Edward Schwartz, John McDonald, Frank Neel, Frank Hennesey, Al Krueger, and numerous others.

Mr. Martin will leave in the fall for France, where there will be some good purses offered for the professional skaters this winter. He intends to race in a few cities before he departs for Europe.

PAINTER IN BUDAPEST.

I have received information to the effect that Mr. Alfred Painter, who was formerly manager of the Bivertown Roller Skating Palace at Milwaukee, Wis., has gone into the promotion of skating rinks in the old country. Mr. Painter has placed an order with the foreign representatives of the Richardson Ball Bearing Skate Company for 1,000 pairs of skates for his Budapest Rink, which he will open to the public early in November. He will also open a roller rink at Vienna. Mr. Painter severed his connection with the Milwaukee Rink over two years ago and left for parts unknown, stating that he would some day show the people how to promote rinks and from the reports received, it looks as though he was going to carry out his predictions.

RINK NOTES.

Downer, are booking a high-class line of attractions, and look forward to an exceptionally good season.

The Madison Gardens Rink, Chicago, Ill., H. McCormack, proprietor, opens September 18. The rink has been renovated and newly decorated, and 32,000 feet of new flooring laid. The rink will be conducted as heretofore, "strictly high-class." Mr. McCormack objects to racing in his rink on the grounds that it tends to rowdyism, and also is a great dust maker, on account of the pumice or some other dirt making material used so the skaters can hold the turns at high speed. If these objectionable features could be eliminated he would be glad to feature racing.

With the theatrical season now running full blast, the last of the local pleasure institutions to respond to the call of the amusement public will be the Music Hall Rink, Cincinnati, Ohio, which opens its eighth consecutive season the first Monday in November. Roller skating in the Queen City has enjoyed a big revival in the past year, and looks like a fixture in those parts. The rink management is firmly convinced that this highly fascinating and popular pastime must soon take rank with other standard and representative amusements throughout the land, operating a regular season of opening and closing, such as theatres, parks, etc. The gratifying magnitude of past prosperous seasons encourages the Music Hall promoters to put forth greater efforts than ever this fall. If a lavish investiture of money will bring about the desired results, the New Rink will be a thing of beauty, and its equipment and accessories the final word in perfection, all redounding with credit to the capabilities and wisdom of the management. A new skating floor was contemplated, but not considered feasible, owing to a convention occupying the big hall late in October, but a brand new surface will surely be in prospect for next year. Arrangements will be made for booking the best attractions before the public at the present time, with a big feature for the opening weeks. Greater attention will be directed toward display advertising. The season's sporting program will contain a monster athletic carnival, including the Olympian athletes, and the Cincinnati racing enthusiasts will again see the World's Congress of speed skaters in action. With the recent purchase of several hundred pairs of new skates, the magnificent $10,000 decorative features of 1911 automobile show, the other commodious changes in the interior, together with the local attractions, that have proven great favorites, the season of 1911-1912 at the New Rink-Music Hall will be launched with the greatest celebrity in its history. Miller J. Higgins, the widely known professional ball player, though retaining his holdings in the company, retires this season as active head of the rink to look after his extensive real estate interests. The directors have installed Herman M. Ritt as manager, and a better selection could not have been made. Many years of activity in the local field fits him admirably for this important position of handling the New Rink's affairs.

The Vernons, Frank and Lillian, played a week's engagement at the Honesdale (Pa.) Rink week of July 3 and scored such a big hit that the management engaged them for a two weeks' return engagement, which ended August 26 with the largest attendance in the history of the rink—597 paid admissions, which is great, when it is taken into consideration that the population of the town is only 8,000. The rink is enjoying a fine business under the management of E. H. Cortwright. A new $1,800 band organ, made by the North Tonawanda Musical Instrument Works, has been installed

CARNIVAL NEWS

Notes from Representative Carnival Amusement Companies Scattered Here and There Throughout America—Pithy Paragraphs and Pertinent Suggestions by an Old Trooper

PARKER SHOWS NOTES.

During the run from Calgary to Vancouver, B. C., the Parker Shows were delayed by a wreck which took two cars, injured one man, killed a pony, and the eight-footed horse. In addition to having his ribs broken, was injured internally. Other minor damages were sustained by the shows but quick work got them on the road again.

The Great Bertini, who has the sensational spiral tower act with the shows, writes that the most beautiful scenery he ever saw has been a very attractive feature of the trip to Vancouver, and that every one enjoyed it immensely.

Business has been great during the Canadian engagement of the Parker Shows. It is said from good authority that the best day's business was $7,380, which is indeed a remarkable showing. This indicates that the shows, with their high-class attractions, are appreciated by the people of Canada.

PATTERSON SHOW NOTES.

Beatrice Wernitz of the team of Hayes and Beatrice Wernitz, aerial artists, celebrated a birthday during our engagement in Jackson, Mo. Several of the members of the company planned a surprise party on the night of the birthday and this was carried to a most successful termination, the big top of the trained animal show being converted into a banquet hall and a tempting and substantial "Dutch" lunch was served to which all did ample justice. Many beautiful and useful presents were received by the honored guest. It was in the wee small hours of the morning when the party broke up and it was the unanimous opinion of those present that many such enjoyable occasions would be welcome.

During the engagement at Beardstown, Ill., week of August 21, Mr. Patterson purchased a load of watermelons for his employees. These were unloaded at the animal show and all were given an invitation to help themselves. Beardstown has a reputation for raising fine melons, and all had their fill of good ones in our manager's treat.

While at Beardstown the people with the company held an informal dancing party that was largely attended and greatly enjoyed. The event was held in the Town Hall, the music being supplied by an orchestra made up of the members of the several attractions.

Beardstown was a week of big business. It was the twentieth annual fish fry and celebration. Friday was fish fry day and all records for attendance on this day were broken.

Harry Blitz, widely known as the Hahn-Hahn Man, has joined the Patterson Annex and is more than making good. For originality and comedy Blitz is a wonder and never fails to attract a crowd to the front of the show.

Mr. Patterson made a trip to the new permanent winter-quarters of the Patterson Shows, at Paola, Kan., while we were playing Chillicothe, Mo., during the week of August 28, and closed contracts for the building of the slide-track that is to park the Patterson cars and for several new buildings which are to be finished before closing time. He reports winter-quarters as a very busy place at the present time with section hands, masons, carpenters and others who will be busy there up to the time that the Patterson train pulls into the winter-quarters.

Mrs. R. H. Brainerd and son, Rowe, of Kansas City, Mo., have returned home after several weeks' visit with her daughter, Mrs. James Patterson.

This week the Great Patterson Shows are at Lincoln, Neb., finishing the attractions on the state fair grounds with the Topeka, Kan., State Fair to follow.

GREAT GOWDY SHOWS NOTES.

The Flying Huff Brothers joined the shows at Black Rock, Ark., August 31, presenting their sensational aerial return act as a free attraction.

The "Wards" have also joined, their educated dogs being one of the features of the Novelty Circus.

Col. M. M. Sandford has the front of the Novelty Circus, big feature show.

Col. Gowdy has secured some of the best Arkansas fair dates, and has booked a real aeroplane for the Great Gowdy Shows' Southern tour.

The Great Gowdy Shows furnished the attractions for the annual reunion of the Blue and the Gray, at Mammoth Springs, Ark., week of August 21, and did an enormous business despite rain and opposition. The shows consist of Gowdy's Big City Minstrels; School-days Musical Comedy; Novelty Circus; Eva, Fattest Girl on Earth; Deep Sea and Jungle Exhibit; Igorrote Village; Carry-us-All; Ocean Wave; Ferris Wheel; Miniature Merry-go-Round; Prof. Ward's Concert Band; and the Famous Flying Huff Brothers, big free act. This company carries a nice line of legitimate concessions.

CARNIVAL CONVERSATION.

By RED ONION.

Mr. Possibilist—If the carnival business is dead (as you say), get out of it. Simply a suggestion.

Chas. LeRoy of Brooklyn, says: "I am not going to promote any more carnivals." So be it, Mr. LeRoy, if you wish; the earth still revolves on its axis, regardless of your ultimatum.

Program solicitors—When the book form of program does not go, try the fan. It is just an ordinary cardboard fan with program and "uda" printed on each side. The committee in Rahway, N. J., made a good sum out of the fan style of program. Very novel, I can assure you.

Frank McCrahen (who, in appearance, and general make-up looks more like a bank president than a concessionaire) left New York for the Toronto Exposition with five concessions and twenty assistants. McCrahen will play all the big fairs before returning to New York. Watch him get the money.

Excellent reports come from all shows, and concessions now playing the Canadian fairs.

Joseph G. Ferari opens his fair season with an entire new outfit, front, top, arena and dms. Joseph G. says: "Watch me!" Well, old scout, we will try to train our optics in your direction.

While you are looking forward to the fairs to redeem your present losses, it would be well to look a little beyond, into next season, for instance. Plan today, you may win tomorrow.

The carnival license is $100 a day in Harrisonburg, Va. Who wants to play there, anyway?

Mike, Lonise—Why don't you take your Monkey Music Hall out under canvas? I think it would be a great show—that is, if you carry a complete outfit in every detail. The monkeys are great.

Door talkers—Do not make the mistake of trying to use the same stereotyped talk on every show. Say something that consistently applies to the show you are talking on.

Captain Tom Wilmoth and Princess Virginia, well-known animal trainers, formerly with Geo. W. Rollins' Wild Animal Arena, are handling the animal acts with Sig. Santelle Nine Big Shows, of which Mr. Rollins is an equal owner. Every one knows Rollins.

There are too many of the Try-to-get-rich-quick Wallingfords in the business. How dismayingly they have failed in the past. The future looks just as gloomy for them. So buzzed the little progressive bee.

Adolph Seeman, for the past several months has been the director of amusements at the famous park and excursion resort, Pen Mar, Pa. (near Butlerville). This resort is preparing an elaborate program of carnival features in commemoration of its thirty-sixth anniversary, which takes place soon. Adolph did it.

George L. Macfarlane is a press agent. I mean press agent in every sense the term press agent can be applied. George has had commercial, political, exposition, park, fair, circus, carnival, vaudeville, musical, dramatic and motion picture experience. At present he is exploiting Tompkins' Wild West. So long, old boy. Wake 'em up in Maine.

Publicity promoters—Do not ask the local committee how much advertising should be done. Tell them—convince them that you know your business.

Meridea, Coas., is a good carnival town. I mean, under proper auspices. The centennial committee for instance. Geo. W. Tomasso aided good money there. All remember it.

The Living Wonders of the World, now exhibiting at Coney Island, open their fair season week of Sept. 20, at Batavia, N. Y. The show comprises eight pits in which you find the following living oddities: Mlle. Christina, tattooed lady; Fantima, the Ethiopian fat woman; Ursula, the bear girl; Miss Alpinia, fat woman; Roh Roy, Ahluu wonder; Bonita, midge fat woman; Bliss Amy, fat woman; and Muzetti, anatomical wonder.

This outfit is managed by N. Salih, with the following staff: Nicholas Forzy, lecturer; Jack Segel, Thos. J. Manning, Joba Nicholli and Nathan Bergman, talkers and ticket sellers. Ed Saner is handling the canvas. This show was originally framed up by King Karlo, and was in Dreamland proper previous to the fire. I must further add that it has been among the heat money-getters at the Island this season. Sufficient.

Leo Gordon, one of the prominent concessionaires at Coney Island, expects to embark in a commercial line in New York this winter. Leo knows the carnival game.

Captain Louis Sorcho and his Deen Sea Divers who have been making their up at Coney Island all season, opens his fair tour at Syracuse (New York State Fair). I will tell you more soon. The "king of deep sea divers" has many surprises in his show. I, myself, was surprised at the completeness of his equipment.

The K. & E. (Kojan and Ebert) Amusement Co. of Coney Island, opens their fair season week of September 4, at Wilkes-Barre, Pa. This company takes out two shows, and will tour every fair of importance until the close of the season. One show, in which Miss Anne Francis is featured, is called You Know Us Girls. The other is a genuine Russian Village, vividly shown by sons and daughters of the Czar's domain.

The recent Old Home Week in Pottsville, Pa., is a good illustration of what I mean by carnival shows being used as a "fill in." The real celebration was on the streets in the center of the city. The shows are located on a lot three miles away, with poor car service, and as a consequence, no business was done by them. The concessions, which were on the streets, made big money. Showmen and concessionaires know I am right.

Hayden's scenic production, The Inferno, from the studio of E. J. Hayden & Co. of Brooklyn, opens (with an entire new outfit, front, top, seats, stage and scenic equipment) week of Sept. 4, at the Wilkes-Barre Fair. The Inferno portrays the seven deadly sins as portrayed by the celebrated Italian poet and philosopher, Dante, who lived in the thirteenth century, and whose work still lives. Hayden has fringed it with a well outfit that should get the money. I believe it will. This show was at Coney Island the first half of the season. The staff for the road tour will be: E. J. Hayden, manager; E. J. Hayden Jr., talker; Gus Meurer, lecturer, and John Welch, canvasman. I would like showmen to look this show over.

The man who lectures on a show, production or exhibit, has the making of the show in many instances. It is upon him to a great extent the responsibility of creating the favorable impression so much desired in shows of the character usually seen under canvas. Good lecturers are in demand.

Coney Island is the place where they create the times, Carnival showmen go there; you will find many things to interest you.

CARNIVAL NOTES.

The famous Wortham & Allen United Shows are now playing the best time ever booked by the company. To all their contracts they now carry twenty-two paid attractions. The list is as follows: Smezer, C. H. (Red) Bell, manager; Millie Christine, Col. Smith, manager; City of Yesterday, Red Bell, manager; What is it? W. F. Wallace, manager; Howard's Dog-At-Home, Curly Howard, manager; Arshia, Mlle. Essie Fay, manager; John J. A. Sutherland, manager; Rice's Five-in-One and Leo, the Wonder, W. H. Rice, manager; Buckskin Ben's Jungle Show, Buckskin Ben's Wild West, Buckskin Ben, manager; International Theatre, De-Kreko Bros., mgrs.; Florida Minstrels, Geo. Lee, manager; Smith's Electric Palace, Wm. Smith, manager; Wallace's Seven-in-One, W. F. Sutherland, manager; Pharaoh's Daughter, W. Van Horne, mgr.; American Wonder, Jim Simpson, manager; Tiny, the little horse, Prof. Ewing, manager; Little Wheel, John Bryan, manager; Ferris Wheel, Ocean Wave, Parker Carry-us-All, O. J. Bucklin, manager. It takes twenty-sixty-foot cars to carry this paraphernalia. The company is booked solid until Christmas. They furnish all the attractions week of Sept. 4 at the Indiana State Fair, and have the following fairs and homecomings booked ahead: Monroe, Elkhorn and Watertown, Wis., fairs; Illinois State Fair, Arkansas State Fair, Two-State Fair, Ft. Smith, Ark.; International Exposition, San Antonio, Tex.; Moose Homecoming, Milwaukee, Wis.; Rolling Homecoming, Alton, Ill.; Merchant's Fifteenth Anniversary, Paris, Tex.

The McMahon Amusement Co. played to quite a large crowd at the Frankfort Old Settlers' Reunion, which was held at Frankfort, Kansas, August 31-Sept. 2. It was about the best managed picnic which the McMahon Amusement Co. has played this season. Every member of the different committees worked hand in hand, and co-operated with the showmen and concession people in every way. It seemed amazing that such large crowds could be handled, and every little item put off right on the dot. Howard Reed, the secretary of the reunion, was the "Johnny on the Spot," and that automobile parade will long be remembered by the people who were there. Plenty of free attractions were going every minute; the concessions all got their share, and the privilege man was certainly a square guy. Down in our hearts will always be a remembrance of that good old Frankfort town. It is a pleasure to all of us show people to meet a good, square bunch. The McMahon Amusement Co. has played one of the most successful seasons of its career, and every member of the company has a nice well-padded pocketbook. Our high diver, Mr. Tiller, got his neck and back a little sprained, but is coming out all right. Bert Gardner's back and his broken wrist is about healed up. He makes a handy ticket seller, as he's got a smile about one mile long and one inch wide.

The Lewis and Clark shows are having one of the most prosperous seasons in their history on their tour to the coast. Weather has been fine, in fact, everything has been in their favor. The company has remained intact since the opening date, April 5. The 15-piece band has created a furore, and the boys deserve it, as they are delivering the real stuff. Roster of company: F. L. Kirsch, manager; Ed. F. Davis, general agent; Roy C. Davis, business manager; Mrs. F. L. Kirsch, Ace Andrews, E. C. Beckwith, mgr. and J. J. Duerr, Mlle. Maud Hackett, Clyde Ingles, F. K. Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Mann, A. D. McCampbell, Charles B. McKinney, E. C. Ohliger, S. B. Sweet, L. A. Sterzenbach, Nick M. Tittel, E. L. Witham, J. F. Kramer, Oliver Spence, (Montana Slim) Carley Taylor, chef; H. Carter, boss canvasman and eight assistants.

Roster of Woods' Four Brother Shows, now playing Alabama: J. L. Wood, owner and manager; Arthur Stewart, general agent; company carries seven paid attractions, Old Plantation, Lunette, big snake show, merry-go-round and Ferris wheel, featuring Nelson's Roman Hippodrome and Circus, with line-up as follows: Karl Nelson, owner and manager; Robert Moon, iron-jaw and cloud swing; Miss Mae Nelson, rolling globe; Miss Leona Ellis, Roman ladder and contortion; Karl Nelson, snake wire and balancing train; Charles Ward, producing clown and juggler; Ward and Moon, revolving ladder; the Aerial Moons, double traps and Roman ring artists. Prof. Nelson, light wire, is the free act.

The Livingston and Onitro County Carnival was held at Livonlay, N. Y., August 7 to 12, inclusive. The carnival was held day and night, and the average attendance was about 1500. Among the attractions and privileges were Lionel Legare, in spiral tower act; Flying Wernitz Duo, aerial artists; De Graw and De Graw, acrobatic comedians; Herrguth Bros., balloon races; Dora, the myrtle wind-reader; Tynan's Military Band; Benny Van's Hippodrome; vaudeville; Bond's Animal show; merry-go-round, ocean wave, Ferris wheel, games, dances, novelties, refreshment and lunch stands. The carnival was under the management of Bolles & Barber Carnival Co., and patrons were more than pleased.

have been showing since their opening about a month ago. They will furnish the attractions for the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Fair, which is to be held in Kansas City, Kan., next week. Five shows, a Ferris wheel and a new Parker carry-us-all compose the line-up. Among the shows are Pharaoh's Daughter, Burning of Rome, Crazy House and several others. The shows are clean, up-to-date and have attractive fronts. Though a new company they are one of the best on the road and are getting good dates.

Beasley's Street Fair showed at Montrose, Colo., September 4 to 9, and did a good business. The Devine Bros., glass blowers, the two big snakes, Nellie, the fat girl, weight, 637 pounds; La Belle Rouge, the "Fire" Sun Worshipers, dancers, etc., were the pay attractions. To this were added several concessions and the thrilling act of La Bard, who rides down an incline and jumps a gap of about twenty feet. The company will play at Lay, Colo., week of the convention of the Elks' Lodge, September 11-16.

The Pacific Coast Amusement Co. closed a fairly successful season September 9 at Republic, Wash. The company will go at once to headquarters at Portland, Ore., where work will be started on next season's campaign. Next season will be started with everything new and "bigger and better than ever." Instead of closing at the regular time next season, the months of November and December will be filled in the South.

C. A. Duffy of the H. D. Jones Riding Devices & Concessions, reports that the company has had fair business the entire season. It down is back with the company after a two weeks' illness. Steve Jones has also returned after a pleasant week's visit with relatives and friends at Anderson, Ind. Thos McGrail has resigned as advance agent, and will be succeeded by William Franks Sept. 18.

The Negro & Loos Carnival Company will furnish amusements for the Washington, Ind., Aerie of Eagles' second annual Fall Festival and Homecoming at Washington, Ind., September 25-30. The company is under contract to furnish paid shows, merry-go-round, Ferris wheel, two free attractions and two brass bands.

Frank Coleman, the balloonist, was compelled to leave the Johnny J. Jones Show at Ellyria, O., and go home to have an operation performed. He expects to be able to rejoin the show in about three or four weeks. He left his balloon with the shows, and during his absence Prof. James Collins will make ascensions.

The Famous Window Shows have closed contracts to furnish the attractions for the Alton (Ill.) Seventh Annual Fair, the Breese (Ill.) Day and Night Fair and the Shelbyville (Ill.) Merchants' Fall Festival. These fairs have airship flights and at Shelbyville the merchants are to give away $1,000 in gold during their celebration.

Dodson Brothers have combined their shows and will go Southwest with a carnival of their own, known as Dodson Bros.' Combined Shows. They have three more fair dates to play. Two more shows have been purchased, now making five. They will have an ad in the issue of The Billboard dated September 30.

J. J. Magee (the Quaker), has been engaged to make the openings with W. H. Yost's Famous Show, playing fairs. Harry Benson has charge of the ticket box with the same company.

Jones Concession Company, under the management of A. H. Jones, has met with big success playing Kentucky fairs. The company is now headed South for a long tour at the big ones.

Louis J. Berger, once in the carnival business, is now with the Rex Smith Aeroplane Co. of Washington, D. C. He is on the road in charge of the machinery.

Mrs. Rose McIntire has completely recovered from her recent serious injury and rejoined John B. Smith Shows at Camden, Ohio.

Ike Neils did not sell his Palace of Knowledge, but is getting top money in the privilege business.

The C. J. Koppler Shows have purchased Ferris wheel. The addition makes the Midway look fine.

This leaves 60 cents profit, which is the kind of a margin a crew manager wants and needs. We have fellows selling 20, 30, 40 and as high as 60 boxes a day alone. Of course, with a crew it all depends on the men and the number.

You Ought to See that New, Gorgeous Box Top—Just Out!

It certainly is an eye opener. Our motto is "Goods well shown are half sold." Not only flashy lithographed labels for the bottles, powder boxes and wrappers for the soap, all in six bright colors and gold, but we finish it off with this bright, attractive box top with plenty of gold, which makes it look rich. You may be more interested in the show for your money than in real value, but we wish to say here that the quality is there. Each and every article will give satisfaction. BUT HOW CAN WE DO IT? Because we have a big factory; because we buy right in large quantities; because we have a whopper of an output. We do not want to double our money, but are satisfied with a cent or two net profit on each box to salt away for ourselves.

Nothing has ever made such a gigantic success as our combination packages. We have them from 10 cents to 75 cents. Our Shampoo Combination for 15 cents for four years has had a most phenomenal success.

You may recall our three previous double-page ads in special issues of "The Billboard," showing up our "HALF-YARD OF SOAP FOR 18 CENTS." This catchy phrase was talked of from Coast to Coast as a clever advertising expression. This eight-bar box (half-yard) with 8-inch tension shears for 10 cents extra, for two years has had a wonderful run.

Selling to Merchants Our SHAVING OUTFITS on "NO GAME OF CHANCE" Raffle Plan

This can be worked evenings and rainy days at Big Profit

MERCHANT'S OUTFIT No. 1

Dealer Collects $4.50

Sells For $2.50

Dealer's Profit $2.00

This Outfit consists of a Raffle Card, 30 cakes of Pearl Dentifrice and a $4.50 Shaver's Outfit. The dealer sells a cake of Pearl Dentifrice for from 1c to 25c, giving with each cake a free chance on the Shaver's Outfit. The cost of each cake of Pearl Dentifrice corresponds with the number drawn, except numbers from 26 to 30 inclusive, which cost 25c each. The total amount realized on 30 cakes is $4.50.

OUTFIT No. 4 IS A CORKER

No Law Ever Made Could Find Fault With This Plan

Our Cuticle Cream Shaving Soap is equal to any shaving soap made—always sells for 10 cents. Any man can see 10 cent value in it—it is worth that much to him. Every purchaser of a cake of Shaving Cream gets a chance on the Shaver's Set. Everybody pays 10 cents—everybody gets his money's worth. Some fortunate "duffer" gets the lucky number and gets the Shaver's Set. Outfit No. 4 consists of Shaver's Set, cards numbered from 1 to 50, and 50 cakes of Shaving Soap in cartons.

We have 7 other successful plans. No. 8 has double premiums, one for the lucky number and one for the person spending the most money. He who gets stung on the high numbers stands BEST CHANCE of getting this last premium and an EQUAL CHANCE of getting the first one also.

	Value
A Diamond Razor, best steel and finish . . .	$3.00
1 bottle Empress Eau de Quinine Hair Tonic . .	.50
1 cake Cuticle Shaving Cream, none better made .	.10
1 jar Complexion Cream, just it for after shaving .	.50
1 box Face Powder, takes off that "nigger's-heel" shine25
1 bottle Pearl Tooth Powder, cleans the teeth, sweetens the breath25

Total Value, $4.60

Our regular price when sold separate from the raffle plan is 75 cents. A big seller. Best field is in factories at noon hours. As high as 10 sales in a half-hour not a rare thing, but a very profitable one, with $8 to the good. We also have a fine raffle card plan for this factory work, too, that WORKS.

THE MACHINE THAT GIVES RESULTS

FIREPROOF=STEADY=FLICKERLESS

Will outwear any two machines on the market. No repairs required. We have machines working for two years and a half that have not had one cent's worth of repairs. Why take chances with some inferior make? Besides, if you are awake, write and get a copy of our guarantee before purchasing. You are in the game—why not play it right? Here is something to think over: More light, rock-steady, ABSOLUTELY FLICKERLESS on 20 minute run, less complicated, and good for a lifetime with ordinary care.

Will be glad to furnish particulars upon receipt of your name and address.

A SHATTERED DREAM (Drama; released Sept. 14; length, 1,000 feet).—Father Martin had lived carefully all his days in order to save enough money to enable him to fulfill the dream of his life, a visit to his birthplace across the seas. On the eve of his departure, a parishioner came and confessed a theft, exposure of which would spell his ruin. The amount of the theft was the same as Father Martin has accumulated. The clergyman, on hearing of the young man's plight, hesitated only a moment, when, with magnanimous nobility he gave up that which was his dearest passion, to save a soul from disgrace. More noble charity would be difficult to conceive.

EDISON.

THE SHERIFF (Drama; released Sept. 16; length, 1,000 feet).—The sheriff is a youngish man devoted to his wife, but he has no patience with his brother-in-law, who puts in most of his time at gambling. This young man is without funds and in order to replenish his finances holds up the stage. The actual hold-up is not shown on the screen, but it is made evident that the coach has been robbed and the robber got away with the mail bags after being wounded in the arm. As the sheriff is out on the trail of the robber, the latter comes home, his sister soon learns the facts, but on his promise to lead a better life, assists him to escape. By arousing the sheriff's jealousy she keeps him in the house until her brother has time to get away. The young man writes back that he has returned all taken from the stage coach, and that he will lead a better life henceforth, and the wife is forgiven for her innocent deception.

THE RAILOR'S LOVE LETTER (Drama; released Sept. 16; length, 1,000 feet).—Jack is visiting the girl of his choice, Mary. Nora happens in and asks Jack to see her home. Jack is called away suddenly without saying farewell to Mary. He writes a love letter which Nora intercepts and reads. While she is musing over the letter Mary comes along and playfully snatches it out of her hand. Nora does not reveal that the letter is for Mary and not herself. Poor little Mary reads its contents and leaves without a word. She becomes ill with brain fever, and while in a state of delirium wanders out and searches along the shore for her lost one. Nora finds her and brings her home. A week later Jack returns and Nora confesses her guilt and Mary comes into her own.

AN UNKNOWN LANGUAGE (Comedy; released Sept. 20; length, 985 feet).—A boy and a girl, sweethearts, concoct a letter written in a reverse hand and send it to the girl's father, just for a lark. The fathers of both are linguists and cronies. When the letter arrives they enter into discussion regarding same, one one declaring it to be Archaic Greek, while the other insists it is Hebrew, with the result that they quarrel and forbid the young people to speak or write each other. The young man dictates a message on a phonograph cylinder and sends it to the girl. The message was one asking her to elope, which they do. The fathers pursue in an automobile, and then in a boat, which capsizes, and the young people rescue them from the water, but only after they consent to the wedding. The mysterious letter is then explained, and all ends in a blessing and a hearty laugh.

THE BATTLE OF TRAFALGAR (Drama; released Sept. 22; length, 1,000 feet).—Showing Lord Nelson leaving the admiralty room where he made his famous speech, and then giving his captains details of the plan of the battle. The episodes of the letter, in which Nelson called back the mail ship. Then to the morning of the battle when the fleet of the enemy is sighted. Nelson bidding farewell to his captains, having at that time a presentiment of death. Then comes the real battle, the ships in action, the firing of the guns, ships on fire, and then a close view of the deck of the Victory, the fighting top of the Redoubtable, the fatal shot, and Nelson's fall. His farewell to Captain Hardy, news of the victory and finally his death.

THE BIG DAM (Drama; released Sept. 23; length, 1,000 feet).—Young Bedford marries the girl that Dillon, a rival contractor, is also in love with, and then gets a contract for a large dam, to be completed within a stipulated time under forfeit of $25,000. Dillon is vindictive and determines to be revenged. He disguises himself and gets Bedford to hire him as foreman. He excites discontent among the men and hampers the work in numerous ways. Finally, with only two days in which to finish the work, he gets Bedford away from the work by means of a fake telegram, and then tamper with a machine so that it breaks down. Then Dillon causes the men to quit work altogether, but Mrs. Bedford, bearing of the conditions, goes to the scene of operations. Dillon tear off his disguise and the whole plot is clear. At the point of a revolver she holds Dillon up until she explains things to the men, who, when they understand the situation, jump to work and the job is finished on time. Bedford returns home discouraged, but his wife dashes in and there is a joyful explanation.

IMP.

THE GREAT CHARLESTON HURRICANE FLOOD (Special; release Sept. 18; length, 500 feet).—Views taken in Charleston, S. C., during the havoc wrought by the great storm the latter part of August. It was the most severe storm experienced on the coast for years, and many vessels were lost at sea. The views were taken in the wind and rain by an Imp photographer, who was hastily despatched to the storm center, and succeeded in getting some fine views of the wrecked city. On the same reel is:

THE BICYCLE BUG'S DREAM (Comedy; length, 500 feet).—A convict is visited by a minister, who offers him consolation. The prisoner pounces upon the dominie, changes clothing with him, and making good his escape from the prison, appropriates a bicycle, and a funny chase ensues. There is an exhibition of trick riding that is marvelous, the prisoner being chased performs all sorts of seemingly impossible antics to return to prison and again take up his position on his rude bunk. He awakes to discover it has all been a dream.

THE REGISTERED MAIL (Drama; release Sept. 21; length, 1,000 feet).—Amos Grantly, a poor mechanic, with a wife and child, receives a letter from a wealthy aunt, offering to adopt the child. After consulting his wife, they agree to the aunt's proposition. They soon find, however, that they miss the child more than they thought they would. At first Ethel is delighted with life at the home of her aunt, surrounded by every luxury, but it is not home, and she soon grieves for her parents. At last she determines to return home without letting her relatives into the secret. She has no money, but remembers the kindness of the mailman who delivered letters at her old home, and in her childish ingenuity conceives the idea of mailing herself home. Securing a stamp she writes her home address on a piece of paper and pins it on her breast. How she is eventually returned home by the men in the mail service is a pretty story. She is finally carried into the presence of her parents by the postman, and their surprise and joy repays her for the return.

NESTOR.

MUTT AND JEFF AND THE NEWSBOYS (Comedy; released September 16; length, 500 feet).—Mutt and Jeff buy stocks and speculate with their entire fortune of ten dollars. At first they win and Jeff wants to close out, but Mutt refuses, and in the end they are cleaned out, with but a dollar left. Jeff, angry, severs partnership and goes his way. From a newsboy he learns that selling papers is a profitable business and, entering this field, soon becomes the owner of a busy newsstand. Meantime, Mutt has also got the newspaper idea, and, in knickers, we see him with a bundle of papers. He is not, however, successful, and later takes a job peddling papers for Jeff. He does fairly well, until he attempts to buy a drink at the corner emporium—being a boy, they refuse to serve him, and when he remonstrates, he is pinched by the trust officer. Jeff goes to court and reclaims "his son" after a series of highly complicated scenes.

ACROSS THE DIVIDE (Drama; release September 20; length, 500 feet).—At Lem Bassett's invitation, John stops to get a drink, and soon gets in such condition that he loses his job. He returns to the saloon, is thrown out, and taken home by Bassett. As soon as Lem was left alone with Mary, John's wife, he attempted to embrace her, but her cry brought John, who attacked Lem in the struggle Mary was pushed aside and fell, striking her head, and lay unconscious. Bassett runs out and John, bellowing his wife dead, pursues; and in a desperate struggle Lem falls over the cliff. John flees the state, and Mary, recovering later, is told that her husband fell over the cliff. Fifteen years later, John, who has become a "gentleman of fortune," is living in wait for the stagecoach, with his daughter, who with her mother and brother had moved West, happened upon them. He is attempting to protect her from his then John is wounded, but the others run off, and the girl signs the stagecoach and the supposed dead husband and wife are happily united.

THANHOUSER

THE BUDDHIST PRIESTESS (Drama; released September 12; length, — feet).—A young missionary, his wife and little daughter, start for a section of Japan where white men are unknown. After they have gone some distance into the interior, the missionary and his wife are stricken with the plague, and their native escorts flee, leaving them helpless. The fleeing bearers loot a Buddhist temple carrying off a jeweled idol. The missionary and his wife die, and the child left alone, wanders off. She comes to the temple, and finding it deserted, falls asleep on the altar, where she is found by natives, who think she is their idol come to life, and worship her as their god. Some years later, an American Naval officer, while hunting, discovers the girl. They soon fall in love, and the officer attempts to carry her away with him, but they are attacked by indignant natives. They take refuge in the temple, and by means of a carrier pigeon get help from the young officer's ship, just in time to save him and his future bride.

IN THE CHORUS (Drama; released Sept. 15; length, — feet).—A young widow, in need, places her little daughter in a charitable institution and secures work as a chorus girl. The little girl runs away from the institution and is adopted by an old couple. The asylum authorities inform the mother that the child has been drowned, and she tries to drown her sorrow in a life of gaiety. Ten years later a theatrical manager, passing a farmhouse, hears a girl sing, and offers her an engagement which she accepts. The mother is a member of the same chorus, and with the other members of the company laughs at the girl's country ways. Accidentally she discovers a scar on the girl's shoulder and recognizes her as her daughter, but the girl does not know her. She determines to save the girl from the path she has followed, and leads her back to the home of her foster parents. When the girl is asleep at night, she leaves her, steals out into the night, determined to lead a new life, and in time becomes worthy to reveal herself to the daughter she had lost, but found again.

SOLAX

HER UNCLE'S WILL (Comedy; released September 13; length, — feet).—Ethel Newcomb and Frank Marlow are about to be married, when Ethel receives word from her uncle, John Waring, had died and left her a large fortune on condition that she marry his overseer, Duncan Hale. Should she refuse to marry Hale, she is to lose the money, should Hale refuse to marry her, she is to get the money. Ethel and her sweetheart are much perplexed as to what to do, but Ethel's brother, Bob, comes to the rescue by dressing as an unattractive girl and making love to Hale, who gets so disgusted that he willingly signs a paper refusing to marry Ethel Newcomb, after which Ethel and Frank are married and all ends merrily.

THE ALTERED MESSAGE (Drama; released September 15; length, — feet).—Col. Grant, commanding officer at Fort Reno, receives a message to put his entire regiment in the field to capture a band of smugglers. The message read to leave Captain Dean in command of the post, but the Colonel's daughter, Nellie, alters the message to read that Captain West, her sweetheart, is to be left. Later the Colonel receives a telegram asking the name of the officer he left in charge of the post. He realizes that a mistake has been made and sends an officer back to the post to place Capt. West under arrest and return with him at once. Nellie accompanies them back to field headquarters, and on the way they are attacked by smugglers. Nellie makes a dash for aid, and on the way meets her father and Capt. Standing. The Colonel directs the Captain to return to his troop and immediately proceeds to the rescue of the two imperiled officers.

Which Would YOU Rather Pay?

After he bought a Compensarc

This man is on a 220 volt circuit and as his moving picture lamp only requires 35 volts at the arc, he formerly used a rheostat to reduce the voltage. In this way he paid for about 3 times as much "juice" as he actually needed. Then he figured he needed this money more than the Lighting Company and he bought a

EXPERIENCE OF IMP. CO.

Mr. Hayward Mack tells this one: During the course of the stay in Havana an Italian grand opera company failed to find sufficient favor among the natives to bring proceeds up to expenses, and they were left stranded at the hotel, while the Payret Theatre closed until the next company was due. The day after the last performance the Imps were on their way to a place outside the city, where some scenes were to be taken. They were already made up for the pictures, and some women on the street car took them for the stranded opera troupe. One of the women in the crowd, surmising that the Imps could not speak English, was jesting quite freely about the sad appearance of the singers, and finally suggested that a collection be taken up for their benefit. The remarks the Imps had heard had tickled them almost to the bursting point, and the suggestion of the collection for their benefit was more than they could stand. At this remark, Mr. Ince, director of the company, arose, and pulling a wad of money from his pocket of such size as to forbid passage of it through the epiglottis of any equine, nearly a thousand dollars which he had to spend on this production, showed it to the crowd and thanked them very kindly for their offer just as the car reached its destination and the company were ready to alight. Mr. Mack declares he will never forget the expression on the women's faces as they gazed from the car windows at the company strutting off in the distance, with Mr. Ince's pocket bulging out on the side where he carried the greenbacks.

Mr. Weston, the allround man of the company, had many strange and exciting experiences with the people to whom moving pictures themselves were strange, and the taking of them beyond their comprehension, but the following experience he likes the best: It was decided to take a military picture, and as a Dutch ship was in port, a Dutch setting was determined upon. Mr. Weston was detailed to secure ideas on Dutch military costumes from the officers of the ship. Mr. Weston asked to see the captain. This gentleman was very much inclined to drop Weston overboard rather than converse with him on Dutch customs. Mr. Weston was affable, even subservient. The captain would listen. Mr. Weston told him of the pride with which the Americans looked on the Dutch military system. The captain grew interested. Mr. Weston asked to see some of the military costumes. He was shown them. He admired, praised, even said that he envied the Dutchmen. The captain grew warmer. Finally Mr. Weston asked if he might borrow some of the costumes, stating that he wanted to hold them up and photograph them. The captain was hesitating, but finally agreed to the garments being photographed since it was for "educational purposes," as Weston had put it. After the garments were secured the male members of the Imp company proceeded to take pictures of military life, and, in fact army tactics in Holland, with the aid of the suits. This was not enough. The next day the old captain was prevailed upon to give a naval demonstration, in which he used up several hundred dollars' worth of ammunition. "Who says the Dutch are not strong on education," says Mr. Weston.

Taking of moving pictures in public often requires a great deal of "crust" on the part of the director in order not to have the picture interfered with, and also to get such people who are not in the company and whose pictures are desired to act properly. Mr. Miles was directing the taking of a picture outside the Florida Hotel, on Onislo Street, the main street of the town. It was during the carnival, which is held during Lent, and which turns the town practically over to the amusement-seeking element. Mr. Miles became so interested in the picture that he failed to notice that in holding up traffic he had blocked the street for five or six blocks on both sides of the scene of operation. When the taking of the picture, which lasted about fifteen minutes, was over, Mr. Miles noticed the crowd and two huge copper kettles. The cops sought a reason for blockading Havana's Broadway for fifteen minutes in the middle of the day during the carnival season. Mr. Miles at first could think of no reason especially why he should be allowed this privilege, but he knew that many odd things got by the police in carnival time, so explained that it was part of the carnival. The officers wanted to know the nature of their stunt, so Mr. Miles just told them the name of the picture, where there's Life There's Hope. This sounded fairly enough to be in connection with the carnival, and as the blockade was beginning to loosen about this time, the officers were satisfied, and Mr. Miles was not apprehended.

Joe O'Donnell, electrician, declares that if he ever gets to Spain he is going to square with some one of the nobility there for one of his experiences on the island. Joe and the scenery painter, Kline, were meandering about Havana one Sunday afternoon, when they noticed a Spaniard eyeing them curiously. He followed them for several blocks and finally approached them. He explained that he was a chusfren for a Spanish prince sojourning in Cuba, and also inquired if they would like to see a bull fight. He explained that one had been tipped off to him, and that for the small admission fee of one dollar paid to him the bull fight could be seen. This proposition struck Joe and Kline as being about what they were looking for, and they hailed forth the dollars. The Spaniard then conducted them to a private residence on the outskirts of the town, where he showed them hanging on the wall a rather cheap oil painting of the bull in the battle scene. Kline is somewhat of a painter himself, and has a full appreciation of the art, but he sort of feels, he says, that if ever the Spanish prince journeys to West 56th Street in his machine, there will be a dead Spaniard before they make their exit.

Ruby, the property man, will never again journey in foreign lands without first gaining at least a smattering of the language spoken there. He started out one day to have some of the costumes pressed, and through a misunderstanding was directed the wrong way and landed at the suburban end of one of the trolley lines. As he disembarked from the car he was seized by two officers of the law, neither of whom could speak English, and accused of stealing the garments he had with him. Ruby creased some of the trousers with his fingers, and tried in every way to explain what his mission was, but to no avail. His association with the moving picture actors had taught him much about pantomime, but in this case it failed to work. Ruby refused to be arrested, and the argument lasted for some time. He was just about beginning to think that he would "have to explain to the lieutenant," when a Cuban happened by, and noticing the conversation, casually remarked: "What is it?" Ruby says these three words were the most consoling ones he has ever heard spoken. An interpreter was now on hand who could explain. After some conversation, Ruby was released, and found out the next day that the fine for carrying a gun was six years' imprisonment, and he had a forty-eight in each of his hip pockets all the time, and was sure to have been searched at the police station had not the interpreter happened along just at the moment he did.

A Moving Picture arrested—Mr. Jack Reed Jr.'s experience: A scene was being taken outside the Miramar Hotel, showing a quarrel and fight between some men at a table. In the middle of the scene a hantam-weight Cuban policeman comes around the corner, and seeing the fight, draws his sword, or "machete" (nearly as big as himself), and with a shout came dashing on to the scene, waving his machete in one hand and trying to draw his revolver with the other. The director, photographer and bystanders shouted a warning, but no use—the little blue-coat jumped into the picture, and dashing in among the would-be combatants, ordering their immediate submission to the law. This, of course, broke up the picture, while the director drew out a special permission, signed and sealed by the Mayor of Havana, and showed it to the officer. When the little copper saw the official document his eyes bulged and his demeanor quickly changed from anger to respect, and seeing the looks of annoyance on the faces of the director and actors, quickly said with suave Spanish diplomacy: "Caballeros, you should not be angry at what I have done, as it only serves to show how good and how realistic your 'artistas' perform. It fooled even me, an officer of the law." And then, of course, we had to pat him on the back and call it square.

SHUBERTS' PLANS.

His of Sophocles' Oedipus Rex. Before coming to America, Mr. Harvey will appear in the play at London at the Covent Garden Opera House. Just as soon as the difficulties for presenting the elaborate stage effects are overcome.

The New York presentation will take place at the Manhattan Opera House. Six hundred "supers" will be employed, making the production, in magnitude, almost a rival of the Hippodrome entertainments.

CONTRACTS MADE IN PARIS.

The most important deal consummated by Mr. Shubert in Paris was for the American rights to Alme des Fammes, an extremely laughable comedy in three acts, by M. Maurice Hennequin and M. Georges Mitchell, which has had a triumphant run at the Theatre Palais Royal. Among the other works which he acquired while in the French capital are: The Mystery of the Yellow Chamber, a new melodrama; Balthazar, a new play by Pierre Berton, the author of Sans; The House of Dances, done in Paris by Polaire; and Sherlock Holmes and Arsene Lupin. The last named of these pieces has been the sensation of the year at the Chatelet Theatre. It is an extraordinary comedy, with sensational scenic effects, and shows the efforts of the English detective character to outwit the ruses of the celebrated French thief character.

ARRANGEMENTS WITH PROF. MAX REINHARDT.

During his visit in Germany a meeting was arranged in Munich between Mr. Shubert and Prof. Max Reinhardt, the famous director of the Deutsches Theatre—the man whose genius has invested the art of the stage producer with an undreamed-of significance and has earned for him the title "Europe's stage manager." Prof. Reinhardt spent his summer in Munich as producing manager of the Kuntstler Theatre, where his presentation of Othello has been a triumph. Mr. Shubert obtained the American rights for the Reinhardt version of this work. On the night he witnessed the performance of Die Schone Helene, a selected cast of all the principals appeared as a particular courtesy, it being the custom for one or two of them to rest on off nights, their place being taken by understudies. More important even than the contract for Die Schone Helene, is the arrangement into which Mr. Shubert entered with Prof. Reinhardt for an American production of Sumurun, the extraordinary pantomime which Reinhardt first produced at the Deutsches Theatre in Berlin and which has been hailed as his masterpiece. It is described as a pantomime in nine pictures, founded on an Oriental tale by Friedrich Freiba, with music by Victor Hollander. Mr. Shubert wished to make the American production in October in one of his Broadway houses, but was deterred from doing so by the fact that Prof. Reinhardt could not come to this country immediately. It is definitely understood, however, that Sumurun will be presented in New York just as soon as Prof. Reinhardt is free to visit America and supervise the production in person.

The pantomime is executed on a scale of magnitude and splendor that defies description. The title of the piece is the name of the favorite wife of a jealous Oriental potentate, and the story treats of love, adventure and consequent tragedy in the veritable spirit of East-Asian romance. The plot tells how a beautiful dancer, belonging to a hunchback juggler, is beloved by the son of the sheik, and how the father, also fascinated, purchases her as an addition to his harem. At the same time, Sumurun herself determines to play upon the sentiments of a young man named Nur al Din. All the main characters are brought into the palace with a denouement in which each plays no small part, but which leaves Sumurun and Nur al Din free at last. The marvelous stage setting shows the hazard and the different apartments in the palace and harem.

OTHER NOVELTIES—WILL TAKE AMERICAN COMPANY TO EUROPE.

Herr Schumann, director of the Circus Schumann, which was in Munich at the same time, gave a special performance for the American manager of the New York Hippodrome. Herr Schumann himself, known as the foremost circus man in Germany, appeared in a number of half an hour, introducing a remarkable collection of beautiful horses in new and startling evolutions. Miss Dora Schumann, the daughter of the director, did a thrilling and effective Apache dance on horseback. Mr. Shubert completed arrangements with Herr Schumann by which a number of his most sensational acts will be seen in the Hippodrome circus next year.

During his trip Mr. Shubert was a frequent visitor at leading music halls, variety places and cabaret shows, and obtained many novelties to be seen for the first time at the Winter Garden during the coming season. Prominent in this list is a team of Spanish dancers from L'Aubray in Paris, whose dancing is said to be superior to anything of the kind yet seen here.

In addition to his plan for bringing many European productions and novelties to New York, Mr. Shubert has decided to take an American musical comedy company to Europe for performances in London, Paris, Berlin and Vienna. He is convinced that this form of entertainment, headed by a star comedian like Mr. Lew Fields, surrounded by a specially selected chorus of American beauties, could not fail to score in the European capitals, where American music is now heard everywhere and the beauty of our women is one of the topics of the day.

AMERICAN ANNOUNCEMENTS.

While Mr. Lee Shubert was absent he was, nevertheless, in constant communication with his New York office. The arrangements consummated here by Mr. J. J. Shubert, in addition to his foreign acquisitions, prove that the Messrs. Shubert will be producing managers on an unparalleled scale throughout the coming season.

The new musical productions for which definite plans have been made in New York include: The Kiss Waltz, by Edgar Smith, with lyrics by Matthew Woodward and music by Earl Ziehrer, and with cast including Charles Bigelow, Robert Warwick, Eva Davenport, Sallie Fisher and Martin Brown; Fritzi Schaff in The Duchess, by Joseph Herbert and Harry B. Smith, with music by Victor Herbert, which is to be one of the early metropolitan offerings; The Barefoot Dancer, the music of which is by Felix Albin, the noted composer of Madame Troubadour; Cousin Bobby, which has been adapted by Mark Swan and the music for which is by Karl Mlocker, the composer of The Beggar Student; The Queen of the Night, which is by Paul M. Potter and Franz Lehár, composer of The Merry Widow, and which is to open in Chicago in September, with Harry Conner in the leading role; The Blue Chub, a musical comedy from the German of Engle and Horst, with music by Carl Keppler; Ladies' Day, which is a new and up-to-date American work, by Gustav Luders and Andre Casad, and from which much is expected; Madame Flirt, the book of which is by Leonard Liching, who was responsible for the libretto of The Girl and the Kaiser; Love in Pawn, which is another operetta by Ziehrer; Marriage in Sport, by Franz Lehár and Julius Baner; and Kean, the music of which is by Alexander Stefandies, and which is founded on the same story as Charles Coghlan's greatest success, The Royal Box.

The musical version of Trilby, written by Joseph Herbert from Paul Potter's dramatic adaptation of the famous novel by Du Maurier, and set to music by Victor Herbert, will be presented by the Messrs. Shubert in conjunction with Wm. A. Brady. Mr. Brady is also interested with them in The Balkan Princess, the production in which Louise Gunning scored a triumph last season at the Casino and in which she is to go on tour this year.

Mr. Sam Bernard will continue for the present in his last season's hit, The Grand Continental, and will make his first transcontinental tour to the Pacific Coast. When he returns East, early in 1912, he will be provided with a new musical piece by Harry B. Smith and Mme. de Gressae. Mr. James T. Powers will continue under the Shubert management. He will have a new musical comedy to replace Havana, the wonderful success in which he appeared for the last three seasons.

The Gypsy Coaster, which was a European success, is being adapted by Leonard Liching. The music is by Joseph Snaga. Other musical works to which the Messrs. Shubert have secured the rights are: The Astrologer, by Robert Schaner, with music by Robert Leonard; The Clock Model, by Burg and Turinsky; Der Ledige Gatte, by Grunbaum and Belchert, with music by Gustav Wanda; The Prima Ballerina, by Max Reimann, with music by Otto Schwartz; and The Fortunate Fool, by Landevard and Willner, with music by Helen Berle. Harry B. Smith and Reginald De Koven are at work on a new musical piece for the Messrs. Shubert, and so are Edgar Smith and Frank Tours.

One of the most important of the musical ventures in which the Messrs. Shubert will have an interest will be the Gilbert and Sullivan Festival, consisting of revivals, to be presented by a special star cast organization, including De Wolf Hopper and the other people who were shown in the Pinafest. This Gilbert and Sullivan Festival will include Pinafest as well as the other pieces to be done at the Casino before the organization goes on tour.

DRAMATTO OFFERINGS.

The dramatic offerings for the season will be no less numerous and varied than the musical attractions. One of the earliest productions will be Next, a new farce by Rida Johnson Young, in which Helen Lowell is to be featured. Fine Feathers, by Eugene Walter, and The Warning, a drama by Arthur J. Eddy, who wrote the novel which was dramatized under the title of The Great John Gorton, will be among the early offerings. Cyril Scott, who has starred in The Lottery Man, for the last two years, will have as his new vehicle a piece entitled A Modern Marriage, which has been adapted from the German by Harrison Rhodes. Minnie Dupree, who is now appearing with Henrietta Crossman in The Real Thing, will have a new play a little later in the season. One of the most important of all the productions will be the play Pinafest of Romance, a new play by Edward Sheldon, author of Salvation Nell and The Nigger. Mr. William Courtenay will also be provided with a new American starring vehicle.

Among the various other pieces to be produced during the season are: Won't You Walk Into My Parlor, by Cosmo Gordon Lennox; Who's Who, a comedy to be presented in conjunction with Wm. A. Brady; a new play by Wilson Misner, which is to open in Chicago; The Glass House and The Sin Eater, both farces and both by Charlotte Thompson; The Masked Venus, by Gaston Bondier; Who Owns Helen, from the German of Everhard Buchner; Wireless Telegraphy, a French play by Lastoc and Revelle; Papa's Mama, a new comedy by Heinrich Stibitzer and Fritz Friedman-Friedrich; The Drivible Airship, by Emil Norini and Ernest Bann; and A Thousand Dollars, a farce by Eagle and Horst.

The Messrs. Shubert will also produce The Best People, the play by George Heylert that scored a notable London hit a year ago, and will present The Blue Bird on tour in conjunction with Liebler & Co. John Mason, in As a Man Thinks, and other successes of the last season, will, of course, be continued.

The Messrs. Shubert will be interested with Wm. A. Brady in all the productions under the direction of Wm. A. Brady, Ltd., and also in many pieces offered by the other independent allies. Southern and Marlowe will continue in their exclusively Shakespearean repertoire under the management of Mr. Lee Shubert, appearing only in Shubert theatres, and William Favereham and other noted players will also book altogether through the Shubert Booking Office.

KLAW & ERLANGER'S PLANS.

with a wealth of color and detail that holds the attention from the rise to the fall of the curtain.

They will present Miss Charlotte Walker early in October in a dramatization of John Fox Jr.'s popular novel, The Trail of the Lonesome Pine, by Eugene Walter. Miss Walker will play the role of June, the heroine of the tale of the Kentucky mountains. The play will be four acts. The first act takes place on the trail; the second in the town which John Hale is attempting to develop; the third in June's home in the mountains; and the last is again on the trail in the open. Mr. Walter has made an intensely interesting play, which will lend itself to the big and artistic production that Klaw & Erlanger will give it.

Henry Miller, who has been playing on the Pacific Coast under the direction of Klaw & Erlanger, has had a very successful season in The Hovoc, by Edward Sheldon. Mr. Miller returns to the East in November to appear on Broadway in a series of new and old plays.

One of the most successful musical comedies in the last decade of the theatre is Klaw & Erlanger's The Pink Lady, now in its seventh month at the New Amsterdam Theatre, New York, but a production of which will be seen in other cities later in the season. The firm will open their new Atlanta theatre, the Atlanta, in September, with George Behan, who will appear under the firm's management this season in his own play, The Sign of the Rose, a drama of current life in New York City, in which Behan gives a character study of an Italian street laborer.

SAVAGE'S PLANS.

production. This play is the product of Avery Hopwood, author of Nobody's Widow and Seven Days.

Other of Mr. Savage's fall activities will be The Grape Girl, a musical comedy, with libretto and lyrics by James C. Harvey and score by Gustav Luders, and The Princess Child, an opera by Franz Lehár, which has a record of two hundred performances in Vienna. In addition to these attractions, Mr. Savage brought with him the manuscript of Baron Good-for-Nothing, a Berlin comedy success; The Lieutenant's Ward, another German comedy hit; The Summer Folly, Weeping Josephine and Le Million, a Parisian light comedy. Walter Browne's Everywoman is to be revived at the Lyric Theatre the latter part of next month without any changes in the cast. A Western company has been engaged to open in Chicago about the middle of October.

The Great Name, which enjoyed a fourteen weeks' run at the Cort Theatre, Chicago, last season, with Harry Kolker as star, will be given its Broadway premiere in October.

Excuse Me, with a commendable run at the Gaiety, is to be honored by three companies, as well as being presented in Berlin and Paris during the coming season.

The Director is a new A. E. Thomas satirical comedy is also scheduled to appear before the first of the year.

There is to be but one Madame X company next year, with Adeline Dunlap in the stellar role.

The Merry Widow will not be exploited next season, but will probably be given a special revival at a later date.

For European presentation about Christmas time, Mr. Savage has in mind a German adaptation of The Sho-Gun and Woodland.

CARLOS INSKEEP ATTRACTIONS.

The Carlos Inskeep Attractions have now become one of the most important factors in the theatrical world. This thriving firm, though but one year old, has at present all attractions now on tour, covering all parts of this country, and will before the first of the year, have four more, making a total of twelve attractions. It will be one of the largest producing firms of popular-priced attractions west of New York City.

This firm has surrounded itself with one of the very best executive staffs that money can secure and under the direction of George L. Barton, general manager, has come to the front rapidly. Some of the best-known agents in the country will be found in their roster, including E. E. Garretson, Joe "Dusty" Rhoads, Edward G. McClure, Orville Bannell, J. W. Williams, Catto F. Mann, Clint Vidor and H. B. Rice.

The Carlos Inskeep Attractions have five companies producing The Girl and the Tramp. This attraction has been termed by many as "The Greatest Money Getter on Earth," and it has certainly upheld its reputation this season as it has been greeted with record houses everywhere.

When a Woman Wills, the newest of productions from the pen of Carlos Inskeep, has proven a great success everywhere.

All of this firm's productions carry complete scenic productions and The Girl and the Tramp, besides carrying its full quota of scenery, holds the novelty of also carrying a real automobile.

NEW YORK FORECAST

reparation he has Senorita, a new musical production in which he will appear. Daniel Frohmman in addition to Seven Sisters, produced Thy Neighbor's Wife at the Lyceum
September 6.

Henry W. Savage will present to the metropolitan for the season of 1911-12 The Girl of the Golden West (opera); Henry Kolker, in The Great Name, The Million, adapted by Leo Ditrichstein; Little Boy Blue and Somewhere Else, by Mr. Hopwood and Gustav Lunders.
In addition, Mr. Savage has The Grape Girl,
The Prince's Child, The Divorce Fiasco, Baron
Good For Nothing and The Lieutenant's Ward in consideration for early production.

John Cort and The Author's Producing Co. will handle Leale Carter's tour in Two Women and The Gambler's tour, besides taking care of Lawrence D'Orray, The Earl of Pawtucket, and producing Jingaboo and Sadie.

One of the most elaborate productions of the season which, if successful, should popularize the Century theatre and libitum is the Liebler production of The Garden of Allah, a play made from Robert Hichens' well-known novel, and for several seasons under consideration by various managers. Lewis Waller is to be brought over to this side for the role of Androvsky, the Monk. Mrs. Pike will appear in two new plays—one, The New Marriage, by Langdon Mitchell; the other, The War of Sonia, by Paul Hyacinthe.

Margaret Anglin will appear at the Thirty-ninth Street theatre in a repertoire of plays, of which two at least—The Next Religion and Green Stockings—are new. Grace George will head the repertoire company, which William A. Brady has planned to keep at the Playhouse, shifting attractions every three weeks after the preliminary season of Douglas Fairbanks, in A Gentleman of Leisure, has vacated his new theatre. Even Shakespearean productions are to be offered. George Arliss soon comes to Wallack's with his successful vehicle by Louis N. Parker, Disraeli. Wilton Lucas will be seen in The Stranger, while Elise Ferguson comes to New York in October in Dolly Madison. James K. Hackett is to be invested with two new plays, one by James B. Fagan. William Faversham will appear in a new play by Edward Sheldon. Robert Edeson will appear in The Caveman, a comedy by Gillette Burgess. Helen Ware is slated for the metropolis in November, her vehicle being The Price, by George Broadhurst. Viola Allen will star in a new Louis N. Parker play, Gettrude. Elliott returns to New York in a Joseph M. Patterson production, Rebellion. Margaret Clark will be seen in a new comedy by Owen Davis, called When All the World Was Young. Tom Wise and John Barrymore will be presented in Uncle Sam, by Anne Caldwell. Frank McIntyre started at the Hudson on Labor Day in Snobs. William Collier will appear in a new comedy, Taking My Advice. Julien Eltinge comes to New York on the 11th of this month in The Fascinating Widow. Blanche Ring will portray The Wall Street Girl. Dustin and William Farnum open the season in The Little Rebel, by Edward Peple, while Minnie Dupree will have a new play as will William Courtney, also James T. Powers and Eddie Foy. Lew Fields will produce the Wife Hunters at the Herald Square, and will also launch Lillian Herlein in The Never Homes.

Many musical shows and dramas have already enjoyed ante Labor Day premiers, including John Hyams and Lella McIntyre, in The Girl of My Dreams; Henrietta Crossman, in The Real Thing; Douglas Fairbanks, in A Gentleman of Leisure; John Kallar, in a new piece repertoire; Donald Brian, in The Siren; John Drew, in A Single Man; Thy Neighbor's Wife; Rose Stahl, in Maggie Pepper; and Frank McIntyre in Snobs.

Among other plays that will be seen this season are: The Fox, The Weavling, What the Doctor Ordered, The Greyhound, The O'Flynn,
The Antelope, The Arab, The Wild Olive, Dame Nature, White Magic, The Affair in The Barracks, The Right to Love and In God's Country.

A plenitude of musical attractions will be offered the connoisseurs of the metropolis for first inspection, many of which have already been enumerated. Others are: The Prince's Child, Weeping Josephine, The Cloak Model, The Kiss Waltz, Der Ledige Gatte, The Summers' Polly, The Fortunate Fool, Madame Flin, Ladies' Day, The Barefoot Dancer, The Royal Box, The Queen of the Night, The Beggar Student, Cousin Bobby, The Blue Club, Trilby, by Victor Herbert. The Shuberts are also bringing Gaby Desly over the end of this month for the Winter Garden.

THE 4 LLOYDS ...RIDERS SUPREME...

Europe's Greatest Riding Novelty Act

Known the world over as the fastest and most up-to-date riders on earth. First and the only artists ever impersonating the American Indians in their life and pastimes on the plains—riding the American Mustang. (The only Riders on earth that stand on the Bucking Mustang, and doing stunts and wild riding that causes old and young to wonder with astonishment.) This act is as far away from all other so-called big riding acts as the sky is from the earth. Directors and Managers, beware of copyists and imitators. Plainly speaking, they will only be burlesques. It is easy to copy, but it is hard to have brains to invent something new. There is one and only one riding family—the

THE ELECTRICIAN AND THE MOVING PICTURE SHOW.

By GEORGE RICE.

I saw an advertisement in the papers about a moving picture show for sale. I was out of a job and had had my mind on establishing a five-cent moving picture theatre for some time, and I thought that the advertisement might refer to just the place I wanted. I answered the notice and was told to visit so-and-so at a certain uptown theatre.

Mr. So-and-so gave me the necessary directions to reach the moving picture establishment, which was for sale in a mill town in New England. I visited the place and the conditions appeared to be fair. The show was running. I was shown over the hall by the man who owned the picture machine and who was in charge of the show. He had a helper to take tickets and a woman to run a phonograph. There was a piano there, much out of tune, on which a young man played pieces and sang, while the boss threw pictures of a sainted person and a sentinel on duty in colored hues on the sheet. The songs and the views were calculated to make any audience weep, but no tears were shed. The run of moving picture film was good and pleased the people. The audience seemed to be made up of many children, although there were adults there, too. In a half-hour the show finished and the people filed out and another assemblage of people filed in, paying five cents each or presenting a card at the door. The card trick is what fooled me. I was there to estimate the average of the attendance with a view of buying the place, and later I discovered that the boss had given out a great many free passes so as to have a good-sized audience when I called. I did not know this at the time.

I was shown over the place by the manager, who proclaimed the merits of the place. He said that a rich return in cash awaited whoever purchased this rare bargain. The picture machine was of standard design. Not long after closing the deal I had to pay an assessment of $50 on the machine, as the machine had been purchased on the instalment plan, and the former boss had forgotten about it, for he told me that the machine was fully paid for. The average moving picture show does not require much of an equipment. If the show is to be played in the building right along, a connection can be made with the electrical current and the best kind of a light secured at a nominal cost. But if the machine is to go on the road at intervals, then a gas outfit for making a calcium light is required. The establishment I intended to buy was furnished with a gas-making plant of the portable kind. There were curtains and the necessary packing-boxes for carrying the outfit. There was a sign outside bearing the inscription shown in figure 1. Children were admitted at half price. It seemed to me that the opening was a good one. I wondered why the boss wanted to sell, when the chances of a man getting rich from the show were so good. He pleaded ill health and a desire to travel. So we closed the bargain. For $700 I procured quite a good outfit for moving picture concern, including supplies of tickets, posters, the good will of the place and the like. The rent was not high for the hall. The community was a fair one for a picture show and there were ice-cream parlors nearby to supply the audience with refreshments when wanted.

I started off with a clear slate, or what I supposed was a clear slate. The day after the boss turned the thing over to me, the ticket-taker got drunk and ran away with the day's receipts. I got a friend to take tickets for me and he made many errors in the change and delayed the crowd at the door a number of times. I refer to a crowd because word had been passed in the community of a change in management of the picture show and the usual patrons looked for a free admission day. Many of them got in free anyway. But I was learning things right along. I was having my troubles.

I listened to the advice of the illustrated song singer and substituted the gas burner for the electrical light, as we were on an alternating current and the humming sound of the arc interfered with the fine notes of his song. Therefore, I got out the tanks for the oxygen and hydrogen gases and endeavored to get a brilliant glow on the lime with the combined gases. Now, an electrician has no business fooling with a calcium light until he has received at least a half-dozen lessons in its proper management. I failed to get any light at all with the calcium light, as I did not know how to make the flame blow on the lime and heat the lime to a white heat. Hence the illustrated song singer was given the laugh, and he got mad at me for queering his act. He had some deadbeat lady friends in the audience and that made matters worse. I put the gas cylinders outside and proceeded to go ahead with the electrical light, with which I was familiar. One of the cylinders was left where the heat of the sun expanded the gas and the side of the tank split open and let the gas out, as at A, figure 2.

Some time afterwards, the calcium gas company called for its tank, and I had quite a fuss with them, as I supposed that I owned the tank. True, I had paid for it, but had paid the wrong party, and the gas company threatened to sue me for $20, the price of the tank, so I paid the bill and the husky tank was left in my possession.

I likewise had trouble with the lime pencil of the gas outfit, because on another occasion when I got more familiar with the calcium light, I failed to revolve the lime evenly and the spots and holes were burned into the lime as at B, figure 3. But, as time passed, I got accustomed to the gas light. I believe that every electrician who runs a moving picture machine ought to get accustomed to running a calcium light burner, for his electrical current may give out at any time and he may have to finish out the show with the gases.

I had my trouble with the electrical lamps, too, but overcame these troubles as time passed. I hurried out the fuses on the pole outside the building at the transformer a few times, and almost created a panic in the audience. I had a film fire and nearly caused disaster. I had to discharge nearly all the old employees of the place for cheating me in some way, by selling tickets of their own make on the sly, by grating at the door, or otherwise getting the best of me. The audience fell off to sad proportions during one interval and I lost money every show. I had trouble with the film exchanges, who claimed that money was due them for rental of film long before I took charge. The owner of the building raised the rent on me. Indeed, things looked dark and had almost decided to withdraw and sell out a loss, when it occurred to me that I might better make up my mind to put the place on a going basis and get my money back. So I decided to make a new start. My electrical slant ought to be made to count in such a way. I figured that I had enough energy and energy left to go at it right.

In our next issue we will explain how the now was put on a paying basis and proved to be a money-winner for me.

As soon as I determined to get the moving picture establishment on its feet and make a struggle to get my money back, I started in with a better class of pictures with an improved light. I got permission from the electrical lighting company to do a little tinkering on the transformer on the pole outside the building, so that I could increase the amperage to the lamp in the machine. I strengthened the light by twenty per cent, so that as the dark films passed through the machine the dark scenes were brought out in better detail and eased the audience. After all, the brilliancy of the illumination of any of the pictures is a telling thing. You might have an excellent subject and lose the interest of your audience if the light were so dim as to make a muggy film. So, after getting the proper power in the electrical wires, I proceeded to get the machine itself improved. I found that my operator the machine was in the habit of running one carbon overlapping the other, like C, figure 4, instructed him to keep the point of the pencils at equal distances, so as to form a proper plane of the flame. He also ran his carbons so near together and that reduced the arc of the light. Sometimes he would forget and let the carbons burn too far apart and the space would grow and increase the humming and the all-sized arc would then go out and this disturbed the audience. I got in a lamp in which the carbons fed at the angle shown in figure 4.

If the carbons were properly adjusted, the tendency of the carbons was to push the light toward in line of D towards the lenses, making a good illumination.

I gave my operator special instruction in the care of the rheostats. We were running two rheostats on the line in multiple, because with the increased consumption of current, the single rheostat got hot and threatened to burn out. The wires were exceedingly red at times, also did some work of my own on the rheostats for the purpose of making the connections safer and for experimental purposes. I believe that there is a great field in the moving picture business line for electricians who are ingenious enough to invent something of usefulness for the operators. Hence I tried my hand at making improved shutters for fire purposes and different kinds of attachments for the machine. I made a rheostat like that in figure 4, so as to have the same in reserve in case of breakdown. The frame is wrought iron, standing about 12 inches high and 20 inches long, with a double piece riveted on the lower ends to hold the same upright. Then I used wheel-like knobs, with bolts to secure the knobs to the frame. Then I took a long spiral iron wire, an inch in circumference, and opened the coils at the required intervals to pass the wires over the knobs as shown. Then with the little brass screw connectors at B on the ends of each wire, I obtained means for joining with the wires of the switch of the moving picture machine.

Therefore I got things into pretty good order or a final trial to make things go. I engaged a good-looking young lady for one dollar per evening and fifty cents per afternoon to handle the business in the ticket office. I fitted up the front of the place with a good-sized electrically-illuminated sign, calling attention to the subjects to be run.

I had adjustable letters made, so as to spell out the titles of headlines in the dramas to be shown. I had the front of the building gone over with a coat of white paint and this served to attract attention and business. The rest of the building was also improved with various ornamental things usually found on the fronts of places of amusement. I had the seats refitted in the hall and everything made as clean and comfortable as possible. The ventilation had been bad, and I invested quite a little in getting that rectified. Fire escaping systems were not overlooked, and everything was put in good order for business.

Then I commenced advertising among the people whom I knew to be interested in the low-priced places of amusement. I knew that there were thousands of mill people who could not afford to pay a half-dollar for a seat in a theatre to see a drama, but who could afford a dime to see the drama pictured on a life size on the canvas. Hence I got out the advertising certain plays of which I had secured the film. The bills at once drew a good patronage from the class of persons I had secured on. I inserted advertising notices in the papers and I sent out personal circulars, colored to the school children for the afternoon business and ran special reels of pantomimes and Jack and the Beanstalk stories for them. These subjects were liberally advertised by me during the school recesses.

I also made it a point to have acceptable subjects. I tried every film alone before showing it to the children and put out anything that would not be suitable for them to see. If a child went home and told the mother about a murder scene, the chances were that the mother would not let the child go again to that moving picture show. But if the little one gleefully told all about the antics of some clown, or some scenes in magic, or about Humpty Dumpty, the mother would regard the moving picture house as a good place for the little one to be in and give her the necessary five cents for the next day.

I got hold of some films of science and advertised a special hour each day for showing these to parties interested in astronomy, etc., advertised the fact among the men whom I knew to be interested, and while the audience was small, it brought me into contact with some of the learned men of the town. Often these men would stop at the picture booth and ask for a chance to examine the machine. In this way I got acquainted with many of the leading men of the town and these men often provided money for their children to attend. I found that people were interested to know how the moving pictures were made, and I showed them by cutting pieces about three inches long, and gave these pieces out to the audience. They would study over the little pictures and take great interest in my explanation of how the picture is made. While explaining, I would turn the crank slowly, so that they could witness the operation in changing from one picture to the other in the formation of the continuous view.

There is apparently much secrecy as to the plans of the Nixon and Zimmerman firm, and so far they have made no startling announcements of productions for their houses. They opened the Forrest Theatre September 2 for a run of Alma, "Where Do You Live? The second attraction is more promising, being Franz Lehar's Gypsy Love.

The Chestnut Street Theatre, another of their houses, will open with The Girl in the Tulle, with Christine MacDonald in the Spring Maid, October 2. W. Taylor, late of the firm of Taylor and Kaufman, has opened offices to handle exclusively the booking of the J. Fred Zimmerman Vandeville Circuit. The circuit consists of the Liberty, Keystone, the Orpheum and two other theatres in prospect.

Of the houses of the above sort, the William Penn easily leads in popularity, although situated in West Philadelphia. The business there is of the record-breaking variety from a box office view. William W. Miller, the manager, is, with the exception of the B. F. Keith Theatre, presenting the best vaudiville in town.

Of the Shubert houses, the Lyric and Adelphi, there promises to be almost an excess of the so-called Viennese Operetta style of musical plays. The Kiss Waltz started the Lyric off in this line September 2. The Adelphi opens Sept. 18, with Margaret Anglin in Green Stockings, a new comedy. Both houses however, will undoubtedly offer many excellent attractions, as has been the past record.

The Broad Street Theatre will open the season with Seven Sisters and no announcement has been made of following attractions. The season of the Philadelphia-Chicago Opera Company, while always a brilliant social event and one which caused a deficit of almost $200,000 last season, gives every promise of success in the former Hammerstein song house of magnificence. Andrew Dippel, general manager of the organization, announces the repertoire and casts of the subscription presentations.

Many musical events of superlative importance will signalize the performances, the most important being the initial production in America of Massenet's fairy opera Cendrillon, in which Miss Maggie Teyte, the celebrated lyric soprano, will effect her debut on this side of the ocean. The revival of Mozart's La Nozze di Figaro, an opera of melodious charm, which has not been sung locally for many seasons; the first appearance of Mme. Luisa Tetrazzini, the most famous coloratura soprano of the day, and the revival of Saint-Saens' beautiful Samson et Dalila, with Mme. Gerville-Beache and Charles Dalmores in their favorite roles, will likewise be features of prime significance. There will also be the first performance of German opera (Die Walkure) by the Dippel forces, the initial presentation in this country of Hansel and Gretel in English, and the only performance of Pellaea et Melisande and Quo Vadis during the season.

Another event which will be the debut of Miss Mary Garden in the role of Carmen, which will be sung on the opening night, Friday, November 3. With the exception of Miss Garden, the rest of the cast will be almost identical with that which appeared at the dedication of the Opera House, four years ago. Dalmores will be heard as Don Jose, one of his best parts; Mlle. Alice Zeppilli will sing Micaela, and Dufranne will voice the measures of Torador.

An enormous amount of money has been expended in the preparation of the new operas and revivals. Entirely new costumes and scenery will be displayed in Carmen, La Nozze di Figaro, Samson et Dalila, Die Walkure, Cendrillon and Hansel and Gretel, the latter three productions being imported from Europe. A complete list of artists engaged and the operas to be given by the Philadelphia-Chicago Opera Company and the Metropolitan Opera Company of New York will be announced later. Following are the operas and casts for the first performances:

Friday evening, November 3, opening night (Series A)—Bixet's Carmen (in French). Debut of Miss Mary Garden in the title role; Mlle. Zeppilli, Messrs. Dalmores, Dufranne, etc.

Saturday matinee, November 4 (Series C)—Revival of Mozart's La Nozze di Figaro (in Italian). Only performance of this opera during the season. Debut of Miss Maggie Teyte, Mmes. Zeppilli, Beret (debut), Messrs. Sammarco, Huberdeau, etc.

Saturday evening, November 4—Verdi's Il Trovatore (in Italian) at popular prices. Mr. Ellison Van Hoose as Manrico. Best of the cast to be announced.

Monday evening, November 6 (Series B)—First production in America of Massenet's fairy opera, Cendrillon (in French). Mmes. Garden, Teyte, Parkes (debut), Messrs. Dufranne, Crabbe, Huberdeau, etc.

Wednesday evening, November 8 (Series C)—Saint-Saens' Samson et Dalila (in French). Re-appearance of Mme. Gerville-Beache, Messrs. Dalmores, Dufranne, Huberdeau, etc.

Friday evening, November 10 (Series A)—Wagner's Die Walkure (in German). Mmes. Gadski, Osborn, Hannah, Gerville-Beache, Messrs. Dalmores, Whitehill, Scott, etc.

Saturday matinee, November 11 (Series B)—Debussy's Pellaea et Melisande (in French). Only performance of this opera during the season. Mmes. Garden, Beret, Riegleman, Messrs. Warner, Dufranne, Huberdeau and Crabbe.

Saturday evening, November 11—Humperdinck's fairy opera, Hansel and Gretel (in English). At popular prices. Cast to be announced later.

Monday evening, November 13 (Series B)—Moussorgsky's "The Night in the Garden" (in French). Only performance of this opera during the season. Cast to be announced later.

Wednesday evening, November 15 (Series C)—Donizetti's Lucia di Lammermoor (in Italian). Re-appearance of Mme. Luisa Tetrazzini, Messrs. Bassi, Sammarco, Scott.

Friday evening, November 17 (Series A)—Massenet's Cendrillon (in French). Same cast as before.

Saturday matinee, November 18 (Series A)—Verdi's La Traviata (in Italian). Mme. Luisa

Tetrazzini, Messrs. Bassi, Sammarco.

Of burlesque, with the season so young, it is difficult to make any predictions, but thus far there has not been an offering presented at either the Eastern or Western Wheel houses calculated to stimulate enthusiasm or arouse the undoubted waning interest. Practically universal blame is placed upon the producers, who have apparently failed or have not attempted to introduce any newness.

The Casino, Eastern Wheel, has always topped the business of any of the houses, with the Trocadero, Western Wheel, second, and the Gayety third. There is divided opinion in regard to the action of the Empire Amusement Company leasing the old Park Theatre for its burlesque because of the up-town location.

In the burlesque ranks there is no question but that the Orpheum Players at the Chestnut St. Theatre, who are forging ahead to the 300th week record under the management of Grant Laferty, will repeat previous success. There seems no reason why the new Blaney-Spooner organization, which will open the former German Theatre under the name of the American with stock, should not be equally successful.

The location of the house for stock is excellent. The B. F. Keith Theatre at this time does a capacity business regardless of hills or weather, but there is an increasing demand for new acts, which is not being satisfied at any of the vaudiville houses. At the present time there are new acts being used here, but agents and managers admit that the supply can't last the season out unless the ranks are awelled.

The leading managers and theatres ready for the new season are:

Lyric, Messrs. Shubert, managers.
Adelphi, Messrs. Shubert, managers.
Broad Street, Messrs. Shubert, managers.
National, Jos. M. Kelley, manager.
Chestnut, Grant Laferty, manager.
Chestnut Street Opera House, Nixon and Zimmerman, managers.
Empire, E. J. Bulkeley, manager.
Trocadero, Sam Dawson, manager.
Gayety, John P. Eckhardt, manager.
Casino, Elias and Koenig, managers.
B. F. Keith's, R. T. Jordan, manager.
William Penn, Wm. W. Miller, manager.
Bijou, J. C. Dougherty, manager.
Liberty, M. W. Taylor, manager.
Nixon, Fred Leopold, manager.
Girard, Forepangh's, Plaza, Victoria, Palace, Standard and Colonial, with vaudiville and pictures.

Our theatres are all first-class of their kind. The Brandeis is considered one of the best-built and handomest houses to be found west of New York City.

The New Boyd, after an expenditure of $25,000, is much more attractive than in past years, and can be compared favorably with any first-class theatre anywhere in a city much larger than this.

The Gayety, which was formerly built for stock purposes, is a very attractive place and an outfit of considerable money has greatly improved its appearance this season.

The Krug, where the Stair & Havlin attractions formerly appeared, has also been greatly improved during the last few weeks and is more attractive than the average burlesque house.

The Orpheum is one of the Circuit's most attractive places of amusement, and it has always been their policy to make it more attractive each year.

The American Music Hall, built last season, is another place of amusement that any city could be proud of.

Now, with first-class theatres and the best attractions on the road to appear in them, the only question that might arise is, can a city of Omaha's size support six theatres with a large number of moving picture houses, all catering to business? However, looking into the future, it would be a very pessimistic person who would not predict Omaha one of the best theatre towns in the country.

Omaha is how nationally recognized as one of the best towns in the Middle West, and where we had to be content with a one and two-night stands from the big attractions a few years ago, Omaha now receives liberal stays of from three to seven days from stellar attractions. Where we received but a handful of the big hits of the year in other years, we now have a full season of the best on the road.

Taking into consideration our marvelous progress in the commercial line, and with a population of over 175,000 people to draw from, the writer believes the prospects are bright for one of the best seasons in the history of the theatrical business in this city. But to forecast the coming season is problematical and time only will tell whether Omaha can and will support as many theatres as we have at the present time.

The managers of the different houses are very enthusiastic over the prospects of a big season and the outlook appears very good for a fine season of dramatic entertainment.

is now under lease to the Jake Wells Bijou interests, under the local management of Ben M. Stalnack, who has represented the Bijou interests in Memphis ever since the circuit was formed. Mr. Stalnack has an array of attractions, he says, that mean crowded houses right through the season. The Lyric takes the place of the Old Bijou, which was burned to the ground last spring, and will play the same class of attractions which made the Old Bijou a household word in Memphis. The Lyric opened on Sunday, September 3, with Raymond Payne in The Millionaire Kid, and a good company.

Besides the usual class of attractions played over the Bijou Circuit, the Lyric has also booked a number of the Klam & Branger successes for week stands, including such plays as Max Fabish, manager of the Orpheum, promises the best vaudiville the South has ever seen at his popular playhouse. Mr. Fabish spent the summer in the East and held a consultation with Martin Beck just before returning to Memphis. The Orpheum has been refurbished throughout during the summer, with new seats, new carpets, new scenery, and is as bright and handsome a playhouse as can be found on the Orpheum Circuit. Mr. Fabish, coming here unknown to the general public three seasons ago, has established himself as possibly the most popular manager who ever made Memphis his home. The policy of the Orpheum Circuit is well known. This season we are promised bills of even higher merit than ever before.

The season opened with a great hill on Labor Day, September 4, with Macklyn Arbuckle as the headliner. There is no longer any opposition in the world of vaudiville and this insures Memphis a sight of some of the stars who were barred from the Orpheum in former years.

WORCESTER, MASS.

This is Mr. Belmont's first season in Worcester, and all appearances point to his being very popular with the patrons.

This is the second season that Walter Hemenway has tended the door.

The P. F. Shea, Stair & Havlin continue to control the running of the business.

Stair & Havlin and the Columbia Amusement Co. will book the attractions for the season of 1911 and 1912, as before.

The Worcester Theatre on 25 Exchange Street, will open September 16, with Harry Kelley, in His Honor the Mayor, to be followed by a three days' run of Laura Jean Libbey, 18 to 20.

Miss Beattie Donovan and Bessie McCarrick will be in the box-office, they having been there for several years past.

James R. Sheehan, formerly of the New Park Theatre of Manchester, N. H., will replace John P. Burke, as resident manager, and will act as general manager of the Worcester and Franklin Square Theatres, in this city, which for several seasons have been under the P. F. Shea Company. Mr. Shea needs no introduction to local theatre-goers, for he has been unusually successful as resident manager of the Franklin Square Theatre for three consecutive years.

Former Resident Manager John P. Burke is still under the P. F. Shea banner as manager of the Park Theatre in Bridgeport, Conn.

For ten years Mr. Burke has catered to the Worcester public, three years as manager of the old Park Theatre on Front Street, and the remainder divided between the Worcester and the Franklin Square.

The past season was very good and the outlook for 1911 and '12 is as encouraging.

Only the highest class of attractions will appear at the Worcester house while the Franklin Square policy will be burlesque and popular-priced plays.

Bob Clark, assisted by Arthur Hanlon, will do the advertising for both houses.

The park season has closed and according to all reports has exceeded all anticipations. Flemming as resident manager, broke all records for attendance that the previous years have.

The White City Park has been catering to fair crowds, but not anything unusual.

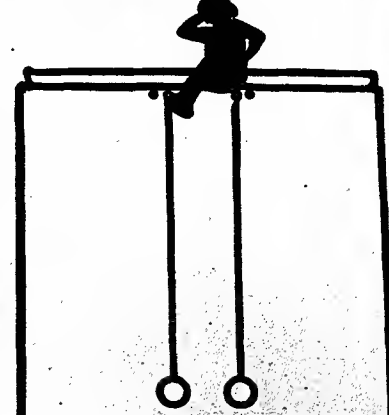

Foll's Theatre continues with the Poll Stock Company in a high-class of stock plays.

The attendance at this house bespeaks credit for Resident Manager Joe Giddie, whose clever advertising stunts have showed fine results. Just when the Poll house will inaugurate the vaudiville season has not been definitely ascertained.

All the motion picture houses have received their full quota of patronage, the cool weather that we are now experiencing serving to add to the continuation of crowded houses.

The business in all lines is fine, and the season that has just opened ought to produce fine results.

VAUDEVILLE MANAGERS, ATTENTION!

Don't let incompetent, would-be bookers make you believe there is a shortage of good acts; they only do it to cover their inability to secure good attractions at the proper salaries. It is a lame excuse for charging exorbitant prices for inferior acts.

THERE'S NO SCARCITY OF ACTS

In fact there is an over-supply of all kinds of Vaudeville attractions, caused by the changing of policy in a great many Vaudeville theatres that have adopted and are now playing moving pictures exclusively. Hundreds of good acts of all kinds are laying off in every large booking center, while the pets and favorites who pay some agents an excessive commission are kept working at unreasonably high salaries, and the manager pays the freight. We will be pleased to submit you a list of available acts from our books.

fact that the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie has direct lines to the steel mills in Ohio and Pennsylvania will make Baltimore the chief Eastern steel export port. Some of those concerns have already secured sites so as to be prepared for the future in having facilities for their vast foreign business. This gradual increase in the industrial centers will add to Baltimore's commercial prestige and the city will eventually become a great metropolitan center.

The theatres gather in their share of the prosperity and the city's commercial growth will benefit the theatrical world. During the next few years Baltimore will be much in the limelight through other agencies that will add to the city's fame. The success of the Democrats at the polls last fall resulted in a big feast which was held in this city last January. All the Democrats of national fame attended. A Kentucky Congressman stated that this city was a good place for the next Democratic National Convention. The remark was taken seriously by the citizens and a committee was organized and the necessary funds and the plans for the convention were completed within a few months. Although the National Democratic Committee will not select the convention city until December Baltimore's chances for the prize are considered good by the best prognosticators. Indications from the South and West state that Baltimore is the favored city and the prospects are that next May will see a great gathering of the nation's political celebrities. The next event of particular prominence is the fact that 1914 marks the centennial of the Star Spangled Banner. There will be a big celebration and a committee has been engaged in working out some plan. Some people want an international exposition and others want a celebration similar to the Hudson and Fulton affair, but a definite plan is expected before many days elapse. This event in 1914 will assume great importance according to recent events.

The Reciprocity Agreement between Canada and the United States has caused prominent Canadian officials to remark that in 1914 they look forward to a celebration to mark the friendly relations existing between both countries and the local committee has enough influence in Washington to see that the local affair becomes a matter of international importance. Many leading civic and fraternal organizations have already signified their intentions of having their annual conventions here in 1913 and 1914 in honor of the historical event.

The theatres here have spent more money on improvements and overhauling the houses this season than has been expended for many seasons. The improvements in the Academy of Music will cost about $35,000. When this house is completed it will be the handsomest theatre in America. Everything will be new but the four walls. The house has been renovated from the roof to the engine room. The interior is being decorated by one of the most skilled interior decorators in Philadelphia. The stage is equipped with every modern device that will afford every facility for the staging of any big production. As for fire protection, there is nothing lacking in any detail. This house has the most spacious lobby of any theatre in the country. It will be furnished with handsome mahogany davenport and velvet draperies. On the walls will be the oil paintings and pictures of famous stage celebrities. The managerial sanctum has been moved to the inner foyer and it is furnished in the coolest and elaborate style. The office that was used by business managers and agents has been changed to a smoking room for men. New carpets will be laid and new chairs will be installed. The boxes have been handsomely furnished with comfortable chairs, new draperies, new lights and the whole presents a striking appearance for gorgeousness. The manner in which this house has been embellished and furnished will make the public sigh in admiration when it opens for the season. The Pink Lady has been engaged for the opening production. Then will follow a season of many famous New York successes. The important item of interest is that Truitt F. Dean is the manager this season. Harry Hinkel will be the business manager and John Little will exchange the pastboards for the fifty lucre that is passed through the cash wicket. This house has prospects of a very good season and the indications are that it will exceed many previous seasons.

The Auditorium Theatre resumes the season under happy auspices. The house opened with a preliminary of moving pictures. Dante's Inferno served for two weeks and the Kinemacolor out. This aroused the interest of the public in the house. The novel attractions seemed to awaken the interest of the people after enduring the summer monotony. All the well known successes that play the Shubert Theatre will appear at this theatre during the season. The regular season began September 4 with Al. H. Wilson. Mr. Eugene L. Perry is the manager and he has ingratiated himself with local people and his stay at this house will be very pleasant. Dr. Leonard K. Hirschberg thinks the coming season will be excellent and he will always be on hand as usual to serve any member of the profession that will need medical attention.

Ford's Opera House is always popular with the public and it now enters the fortieth consecutive season. The exterior has undergone extensive alterations which affords a much better appearance. The balcony, which was over the entrance for many years, has been removed and a handsome marquee has been put in its place. Concrete steps have replaced the iron stairs in front. There were a number of improvements added to the interior which will afford much convenience to the public. The house was open for many weeks with Howe's pictures, which were on for six weeks. The regular season began September 4 with Ida St. Leon in Polly of the Circus. Then followed The Top O' The World. This season will bring many fine attractions and among them will be David Warfield, who has not been in this city for five years.

Directly opposite this house is the new Empire Theatre and in all of its magnificence it attracts much attention. The white marble front makes it very attractive and conspicuous under the white lights. This house will be opened in about sixty days.

The Maryland Theatre, which is the pride of James L. Kernan, has been handsomely decorated and it presents a striking appearance in all its freshness of color under the numerous bright lights. The house opened with the Old-Timers' week and business was good despite the warm evenings. The bookings this season contain some of the most startling acts in vaudeville and also many legitimate stars who are playing two a day this season.

Business has been good at the Monumental, but after the Empire Theatre is ready the shows will move up town. This house will then have a new line of attractions. The burlesque shows at the Gayety have attracted much attention by their brilliant appearance and business has been immense. It is likely that there will be a tug of war when the new burlesque house opens. The fact that the two burlesque houses will be separated will make a night a change and business conditions may result to a better advantage.

Holiday Street Theatre continues with melodrama annual and this line of amusement has many adherents. This house is an old landmark and it has many historical traditions. This house has a popular public trend and this season may prove as successful as previous seasons.

The Columbia Players from Washington will put in a short season at Albaugh's Theatre and the Boston Players will amuse the public at the Savoy Theatre.

With the twelve regular theatres entertaining the public, there are about 125 moving picture theatres scattered about town that take in some of the profits that usually follow the channels of the big houses. There will be more new ones as the season passes. Some are about completed and others are in contemplation. Owing to the new legislation, considerable time is required in securing permits to build picture theatres.

The outlook for the season has favorable prospects and as the show business is only a gamble it is pretty hard to tell in advance how a sickle public will take to a show.

was erected last fall. The regular season begins the week of September 4, with Wren & Milburn's World's Travel Festival (moving pictures of the world, with effects) and fine vaudeville.

The Savoy, Fillmore, and other large houses, report business great, considering the early date. The Star, the leading legitimate house, opened the regular season August 28, with Edgar Selwyn, in The Arab. Business was excellent, and Dr. P. C. Cornell, the genial manager, reports that they are booked for almost the entire season with the best shows on the road, and the prospects are for a financially good season. The Lyric, John Laughlin, Isaac and manager, will play popular-price musical comedies, comedy-dramas, etc., booked by Stair & Havlin. It is believed that last season's success will be duplicated this fall and winter. The Teck, playing Shubert attractions, opened with Lyman H. Howe's Travel Festival, September 4. The show making a stay of two weeks, when the regular shows will come in. J. Olshel is the manager, and looks forward to a large following of old and new friends and patrons of this excellent playhouse.

The burlesque houses, the Garden and the Lafayette, are in full swing. The Columbia Circuit, Eastern Wheel holds forth with its attractions at the Garden, which is under the eye of Manager Charles White, and the shows presented are a revelation in burlesque. Manager Bagg of the Lafayette, has had extensive renovations made in this house, a lot of painting and decorating making it appear very attractive. Western Wheel shows are pleasing goodly crowds, and things look good for the next few months.

A persistent rumor says that we will shortly have a new home for Stair & Havlin companies, which now go to the Lyric. Manager John Laughlin is said to be a partner in the enterprise, and this same Dan Ennor says that M. Shea will be in on it. The location will probably be at Genesee and Pearl Streets, or at Franklin and Court Streets. It is also related that the Lyric will be devoted to burlesque or vaudeville. We have been unable to secure anything authentic about the deal, so publish it for what it is worth.

LYNN MILBURN.

ST. LOUIS, MO.

Manager Melville Stoltz, who has the Shubert and the Garrick under his control here, believes that the season will be better than last. He states that an unusual list of good attractions to come to him will be responsible, and that the patronage of last season will be augmented greatly through this cause. The Olympic and the Century Theatres, playing the Klaw & Exchanger attractions, have always drawn well and this season will be as good or better than last is the opinion of those concerned. Manager D. E. Russell when asked as to his opinion on the outlook for the coming season, could see nothing but success, caused chiefly from the fact that his playhouse has had several S. R. O. performances since its opening and the weather not yet of the proper sort.

Manager Harry Wallace of Havlin's Theatre, looks upon the season as others. That it should be good, mostly from the fact that the poorer plays have been weeded out and the bookings better. His theatre has been the most extensively remodeled of all the St. Louis theatres and much interest has been displayed in its opening. As to the Columbia Theatre, our only exclusive vaudeville theatre, Manager Lew Sharn is positive of a good season. Last season was one of the best in the Columbia's history and last week with Mabel Hite as the headliner, the house was sold to capacity each night, which shows that this theatre has started this season right where it left off in May last.

My opinion, gained through the close observance of things as I see them, is that the coming season should be better than last, though how much it would be hard to predict. The summer not being a great success, makes me feel a bit cautious as to the prediction of great successes this winter. The advent of the motion picture theatre has a material effect upon the attendance of the larger houses, and the spite of the heading of prosperity over the country, I know that most of the middle classes are short on money. Then again here in St. Louis, our picture theatres are in most cases palaces of amusements, and are built in such comfort and refinement that our well-to-do population have attended them with great regularity and especially on Delmar Boulevard, where these theatres are plentiful. It is not uncommon to see both sides of the avenue lined with automobiles and its occupants attending the picture theatre or air-drome. Another advantage is that they are in the immediate neighborhood and the worry of that home getting ready and the hour getting home afterwards is eliminated, and the cost while only 10 cents, makes it possible for their attendance three or four times a week, and the whole family enjoys the performance together. This condition has made it good for the vaudeville performer and many of the best acts in the country are now to be seen at these theatres, thus making it the most popular amusement yet brought out.

Another illustration of the popularity of this class of amusement is gained from the success of the New Princess Theatre. Manager Dan S. Fishell opened this house last year with vaudeville, on the Morris Circuit, and the success was good and had, and at the close of his season in May last, decided that he would install moving pictures for the summer, and the result was that this theatre has been packing them to such an extent that Manager Fishell is afraid to discontinue them and the Princess will probably play moving pictures and vaudeville all winter. Now the success of these theatres makes it hard to say just to what extent they will further harm the down-town theatres. It must be regretted that the ill which has been so tightly clamped down on this city, will prevent many a week from being profitable down town, as since these laws have come into force, we have found strangers, with the exception of on special occasions, very scarce in this city, thus making it necessary for our theatres to depend upon the city population for their attendance, and that is where the picture theatre hurts, for St. Louis being a city of beautiful homes every workman and business man takes the first car after office hours to the residence district and the down-town streets become deserted. Once home it is hard to make him come down again, and the down-town theatres suffer and the picture theatre gains. The time when the city was not so strict in its laws, all our theatres did business to the extent that St. Louis was classed as the best show city in the States, and people spent money but today the plays that do S. R. O. business in this city are few. Now these conditions are what makes it hard to state exactly what can be expected in the way of prediction. The only weapon which the managers of our local houses have in this case is the booking of the best shows—shows that are successful to the extent of their quality, and with the proper publicity they will bring down the people to their houses. I believe that this will be done during the coming year as having viewed the various bookings we have much that is good coming, and believing that the viewing of a good play by a competent company is still the desire of St. Louis as well as in other cities, I look for a better season. Over the country this condition should result more positively this year than before, because of the fewer shows that are touring these smaller cities, and the eagerness with which these managers are seeking attractions. There is at the present time no information as to the installing of a stock theatre in this city, and this is regretted as I believe that a stock company in the neighborhood of Grand Avenue in this city would pay, if it was of the good sort. The Imperial Theatre, which has been the most used theatre here for stock productions, will at this writing remain closed for the winter. The engagements at this theatre have not been successful, and from the fact as I believe, that it is not far enough up town, and the picture theatres have taken away this patronage, but if on Grand Avenue in the heart of the moving picture district, a good stock company would become a paying proposition and St. Louis is in position to support it.

So, as to the future most of its success remains with the city itself and I believe that before many months more the folly of this strenuous lid will be eliminated, and the coming of the transient will again populate our city at nights and the theatres become filled, and the amusement people of St. Louis will come down town to mingle with the Bohemian atmosphere that makes amusement enterprises sought and profitable. In conclusion let me say that this year will be no worse than last and I believe that financially the managers will find it much better at the close.

BOOKING EVERYTHING BUT VAUDEVILLE. Dramatic, Musical and Burlesque. If you want an ARTIST, state what you want. If we don't have what you want, we send NOTHING. One department devoted exclusively to furnishing singers and musicians to the picture and vaudeville houses. Anything from a trap drummer to a 60-piece band.
GOOD SINGERS sent anywhere. Also cafe entertainers. If the BEST are too good, don't write. We don't deal in the CHEAP stuff. Artists in all lines, write, wire or phone. Make our office your headquarters when in Chicago.

FREAKS WANTED — ALL KINDS CURIOS

Can use you all year. Need Snakes, Monkeys, Illustrations. What have you? If you are working, write at once, and be booked later. We are not agents. We conduct shows. Can guarantee first ten weeks without travelling; thereafter, two to five week stands. Write what you are, have and do. Send photos.

FOR MUTUAL BENEFIT MENTION THE BILLBOARD WHEN WRITING ADVERTISERS.

A KNOCK-OUT! RESTRICTED FOR RECOGNIZED PERFORMERS ONLY.

OH! THAT MUSICAL DREAM

A dreamy, tantalizing, mesmerizing, hypnotizing strain.

By GEORGE A. LITTLE and JERRY SULLIVAN.

That's on the level. Being restricted for top notchers only. FLO ADLER now ripping up Chicago with it.

"SOMEONE DREAMS OF SOMEONE"

Semi high-class. Goes over every time. Beautiful melody and different.

"IN THE SUMMER TIME"

Greatest summer song on the market. Good all year around.

"LAUGHING EYES, MY OMAHA"

A real Indian ballad with a chorus that has some go to it.

"WHEN THE GIRL YOU LOVE TURNS YOU DOWN"

Sentimental, and a dandy.

"IN DAYS OF YORE"

A beautiful ballad. Juvenile. Going over big.

"THAT FUNNY MELODY"

A real fu-honey one. Some rag number. Don't miss it.

BETTS & BINNER, 509, 145 N. Clark St., CHICAGO.

WESTERN OFFICE: 226 Security Bldg., LOS ANGELES, CAL.

KANSAS CITY, MO.

spent in New York City and Kidder's, a summer resort near Lake Cayuga, and I am certainly glad to get back home. I feel that I can call Kansas City my home now for I have been here for twenty-three years, coming from New York state. Everything seems so much business here. I think that Kansas City is in fine condition and the time is ripe for a fine theatrical season. The Willis-Wood Theatre is confidently looking forward to a banner year and I think we are justified in our expectations by the fine line of bookings we can offer the theatre-going public. Finer, larger productions, more stars, more number one companies are booked for the Willis-Wood than at any previous time since this handsome new theatre was built, about ten years ago. Of course it is too early to give out the entire list of bookings, but we shall have the Chicago company of Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford, The Pink Lady, The Girl Of My Dreams, Spring Maid, Madame Sherry, etc., etc., in the musical comedy line and we can count on full houses for these, and then about all the travelling stars. In addition the Willis-Wood has made all preparations for a big season for the house has been newly painted and decorated, although the same harmonious color scheme of green, white and gold, which has earned for the Willis-Wood the well deserved name of 'The Theatre Beautiful' is still retained."

And now listen to Mr. Earl Steward's opinion of the Shubert's 1911-12 season. Mr. Earl Steward is resident manager of the Sam S. Shubert Theatre and a Kansas City man who is making good as manager of a high-class house. "You know that every season it seems business gets better at the Shubert, but I think we shall smash the record many times this coming season. We have some big surprises and delightful treats in store for Kansas City and I think with our long line of splendid attractions and shows we surely shall do 'some' business here. I think Kansas City is prosperous; in fact that is not quite strong enough to say about this live business town and I believe we shall get the reflex action of this easier money condition and that the Shubert Theatre will certainly write up 1911-12 as par excellence. Some of the big shows that will be here this season are: 'The Girl of the Golden West,' the opera; 'The Russian Ball' from the Winter Garden, The Revue from the Winter Garden, 'The Chocolate Soldier,' a great many of the Lew Fields new shows, the Lieber shows, and that means crowded houses, etc. And in addition the Shubert has made preparations to take care of these large shows and productions. New dressing-rooms have been built and the present or rather the old dressing-rooms, have been enlarged so that now the largest kind of shows can come here and be accommodated. Y-e-s, indeed, I am very optimistic in regard to the new season for I have every reason to be so. We've got the shows and can please Kansas City and Kansas City will have money to spend and naturally at the theatre, so I say the Shubert's season will be a record."

Of course every one who knows a thing about the big Orpheum Circuit knows that their houses all over the country do a phenomenal business, but it seems that the Kansas City Orpheum is a little more remarkable. There is not a particle of exaggeration and this will be acknowledged by performers and transients who have just visited the Orpheum for an afternoon or evening performance as well as the residents here who know that the Orpheum is entirely sold out every evening. That not a seat can be secured for the evening by opening time of the performance and this is true the entire season. On holidays and exceptional occasions, many are turned away. Enough to fill another Orpheum. And the daily matinees are almost as good. Saturdays and Sundays being always capacity. Resident Manager Martin Lehman says: "The Orpheum will do a bigger business than ever this season and we have had some splendid years when I have been proud to turn in the good reports. I have seen the bookings and I know that Kansas City each week this season will have high-class and out of the ordinary vaudeville bills. There will be two or more headliners and a number of European acts and favorites who have not been seen here for several years, with new acts and then some entirely new and novel acts. Vaudeville appeals now to the cultivated taste and the biggest, best stars are now in vaudeville. The Orpheum certainly has made all arrangements for a record-breaking success of 1911-12."

The front of the theatre has received a new coat of paint, the house was entirely remodeled last season, with new entrances and lobby and seats and boxes and the Orpheum is very attractive. The popular assistant manager and business manager, Lawrence Lehman, had this to say about the conditions in Kansas City and the Orpheum: "I think the long, hot summer was just what Kansas City needed. A period of settled weather will bring about good business conditions and I believe that we are now about to enter upon a period of entire success, that money will be made and spent liberally. This is a corking good show town, more so than any larger cities and while our nightly capacity houses might sound a little exaggerated elsewhere, where perhaps they have many other pleasures than the theatres, one visit here will convince. I certainly think that the Orpheum will have a record year. Then, too, this season we are to give eight acts a week in addition to the pictures and the high-class overtures by the orchestra, whereas heretofore there were but seven acts and the pictures and orchestra. The programs will not be shortened in the least. We will commence a little earlier than the usual two-thirty in the afternoons and eight-thirty at night and each week will have a top-notch bill and varied enough to please everyone's taste. Vaudeville now is always pleasing and satisfactory, for every week one can find some of his own kind of acts. The opening Sunday, September 3 and Labor Day proved the best yet and seats for the two performances on these two days were secured just as soon as the box-office opened for the season. We have now two box-offices to accommodate our patrons and I believe that every week this season our seating capacity will be taxed to its extreme limit. I see nothing but success."

Mr. A. Judah, manager of the Grand Opera House, which by the way, celebrated its twenty-first birthday at the opening of this season, has been manager during this entire time and he says that he "Can remember the opening of the Grand twenty-one years ago and each successive opening, but I don't remember ever having such a crowd as packed in the theatre when the 1911-12 season was ushered in by Henry Woodruff, in The Prince of Tonight, August 10. And since then, too, business has been going at a very fast clip, so why shouldn't I say that I think 1911-12 will be the Grand's most phenomenal season. The right kind of shows at the right prices always come here. I look after the bookings personally and so when we give the public that we can always feel assured that our season will be successful."

Mr. Jason E. Ratekin, business manager, treasurer and press representative of the Grand says: "I think we shall have to have a rubber theatre. That would settle all our troubles. One week we just have to pack the Grand way beyond its normal capacity, and the next week it would seem that we can take care of all the crowds. There is generally a good show at the Grand and this calls for every seat and all the standing room, but I would like to have a rubber theatre so that we could accommodate all the crowds that have to leave the theatre because 'we are all sold out.' I have had such a good summer this year and feel so refreshed and rested and I just have to see the good side of things and so am naturally optimistic about the 1911-12 season."

Mr. E. S. Brigham, manager of The Gillis: "The Gillis is one of the largest if not the largest theatre in Kansas City, and our opening night, Saturday, August 26, could not find enough seats for all. The Gillis' closeout, rather earlier than usual this summer on account of the intense hot weather and our opening was a little later for the same reason, so I think that every one is theatre-hungry. They are all anxious to get back to going to the theatres and I think this will be a decided feature in our success this season and I surely do believe that this year will be far and away better than last and the Gillis has booked a long line of strong and pleasing attractions with that end in view and so I say, yes, the Gillis' 1911-12 season presents only bright lights."

Mr. J. K. Sherlock, treasurer of the Gillis, is very hopeful for the new season just commenced so auspiciously. "The Gillis will have 'some' shows here this season and with the shows we surely ought to get the public. Besides I think that the time of depression in the theatrical business has passed. I know it was not felt in Kansas City as elsewhere in the country last season, but Kansas City is all to the good now and business is on the increase and we will get this at the Gillis."

Mr. Leroy Simonds, business manager of the Gillis, is very optimistic and sees only good things for the Gillis for 1911-12.

Manager Joseph R. Donegan of the Century: "You can take it from me that everything here is on the boom. The Century made many improvements and was painted and attractive, interior and exterior, so as to be prepared for an extra big rush. Our opening was never better and our line of shows never better, so the Century's 1911-12 season is bound to be, just has to be, a great success."

Mr. Thomas L. Taaffe, genial business manager of the Century: "I have been in the amusement business this summer, as manager of Fairmount Park, and treasurer and business manager of the Century for the past six or seven years, and I am confident that this season will be the top-notch. I think Kansas City—industrially and commercially, is on the make and our theatre will be making a record I am sure."

Manager Burt McPhail of the Gayety: "I can see nothing to it but a whirl of good luck this year. This is the Gayety's third season and from the first show we have had an unqualified success, but I believe there is a lucky number and that 1911-12 will be the season."

Manager O. D. Woodward of the Willis-Wood, has just recently secured a two years' lease on the Auditorium Theatre and intends to open that season with a first-class stock company. Woodward to secure the personnel of this Woodward stock company and so could not be asked his opinion on the prospects for Kansas City and the coming theatrical season, but his securing a two years' lease on the Auditorium argues that he thinks the amusement business will be good this year.

Kansas City is practically the geographical center of the United States and is the largest railroad center in the country and the gateway to the North, South, East and West, for here the transfers are made to the various sections of the United States. Stop-over privileges are most liberal and the city is constantly filled with transients en tour, spending either a few hours or a day or an evening, long enough to comes from the Union Station to the city and a visit to the theatres is the first thought and idea. So in addition to the resident population the amusement houses can and do count for their patronage from transient visitors. Kansas City is recognized as a manufacturing center and is first in tributary trade territory with a population of over five hundred thousand to draw from as patrons of the theatre and statistics show this city third in telegraphic business.

The "boom" is on here. Not one of those easily inflated, easily collapsed booms that is generally understood by the word but a host always for the city's high financial standing. Reports from tributary trade territory show that crops will yield well and the markets be well supplied. This, of course, comes through Kansas City and with the farmers and people in the country prosperous this city is bound to feel the results in an energetic business activity.

The amusement field is aglitter with excitement and interest for this season of 1911-12 is felt to be a good business year and every preparation towards that end is being made here by those interested in amusement. Kansas City has long been recognized as a show town, managers and performers alike say that and the theatres here can nanally do satisfactory business. Up until Christmas perhaps it seems that the city is really larger in numbers than the census report shows, for the town is crowded with merchants from the surrounding country in to do their fall buying for in addition to this the city offers many pleasures. The last week in September and the first week in October there is the Third Annual Missouri Valley Fair at Electric Park and this brings thousands of interested ones in town, some to stay a day, special excursion rates and some longer to combine pleasure with business and all of these go to the theatres before they return home. Then comes the annual week of festivities with parades, balls, masques, etc., Carnival Week, when all the theatres can surely count on putting the S. R. O. sign out. And then come in quick succession the Annual Horse Show, and the Annual American Royal Live Stock Show. The takes up October and the month of November is a month of festivities that mean for the success of the theatres. This year we have the International balloon race as an added feature for the first part of October. And then comes Christmas with just before the holidays a falling off in theatrical business, but to be resumed immediately with renewed activity which is manifested during the entire winter.

Of course there is here a "Kansas City Spirit" that is always for the good of the city and the loyalty to it and its interests, but if the shows that come here were not good the theatres would not be the success they are. We have welcomed 1911-12.

CHAS. FROHMAN'S PLANS.

Haddon Chambers is now writing, and a new play which is to be produced in the autumn by Hall Caine in London.

Henri Bernstein, the French author of The Thief, is at work on a new drama, and a new comedy written by Calliavet and de Fiers, called What Woman Will, which may be produced here before its Paris production, has also been acquired by Mr. Frohman.

John Drew will open the season at the Empire Theatre early in September with a comedy called A Single Man, by Herbert Henry Davies, the author of Cousin Kate and The Mollusc. Mr. Davies will come to New York for the production in August. Mande Adams will appear again in New York in Chantecler. During her engagement here she will give special matinees to be called Mande Adams' Afternoons with J. M. Barrie, who has written three short plays for her, running fifty minutes each. One is called A Little Play, another is called Judy, and the other is still unnamed. In A Little Play Miss Adams will appear in a double role, and in Judy she will appear in a most novel character, another one of the Barrie surprises. Miss Adams will continue in Chantecler until next July, when she will leave for England to make her first appearance in London. Her season will open in a new play followed by Chantecler and L'Aiglon. Ethel Barrymore is to follow John Drew's engagement at the Empire Theatre in a fine play by A. E. Mason, called The Witness for the Defense, which has been running for months at the St. James' Theatre, London. Billie Burke will appear in September in a new four-act comedy called The Runaway, by Pierre Veber and adapted by Michael Morton, who adapted My Wife, the play in which Miss Burke made her first appearance in New York.

Madame Nazimova, who now begins her first season under the Frohman management, will have a widely varied repertoire of comedy and drama, including two plays written by a new American playwright, with the scenes laid in America, and never previously produced on any stage. Along with these plays Madame Nazimova will appear in new comedy by the author of The Countess Coquette, never previously produced. She will also have a modern play from the French.

At the Criterion Theatre in September Haddon Chambers' play, Pamphylus, which is now running at Wyndham's Theatre in London, will be produced. Haddon Chambers will be in New York for its production. Marie Doro will appear about the middle of October in the four-act play, A Butterfly on the Wheel, which is now running at Frohman's Globe Theatre, London. Otis Skinner will open about the middle of October in a new play by A. E. Thomas. Kyrie Bellew will come to New York in a new play about New Year's time; previous to that he will make a tour as far west as San Francisco. Hattie Williams will have a new comedy ready for production in October. Francis Wilson will appear in a new comedy called The Magic Ring. William H. Crane will open his season in October, and he will have the choice of two American comedies.

Donald Brian has made his debut as a star at the Knickerbocker Theatre, New York, in a new musical play by the authors of The Dollar Princess, called The Siren. Mr. Brian's leading woman is Julia Sanderson, and his comedians include Frank Moulan and Will West. Another musical comedy by the same author, Leo Fall, called The Doll Girl, has been secured, but its production is not assured for this season. The English versions of both The Siren and The Doll Girl are the work of Harry B. Smith.

The London Haymarket Theatre comedy success, Lady Patricia, in which Mrs. Patrick Campbell is now playing, and a Vienna comedy called The Guardsman, but which in this country will be called The Actress, by Franz Molnar, have come into Mr. Frohman's possession. In October Pinero's comedy which ran all winter in London, called Preserving Mr. Pannure, will be produced in New York. A comedy to be produced by Arthur Boncher in London, called The Pinero, a three-act play after the style of The Thief, called The Woman by Henri Kistemackera, to be produced at the Porte Saint Martin Theatre, Paris; Pierre Wolff's Comedie Francaise play called Marionettes, and the comedy which has been running for the past two hundred nights and is still running at the Gymnase, called Papa, and the three-act comedy called The Uninvited Guest complete the long list.

In London in early September Mr. Frohman produced with David Belasco The Concert, and later in the season at another of his theatres with Klaw and Erlanger the musical play, The Pink Lady, with a cast of American and English players will be put on.

COHAN & HARRIS' PLANS.

nothing more dangerous than an inoffensive tourist from the United States whose only desire is to spend money and have a good time. allow the comedian a latitude of fun-making that he takes advantage of after the well-known Hitchcock method.

The red-lettered square on the calendar for September is the 18th of that month, the date set for Geo. M. Cohan's re-appearance on all stages. It is almost two years since Mr. Cohan has played at other than benefit performances and it has been persistently rumored that he had given up acting and would devote his time to play-writing entirely.

The call of the footlights has won, however, and the announcement that he has written himself a musical vehicle and will present himself in it at his own theatre next month, is being received with many expressions of satisfaction by the million or more of admirers who constitute the following of this young man.

The Little Millionaire is the title of Mr. Cohan's new vehicle. It is a musical play and calls for a big chorus ensemble. Geo. M.'s father and mother, Jerry J. and Helen F. Cohan, will have important roles in the cast that is now being assembled. The Little Millionaire will have its premiere at Hartford, Conn., on the 18th of September, and a week later will open at the Geo. M. Cohan Theatre, New York City.

The productions which Cohan & Harris anticipate making on or before the new year include: The Only Son, a drama by Winchell Smith; Through Home, a drama by Henry Blossom; Richard Gauntlett, a comedy by J. Hartley Manners; with J. E. Dodson in the title role; a comedy yet unnamed, by Harriet Ford, in which Laurette Taylor will twinkle as a stellar liminary; and the reigning European sensation, The Polish Wedding, a musical farce by Messrs. Krausz and Okonkowski (authors of Are You a Mason?) and Jean Gilbert.

Geo. M. Cohan's determination to play in his own theatre in New York will force that author's other play, Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford, out of the Geo. M. Cohan Theatre, where it is completing the longest run on record for a straight comedy. Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford will be seen for the last time in New York this season on Saturday, September 23, when it will register its 412th consecutive time on Broadway. It will be immediately transferred to the stage of the Park Theatre, Boston, where it opens for a run Monday, September 25.

The Chicago Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford company, which has almost as long a run to its credit as its New York contemporary, will leave the Olympic Theatre there to go on tour September 4, opening on that date in Detroit, Mich. Still another Wallingford company will begin a tour that will embrace the Pacific Coast, at Aahury Park on September 4.

The coming season tour of The Fortune Hunter, as arranged by Cohan & Harris, calls for this Winchell Smith comedy-classic to visit almost every city of importance from the Atlantic to the Pacific Coast.

Miss Adelaide Thurston will begin her second season under the guidance of Cohan & Harris at Chicago on September 11. Miss Thurston will again present Catherine Chisholm Cushing's comedy, Miss Ananias.

The Grand Opera House, under the direction of Cohan & Harris, will open on Saturday night, September 2, with Madame Sherry.

Excuse Me, Rupert Hughes' Pullman carnival, reopens the Gaiety Theatre, New York, Monday, August 14.

JOHN CORT'S PLANS.

supporting company will be a number of the original cast that played with him when the play was first produced at the Madison Square Theatre. The cast will include: Katherine Emmet, Louise Srdmoth, Snare Lawrence, H. J. Carril, John Alden, Leonard Ide, Earnest A. Elton, Robert W. Smiley and John Taylor.

The first new production that will be made by Mr. Cort will be Sadie, a comedy-drama by Rupert Hughes, dramatized from Earl Harrisman's novel of the same title. The players engaged by Mr. Cort for the New York premiere of this play in October are Theodore Roberts, Thurlow Bergen, Frank Campeau, Ernest Warde, Franklin Roberts and Fernanda Eillean.

Jingaboo, a musical farce, book by Leo Ditrichstein, lyrics by Vincent Bryan and music by Arthur Pryor is another production promised by Mr. Cort for October.

The Fox Lee Arthur's detective-mystery play, which concerns a crafty but courteous old gentleman, who, in his younger days, had a mania for safe-breaking, is scheduled to receive its New York premiere late in September. Mr. Cort has also contracted for three operas that he anticipates producing before the Christmas holidays.

at Norristown, Pa., on September 18, and will have as its first principals Charles Mackay and Lillian Komish. The company that will make the Pacific Coast tour will have among its principal players Paul Overton, Palmer Collins, Frank Loece, Charles Rowan, Matt Snyder and Gertrude Dallas. Practically the entire original cast will be seen with the company that will begin its season at the Majestic Theatre, Boston, on October 2. With this company will be found Jane Cowi, Ethel Jennings, Orme Caldarra, Charles Stevenson, DeWitt C. Jennings, George Backna, Cecil Kingston, Charles Burbridge and George Wright Jr.

Charles Klein promises to have his new play ready for production before the Christmas holidays. Little can be learned as to the plot of the story, but it is safe guessing that the daily papers will again furnish the foundation, as was the case in The Lion and the Mouse, The Third Degree and The Gamblers.

ROWLAND & CLIFFORD'S PLANS.

Edward E. Rose will continue as director for all the Rowland comedies, as well as for the new production of Rock of Ages.

LIEBLER & CO.'S PLANS.

Louis N. Parker has about completed for Miss Viola Allen a romance in which Lady Godiva is the central figure. However, the play will not be called by that name. It is interesting to record that the scenery in this production is that which was built for the production of "Masthead's" "Isabel".

The Irish Players' organization have been in existence since 1904, when Miss Horniman, a manageress who had done many worthy things, gave them the Abbey Theatre, rent-free, with a small subsidy. Ever since, the Abbey has filled the part of a national theatre for Ireland. The players, under the direction of William Butler Yeats and Lady Gregory, have produced in seven years sixty new plays and seven adaptations from foreign drama. In America they will set plays by Bernard Shaw, Lady Gregory, Mr. Yeats, J. M. Synge and others. They will dedicate Liebler & Co.'s new Plymouth Theatre in Boston next month.

Cyril Mande is to visit America in the autumn of 1912, bringing his entire company from the Playhouse, London, and his repertoire of successes.

The Garden of Allah is to be the supreme effort of the Liebler Company. It may open in October, possibly not until November, at the Century Theatre. Gertrude Elliott will open her season in "Rebellion" at her sister's, the Maxine Elliott Theatre, and George Arliss will open Wallack's Theatre, William Hodge will continue in "The Man from Home," H. B. Warner in "Alias Jimmie Valentine," May Irwin in "Getting a Polish," and, of course, Pomander Walk, "The Deep Purple" and Mrs. Wiggs will go out again.

HARRY ASKIN'S PLANS.

under Carr, Sophie Tucker, Bernard Granville, William Elsey Hatch, Eva Fallon, Beatrice Worth, Dorothy Granville and George Field. Rehearsals also commenced on the same date for "The Sweetest Girl in Paris," the original company of which, headed by Trizie Friganza, commenced a tour at Appleton, Wis., on August 27. The organization has been furnished with an entirely new scenic and wardrobe equipment, Mr. Askin believing that the huge popularity of the piece last season warrants this compliment. "The Sweetest Girl in Paris" will head straight for the Coast, and later in the season will be shown in the South and East. Miss Friganza has been provided with one or two additional song hits, so that her performance will be even more praiseworthy than last season. Addison Burkhardt has been touching up his own humorous book, while Mr. Smithson is seeing to it that Joe Howard's numbers are being put on properly. Mr. Askin also has in rehearsal the original company of "The Girl I Love," which has scarcely been seen outside of Chicago. This most recent La Salle hit will be staged more elaborately this season than last, in view of its forthcoming engagement during the month of October at the annual Chicago Policemen's Benefit, held at the Chicago Auditorium. "The Girl I Love" began its season September 3 at Racine, Wis., and during the first part of the season will be shown in the Middle West.

ABORN'S WINTER PLANS.

There will be three separate Aborn organizations of one hundred or more members each, all selected from their six companies which appeared simultaneously during the past spring in the above cities.

The remarkable success of the spectacular revival which this firm made of Balfe's opera, "The Bohemian Girl," last fall, and which had long engagements to large attendance in Boston, New York, and a few other big cities, has prompted Messrs. Aborn to build a duplicate of that production, so that two companies will present this enduring favorite during the coming season, one touring through the South and West to the Pacific Coast, and the other filling its time in the principal cities in the East. The third organization will be the Aborn English Grand Opera Company, which will present an attractive repertoire, including "The Tales of Hoffmann," "Thais," "Madame Butterfly," "Lohengrin," "Lucia di Lammermoor," "Il Trovatore" and "Martha." The repertoire aggregation will have only a few engagements shorter than one week in city, and in some of the larger centers it will remain for two or three weeks, its tour extending as far as Denver.

Each of these three Aborn companies will embrace a double cast, large chorus and orchestra, and will travel by special trains, including from two to four baggage cars for scenery and effects with each company, while the two presenting "The Bohemian Girl" will each carry twenty horses and cavalymen and a large troupe of Arabian acrobats.

FILM NOTES.

Mr. Watterson Rothacker, general manager of the Industrial Moving Picture Company, has just returned to Chicago from an extensive trip through Canada, New England and the Northeastern States, during which he garnered some juicy contracts for his firm, among the Canadian and Eastern agricultural and industrial magnates.

The Enterprise Optical Manufacturing Company advises us that their sales on the Mottograph for the month of August were not only the largest for the same month in any previous year in the history of their business, but were also almost the equal of the best month in point of sales which the company has ever had. Mr. L. A. Woodward, manager of the Mottograph Company, takes a very optimistic view of the motion picture business generally, and believes that the improvement in theatre construction, the development of the films and the high quality of the machines generally is fast bringing the business into a more reputable and prosperous position. The high quality of the Mottograph machine, and the liberal policy that its manufacturers have followed with regard to advertising and demonstrating it, is responsible for the great vogue that it has attained. Many of the largest circuits in this country and Canada are installing the Mottograph in their new houses.

DANTE'S INFERNO TO BE CLASSED AMONG DRAMATIC PRODUCTIONS.

There are many reasons why the Milano edition of this film production should be classed among the dramatic outputs, chief among which is the fact that it is being shown in only high-class legitimate houses and has made good in every one where shown, having been held over at every one of the houses for one additional week, and in some instances for two.

At the Majestic Theatre, Los Angeles the film enjoyed, and surely the crowd did likewise, a three weeks' run, while the Princess in Montreal showed it for three consecutive weeks. In all other houses in Brooklyn, Baltimore, Washington, St. Louis, Cincinnati and Chicago, a two weeks' run was necessary to give opportunity for all who came to see the production, notwithstanding the fact that most houses gave four shows per day.

The character of the production, both in its inception and carrying out, places it easily among the big productions, while the length of the films (five reels) and the arrangement of a lecture to accompany them would, if no other cause were present, put them in a class by themselves. The list of scenes comprise the nine circles of the Valley of the Abyss, with each circle in its many divisions. The first four of the circles show the scenes which meet the poet's eye before he reaches the River Styx, three after the Styx picture The Deeper Hell, the ninth with the four pits for the different kinds of traitors being the masterpiece of the producers work.

The Monopol Company has not gone at the display of this great film in any half-hearted manner. Circulars or programs in booklet form are distributed at each performance, giving each audience a clear conception of what the pictures represent and an outline of the arrangement of scenes, together with the story of the poem and a description of the manner of producing the play or spectacle. Dante's Inferno is of its own nature, and has been made by the Monopol Company the Film of the Hour. Its success as a dramatic production has not been established, it has been found out.

SIMPLEX ADOPTED.

New York, Sept. 8 (Special to The Billboard).—Mr. Richard S. Hollaman, manufacturer of the Simplex Moving Picture Machine, not only succeeded in arranging the selling rights for the Simplex machine on the European market in the British Isles, but has also succeeded upon his return to America in negotiating with the Monopol Film Company of New York City, whereby the latter concern, after considerable search and experimenting, has been led to adopt the Simplex as their standard machine. This means that Dante's Inferno will be projected only from the aforesaid cinematograph machine. The first order for the Monopol Film Co. amounted to fifty machines, which have been sent to all sections of the United States. This must be considered quite a good order for a new concern which started up merely two months ago.

IMP ENERGY.

As merely another one of the many demonstrations of Imp activity, Mr. Julius Stern, manager of the Independent Moving Pictures Company of America, despatched photographers to the scene of the Charleston, S. C., hurricane flood. The opportunities for a picture of this kind were indeed splendid and, although the photographers experienced ample difficulty in being able to take the pictures of the disaster, they, nevertheless, have made it possible to reproduce some very typical pictures of the Southern city immediately after its devastation by wind and water.

THE MISSION WAIF.

One of the most dramatic productions of the Melies Company has made for some time is to be released on September 23 and called The Mission Waif. The story is not strictly characteristic of the West, as are the general run of Melies productions, and in the producer's first departure from the routine he has not gone astray in the matter of dramatic effect and high quality. The story is simple in outline, but complex and possessed of depth as regards the character of the central figure and those around her. Opening with the adoption of the girl waif by the brotherhood of priests, complications throwing light on a very strong and sweet character soon develop and from then on a clear portrayal of the character of a beautiful woman constitutes the theme of the action. The plot thickens materially toward the close of the play, clearing only at the extreme end and stopping quickly. A fine climax is thus produced, wherein lies the greatest claim the production has to praise.

As to the manner of production, the scenic qualities of the picture are splendid, while the acting of the individuals is careful and of a refined order. These two items combine to make a quietly-running, pleasing little story, entirely lacking in ultra-sensational scenes and passages, but abundant in expressions of tender sentiment and great emotions. The film appears to have been wholly conceived before the first move in the production was commenced. It is a dramatic spectacle and not a sensational farce.

The Biggest Sensation Yet is the $250.00 Detroit Moving Picture Electric Light Plant

IT HAS TO BE GOOD

To make a hit with the profession, and that is just what it is doing, as the appreciative showmen and picture houses now using it are simply raising the roof with their applause.

READ! READ! READ! Rusk & Andrews, Haines Falls, N. Y., proprietors of the largest and finest amusement resort in the Catskill Mountains, write us as follows:

"Moving picture plant running like a top, delivering the 'juice' right along every day for our moving picture house without a hitch. Costs us about one-tenth as much as if we were connected with the Public Service, also pumps water to all our buildings. 2,000 gallons per day, and have it for fire engine in case of fire."

Many write us that the total cost of light for running their show for a week is less than one dollar. Think of it. Gives you better light than you can buy. Give you the same light in the afternoon as at night. Can be operated by a boy ten years old.

Larger sized plants at proportionately low prices. THE SALVATION OF THE MOVING PICTURE BUSINESS. Write for Bulletin No. 101. You will find it the most intensely interesting little book you ever read if you are interested in moving pictures.

IMMEDIATE SHIPMENT. Wire your order and let your remittance follow by mail. DETROIT ENGINE WORKS, 402 Bellevue Ave., Detroit, Mich., U. S. A. Sole manufacturers of the best and only real moving picture electric light plant in the world.

WE WILL PAY YOUR FARE TO DETROIT to see this wonderful plant in operation. If there does not happen to be one of them at work in your immediate vicinity, the fare to be deducted from the purchase price. Write for full information regarding this liberal offer.

THE FIFTH AVENUE BILL.

sented by Rowena Stewart and Gladys Alexandria. The piece needs a little doctoring before it can go properly. Cross and Josephine did splendidly in the spot following Stewart and Alexandria. Dying to Act is the title of their skit.

Charlotte Parry, very probably will not have to worry about bookings for some time to come, for the novelty of her latest protean creation, called Into the Light, let alone speaking of her ability as a protean and character artist, should make the act continually in demand. Into the Light has not one competitor. As for Miss Parry she need take second place to no one in her line of work. The piece was a substantial hit at the Fifth Avenue.

Following the Four Mortons, Wentworth, Veda and Teddy, the latter an intelligent canine, went through a series of tumbling feats which, though for the most part are difficult, are executed with rare speed. The velocity of the act kept the audience seated until the curtain.

THE FUTURE OF VAUDEVILLE.

back of the stage. When this house is fairly stated I shall take a long vacation and leave my son, E. F. Proctor Jr., who has been my general manager and virtually in charge of my business affairs for two years, in actual and entire charge of all my interests. I feel that the courts have upheld my side of the recent unpleasantness and that the incident is virtually closed as far as I am concerned.

VAUDEVILLE CHATTER.

Norman Friedenwald was at Davenport, Iowa, Labor Day night, viewing a show at the American Theatre.

Lamb's Manikins, who were to have been seen at the Columbus last week, had some differences with Manager Max Weber, who secured another act.

The Hamilton Brothers, just off the Hodgkins tour, appeared at the Wilson Avenue Theatre the first half of last week and have other bookings from the Frank Q. Doyle office.

Zella Nevada arrived in Chicago on Wednesday, September 6, coming in from St. Louis, where she had been playing the Crawford Circuit. She had not been in Chicago an hour, when dropping in at the Hodgkins Lyric Circuit headquarters, she was given a Southern tour and left Chicago that night for Joplin, Mo.

BILL AT THE MAJESTIC THEATRE.

is funny and well carried by the company. It is reviewed under the heading of New Acts.

Ethel McDonough appears third in a singing act. As stated, Miss McDonough is costumed out of keeping with the nature of her act. True, she may have a beautiful form, but if it is this she wishes to exhibit, why not resume her old swimming act or do posing? Miss McDonough as a singer, is not over great. She manages to get away very well, but in closing her act, offers some work on the drum without the least excuse. It seems to be a case of ringing in an added feature to her act just because she wished to impress the audience with her general cleverness. (?)

Mabelle Adams and C. H. O'Donnel and Company offer a pleasing little playlet, called Zilla. All the parts are well acted and the piece made a great hit. It is reviewed more fully under New Acts.

Leon T. Rogee, the human orchestra, submits some really good material in whistling and imitations of various musical instruments. The act is a real novelty and was well received. The offering is reviewed under New Acts.

The Allison Sanger Company presents Top O' The World Dances and the famous Collie Ballet in Kris Kringle's Dream. Those in the cast are as follows: Doll Princess, Vivian Ford; Peppermint Kidd, Harry All; Jack-in-the-Box, Walter Burke; Polar Bear, Harry Hewitt; Kris Kringle, Paul Houlton. In the Collie Ballet are: Goldie Stover and "Roger," Chiquita Winston and "Snow," Minola Browning and "Jim," Rosie Beville and "Bebe," Lillian Ludlow and "Coko," Emma Steadman and "King." The various representative characters portray the parts of dolls and the work of each is very commendable. The dances are novel and nicely rendered. The Sextette of well-trained collies in the ballet also won much favorable comment. The setting is very pretty and appropriate for an act of this class.

Raymond and Caverly, (and the two fiddle cases) present their own little line of German dialect in their own original manner. The boys have appeared at the Majestic a number of times in the past several years and have always scored heavily. The slow, careless manner with which the boys pull their gags elicited some real laughs. They are undoubtedly well posted on the Germans and their manners as their actions and talk alike are delightfully natural. They were easily the laughing hit of the bill.

Mabel Hite does a little singing, a little talking and a lot of large manufacturing. She opens her act with her own song composition.

Remember the Past in Shaping the Future

A year ago the Sales Company was shipping three hundred reels weekly. Today it is shipping over eight hundred.

In one short year the Independent cause has been firmly established on a good substantial and legal basis. The Independent manufacturers have not only brought their plants up to a high mark of perfection, doubled the quality and quantity, but have put aside many thousands of dollars to wage a legal war to surround your interests and theirs with the security and protection which was so much required. Eighteen months ago no Independent Manufacturer, Exchange or Exhibitor knew whether his investment was going to be wiped out over-night. Today all are protected; your business is your own. You are getting a regular supply of film at uniform prices and favorable conditions.

All this has been brought about by Manufacturers, Exchanges and Exhibitors WORKING TOGETHER and the further success we all so earnestly look forward to can BE ACCOMPLISHED only by all of us standing shoulder to shoulder and assisting one another in every possible way.

Quality may not have advanced as rapidly as all desire, but consider the tremendous expense manufacturers have been under and the many other things they have done. Quality, however, is now having first attention. The same grit and determination shown in the past will soon bring our quality up to the required standard.

Only, however, if we all stick together.

FORECAST OF THE SEASON IN BERLIN.

The cabarets are in Berlin what the roof gardens are in New York, with the exception that the roof here is on even ground. They are the houses of vanderbilt and are continuously open. The best of them is the Wintergarten, which has a weekly new program and is in direct connection with the American vanderbilt trust, from which it gets most of its performers.

In the Brothers Herford, Berlin has its Weber and Fields. For twenty years the have kept Berlin laughing with their jargon (Jewish-German), and the celebration of their twentieth anniversary in their own theatre on the Commanthen Strasse (very much like an American house, owing to its comfort), has shown how popular they are. Their new play, written by themselves, Das Kind der Firma and Schmerzlose Behandlung (Painless Treatment), will likely keep the boards for the next year.

The Metropol Theatre will only at the end of October give up Heihelt Amusiert Sich (His Hightness Amuses Himself). What their new revue shall be has not as yet been announced; the managers have only stated that they have engaged for this revue the six best German songwriters.

As a contrast to the French operettas, the Berliner Theatre keeps on giving Bummelstudenten (Good Time Students), which abounds the gay side of the German students' life and what a beer revelry can lead to.

It is no paradox to say that Goethe and Schiller constitute in Germany the drama trust. Indeed more than two-thirds of the plays given in the patriotic theatres (the Deutsche and Schiller Theatres) are year in and year out the masterpieces of the two German geniuses. Since last year, the national repertoire has enriched itself of the second part of Faust's tragedy by Goethe, which requires, at least a hundred performers having each a role.

The German Sarah Bernhardt, Tilly Durioux, has withdrawn from the Deutsche Theatre, and there is talk that she is, imitating the divine Sarah, going to build her own theatre.

This fall there will be no reprise at the Lessing Theatre of a play which, by far, has surpassed the success of any of Gerhardt Hauptmann's later plays, namely, Glanbe und Helmut (Faith and Fatherland), by Karl Schonherr. It is the struggle, in the Reformation times, of a brave Protestant family living in Salsburg, which, on account of its faith, is either forced to leave the country or to change its religion.

The struggle, which is ended by a catastrophe, is a pathetic one. The plot is interesting and well followed. The language is one of the purest ever heard on a German stage. Schonherr, by the way, is no German, but an Austrian country doctor, who has been called by the German Emperor, Goethe's successor. This, of course, has added to the popularity of the play.

For the young playwrights who aspire to become famous, the Berliner Freie Buhne (the Berlin Free Theatre) gives them a chance to produce their plays without any expense.

But the real earnest effort for the advancement of the German drama is due to the wonderful organization called the Frei Volks Buhne. Its members are intelligent workers and lovers of literature, who are not satisfied with the present poverty of the German stage. Their membership of several thousand permits them to have their own theatre, in which all progressive plays which are refused by the theatre managers and which, in their opinion, are worth a hearing, are performed. It is thus that Ibsen, Gorky, Bjornson, Moberg, could be produced in Germany. For these playwrights are officially ostracised, and the Frei Volks Buhne has more than once been refused the permission to play a work which did not meet with the censor's approval. As, however, this membership is limited, and owing to the prosperous condition of the German stage, it is likely that the prevalent mediocrity will go on for some time.

With all this, the Kintoppes (cinematograph theatres) and cheap vaudeville flourish in Berlin, for they are cheap and appeal to the public. In a business way, the season announces itself as a splendid one, and for theatre managers that's the main thing.

FORECAST OF THE SEASON IN LONDON.

ville combines in this country, the old haphazard system of booking is fast giving way to the American system of chain booking. Nowadays, a vanderbilt artist, if he has the luck to get in with one of the big syndicates, can make a contract for anything up to five years and henceforward he is booked automatically. No longer is there any need for him to worry about filling in odd weeks here and there; there is no necessity for him to hang around the offices of the agents, hoping to see the great man and plead with him for an engagement. Once he is taken on by the combine all this is at an end. Before long England will be divided up into three circuits—the Stoll & Gibbons, the Moss, and the Barranford, de Freese & Bunt. And, in all probability, the latter will be shortly absorbed by one of the other two. Present type of independent music hall, standing by itself and booking as it likes, totally disappearing in the near future. One by one they are dropping out and reappearing as the latest addition to one of the circuits.

Whether this will be for the benefit of the artists in the long run is doubtful. Of course, it gives him the opportunity of steady employment and relieves him of many of the minor worries. But, in the long run, with the exception of the half-dozen great outstanding artists who can always command their own prices, it is pretty sure to send salaries down—and heaven knows they aren't anything to boast of now. Not only that; by depriving a man of his independence, it will tend to hamper the individual in getting to the top and making a real name. Henceforth the artist will be at the mercy of the syndicate and they can make him or break him at will.

Of course, on the theatrical side, the old disjointed system of booking still prevails, owing to the fact that no person or company possesses at the most more than about a half-dozen theatres. The only method is still that of scanning the vacant list of theatre dates in the advertisement columns of the theatrical papers and, if the resident managers are ready to come to terms, filling in the weeks with best possible convenience of all concerned. But the system has many grave drawbacks. It generally means sitting in a week in the son of England and, perhaps the next in Scotland. Except in the case of a big actor-manager going out with a popular piece, it is next door to impossible to arrange a tour on reasonable lines of locality and progression. Of course, when George Edwards sends out The Merry Widow, he can take the No. 1 towns—the principal cities—and play in any order he pleases. But for the poor touring manager who has to fit in his dates from week to week—often at the very last moment—there is nothing of this. Another defect of the chain booking system here has been the difference made to the ordinary theatrical agent. So far as the vanderbilt side is concerned, his business has diminished in many cases by as much as fifty per cent, and the tendency is for it to go on diminishing. The big syndicates do all their own booking and so the agent finds all this part of his business taken away from him. Still, as he has generally contrived to take more than his pound of flesh in the past, no one will regret very much if he disappears altogether in years to come.

FORECAST OF THE SEASON IN PARIS.

Lavedan). He will take the role of Tartuffe, with Jean Coquelin as Orgon. Mme. Simon as Desirée and Mlle. Dux as Elmire. Since September 1, Armand Bour has been stage director.

MRS. LANGTRY IN PARIS.

One of the things we all are looking forward to is the promised visit to Paris this season of Lily Langtry. The famous Drury Lane melodrama, The Whip, has been translated into French by that master melodrama builder, Pierre Berton (author of Zaza), and it is in this play that Paris will see England's beautiful star. She will appear as the adventuresome. Just what theatre gets this attraction I can not positively say, but probably it will be the Vandeville.

STEINHEIL AFFAIR.

Everybody recalls the Steinheil tragedy and the subsequent trial of "the red widow" in the Paris criminal courts, charged with the murder of her artist husband and her own mother. This affair is to have its echo at the Comedie-Francaise, the first theatre of France, during the coming winter.

Captive is the title of the play in which the affair will be gone over again—idealized, of course. Gabriel Trarieux is the author of the piece. It is said that he got the idea from a Balzac romance, Un Curé de Campagne, but he admits that the play is almost exactly a reconstruction of the famous Steinheil affair, and that in writing it he borrowed as freely from the real case as from Balzac.

Anyhow, it seems strange that the Comedie-Francaise should be seen producing a play of this sort. We are used to "popular crimes" being staged in melodrama houses, but scarcely at the New Theatre.

NEWSLETTES.

The Chatelet Theatre has opened its preliminary season with a revival of La Tour du Monde en 80 Jours (Around the World in Eighty Days), the piece being taken from Jules Verne's celebrated story. A coincidence was the arrival back in Paris of Jaeger-Schmitt, a correspondent for Excelsior, a morning paper here, who toured the world in thirty-nine days, less than half what Verne's hero required for the journey. He arrived almost on the day of the reopening of the Chatelet piece.

The Vandeville has started its ante-winter season with a revival of Mlle. Josette, My Femme, a comedy.

Mme. Bernhardt has accepted a new play, in verse by Miguel Zamacoia, entitled Reine Polichinelle. There are four acts, and the actress herself is quoted as saying that she will appear in the principal roles this winter.

Le Coquelicot is the title of a drama to be seen at the Ambigu during the coming season. It is an adaptation of the English book and play, entitled The Scarlet Pimpernel, by the Baroness Orczy. J. Joseph Renaud, the celebrated French fencer, has made the adaptation.

The Comedie-Francaise will revive during the course of the winter season, L'Alceste, by Georges Rivollet. The last time this play was put on was at the Theatre Sarah Bernhardt when that theatre was being used by the Comedie-Francaise players on account of a fire which destroyed part of their home. This was in 1900.

The Varietes will open its season somewhere about the last of September with a revival of La Vie Parisienne, which proved to be (as a revival) one of the big hits of last season. This house was playing the piece, when the sweltering weather gave it and all Paris theatres a solar plexus.

The Palais-Royal opened with a revival on August 22.

La Veuve Joyeuse (The Merry Widow) is the hit at the Apollo now, and will serve there until the winter season commences in earnest about October 1. Then the Transatlantiques will be revived for a long run.

Pierrot, Jardinier, is the title of a pantomime, the work of Willette, a poet-painter here. It will be produced this winter in a boulevard theatre. The story is simply delicious.

It is in the days of Louis XIII, when costumes were pretty. Pierrot and Pierrette live together in a fairy bower of flowers and fruits, the care of which is the one passion of Pierrot's life. Pierrette is a tender, adoring doll-wife and worships her Pierrot. He gives all his attention to his roses. Pierrette one day cuts a rose—after all, are they not for her, all of them?—and Pierrot, who sees her, becomes furious. He tells her never to do such a thing again. Pierrette pouts and cries.

Leaving his pretty wife alone while he chases away the trifle-making Harlequins, Cassandre, Polichinelle, etc. (his friends), a military march is heard in the streets and with the music, the tramp of measured feet. Presently an officer, a handsome young fellow, appears with a lodging ticket. He is to put up at the home of Pierrot. Seeing the dainty little creature, Pierrette, in tears, he plucks a rose and offers it to her. Pierrot returns at this juncture and is doubly furious. He storms frightfully, but the officer shows his lodging ticket and Pierrot subsides. Night falls. The soldiers are prowling and try to steal Pierrot's fruit. He chases after them, mad with rage. Presently he returns to see the officer, draped in a cloak that drops on the ground, stealing out of the bower of fruits and flowers. What! He, too, a thief? Pierrot would show him. An irregularity is noted in the cloak, and Pierrot believes it to be a melon, so he stabs it with a knife. Pierrette falls dead at his feet. She was hiding under the cloak and was going away with the officer. Full of remorse and realizing, now that it was too late, that his love for her Pierrette was the biggest thing in his life, he cuts all the flowers and drops them over her body. Then, seizing the officer's sword, he kills himself.

For a moment the officer rests motionless and silent. Then he comes to himself, as if from a dream, salutes the two dead bodies, and marches away to the faint call of bugles. Curtain.

The Athenes will produce in September, immediately after opening its season, Les Aventures de Mr. Pickwick. Of course, this play is an adaptation of the old favorite in English, Mr. Pickwick. Robert Charvay is responsible for introducing Mr. Pickwick to Parisians, he and his collaborator, Georges Duval, who, by the way, is one of the foremost Shakespearean scholars in France. Mr. Tupman, Mr. Winkle, Mr. Snodgrass, Mr. Wardle, Sam Weller and all the true Pickwickian characters have been faithfully preserved.

Lucien Guitry, who created Chantecler, and who is one of the best of the French actors, is now in South America, playing. He will return to the Vandeville about the middle of October, where he will be seen in a new piece by a well-known author, following a revival, however, of his last season's success, Le Tribuna.

Mme. Rejane, who suffered a breakdown while playing at the Porte Saint-Martin last spring in L'Enfant de l'Amour. She is now regaining her health at Royat. She is said to be practically as well as ever, needing only a few weeks more to recuperate completely. Jane Harding, who created Madame X here, is due back in Paris, however, this month. She will be seen in the revival of La Femme Noe. After a short revival of La Femme X (Madame X), she will create the principal roles of La Crise, the new play of Paul Bourget and Andre Besnner.

The Mathurins Theatre is a new one to be opened this coming winter. It seats 700 people and will be managed by a woman, Mme. Almee Faure.

of every situation. Altogether he is the inspiration and organizer of a play. More and more every year every one concerned realize their dependence on him. Many a good play has been ruined by the inefficiency of the stage management; many a mediocre play has been turned into a howling success by a stage manager who knew his business and was determined to make every ounce out of his opportunities.

himself in a position where it is agreeable and convenient to ask the tylist to join him, and where, under the soothing influences of the champagne, they discover their mutual love for one another, kiss and embrace, and are discovered in the act by the woman in pursuit, who promptly goes and tells, and is called a liar for her pains.

"A fourth act is required to rearrange the plans for making a married man of a single one, the task becoming easy enough after the little neighbor person has in her turn discovered that Robert is unsuitable to her, and that 'he doesn't belong to this generation,' a statement challenged with some asperity, you may be sure, by his present fiancée, the tylist.

"There is little doubt that A Single Man will please Mr. Drew's clientele, for it provides him with what appears to be a congenial role, and one in which his admirable comedy method has good play. It is a play, moreover, which is well made and neatly written, and in which the situations are cleverly contrived to bring about the amiable conclusion.

"In the supporting company, Miss Thais Lawton has the most difficult role—that of the persistent husband hunter, a woman attempting to adapt her moods to those of the literary person she is chasing. And Miss Lawton plays the part with excellent variety and humor. Louise Drew is capital as the conniving sister-in-law.

"Miss Mary Boland does not quite succeed in the moment of final avowal, and her playing is somewhat reminiscent of Smith, but she is otherwise satisfying in the role of the tylist. An excellent performance is given by Ivan Simpson, and there is the fresh appeal of youth in Carroll McComas. Cecilia Radcliffe does nicely in a character hit, and the others serve.

"The play is prettily mounted and well staged. Mr. Drew, as usual, expressed his brief thanks, and at the end of the play, Hubert Henry Davies, the author of the comedy, came forward and expressed his appreciation."

the audience, and his snake dance in the third and fourth acts, creations of art as they were brought forth much applause. Although the plot of the comedy is thin, it has nevertheless furnished Mr. Browne with various opportunities to change characters and to display a gorgeous array of costumes resplendent and colorful.

The lyric part of the piece fell entirely to Ulrich and Suzanne Rocamora, two college girls to the play, and to the chorus.

The engagement of this theatre for the musical comedy is limited, but there is little doubt but that it can well justify a pleasing Broadway run.

NEW COMEDY HAS PREMIERE.

of only four persons, described on the program as a comedietta in three acts and entitled, Thy Neighbor's Wife. Mr. Elmer Harris is the author. The theme of the play is an excellent one, and actors and producer, Mr. Frohman, did their full duty, but so much praise can not be given to the playwright.

"There was a great deal of mirth in the first act, which closed with Mr. Robbins and Mr. Miller striking a bargain to reform their respective wives. Mr. Miller's complaint was that his wife paid too little attention to her dress and personal appearance. In the second act the wives, noting the change of demeanor in their husbands, strike a similar bargain, and in the last act all ends happily with the wives the winners.

"Mr. Arthur Byron, as John Robbins, made the most out of his part. In the situations, which permitted a little real comedy, he was at his best, as when he returned to his own home, after a week's trial living at his neighbor's house, and confronted his own wife, Mrs. Robbins, who was played by Miss Pamela Gaytherne. Both she and Miss Alice John, who played Mrs. Miller, did their best acting when plotting against their husbands. The fourth member of the cast was Mr. Frederick Tiden, as Harry Miller, in a role with better opportunities for comedy he could give a better account of himself."

The Times further states in its criticism that the play is better adapted to social presentations than theatrical in so much as the cast is small and the action light. There is no doubt that there is great truth in this statement but the fact still remains that Thy Neighbor's Wife serves as an excellent introductory entertainment for the Lyceum to offer the metropolitan.

PINAFORE REVIVAL BEGINS.

but even added an extra incentive to go and see it by presenting Broadway's prodigal daughter, Fay Templeton, in the role of Little Buttercup. Alan Dail veritably hushed with appreciation on account of the return of the talented star.

The Herald probably gives a fair idea of the salutation extended Miss Templeton on her last day return.

"Pinafore, with a few changes in its quarter-deck personnel, got under way at the Casino Theatre at half past two o'clock, Monday afternoon. It was the second cruise of the good old ship in New York waters this summer, and a well-pleased crowd saw the start.

"The greatest interest centered in the return to the stage of Miss Fay Templeton in the role of Little Buttercup, a part she acted and sang for the first time in her career. It is more than four years since Miss Templeton was married to Mr. William J. Patterson of Pittsburgh and retired from the stage. Her many friends who welcomed her back were glad the retirement was not permanent.

"Miss Templeton is an artist to her fingertips, and she brought all her talent to bear on the part of the humboat woman. There was nothing awell about her gown or her bonnet, but her performance was of the latest and most approved style. Her singing was a delight, and she brought out some things on the dramatic side that are frequently missed. She was recalled again and again, the audience frequently interrupting the performance to applaud.

"Miss Edith Decker was a new Josephine, and she acquitted herself with credit. There was nothing in the sometimes difficult music at which she balked, and she was fair to look upon as the captain's daughter. Mr. R. E. Graham was the Sir Joseph, a part he did well.

"The Captain Corcoran of Mr. George J. MacFarlane again earned high praise. It was a fine performance. So were the Dick Deadeys of Mr. De Wolf Hopper, the resounding Bobstay of Mr. Eugene Cowles. Mr. Arthur Aldridge poured out a wealth of tenor notes as Ralph, and Miss Alice Brady was again a dainty Hebe."

MCINTYRE SCORES IN SNOBS.

World characterizes it as a dead weight for Frank McIntyre. This is manifestly unfair, as the following excerpt from the Times will convince:

"The Hudson Theatre began its season with a laugh when Frank McIntyre became a star in a new farce by George Bronson Howard. The laugh began with Mr. McIntyre's first appearance in the rooms of Henry Disney, milkman to 142 families in some unnamed small city, and it continued almost to the end of the play, when a bit of melodrama supplied a small thrill and interrupted an off-stage performance of Man and Superman.

"Snobs is the title of the comedy, and the theme of the author's humorous satire. The theme and its general development have been seen on the stage before, frequently, but last night's audience found the subject amusing, certainly, and therefore entertaining.

"The story begins when Henry Disney, a milkman, is discovered as heir to a string of titles, including a dukedom, five marble palaces and some $70,000,000. Henry has already fallen in love with Nondra Parkyn, heiress to a preserve manufacturer, possessed of wealth, a sense of humor, and devoid of social standing. Henry's chum, Buck Reade, a furrier's tender in a machine shop, is in love with Laura Langle, whom he met in the course of duty, showing her over the foundry—and as he has studied popular fiction to some extent, he has purchased a full dress suit in order to go to the opera house and look at her from a distance.

"So when Henry finds he is a duke and has to live up to it, he persuades Buck to take the job for a short time, or until he has learned how to make people like him for himself. What success he has and what are Buck's experiences bring out the snobbery of the people with whom they are thrown in contact. Henry, the duke, wins what he is seeking, but Buck gets a rather hard lesson on the subject of respectability of modern fiction."

The Herald pays the following compliment to the new play and its big star: "There is a saying that many a good street sweeper has been spoiled by men getting up in the world, but that doesn't apply to Henry Disney, the milkman, who turned out to be Duke Something or Other in Snobs, a new play that opened the season at the Hudson Theatre. And just because the name of Mr. Frank McIntyre, who played Disney, was in his black letters at the head of the cast, signifying that he was a star for the first time, didn't make any difference in him either. The audience liked him and told him so plainly.

"Snobs never wanders far without his agreeable, laughing Mr. McIntyre. Miss Willette Kershaw, whom Disney said he was going to make 'Mrs. Duke,' was good, and Mr. Ragan Hinchston, whom Disney took from firing a furnace to become his private secretary, was earnest and convincing in a difficult role.

"Snobs isn't the greatest play you ever saw, but it will make you forget the high cost of living for an evening and reintroduce you to the amiable Mr. McIntyre, and that's worth while."

A Chicago paper is said to have made the remark that most New Yorkers can see the reflection of their own insularity by observing the moral to be gained from the new Howard play.

THE HAMMERSTEIN'S BILL.

come in a brief period of time, and then Miss Mitchell should have an enjoyable turn.

Having abandoned their familiar Camping Out skit into the discard, Smith and Campbell have taken up a conversational number, which they call Mr. Pimble. The material is funny and in the hands of Smith and Campbell it is given excellent treatment.

The ventriloquist talents of The Great Howard were appreciated. Howard was followed by Bert Leslie, whom we shall call the king of slang, and his company, consisting of Miss Adelaide Matthews, E. J. Bradt, Samuel R. Wilson and Mr. Leslie, who regaled a lunch of minute with the farcical sketch, Hogan, the Painter.

Two clever lads are Mike Bernard and Willie Jackson. Placing their feet on a stool, they lean back and give the best of positions, but Bernard and Weston waded right in, mowed down all obstacles and came through with a real hit. The Gordon Brothers in some bag punching feats, and winding up with a three-round bout with their boxing kangaroo, closed the show.

UP AND DOWN BROADWAY NOTES

W. Mason's The Witness for the Defense, Billie Burke in Pierre Veber's The Runaway, Madame Nazimova in Algeron Boyesen's new play, The Other Mary, Haddon Chambers' new play, Passers-By, and A. W. Pinero's newest comedy, Preserving Mr. Panmure.

For the first time in eleven weeks—his longest period of absence in the twenty years that he has owned it—Charles Frohman, last Thursday night, August 31, entered his home theatre, the Empire, with the assistance of a pair of crutches and in spite of the heavy downpour of rain. A convalescent from articular rheumatism, that has for some time crippled his right knee, Mr. Frohman found himself far enough advanced towards recovering to mount a new pair of crutches and ride from the Hotel Knickerbocker to the Empire Theatre in time to attend the dress rehearsal of John Drew.

David Belasco's production of William C. DeMille's new play, The Woman, was produced in Bridgeport, Conn., September 4.

Burns Mantel, formerly the dramatic editor of the Chicago Tribune and the Inter Ocean, arrived in New York September 2 to begin labors as the author of a weekly dramatic letter for the Chicago Tribune Syndicate. He surrendered his position as Sunday editor of the Tribune to assume these new responsibilities.

The second week of the engagement of Donald Brian in The Siren at the Knickerbocker Theatre was celebrated by the introduction of a new duet, entitled Oh, Do Step the Two Steps, which was sung and danced by F. Pope Stampler and Miss Loya Manning.

Lydia Lopokova, the little dancer, returned to the cast at the Winter Garden Theatre, September 4, after an absence of more than two weeks, due to a sprained ankle. She seemed to have been greatly refreshed by her enforced rest, and appeared in the roles that she had formerly assumed in the Russian ballets.

Kyrle Bellw will open his season in Buffalo Monday night, September 11, in Henry Davies' comedy, The Mollie. After a week in Buffalo he will go to Chicago to begin the season at Powers' Theatre. Isabel Irving, Jane Fegard and Frank Goldsmith will have important roles in Mr. Bellw's support.

Edward H. Robins, who played the role of John Madison with Frances Starr in The Eastest Wav, has been engaged for the company supporting Edmund Breece in A Man of Honor, which is to come to Weber's Theatre on September 14.

William A. Brady is to transfer Douglas Fairbanks and A Gentleman of Leisure from his Playhouse to Charles Dillingham's Globe Theatre on Wednesday, September 13.

Anna Held has sailed for New York. Upon her arrival, Miss Held will immediately begin rehearsals of Miss Innocence, a play that served her to good purpose for two seasons. In this piece she will make a trip to the Pacific Coast, returning after twelve weeks to rehearse in a new play now being written for her. The new play will be the work of George V. Hobart, Julian Mitchell and Raymond Hunsbelle.

The engagements of Dore Davidson for Daddy Tyl, Giorgio Mjeroni for Fire and Harriet Sterling for Night, complete the cast for the revival of The Blue Bird at the Century Theatre. Others in the company are Burford Hampden, Helene Lackaye, Cecil Yapp, W. H. Denney, Alice Butler, Ethel Brandon, Garibell Campbell, John Sutherland, Charles Hampden, Gwendolyn Valentine, Merle Maddern, George Sylvester, Margaret Fairleigh and Berta Donn.

Barney Gerard's Follies of the Day is the attraction selected for the opening of Cook's Opera House on Monday night, April 11. This new house has been added to the Western Burlesque Wheel.

The Moral Code has been brought back to this city for slight repairs. Daniel Frohman will make another production at the Lyceum Theatre during the spring. He has not definitely decided upon which of four contemplated plays he will ultimately give. He has made a contract, however, with George Horace Lorimer of the Saturday Evening Post for the dramatic rights of the story John Spurluck. College and he has already set the dramatist at work. The play will set forth the difficulties experienced by a young collegian who enters upon the realities and practicalities of business life. He falls out with his father, faces the world himself, to gain in the end the respect and renewed affection of the elder Spurluck.

The Outsiders is the title given by Charles Klein to his new play which will be produced by the Anthony's Producing Company in November. The theme is taken from incidents in every-day life as gleaned from the daily newspapers, and will be found similar in plot to The Lion and the Mouse and The Gambler.

The poor condition of Mrs. Leslie Carter's health has necessitated the postponement of her rehearsals, which were to have begun September 5. Her tour was scheduled to begin at Ashbury Park on September 23. The rehearsals are to be resumed in two weeks, however.

Hubert Henry Davies, the English playwright, now visiting this country, enjoyed the pleasure of having two of his plays rehearsed in one theatre, September 1. On the stage of the Empire Theatre John Drew and his company were rehearsed in A Single Man, while in the spacious foyer of the same theatre Mr. Davies' earlier comedy, The Mollie, was being rehearsed by Kyrle Bellw and his company. Mr. Davies was able to keep an eye on both rehearsals and, in fact, the only defect in the enforced arrangement was that each company as it rehearsed was within hearing distance of the subdued voices of the other.

Donald Robertson is in New York engaging actors for the initiation of the New Theatre, which is to open in Chicago next November.

Woods & Frazee have engaged Florence Reed and J. Dodson-Mitchell for the company to support Julius Steger in The Master of the House which will make its premiere at the Cort Theatre, Chicago, November 5. Arrangements have also been made with Charles Frohman for the services of Gustave Von Safford to star the play. Amelia Gardner, Ralph Morgan and Eva Randolph will also have important parts in the production.

Edmund Breece and the company to support him in Isaac Landman's new play, A Man of Honor, left Saturday, September 2, for Rochester, N. Y., where on Monday at the Lyceum Theatre the initial performance was given. Joe Weber, the producer, and Mr. Landman, the author, accompanied them to witness the premiere. A Man of Honor will have a preliminary tour, and on Thursday, September 14, will begin a run at Weber's Theatre.

ACTS NEW TO CHICAGO.

gun. In the struggle the husband recognizes a brother who has gone to the aid of a brother who has been attempting to do. This has estranged the brothers, but after the present incident they both shake hands and promise to live honorable lives. The parts are all well carried, especially that of the tramp. They responded to several curtain calls.

TUSCANO BROS., Battleaxe Jugglers; Majestic, Chicago; first in nine-act show; time, ten minutes, full stage.

The Tuscano Bros. offer one of the really new and novel acts in the present-day vaudeville. Their appearance is decidedly in keeping with the nature of their act. The boys are costumed as gladiators and open their act by throwing the axes at each other and catching them on wood shields. This exhibition gives them an excellent start and followed up with a number of dangerous feats, makes the act a great hit. Their work is exceptionally fast and there is a noticeable elimination of all stalling. Considering their position on the bill and the number of people in the house during the offering, the act may be justly called a success.

LEON T. ROGEE, the Human Orchestra, Whistling and Imitations; Majestic, Chicago; fifth in nine-act show; time, eight minutes, in one.

Mr. Rogee is a wonderfully gifted artist in voice and throat manipulation. He opens with an imitation of a trombone which has everyone guessing. His second is of an oboe. This is a really different imitation, but Mr. Rogee has worked it up to perfection and scores heavily. His third and best imitation is of a cello. He uses an instrument with each stunt and it is really difficult to tell which is natural and which is the imitation. After this number Mr. Rogee announces "Intermission," and turning the back of the cello to the audience, displays a very tempting buffet. Rogee calmly uncorks a bottle of regular beer and does a very natural thing—he drinks it. After this he introduces imitations of various other instruments, including a piccolo. This imitation is very bad and is really detrimental to the act and would be well eliminated. Mr. Rogee proved a sensational hit and fully justified his important position on the bill.

MABELLE ADAMS & C. H. O'DONNELL, Dramatic playlet; Majestic, Chicago; third in nine-act show; time, seventeen minutes, full stage; number of people, four.

It seems that in Zilla, the playlet presented at the Majestic by the above-mentioned artists this week, there are possibilities for a more elaborate production. The playlet is presented in three scenes and is well staged. The story deals with a Gypsy violinist, a young girl who has been picked up from the street by an artist and given a home. Another artist has fallen in love with the girl, but she remains true to her benefactor. However, he accuses her of perjury and throws her again into the street. He becomes demented after her eviction and paints a masterpiece picture of her from memory. In the meantime Zilla has gained fame as a stage star and is returned to her benefactor by the young artist who had tried to force his love upon her at the time of her eviction from the home of his friend. An understanding is reached, her lover's reason is restored, and the entire affair is brought to a happy ending. The act goes very big and is worthy of a spot farther down on the bill.

WILSON AVENUE THEATRE.

The Melody Four stopped the show on Tuesday night. The boys have been wise in catering to the audience instead of themselves. They have selected a repertoire of the very latest popular numbers and have rehearsed them well before putting them across. Some of the numbers which scored heaviest were: My Love, Honey Man, Billy, and Alexander's Ragtime Band. They sing in close harmony, but there is some room for improvement here. Their instrumental work on violin, banjos and piano lends a novelty to the act which is well received.

Madame Herman closes the show in those feats of magic which are familiar to everyone. The act is nicely set and the costumes of her entire company very dignified and conservative. Magic is becoming passe in the family vaudeville houses, but Mme. Herman went very big.

SIX THEATRES OPENS.

ence. Col Thompson has remodeled and redecorated the house in excellent taste, the color scheme being Nile green, relieved by touches of gold, and the acoustics have been greatly improved. The Beggar Student is the opera to be sung the coming week, while Boccaccio is scheduled for the week following. When this opera is sung, the performance will be given greater color by the presence of Alti Hemmi, a soprano well known here in choir and operatic work, and Henry Davies, a tenor who sang minor roles with the company at the Metropolitan Opera House in New York. Ziegfeld's Follies, which opened the Colonial's fall festivities Monday night, has made a tremendous hit with Chicago, although its travesty on The Pink Lady and the woes attendant the reconstruction of the Grand Central Station could not be comprehended by an audience which has not yet seen the original production of the former, and necessarily can only take an outside interest in the latter. Bert Williams is acknowledged to be the star feature of the show, and his whimsicalities invite reverberating and long-continued merriment. The travesties, Everywhere and H. M. S. Vanderveel were greatly enjoyed, as their prototypes. Everywoman and Pinaflore, gave the audience its perspective. Those participating in these skits were Olga Rolier, Vera Maxwell, Grace Leigh.

The Misses Lolly, Tom Dingle and Miss Stella Chateleine are other joyous participants among the principals. Despite a certain Broadway insularity, Chicago, as said before, is enjoying Ziegfeld's Follies, which will run for an indefinite time at the Randolph Street playhouse.

On Monday evening, the Lyric Theatre will reopen with a single week's engagement of Gertrude Hoffmann's Salon des Ballets Russes. This organization, which has been the summer attraction at the Winter Garden in New York, moves to Chicago to act on a special train of Pullmans. The three ballets which are presented at the Winter Garden will be revealed here. They are Cleopatra, a minodrama in one act, telling the story of Theophile Gautier's One of Cleopatra's Nights; Les Syphides, a romantic comedy, and Sheherazade, a phantasmagoria of murder and sudden death, taken from the introduction to The Thousand and One Nights. A special stage has been constructed so that the delicate feet of Miss Hoffman's troupe will not get splinters in them. When the dancers have moved forward, that is on September 17, Lew Dockstader's Great Mistrals will take possession of the Lyric for a limited engagement. Neil O'Brien will have a conspicuous part in the merry-making with his funny act, entitled, Reforming the Force.

They ALL want it. Boys and girls simply can't get away from it. A perfect miniature of a SIX-SHOOTER and HOLSTER—typical of the gun-carrying days of the West. Made of splendid quality leather, with metal gun. Made within gunshot distance of the Alamo, cradle of Texas Liberty. Sells strictly on its merits as a novelty.

Okemah, Okla., July 19, 1911.

ALAMO LEATHER & NOVELTY CO., San Antonio, Texas:

Gentlemen:—Your last shipment of Pistol Scabbard Watch Fobs came in today, and opened with a ready sale. I have been in the souvenir business for the last ten years, and have handled various novelties and souvenirs. I have had success in most every effort, but this new sensation that you have sprung by placing on the market the Fob, beats anything I have tried. The fact that they are constructed of real leather and a Miniature Six-shooter and Scabbard, complete in every respect; also that they are manufactured at San Antonio, near the OLD ALAMO, all tends to help the buying public appreciate the novelty.

I first bought in small lots, but find to hang one card in window, I must keep a large supply inside, as there are no questions asked. The sale is made on sight. Traveling men, preachers, ladies and children all are anxious to pay the price. You have made a hit, and I wish you much success.

Yours truly,

G. H. FARNUM.

A customer at PENDLETON, OREGON, writes, after ordering a quantity: "Sold them all in less than an hour. Please rush five gross."

Send me at once by express, as before, 1/2 gross Novelty Watch Fobs. You said they would sell very fast. WELL! I guess they do sell. I have less than one dozen on hand. I sold five dozen in one week.

Respectfully yours,

M. D. HUIZZA, Books and Stationery, Cleburne, Texas.

Send Twenty-five Cents (coin) today for sample and prices, as we both lose money. ALAMO LEATHER & NOVELTY CO., 428 Ave. D, San Antonio, Texas. Say "Billyboy" when writing.

Please send us prepaid, 1/2 gross Leather Pistol Scabbard Watch Fobs. This is the best novelty we have ever struck. Sold three dozen today.

Respectfully,

BOTTLE BROTHERS, Booksellers, Houston, Texas.

THE POCKET UMBRELLA

The evolution of the umbrella into the Pocket Umbrella is the only one which gives the proper service to the traveling people. Just drop it in your toilet bag and you find it there when caught in rain. If no rain, you can not lose it. The average person spends many times in a year for umbrellas and soiled clothing than our Pocket Umbrella costs, and still never have one when needed most. Our Pocket Umbrella is always with you, and will last a lifetime, as same is absolutely rust-proof.

This is the only proper umbrella for a lady. Put in a leather case, as a handsome msnic roll. As one lady remarked when buying one, "A woman's heart could not stand the temptation of seeing one, but she must buy it."

There are no parts to be taken off or put on, but simply telescope it to about one-third its length. Any child can open it in five seconds and close it in twenty.

When wanted as a cane, it can be used as such, and it only telescopes when purposely done so. There is no difference in its appearance from any high grade umbrella.

Fill out the blank and mail today, and we will by return mail send you our booklet, which illustrates and describes the umbrella, and also our guarantee for same.

THE POCKET UMBRELLA CO., Findlay, Ohio:

Gentlemen:—Send me prepaid your instructive matter and guarantee about your umbrella.

KWENCH-A-THIRST

GUARANTEED

To be absolutely harmless and to comply fully with the Pure Food Laws of any and all states as well as with the National Food and Drugs Act, June 30, 1906, U. S. Serial No. 38948.

MONEY-MAKER

Every pound of Kwench-A-Thirst nets you $33.49, clear profit. You can figure it out yourself. 1 lb. makes 45 gallons or 720 glasses, which sells at 5c a glass.

QUALITY

Is the most important factor. Deliver the goods. Work for the cumbucks. On a hot day a person will often drink a dozen glasses of good drink, and boost it to his friends; while if the drink is bum, he will knock it all over the grounds. You need not fear to put Kwench-A-Thirst into competition with anything on the market. Kwench-A-Thirst is individual. It's in a class by itself.

PRICE

Is $2.00 per pound prepaid to any address in the United States or Canada. You can pay more for other products, but if you will try Kwench-A-Thirst you'll see that high price does not always buy the best quality goods.

BOTH

The Orangeade and Lemonade are rich in color, true to flavor, reproducing the delicate aroma of the natural fruit to perfection. Kwench-A-Thirst products provide a pure, delicious, cooling and healthful drink at a cost far below those prepared directly from the fruits and without any of the labor or inconvenience of preparing such.

RIGHT

Kwench-A-Thirst will keep for any length of time in any climate, perfect in every detail, ready for use. Kwench-A-Thirst contains everything except water and sugar necessary to the production of the drink.

A single trial will convince you of the Kwench-A-Thirst satisfying quality and selling power. One pound for 45 gallons, or 720 glasses, for $2.00. Trial package for one gallon. 10c.

Feature Attraction with the Bulger & Cheney Railroad Shows this season

The picture represents Mr. La Croix holding the weight of bicycle and lady by the teeth while in operation. The bicycle and lady are beautifully illuminated with electric lights. The lady member is the only lady ever accomplishing a somersault from the cradle of the apparatus. We carry two pieces of scenery, back and leg drop, and our own special lithographs, 28x42 in.; real wardrobe and lobby display. Reliable vandeville agents, huzlesque or repertoire managers, if you want a real box office attraction, let us hear from you. At liberty after November 15. Permanent address, 153 Richmond Avenue, Richmond, Indiana.

$1500.00 MADE IN ONE MONTH WITH A 'LONG' POPCORN CRISPETTE MACHINE

You might just as well make as much as J. A. M. Maryland took in $250.00 in one day. Every nickel brought almost 4 cents profit. Best season just at hand. You can make lots of money this Fall at County and Street Fairs, Parks, Amusement Halls, Circuses, etc. Or, stay in your own town—rent a small store—a window—where the people will pass—set up your machine—sell Crispettes—make big money. Crispettes are fine—different in shape, taste and quality. Everybody—young and old—craves them. Sell for 5c a package—popular price—easy to get money. Think of fortunes made in five cent propositions—5c and 10c stores—moving pictures—street cars—easy money—mounts into the dollars—then figure what you can do. Write me today. Get particulars—reports from others. Act upon the prompting you have—new address

AGNES AND BILLY AHERN, of AGNES AHERN & CO.

The above represents two of vanderbilt's most popular artists (American), at the present time one of the big special attractions at the Toronto (Can.) Exposition. Their new electrical finish, The Human Wheel, the biggest sensational act ever seen in America, and the big hit at Toronto. Originated and invented by the little lady, who causes people to hold their breath while she spins inside of wheel at breakneck speed for two minutes. This act opens in New York City, October 2.

TWO CHICAGO PREMIERES.

cess of the play. Manager Harry Asklin has spared no reasonable expense in staging and costuming the production in a manner worthy of its importance, and the total result is the most pretentious and entertaining show that has ever occupied the boards of the La Salle, a house that has seen the premiere of many big successes.

The plot is inconsequential, but one has ceased to look for logic in a musical show. It suffices to carry an immense amount of diversion and that is all that the most exacting can ask.

The company, which includes some very prominent personages in the realm of musical comedy, respond vibrantly to the requirements of the libretto. Alex Carr as Lidofski, a Russian Jew, plays his role with the artistry of a Dave Ward and sings a song of feeling and tenderness, My Rose of the Ghetto, which is destined to become immensely popular. Beautiful Eva Fallon is dainty and delectable, and sings a number based upon Tom Powers' Joy and Glooms that will straightway find its way into the public repertoire. Sophie Tucker, who has been styled the Mary Garden of ragtime, has opportunities to display her characteristic work.

Of the play Percy Hammond, critic of the Tribune, is this to say:

"The expectation of the public when it assembles at the La Salle is that it will find on exhibition there a romance or two, some easily assimilated melodies, a lot of comely singing and dancing girls in fantastic raiment, and plenty of nonsense and pathos scattered in between."

"In the case of the La Salle's newest entertainment, Louisiana Lou, it seems safe to say that this expectation will not be disappointed, since the formula has been carefully compounded, with all its constituents present in liberal proportions. Not carefully compounded, perhaps, for the authors have added a clarity and coherence and a lyric facility not usually found among the elements of a La Salle show."

Of the players, Eric Delamarter of the Inter Ocean adds his mead of praise:

"Mr. Carr has accomplished something with this impersonation of the old Jew. He has eliminated the usual smirks and mannish dexterity, also the 'believe me!' Of course, there is plenty of extravagance in his playing, but there is sound sense at the bottom of it. He discovers sincerity and tenderness, absurdities and aberrations, parabolas of humor and fancies of a quaint personality, to the usual bag of tricks he adds a touch or two of pathos, notably in a bit of a song and reminiscences over the portrait of a sweetheart of long-dead days. His comedy is very effective and, to his greater credit, entirely legitimate."

"Bernard Granville assists him generously with his kaleidoscopic imagination, with his dances and mimicry, and with hits of inspiration like his piano playing pantomime on a wicker table. William Riley Hatch appears with mien as the father of the prospective bridegroom, and Dorothy Granville, Eva Fallon, who dances and sings prettily, Mary Quive, Joseph Burton and Robert O'Connor round out the competent cast. Of Sophie Tucker it is only necessary to record that she blew her songs through her mouth with her characteristic carelessness of results, and threw in a good measure of by-play."

Ashion Stevens of the Examiner waxed enthusiastic, thus:

"It's a sane show for its kind, is Louisiana Lou, and will be very popular, I fancy, despite the good measure of artificiality that Mr. Donaghey has contrived to work into it. Louisiana Lou fits its people, fits its town, and fits the 1911-12 demand. I can think of but one desirable elimination, that of the Let Us Sing the Chorus All Over Again number for male quartet and chorists. It is a satire on what the harmonists term 'the chord of the tonorial servanth.' But it sounds more like the real thing than a satire."

"But, think of it!—only one desirable elimination after the first night! That means 'some show,' as Mr. James O'Donnell Bennett would not say."

But James O'Donnell Bennett of the Record-Herald did say this:

"The new diversion of the new season at the La Salle is very melodious, reasonably mirthful and extraordinarily ornate. Such pretty girls in such pretty clothes the town has not beheld in a long time—and they are clever girls, expert in dance and chorus pageantry and at one in the working out of the rich and harmonious ensembles."

"As to the principals, it is a Fallon-Granville-Carr affair. They carry the piece in a high level as to the acting, the singing and dancing numbers and they would hold it there undisturbedly were it not for the occasional devastations of Miss Sophie Tucker."

LOUISIANA LOU, a musical play by Addison Burckhardt and Frederick Donaghey, with tunes by Ben M. Jerome. Produced in Chicago at the La Salle September 3, 1911, with the following cast:

Lansing Bright, an adventurer... Joseph Burton
The Duke de Lune, a fortune-seeking impostor... Robert O'Connor Gladya, Konkarney's second wife, an ex-show girl... Dorothy Granville Della Fair, her sister... Miss Eva Fallon
Jack Konkarney, Konkarney's son... Paul McCarthy
Nixon Holmes, an enemy of slumber... Bernard Granville Roderick Konkarney, political boss of New Orleans... William Riley Hatch Jennie Wimp, a native daughter, chaperon of Louisiana-Lou... Miss Sophie Tucker

UNCLE SAM.

ing, and a happy combination of circumstances (very much overdrawn, but allowable in farce), makes it possible to break the ties that bind him to the actress, who has proven herself to be a bad type of adventuress.

Of the co-stars and their work, Percy Hammond says: "Mr. Barrymore, being involved with a continental seductress named Kitzl, most admirably impersonated by Miss Juliette Dika, desires that his niece's plans be frustrated, since Kitzl represents to him his ideal of matrimonial contentment. So, knowing his niece's predilection toward virility in men, he turns himself into a prancing and mincing exquisite whose chief interest is the relation of the purple hue to textile embroidery. Nansated with his nephew's sexless manifestations, Mr. Wise who can say 'Hell!' at the end of an act as well as anybody, proposes to decamp and leave Mr. Barrymore to his goat's milk and raspberry sherbet. If there is a fault to be found with Uncle Sam as a farce it is in the somewhat too insistent dwelling on the purple falsetto thread. In charge of any one less fundamentally vigorous and manly than Mr. Barrymore the incident would be ghastly. As it was, Mr. Barrymore got away with it and made a lot of fun. Mr. Wise, who in the process of the farce was forced to do likewise, was equally successful, and the laughs he won with his purple stockings and his kerchief in his coatleeve were many and sincere."

Eric Delamarter in addition to paying a tribute to the stars has words of praise for John J. Scannell of whom he says:

"The role of the chauffeur is played by John J. Scannell, who makes a hit as one of the brass-tongued, impertinent popular just now. He has a curious inflection in dashing off his lines that makes them seem twice as funny as they really ought to be. Juliette Dika has comparatively little to do as the adventuress, but so much as is given her is cared for effectively. The rest of the cast may be recorded generally as competent."

"Uncle Sam is a jolly good farce. If you are anxious to laugh you will find the opportunity in this piece, for what you may think lacking in the play itself is compensated by a wild variety in the playing."

Ashion Stevens of The Examiner, is extravagantly praiseful: O. L. Hall of The Journal, commends it as good entertainment, and James O'Donnell Bennett finds it insane, tiresome and foolish—a variety of opinion calculated to suit the means and the extremes."

UNCLE SAM—A farce in three acts by James O'Dea and Mrs. Ann Caldwell O'Dea. Presented September 3, 1911, at the Olympic Theatre.

TROUBLE IN LONDON.

tired of strikes in this country. As it is full power is left to the executive to order a strike if they are actually driven to it.

It is unfortunate that this trouble should have arisen at this moment, for there has been a very bad feeling engendered already over the action of many managers during the recent railroad strike. Naturally the music halls were the first to feel the effects of it, and for quite a fortnight not ten per cent of the halls took enough to pay expenses. Promptly the managers proposed to meet the deficiency by a reduction of fifty per cent in the artists' salaries, taking advantage of a strike clause contained in most contracts. Performers naturally bitterly resented this and were determined not to consent to any such course. Had not the strike ended and a break in the weather fortunately come at the same moment, we should have seen the strange spectacle of the halls shut down, the artists banded in co-operative companies, and engaging public halls in the same towns as the closed houses, so as not to be deprived of their rights.

Today Alfred Butt, chairman of the Variety Theatres Controlling Company, and manager of the Palace Theatre, London, has issued a statement in which he says that it is untrue to say that the combine aims at cutting salaries. Their object, according to him, is merely a rearrangement, modifying the harring clause, and giving artists inner arrangements at a reduced salary, thus benefiting both parties. He further complains that salaries have recently gone up while profits have decreased.

In view of the fact that the Palace has paid a dividend of twenty per cent this year, as well as carrying $30,000 to the reserve account, artists are not inclined to attach much weight to his present utterance. Instead they are watching his next move very closely. At present the position looks very ugly, but I shall be glad if, before this reaches you, I do not have to cable that the strike has been declared.

open with a soft shoe dance. A piano solo and song follows. The feature bit of the act, used for a final, is a dance which is announced as having been taught to the brothers by Primrose and West. It is well executed and brought forth some applause.

CARTER DE HAVEN, Songs and Dances: 30 minutes; full stage; Hammerstein's Victoria.

De Haven's billing reads: "Vandeville's Classiest Offering." So it is. The first thing to excite any comment is De Haven's setting. He is carrying a special drop of purple hue ornamented with gold designs. His hangers are of the same color. The setting is so constructed as to have a dressing-room in the background. De Haven makes all his changes in view of the audience.

A plant, programmed as Hor Arthur H. Gntman opens the act with a piano selection, priming the way for De Haven. The first song rendered by De Haven is called Is There A Nice Little Girl Who Has Nothing in do Tonight, finishing with one of the characteristic De Haven dances. I Took Her Out to Sea is the title of his second number. In a Taxi Cab, his

Who writes that he was unable to lay off this summer in order to "paint the hen coop, build a new fence and shingle the barn," as a great many other acts did. "However," he adds, "I did manage to lay off three days and put four dollars worth of improvements in my act, which information will no doubt be of as much interest to agents and managers."

third number, in which he used a prop taxi. De Haven has a particularly good song. A child number, called If I Was a Little Bit Older, brought forth De Haven attired in a "kid" outfit. His fifth song is what is programed as a Story Melody. An outburst of applause followed De Haven's last number and he returned to sing Honey Man, which turned out to be one of the hits of his repertoire. De Haven dresses true to his characters. The picture De Haven makes undoubtedly arouses the interest of the women in the audience.

For classiness of offering De Haven stands A No. 1. He has with him a pianist and two colored card boys who add to the appearance of the act.

THE DRAMA

A QUARTERLY REVIEW OF DRAMATIC LITERATURE

EDITED BY WILLIAM NORMAN GUTHRIE AND CHARLES HUBBARD SERGEL.

The Drama is devoted exclusively to the higher literature of the drama. Each number contains a complete play of classic value, which features alone is worth more than the price of subscription. The articles and editorials give a review of the world's current activities in dramatic literature. Thus THE DRAMA becomes absolutely indispensable to the student of the modern drama.

WANTED--ORIENTAL DANCERS

For HAGENBECK-WALLACE SHOWS

Good lookers and good wardrobe; long season; good salary and expenses to right party. Address CHARLES McDONALD, Hagenbeck-Wallace Show, Monett, Mo., Sept. 15; Rogers, Ark., 16; Fayetteville 18; Ft. Smith 19; Clarksville 20.

Wanted---Shows, Freaks and Novelties

For Booster Carnival, backed by 2,500 business men of Sioux City, Iowa, week of September 18 in connection with Interstate Fair. Streets blocked off in heart of city. City of 60,000 population, with over 150,000 visitors. Attractions booked on attractive percentage basis. Wire D. E. KERBY, Sioux City, Iowa.

THE POCKET UMBRELLA.

An umbrella has just been placed on the market by the Pocket Umbrella Co., Findlay, Ohio, which promises to revolutionize the umbrella business and will be welcomed by show people who, being constantly on the road, find the old-fashioned, cumbersome umbrella hard to carry from place to place.

This new umbrella is so constructed that by a simple "twist of the wrist" its size is reduced to just fifteen inches, making it small enough to be slipped into the pocket, handbag, or suitcase. For ladies it is put up in a case similar to a music roll, the case varying in quality from imitation leather to alligator skin with gold chains and handles.

As these umbrellas are no higher in price than ordinary ones of good grade, they are sure to command a ready sale among members of the theatrical profession and others. On account of its novelty and convenience, it should make a most acceptable present from one friend to another.

SCIENTIFIC PASTE COOKER.

Ripplens are delighted with the paste cookers and removers of the Rippley Mfg. Co., Gratiot, Ill. As a really good paste cooker has been hard to find, the fact that this company has solved the problem is a matter of general interest to the "knights of the brush." Since this cooker has been introduced, the Rippley Company has received hundreds of unsolicited testimonials from pleased purchasers, which has caused their business to develop to mammoth proportions. The cooker is considered very cheap for the work it does and its great improvement over the old-style cookers.

DOG CRAZE.

A noticeable feature at the parks and resorts the past season was the craze which possessed children and grown folks for unbreakable dolls and fur toys. The Tee-Zee dog on a stick as well as the Anzora dogs proved to be the favorites, although the Teddy bear refused to wane in popularity. The craze extended even to fairs and carnivals, where many vendors met with the greatest success carrying this line. The unbreakable toy is the manufacture of L. Ambrose, the largest American manufacturer of dolls and fur toys, with headquarters in New York.

NOTES OF THE ROAD.

According to a statement made by L. Scott Townsend, president of the New Castle (Del.) County Fair Association, the proposition to make Newark Del., a town just south of Wilmington, the headquarters of the fair and to hold the annual exhibitions there, instead of in Wilmington, will not be decided until a meeting of the directors, which will probably be in a few weeks. The people of Newark have offered some flattering inducements in order to obtain the fair, and are going to work hard toward securing it. Naturally, Wilmington being the largest city in Delaware, and having excellent trolley facilities, as well as rail and water transportation, is favored; but the offer made by Newark is such that it would lessen the annual risk of the association in running the gauntlet of the weather.

Among acts now appearing on the Hodkins' Lyric Circuit are: The Original Potts Brothers and Co., "The Aerophone Girl," Lucille Tilton, Dorothy Lamb and Co., "Art and the Rhell Sisters," Piri and Piri, Yvonne D'Arcy and Co., Beme and Ferguson, Manning Twins, Martelli and Rossi, Black and Black, Alberto, Britt Wood, The Trillers, Gladys Dix, Len and Dolie Willis, Sam Glider, Eaton's Dogs, Stanley and Gray, Apollo Quartette, Mosher and Likes, Dawson and Tyson, Nichols and Sherwood, Le Ora Vennet, Davis and Caldwell and Lewis, The Eatous, Hall and O'Brien, Blaisdell and Webster and many others.

Crawford's comedians opened their summer season May 1, with two companies, under the management of Raymond D. and Talmage Crawford. The summer has been spent in Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma and Arkansas, and business has been all that could be expected, as neither show has had a reverse week. Both companies carry their own Pullman cars, and a company of twenty-four people, featuring their band and orchestra. Both companies go South this winter. The new play, The Black Sheep, written by Raymond D. Crawford, is the feature play and is making a hit.

Axel Christensen, "The Oar of Bagtime," decided to quit vaudeville a week or so ago, but had no more than reached that conclusion when Edward C. Hayman, of the Western Vaudeville Managers' Association, tendered him a route which called for his opening at Earl Claire, Wis., Labor Day. To get these Christensen had to get a release from Sunday at the Ellis theatre, where he was appearing as a special feature for Alfred Hamburger, but this was accomplished.

Jacobs and Dale, "The Jew and the Other Fellow," report continued success around Western New York and Pennsylvania. Week of August 21st they appeared at the Plaza, Buffalo, with a lot of new material and scored an instantaneous hit. A lot of good singing and talking, with good, bright comedy, make the act "go," and these boys can get over big in any house.

Robinson Newbold and Marie Gribbin is a team new to vaudeville, both having been connected with legitimate music and dramatic companies for a number of years. Miss Gribbin, while prima donna at the New York Hippodrome playing Neptune's Daughter, made 606 dives in the big pool and never missed a performance—nor a high note—during the engagement.

Mighty Oaks has been drawing record crowds in Ohio and Indiana featuring his sensational glass water tank escapes. The tank is the only one of its kind in the country, and Oaks escapes from it after it has been filled to the top with water and then locked. Oaks opens September 16, for a two weeks' engagement at Winona Lake, Ind.

The Ross Comedy Company are in their sixteenth week playing airshows around St. Louis. The Larch and Carroll team joined the company. Also Dick Yargan (Dancing Dick), and sister. The company at the present time has nearly all its old bunch back, and is practically the same as for the last five years. Fourteen people are carried.

Commodore Foote has returned to Ft. Wayne from La Fayette, Ind., where he participated in the K. of P. Encampment, August 7-12. There were over two thousand uniformed Knights of Pythias in line of parade, and the Commodore attracted considerable attention as the smallest K. of P. in the line of march.

Mr. and Mrs. Blessing have finished playing the Greenwood Circuit and joined the Spellman Stock Company for the balance of the season. Madam Jewell, who has the Jewell Manikins, sailed for Europe August 17, on the S. S. Adriatic. During her absence the act will be presented by her daughter, Miss Lillie Jewell.

Selbini and Grovini have returned from England after a seven weeks' engagement at Tivoli on the Strand, London, to fulfill bookings on this side until the last week in February, when they return to England for a run of one year. They have changed the opening of the act, adding music and are using all new costumes.

Capt. Sidney Hinman and his Water Circus & Life-Saving Dogs close September 4 at Lake Compounce, Conn. The show played fourteen weeks at parks with considerable success. He opens his vaudeville season September 11, featuring the new act, Man Overboard, with special scenery and pictures.

Francesco Doniganda, for the past season leader of the orchestra at Shady Grove Park, Uniontown, Pa., has resigned to become musical director for Billy Clifford, in The Man, The Game and the Girl. His wife, Wilhelmina Bowman, has been engaged as prima donna with the same company.

The Norwoods, hypnotists, open their fall season at Topeka, Kas., September 11, for week, with the strongest company they have ever had. Ed Wiley has charge of the advance. The Norwoods carry their own stage settings of velvet and electrical effects, and will play the very best time.

Arthur O. May writes that after playing a ten weeks' route for the Western Vaudeville Managers' Association single, he will take a short vacation at his home at Norman, Okla., and rejoin his partner, Mr. Charles Stutzman, October 9. They will again produce their well-known rube comedy act, The Soap Peddler.

The New Era Floating Palace is near the headwaters of the Kentucky River and will start South in a few days. This is the fifty-second week and about forty more before the show can get over the route, and then it will be time to start again. "There is no rest for the wicked."

Tom Nawn and Company will play the Orpheum Circuit this season, opening at Omaha, September 17. He has with him, besides Mrs. Nawn, Frank Dawson and Miss Pauline Eckhart, playing Shan, the Bullock and Fritha, respectively. In When Pat Was King, the product of Anna Marble Pollock's pen.

John Howley, formerly of Howley and Leslie, has just been operated on the second time for his eyes. The operation was successful and he will be able to work in five or six weeks. He would be pleased to hear from his friends. Address, 115 South Poria Street, Chicago, Ill.

Charles H. Dontrick reports that the houses booked from his office in Chicago are doing a splendid business and predicts a big season for vaudeville houses. Every report which comes to his office is of a nature which gives him confidence in the future of the vaudeville business.

Perkins Fisher celebrated his 50th birthday at Brookline, Mass., August 26. Mr. Fisher also closed his 34th year on the stage, and his 12th in vaudeville, playing The Half Way House. His 13th season opened September 4 at Harrisburg, Pa., over the United Time.

Frank Rutledge, Grace Bainbridge and Jack Bradshaw, after a three months' vacation at Mr. Rutledge's summer home at Spring Lake, Mich., opened August 21 at the Miles Theatre, Detroit, Mich., presenting their comedy, Our Wife. This is the third season for the act.

A pleasant summer engagement and a big hit at the Wonderland Theatre, Norfolk, Va., is reported by "Nuts" B. Chandler's Orchestra. W. F. Crall, the manager, accorded them fine treatment and everybody is "happy." The engagement will close about Labor Day.

Chas. E. Whitney opened as agent of Himmelman's Imperial Stock Co., at Columbus, Ind., Aug. 7. This is Mr. Whitney's fourth season ahead of the Himmelman attractions. The company comprises about the same cast as last season, and will play the Middle West.

Tom Brantford, who has been operating an agency in Chicago, will open a tour of Western Vaudeville Managers' Association Time at Wichita, Kan., August 28. He has abandoned the agent game, preferring to take a chance on the applause of the audiences.

Leona Cortel Musical Comedy Company, after playing twelve weeks through North Dakota and Montana, is working East again, and every night that way brings a smile to Faden and Read, Galey and Galey, Irene Heinman, Grace Bevis, Clara Frederick and Otto Cortel.

Savoy and Savoy and Miss Helen Juliette, who are booked solid on the United Time for the coming season, are spending a very pleasant week at Waldameer Beach, Erie. The show, which is the last of the season at the park, proved to be a great success.

Dolph and Susie Levino opened their third season on the S. & C. Circuit at Louisville, week of August 20. Susie Levino has entirely recovered from a severe attack of rheumatism. The Levinos have been summering with Jim Jarvis at LaCrosse, Wis.

Estha Williams (Mrs. Arthur C. Alston) will be seen in vaudeville during the coming season, her tour being directed by Valerie Bergerie, arrangements having been made to that effect by Arthur C. Alston. Pat Casey will book the route for the sketch.

Kleis Hypnotic and Vanderville Co. were compelled to close for a time on account of Ray Barker sustaining a broken arm at Superior, Neb. The company is at Lawrence, Kan., and has cancelled about eight weeks that had been booked.

Clara Blaudick, after a successful season at Hartford, Conn., has resigned her position as leading lady with the Poli Players, and will enjoy a short vacation before starting her winter's work. Frances McHenry has been selected to take her place.

Mite Moore, after a period of two months, played a return engagement last week as an added attraction at the Heil and Kelly Air-domes, St. Louis. This little lady was formerly known as the Miniature Female Sandow, Mabel Valentine Moore.

Frank Lewis, cartoonist and slack wire artist, is at present one of the special features with the Great Reed Shows, and has signed for the coming season with Burkhardt and His Own Company, making his fourth season with the Burkhardt Show.

Pinar and Manny were obliged to close with Boff's Band at Atlantic City, August 20, to go to rehearsals with Billy Van's new show, with which they will be connected this season. They will both play parts and do their specialty.

Harnett and Kramer opened their new act very successfully at the Ludlow Lagoon. The act is blackface, entitled Hotel Take Your Time, eighteen minutes, full stage. Canfield Peering Exchange of Cincinnati is doing the booking.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Mayo of the Courtney-Morgan Dramatic Co., which disbanded at Leavenworth, Wash., a few weeks ago, spent their vacation at that place. The company has been re-organized and they will rejoin it at Seattle.

Robert Wingate, the minstrel magnate, writes that he is more than clearing up down South on the Interstate Circuit with his little Booe Solo, and that the managers say that his act is one of the best single acts on the circuit.

H. C. Robertson, formerly manager of the Chicago office of Sullivan & Considine, has been transferred to Seattle to manage that office, and Fred M. Lincoln, general manager of the Circuit, has taken up headquarters in Chicago.

Scobey and Earl are meeting with much success playing the Eastern Theatrical Exchange Time in St. Louis with their Irish Comedy act, "Riley's Vacation." They are using special scenery and electrical effects.

The White Rats Actors' Union made arrangements to hear the grievances of Major Doyle last week, but could not report in New York as Matthews and Doyle were playing the Princess Theatre in Wichita, Kan.

Miss Nella Brown will head Robt. H. Kane's Manhattan Opera Company this season. Miss Brown has been a member of the company for two seasons, but this year will be her first in the role of a recognized star.

Nat Fields and Company, a vaudeville act requiring fifteen players, played the Hamilton in Chicago, opening Labor Day, and goes to the coast on the Sullivan & Considine Circuit. The act carried a carload of scenery.

Martha Russell & Company will present The First Law of Nature in New York the first week in October, under the direction of Pat Casey. Miss Russell is a clever actress whose work has gained for her a wide recognition.

Ernest De Clemmon, the piano player and singer playing N. H. Halsey Time, fell and broke his arm while on the way to the theatre in Lorville, N. Y. He will be glad to hear from all of his friends.

"Irish" Jack Lynch and Joe F. Duno, late of Barkoo's Greatest Shows, have sold out their business to John Letts and are getting the crowds with the Bullrush Daocers at Cedar Point, on Lake Erie.

Although the Empress and President Theatres are "open," the business of the Willard Theatre was not affected, according to Manager Jack Burch. The three houses are in the same section of Chicago.

Ralph Devak writes that he has closed with the Krause Shows at Mooocogahela, Pa. He states that he has paid all he owed and left the show clean. He is now playing fairs with the crazy house.

Dan McCoy, manager of the Empress Theatre in Kansas City, saw the wrestling bout in Chicago, Labor Day, accompanying Paul Goudron, booking manager of the Chicago Sullivan & Considine Circuit.

The Texas Tommy Trio, with Charley Kohn, John Cooper and Jennie Kohn, opened at the Wigwam Theatre, San Francisco, August 27. This is another of Edwin T. Emery's production acts.

Cross and Josephine opened at Dominion Theatre, Ottawa, Can., Aug. 14, for four weeks in vaudeville, previous to their engagement with Blanche Ring's new production, The Wall Street Girl.

The Crafeaux have finished a successful season through the East, and jump West, where they will play a few more weeks before going to their home in Frisco for a much-needed rest.

Prof. J. H. Barnum, magician and ventriloquist, has closed his tent show and will play in halls through Ohio and Indiana this winter. Besides himself he will have a sketch team.

R. E. Robertson, known as a park and carnival promoter and manager, has joined the Great Keystone Shows for the balance of the season, acting in the position of adjuster.

Harry Bonton and Company, now playing Sullivan & Considine Time, are arranging a five-act with a lion illusion for next season. They play Australia following S. & C. Time.

The act, formerly known as Foley and Earl, will hereafter be known as McGee and Beece. They are playing a thirty-two weeks' engagement on the Brennan Circuit, Australia.

Ollie Young and April, soap bubble manipulators, returned to America for a tour of the Percy Williams houses, after three months at the Palace Theatre, London, England.

Charles E. Whitney, the well known advance agent, is again ahead of Himmelman's Imperial Stock Co. this season. The company will play the Middle West as usual.

Miss Josephine Hampton played a week's engagement at the Royal Aldome, Yokum, Texas, and made so favorable impression that she was retained for another week.

The Merediths and dog, Snoozer, have accepted ten weeks more of Association Time. They have been playing for the W. V. M. A. since November 14, 1910.

The Beardsley Sisters have been forced to cancel some of their Hodkins bookings, owing to the illness of one of the girls. They are laying off at St. Louis.

Billy Jones and Co. have formed a partnership with the La Gardos, and will go on the road as the Jones and LaGardo Show, opening in Illinois in September.

Cedric Lindsay, the equilibrist, is starting the natives of the Middle West with his feats of equipoise. He will soon open for a long ride over Southern Time.

Boscoe and Sims are spending a few weeks at Wildwood and Atlantic City, after finishing twenty weeks for Nixon & Nirdlinger and Norman Jefferies.

Onetta, Tom Brantford, Pero and Wilson, Provot, Williams Brothers and Seigel and other acts play at the Lyric in Oklahoma City, Okla., next week.

Harry Lloyd has just closed a successful season as leading man with The Cowboy and Girl Co. This fall and winter he will appear in vaudeville.

Gene Muller Trio, American hoop manipulators, now touring Europe, are at the Folies Marigny Theatre, Paris, France, for the month of September.

John F. Reh and Trixie Leonard have parted company, and he is now booking "John F. Reh and his singing dog, Fluffy."

Jake Sternad has his show at Kankakee, Ill., week of September 4 and showed his face to admiring Chicago friends Sunday, September 3.

E. M. Stanley is managing the Colonial theatre at Akron, O., which began his season with the night performance on Labor Day.

Burt Carl and the Rhell Sisters replaced the Apollo Quartette at the Imperial theatre in Fort Worth, Tex., week of September 4.

Julian and Dwyer played the Columbus in Chicago recently and the act has greatly improved since last witnessed in that city.

Stanley Chambers, box office man at the Princess in Wichita, Kan., is on the job again after summering in Waukesha, Wis.

The orchestra at the Empress in Milwaukee is greatly improved over last season.

Elina Gardiner made her first vaudeville appearance at the Shubert in New Orleans recently.

Charles Wood, of "Those Four Kids," is ill at Atlanta, Ga., and the act is forced to lay off.

The Original Potts Brothers and Co. are making a tour of the Hodkins' Lyric Circuit.

Tooney and Norman are well spoken of by critics reviewing the Miles Circuit shows.

A. R. Sherry is manager of the Colonial at Indianapolis, which opened Labor Day.

"Bottles" Hardwick is stage manager at the Orpheum in Canton, O., again this season.

Bontin and Tilton recently on the Hodkins' Circuit, are now playing the Gus Sun tour.

Hanson and Drew returned to Chicago last week after an absence of three years.

Rado and Bertman were on the opening bill at the Orpheum in Canton, O.

John P. Reed is making a big success out on the Pantages tour.

The Electric theater at Kansas City, Kan., opened September 2.

Pewitt is making a hit on the Miles Circuit.

STOCK COMPANY NOTES.

Redmond & Blum reopened the Theatre Jose, San Jose, Cal., August 28, indefinitely, with the Ed Redmond Stock Co. in The Lion and the Mouse, with Miss Beth Taylor and Mr. Hugh Medcalf in the leading roles. Other well-known members of the company are: Manager Ed Redmond, Aldin B. Wilson, Carl Case, Bert Chapman, Carl Bertram, James Fisher, Doris Fuller, Leslie Virdin and Estelle Redmond. J. W. Dermody has charge of the box-office.

The Lytell-Vanagh Company has just concluded a six months' run at Harman's Bleecker Hall, Albany, N. Y., and will play in Rochester week of September 10. Mr. Lytell and Miss Vanagh will then go to San Francisco to open the new Alcazar Theatre.

Roster of the Mason & Street Comedy Company: Charles H. Perry, Harry F. Vickery, Al. C. Wilson, Harold Mills, Harry Hanley, Zeke Chalmers, James E. Street, O. J. Mason, May Wilson, Ethel Pierce, Martha Chalkley and Helen Kennedy.

The Reese-Murdoch Stock Company, which closed a 120-week run, August 15, in Portland, Ore., has opened for an indefinite period at the Iris Theatre, Chico, Cal.

PLAYHOUSE NOTES.

The Grand, Greenville, S. C., B. T. Whitmore, manager, has been completely overhauled and opens September 8, with The Girl in Pink. A number of fine attractions have been booked for the coming season.

Mr. J. G. England has been appointed manager of the Auditorium, Newark, O., controlled by the Edward L. Moore Circuit. Mr. England was for several years manager of the Weller Theatre at Zanesville, O.

The Dixie Theatre, Uniontown, Pa., opened its vaudeville season August 28, booking from the Gns Sun Circuit. Manager F. L. Hall was recently elected a member of the National Vaudeville Association.

Edward J. Mahoney, who has been stage manager at the Grand Theatre, Montgomery, Ala., for several years, has been appointed manager, having succeeded H. A. Fourton.

I. H. Greenwald has again assumed management of the Harria Theatre, Spartanburg, S. C., succeeding Hertozog & Rudisall. The Harria opened the season Sept. 12.

The Gem Theatre, formerly owned by Christman and Fickins, Frederick Okla., has been sold to Charles Greaver, who will operate it in connection with the Aldome.

Gulfport, Miss., will have no theatrical attractions this season, due to the fact that the Gulfport Opera House was destroyed by fire August 12.

Duncan Clark's Female Minstrels will start the season October 1, playing opera houses in the same towns this company has been making for some years.

NEW BALL THROWING GAME.

The Cincinnati Novelty Co. of Cincinnati, O., inventors and originators of Novelty Ball Throwing Games, are putting another new one on the market, called "Base Ball Tea Pin Game." This game did a tremendous business at Highland Grove Park and other picnic grounds near Cincinnati during the last few weeks of the season and a number of these games are doing the "proverbial land-office business" at the county fairs and carnivals. It's a safe bet that one or more of these games will be installed in all the leading parks next season.

CHICAGO EVENING

Thanks to the energy of an Italian moving picture film company, the curious and the devout of Chicago may now at a downtown theater follow Dante, for a couple of hours, in his descent into Hell. Although the films are steady, of a better quality than one commonly finds and the whole affair on the Italian end of it manifestly very serious and uncommercial, its appearance here breeds some doubts upon the relationship between sections upon progress and art.

Macanay complained that the young people of his day "would no more read a Byronian epic as a credo of Dante." The complaint still holds good, we fear, and it is not hard to understand why. The Italian Dante society should eagerly seek the aid of the moving picture machine to bring Dante to the masses. The temptations of propaganda are subtle temptations and we all fall, suffering.

The average citizen will be lost in wonder at the grandeur and realism which mark the pictures; their composite nature will be a puzzle to him. How were they posed? How were the scenes made possible by photography?

Each picture is perfect from the artistic point of view. The poet has been literally followed. The poet has shown, the pictures offer illustrations, concrete embodiments of the symbolic truth intended to be taught!

From the first first picture, which shows Dante in the wood, pursued by the hosts of desire and sat, to the last, the "ninth circle of Hell," "Inferno," the sense of awe, the thrilling consciousness of the spiritual, infinite, transcending the physical, concrete, the transcending the trivial, concrete

ST. LOUIS RECORD

No more wonderful or more thoroughly educational effort has been made close to home than "Daniel's" in the moving picture series of all the first-class, realistic pictures of the week. The realistic pictures of the great elemental forces of life and of all time is itself a logical result of the progress of the world and of all persons who desire to know the truth and to improve the mind. These the best pictures in literature in pictures. The pictures in the series should mean it should be the intellectual treat that the moving pictures of the "Internat. office."

MONTREAL TRIBUNE

REAL TRIBUNE

"See Dante's 'Inferno' at the Princeton Theatre this week and analyze your emotions."

Perhaps you have never read the supreme master of literature of the thirteenth century. We are too busy throwing money to care about great thought, or great men.

Our ideals centre about the "tick-er."

But in the Divine Comedy, Dante gave the world a "moral work," dealing, under the guise of allegory, with life and character as conducted with the rewards of conduct in that under world which in the thirteenth century, was real and to the thirteenth conscious of either eternal punishment or ineffable bliss in Paradise.

The poet never lives.

Intimate Sketches of the Careers and Personalities of Men Powerful in the World of Amusement, Whether or Not Prominent in the Public Eye

The name of John Cort has now for many years past been most favorably recorded on the theatrical annals of the United States. His indefatigable enterprise, his straightforward business relationships and his successful ambitions have long been admired by his many colleagues and contemporaries, who have beheld his rise. He is known as the prime figure in many theatrical organizations, the power behind the scenes in many dramatic ventures, and the eminent dramatic producer of the West. Mr. Cort is president of a number of theatrical organizations, principally the National Theatre Owners' Association, the Cort Theatre Company of Chicago, and the Authors' Producing Company. He is manager of the Northwestern Theatrical Association, with headquarters at Seattle, Wash.

The early history of any progressive man is the history of the latest interest—and the boyhood of John Cort are no exception to this general rule. It is said that the activity of the boy Cort was foreshadowed and presaged the business success of the developed man. The man in maturity is the product of the education, guidance and innate characteristics of childhood and youth. It will be interesting to compare the restlessness and agility of the youthful Cort with his active self of the present day.

Cort was born July 19, 1880, in New York City and there raised in an atmosphere which has ever been esteemed as sacred and dear to him. At an early age his home was made at Grinnell, Ia. Here his early days were uneventful, but the atmosphere in which he grew up was that of fond parental attention, refinement and calmest peace. The young boy was very fond of such pleasures as a small town and primitive settlement afforded and was recognized by his companions as the victor in their various games of physical recreation. In his early education, Cort gave early evidence of an intelligently alert mentality. The student possessed the knack of accomplishing his lessons quickly and always having spare time in which to enjoy the school pranks. His education was continued at a school (a form of monastic college) some few miles distant from his home, at Grinnell, Ia. Young Cort remained here for a couple of years, leaving because of a prank he perpetrated on the museum at that institution. In his junior year Cort and several companions decided to remove the stuffed Bengal tiger from his lair in the corner of the Museum of Natural History in the Grinnell institution. The feline was paraded to a broad bridge and suspended in a noose from the railwork, much to the delight of the fellow students and to the chagrin of the official staff. The youthful offenders suffered suspension, and young Cort was one of those who never had any inclination to return.

Thus it can be said that even in his boyhood Cort manifested a very strong personality, which he bears out even to this very day: as his life in business is work while, at the office and pleasure while away. After this affair, in which he figured so prominently at Grinnell, Cort and his parents moved from the Western state to Madison, N. J. The tenor of his life was changed, the altering influences being his many trips to New York City and the interest he found and took in theatricals. It was at the metropolis that Cort grew to young manhood and served many years in the theatrical business as a player in the old days of vaudeville, when that form of amusement was known as variety. Cort made his first stage appearance in January, 1896, at Volk's Garden. He worked single for three years, when he joined Murphy, thereby making the singing and dancing team of Cort and Murphy, which existed more than six years.

During his earlier days Mr. Cort became acquainted with the idea of becoming a theatrical manager of prominence. To this end he drifted and grew up with the country, following the advice of the late highly lamented Horace Selby. Locating in Seattle, Cort began the building of what is now one of the most popular and profitable circuits of theatres on this continent. He built in Seattle the Grand Opera House, about twelve years ago, and from that nucleus has grown a result of something like three hundred theatres, including the majority of playhouses in which the class attractions are presented west of the Rocky River. He booked attractions of merit to his chain of theatres from Bismarck, N. D., to Seattle; Wash., from Denver, Colo., to Portland, Ore., and from San Francisco and Vancouver, B. C., to San Diego, Cal., and eastward to Deming, Ariz.

Commercial expediency is Mr. Cort's motto. It is a firm adherent of the belief that people are more interested in his business accomplishments than they are in him personally. It is his guiding influence that causes him to turn his attention to the successful accomplishment of his enterprise, rather than to their publicity and needless popularization.

JOHN CORT.

John Cort first entered the New York arena as a prominent theatrical and producing manager seven years ago, and his proud record attests the fact that this, his seventh season, finds him sponsor for more dramatic activities than has ever been the case in the past. His first metropolitan venture was the production in which he featured Florence Roberts, his first star at the Liberty Theatre, New York City, in The Strength of the Weak. He next turned his attention to the successful tour of the Stewart Opera Company in a repertoire of comic opera throughout the West and Middle West. This he followed by featuring Maude Fealy on the road in The Stronger Sex. The season of 1907-8 heralded Mr. Cort as producer of The Alaskan at the Knickerbocker Theatre. At the same time he put out Max Figman on the road in his unlimited success, The Man on the Box. Sarah Truax also toured under the guidance of the same producer in The Spider's Web. These three tours were pre-eminently successful, and were kept on the road three successive seasons. Beginning in 1908, and for three consecutive years thereafter, John Cort arranged a concert tour for Mme. Emma Calve. Beginning with the same year, John Cort was instrumental in bringing over Leoncavallo and his orchestra from Milan, Italy, for an especially arranged tour.

In 1900 he revived Klug Dodo, in which he featured Eleanor Kent. During the past season, that of 1910-11, John Cort favored the American metropolis with Leslie Carter at the Lyric Theatre, to Rupert Hughes' drama, entitled Two Women. As president of the Authors' Producing Company, he also arranged for the successful high-all season run of The Gamblers, Charles Kiehl's drama, at the Maxine Elliott Theatre. The current season will witness no cessation of John Cort's activities. He will again present Leslie Carter in Two Women on the road; The Gamblers is to have several companies offering its intrinsic merits to the country, and Lawrence D'Orsay has been taken under his managerial wing and will be presented in The Earl of Pawtucket on the road. He has also arranged for the production of Saula, a new comedy drama, by Rupert Hughes, as well as Jingaboo, a musical farce, the book of which was contributed by Leo Ditrichstein, the lyrics by Vincent Bryan, and the music by Arthur Prior. The Fox, a comedy by Lee Arthur, adapted from the original of Harold McGrath, is also to be presented to the metropolis. These latter productions are to enjoy their premiers in October. The production of plays however is not Mr. Cort's choice. He is more interested in the theatre end of the business, and devotes the majority of his time in the West, where his larger interests lay. Within the last three years, Mr. Cort has constructed for himself several new playhouses along the Pacific Coast. He is at this moment in San Francisco, arranging for the opening of the Cort Theatre, on September 3, which is to have as its opening attraction the Pacific Coast company of Baby Mine.

FRANK LALOR.

Frank Lalor, who created the role of Dondidier, the antique dealer in Klaw & Erlanger's musical play, The Pink Lady, at the New Amsterdam Theatre, served many years apprenticeship in his profession before he scored his present notable success. He was born in Washington, D. C., 1870, but spent his boyhood days in Lawrence, Mass., where he attended the public schools and graduated from the High School in 1888. He was an organizer and leading spirit in the local amateur dramatic association and this undoubtedly turned his attention to the professional stage. One day, without consulting his parents, he slipped away to Boston and after some persuasion on his part, was given a chance at Austin & Stone's Museum. He began as a song and dance man and soon became popular with the Austin & Stone audiences. The management liked him so much that they permitted him to from ten to twelve performances a day. Lalor at that time gloried in such splendid opportunities to cut up. While the museum was not patronized exclusively by Boston's 400, it nevertheless attracted many prominent men about town. One day Tom Carl, of the Bostonians, dropped in and was greatly impressed with Lalor's work. He undertook Lalor's musical tuition and secured a position for him as assistant to Fred Pond, business manager of The Bostonians.

From this time on Lalor started out to make a record by playing almost every variety of character known to the stage, from tragedy to song and dance, including blackface, Dutch, Irish, Hebrew, French and Italian, and essaying such branches of the drama as opera, minstrelsy, melodrama, musical comedy, vaudeville, farce, pantomime and comedy. As a side issue he has officiated as manager, treasurer, property man, author, composer, stage director, star and bill-poster.

It was along in '90 that Lalor embarked in the variety business and did his songs and dances through most of the Eastern cities. This led to his engagement as the principal comedian with Turner's Opera Company, opening in Halifax and playing nothing but one-night stands right across the continent. When he reached San Francisco he became the stage manager of famous Bella Union Vandaville Theatre, which has produced not a few of the present-day stars. In addition to acting as the stage manager he played leading roles in the burlesques, travesties, melodramas, operas—in fact, whatever happened to be put on—and did his specialty in the opening bill. His success encouraged him to branch out on his own account and he rented a theatre in San Luis Obispo, where he installed a vaudeville company.

San Luis did not rise to the great occasion and Lalor doubled up with Jack Chester, forming the vaudeville team of Lalor and Chester. In songs and dances. He next went with Fields & Hanson's Drawing Cards and then wrote a sketch for the Rays, in which he also appeared, entitled Mistaken Identity, which he later on developed into a three-act comedy, known for several seasons as A Hot Old Time. For a year Lalor left the stage, owing to voice failure and in that time became secretary for the White Rats.

He next appeared with Weber & Fields' road companies and then joined E. E. Rice's company in The Show Girl at Wallack's Theatre, playing the leading comedy role and incidentally making his first appearance on Broadway. This was followed by his appearance in An English Daisy, Mr. Wick of Wickham, and The Press Agent. He then created the role of Nott, the tailor, in Coming Thru the Rye, in which he scored his most notable success up to his present engagement.

In Coming Thru the Rye he appeared for two and a half years. He was then starred in Prince Humbug and this was followed with his engagement by Klaw & Erlanger to appear in The Bachelor Belles and his subsequent promotion to the role of Dondidier in The Pink Lady. Off the stage Mr. Lalor is a quieter, unobtrusive man, fond of outdoor life. With his wife he has a pretty country home at St. James, L. I., where in his spare time he enjoys life in his automobile and motor boat. Mr. Lalor is a member of the Lambs, the New York Athletic Club and the Vandaville Comedy Club.

AMUSEMENT EVENTS OF THE

PASSERS-BY ENDORSED

Critics Unanimously Characterize New Play Noblest and Most Genuine of the Present Season's Offerings—Play is a Masterly Admixture of Pathos and Comedy PASSERS-BY, a play in four acts, by Haddon Chambers, Criterion Theatre.

New York, September 15 (Special to The Billboard).—Haddon Chambers has unquestionably furnished the American stage the deepest, noblest and most genuine play that this season has had a premiere on Broadway. Its story is so sonorous and, withal, so intrinsic, its pathos so colorful, and its comedy so deftly woven, that critics on all sides proclaim it a decisive American success with unanimity. The characters depicted are so usual and commonplace and yet so delicately and appealingly vignettized as to possess a fascinating charm which infuses an atmosphere to the play intensely gripping and uncommonly satisfying. This subtle comedy, by many times the peer of 1911 entries to the legitimate season, is further benefitted by excellent acting, although one or two barely audible murmurs are detected concerning the comparison of the perfection of this or that English interpreter of last season to the American in the same role.

Unfortunately for Charles Frohman, it so happened that the producer was necessarily absent. Nothing could have been more genuinely gratifying to him than the enthusiastic welcome accorded the new tenant of the 45th Street and Broadway playhouse, Thursday night, September 14. As it was, Mr. Chambers alone answered the appreciative plaudits of the first-night audience. He accepted the opportunity very gracefully and expressed his and the general regret of the absence of Mr. Frohman.

The Passers-by comes to the Western hemisphere with the stanchest of British affidavits. It was an unqualified, if not the unqualified, comedy success of the British metropolises last season. Early yet sober predilection allows the statement that this play with such nomadic significance will prove a paradox and remain with the metropolis for a positive and demanded run.

The following excerpts from the Times will lend this statement corroboration:

"The play is written throughout with appealing charm, with an abundance of terse and telling dialogue and an undercurrent of wholesome philosophy. And its successive passages are appealing either as humor or sentiment."

Sweet Sixteen Delights

WHEN SWEET SIXTEEN.—A song play in two acts. Book and lyrics by George V. H. Hart; music by Victor Herbert. Daly's Theatre.

THE CAST.

John Hammond Frank Belcher
 Mrs. Hammond Josie Intropidi
 Victoria Harriet Standon
 Jefferson Todd William Norris
 Stanley Morton Roy Purviance

 Gertie Greene Eva Williams
 The Laird of Loch Lomond George Ridgwell

New York, Sept. 16 (Special to The Billboard).—The critics of the various papers that gave the premiere of When Sweet Sixteen at Daly's, Thursday evening, Sept. 14, a careful review, express sincere gratification at the new Victor Herbert and George V. H. Hart creation. The former of the two, however, preponderates in the matter of press encomiums, however. There can be but little doubt of the sincerity and genuineness of the appreciation and regard with which the American public reveres Victor Herbert. He has been affectionately called the Offenbach and the Franz Lehar of America, and judging from eulogical remarks made, the eminent musician has shyly lived up to his reputation in his latest output of tuneful melodies. The plot of the song play is criticized as being too thin and the author too eager to give it consistency. But again, they unite in their opinion that what faults the plot may have are surmounted by the impelling music. When Sweet Sixteen has the essential characteristics of daintiness, cleverness and originality, three attributes that augur well for its hearty and continued reception.

The World bestows the following compliments: "It is sure that the haunting melody of The Wild Rose, which graced the first act, will be in evidence speedily among the popular songs of the town, and that Hearts Are Trumps, Laughs, and My Toast to You will be nightly favorites as long as the song-play shall endure. "To make the measure of his musical generosity complete, Mr. Herbert has embodied in the second act a medley of favorites from his earlier works, going back even to The Serpent of the Nile, and not forgetting to dip in The Serenade."

ELTINGE FASCINATES

Gothamites as the Bewitching Widow—Critics Are Favorably Impressed with Impersonator's Acting, but Find His Vehicle Lackadaisical and Even Suggestive Betimes

New York, September 12 (Special to The Billboard).—For the second time within the last two weeks, the Gay White Way of New York City has been illuminated by the premieres of male actresses and masculine leading ladies. The special one here referred to was that of Julian Eltinge, under the banner of A. H. Woods at the Liberty Theatre, recently vacated by the perennial Spring Maid and Christie McDonald. Eltinge has long been an established vaudeville favorite and in that line of amusement his following can be counted by the thousands. His road tour in the legitimate added to this list many more followers. However, until Monday, he never gave a chance to Father Knickerbocker and his man-fellow citizens, who proved quite capable of Monday night, September 11, of worshipping most devoutly at the female impersonator's feet. The press demonstrated quite a bit of displeasure to what they termed vaudeville quillies elevated to the realm of musical comedy. Not that they disparage the ability of the man-actress, but rather the vehicle with which he has been invested. The World arranges the play in the following manner:

"As for The Fascinating Widow as an entertainment, it is a rehash of all the foot-ling musical comedy which would have been discarded as antiquities half a dozen years ago. It also offends much more than its man-actress for its dialogue, when not stupid, is crammed with innuendo and its situations have a vulgar import. According to the standard of Orinauerbach, who admits responsibility for most of the times, there is nothing quite so side-splitting as when a dumb curate or a superannuated gardener turns Peeping Tom outside of a supposedly woman's boudoir."

"In one scene Mister Eltinge loomed forth in the last Atlantic City thing in bathing suits. This might have been expected, but it was hard to believe that Carrie Perkins, who is a comedienne with an appreciation of humor and a sense of good taste, could be induced to display her two hundred pounds of adiposity in a similar dress."

The Times praises the star and discusses his vehicle as follows:

"One of the correlative advantages of American university training was exhibited at the Liberty Theatre when Mr. Julian Eltinge appeared for the first time in this city in a musical meadow. The Fascinating Widow, designed especially to exhibit his abilities as a female impersonator. That Mr. Eltinge has unusual cleverness in this direction was first demonstrated in one of those entertainments which college students sometimes regale their friends, and has since been exploited to the young man's great pecuniary advantage in the vaudeville theatres of the country. Also, it must be said that once over the initial unpleasantness of the idea of female impersonation, which is not easy for people of delicate sensibilities, there is nothing especially displeasing about Mr. Eltinge's efforts at femininity. He looks remarkably well in female logs, manages to affect the gait and voice in a manner of some members of the sex, and it is at times somewhat more lavish in display."

UP AND DOWN BROADWAY

A cable message received at the offices of Henry W. Savage announces the premiere of The Great Name at the Garrick Theatre, London, with Charles Hawtrey in the featured character. The message further stated that the play received an enthusiastic reception and the unanimous praise of the press.

Maria Doro arrived Friday, September 8, on the S. S. Carmania, after an absence of six months in Europe. Miss Doro began rehearsals at once for her new play, A Butterfly on the Wheel, which, with its sensational divorce court scenes, was one of the most talked-of dramatic events in London this season, where Lewis Waller played it for five months in the Globe Theatre. In the American production of the play, which is being made under the management of Charles Frohman, Miss Doro will play the part of Lady Atwill.

Thomas W. Ryley has started rehearsals of Peggy, the London Gaiety piece. The Dolly Sisters, Charles Brown, late comedian of Marriage à la Carte, Louise Alexander and Fanny Rice are some of the engagements made.

Anna Cleveland, a talented member of the younger generation of American actresses, who has appeared as leading woman with the two last plays presented by George Fawcett and who was last season with Blanche Walsh in The Other Woman, has declined the vaudeville engagements offered her, and is now negotiating for the dramatic rights of Dull Jim, by John Luther Long. Miss Cleveland sees remarkable dramatic possibilities in this strong story, which, as a novelette, won high commendation from the adapters.

Playgoers have seen Fritz Leiber, leading man with Robert Mantell, only in classic roles for the past seasons. Mr. Leiber has only once appeared in New York otherwise, and that was with Julia Marlowe in When Knighthood Was in Flower and the other plays in her repertoire. This year, however, Mr. Leiber is to appear in a modern role. If negotiations are successful, his season with Mr. Mantell will be an extensive one, and the new play will not be presented until the close of the regular season. Mr. Leiber has appeared with Mr. Mantell for the past three years as leading man, assuming the principal roles second to Mr. Mantell and frequently alternating with that actor in the leading roles of Shakespearean repertoires.

Preparations are in progress these days at the Folies Bergere for a fresh installment of entertainment. Scarcely any publicity has been given to the bill that is to succeed the burlesque, Hell and Gab, and the big ballet, Temptation, but it became known that the

Yiddish Theatre Opened

New York, Sept. 16 (Special to The Billboard).—New York is the first city in the United States to possess a theatre devoted entirely to the Jewish tongue. David Kessler and Max R. Wilner are the sole possessors of the new structure located in the Ghetto on the East Side at Second Street and Second Avenue. The new theatre is said to have cost about $600,000, and to have as much stage capacity as the big Hippodrome. Mr. Kessler's idea to lead a stock company in the production of particularly Yiddish plays by such playwrights as Jacob Gordin, Scholom Ache, Adolph Philipp, Joseph Latelner and Isadore Zolotareffsky. Mayor Gaynor was a distinguished guest at the opening performance, the premiere production being Jacob Gordin's G. Man and the Devil. The opening night was most liberally patronized, the two thousand seats being completely occupied. Bows and floral offerings decorated the spacious corridors. The building is thoroughly fireproof, the inner work, including the floors, being of cement composition. It has been equipped with twenty-one exits and the fire prevention conditions are said to be superior to any other playhouse in its vicinity.

BARTIK WITH SHUBERT.

New York, Sept. 15 (Special to The Billboard).—Ottokar Bartik is rehearsing most ardently a big pantomime production consisting of sixty girls for the opening of the new act at the Winter Garden, September 25, at which time the engagement of Gaby Deslys commences. This same peerless dancing master is rehearsing forty girls for the Oriental dances to be featured with Seven Palaces, a production which Doris Keane will bring to Daly's Theatre.

MONROE SUEd FOR DIVORCE

New York, Sept. 16 (Special to The Billboard).—George W. Monroe, the impersonator of elderly belligerent females, has been served with a summons and complaint in a suit for divorce filed by Mrs. Anna H. Monroe, of Elmhurst, L. I. Mr. and Mrs. Monroe were married in 1901, and have a daughter 5 years of age. Mr. Monroe is now rehearsing in The New Homes, a few fields comedy to be produced September 30, in which he will have a principal part.

Prettiest Vaudeville Theatre in Greater New York Thrown Open to An Eager Public September 11—Manager Percy G. Williams Congratulated On All Sides

SARTELLO, Magic and Crayon Pictures; 11 minutes; in two; Hammerstein's Victoria. Sarllo's first bit of work after his entrance and following an unnecessary announcement of what he is to attempt is the accomplishment of several very simple but neatly executed tricks in magic. The strength of the act lies in the crayon drawings with which he finishes the turn. All of the drawings are made rapidly and within the period of a few minutes he has completed three well sketched pictures. Sarllo might advantageously adhere more closely to his crayon work, cutting down his magic opening to a minimum. The Hammerstein audience on Monday night manifested interest in the pictures, but gave Sarllo little encouragement with his magical efforts.

WARD BAKER, Violinist; assisted by accompanist; Hammerstein's Victoria; 11 minutes; in one.

Lack of showmanship is the only defect in the turn framed up by Ward Baker. As a violinist Baker is a step and a half in advance of the majority of the fiddlers now in vaudeville. He possesses an abundance of technique; his tone is rich and mellow; his playing is, as a consequence, more like that of a concert violinist than of one appearing before a vaudeville audience. Baker's opening number is a medley of popular numbers, excellently played. It has a fault, however, in the fact that Baker insists on making it too lengthy. His second and last number is a selection from one of the standard operas. A pianist accompanies him. Baker plays this selection with his customary fervor. A suggestion that Baker and his assistant might avail themselves of the fact that they appear in evening dress rather than in the attire they now wear. It will give an air of finish to the turn that is now lacking. As a violinist Baker will easily hold his own. The frame-up of his turn, however, must be reconstructed.

IRVING BERLIN, Songs; 30 minutes; in one; Hammerstein's Victoria.

Berlin came into Hammerstein's Monday night, was given a reception when he made his entrance, sang eight of his compositions, an unusually large number, by the way, was the recipient of enough floral pieces to establish a florist's shop, and then wound up the proceedings with a neat little speech in which he thanked the audience for "kind applause," etc. The foregoing sums in a nutshell the result of Berlin's debut at Hammerstein's. Berlin's selections were: 1. If You Wait 'Till Father Comes Home; 2. Italian number; 3. That Kazzalsky Dance; 4. Mysterious Ray; 5. You Are Troubled With the Same Disease That I Am; 6. Alexander's Rag-time Band; 7. Ephraim; 8. Oh that Beautiful Rag. Of the eight numbers his fourth, Mysterious Ray, and the sixth, Alexander's Rag-time Band, were the biggest applause winners Monday night. As a singer Berlin did very well, indeed.

PERTINENT PATTERN

New York, September 16 (Special to The Billboard).—Hattie Carmonette, who formerly did a backface act, is now with Harry Beresford's Minstrelsy Band Company doing an Irish hit. Salita Salano is another member of the company.

Julia Nelson is back in New York after a Southern tour with Felix Rich's Diving Girls. A new musical sketch is being prepared for Leslie Thurston, the xylophone girl. Two people will be employed in the presentation of the piece, which will be called The Music Teacher. The first performance of the sketch will be given within six weeks.

At Reno, a light comedy sketch, is to be produced in New York September 27 by Lorimer & Sheridan. The vehicle was written by Walter S. Trumbull and Edward L. Fox of the New York Sun. Engaged for the piece are John Merrill, Master William Hawley, Miss Desirée J. Stempel and Miss Dorothy Quincy.

Madame Adelaide Herrmann, who is now presenting her new magic and illusion act, Cagliostro, the Master of Mysteries, has found it necessary everywhere to correct the impression that accords to prevail that she has established herself in Paris as the proprietress of a pension. Madame Herrmann has been confounded with another woman, Adelaide Herrmann, who is the widow of the late Herrmann, the Great, is the only Adelaide Herrmann in public life, but it seems that the name has been chosen by others, to the great confusion of Madame Herrmann, who is now on the Western Vaudeville Circuit.

Countess Leontine, the singer, who appeared for a long period in vaudeville through the West, has returned to New York after having won very high praise from the dramatic critics of the Middle West, where she recently appeared for a special engagement with Billy S. Clifford. Countess Leontine made her debut at the O'era Comique, Paris, in Madame Angot, and since her appearance in vaudeville two years ago she has appeared in productions as an English speaking actress.

Isa Latish, a celebrated harpist, formerly of the Strauss Orchestra in Berlin, and more recently with the French Theatre, New Orleans, has been especially engaged by Joseph M. Gaites as harpist with Thais, which began its road tour last week with Constance Collier, Tyrone Power and Julian L'Estrange at Johnstown, Pa.

Alfred Jackson, the poster artist, is to return to vaudeville next month, opening on the Sullivan & Considine Time, with Eastern engagements to follow. Mr. Jackson was the originator of many of the cartoon features in vaudeville acts, and this year is to present an entirely new act, embracing features of illusion that are being devised by himself with the assistance of a well-known illusionist.

the prettiest vaudeville house on Long Island and, we dare say, in Greater New York, representing as it does a reputed investment of $500,000, the cost of the site included. The entrance is marble-floored and circular in design. The stage entrance is on Madison Avenue. The dimensions of the playhouse include 132 feet on Broadway, 200 feet on Howard Avenue and 110 feet on Madison Street. There is a fourteen-foot exit court on the Broadway side, ninety feet in length, making the building open on all sides and thoroughly easy of egress. In addition to this feature, which alone makes the new Bushwick one of the most fireproof of theatres, there are fifty separate and distinct exits. The building is two, three and four stories high and constructed of brick, granite, limestone, marble, steel and concrete, with terra cotta and galvanized iron cornices and ornaments.

Its seating capacity is 2,500. In addition to the parquet, balcony and gallery, there are ten proscenium boxes with a total capacity of 200. The front of the balcony is graced by eleven smoking boxes with an individual seating capacity of eight persons, or a total of 88. Both on the lower and balcony floors are large promenades, with ladies' dressing rooms and retiring parlors. The gentlemen's smoking room in the basement is elaborately furnished and possesses every comfort and luxury.

The style of the interior decorating is very elaborate, the prevailing color scheme of turkey-red and gold leaf lending a warmth and luxurious appearance. The exterior of the building is Neo-Grecian, making the entire building one of attraction and grandeur.

Among the interior decorations is a mural painting on the sounding board which is a real work of art. It is purely an allegorical subject by Arthur Thomas. The title for this painting is Inspiration, for the artist himself appears to have been inspired. The principal figure is a poet, seven feet six inches tall, and, like the rest of the figures, in ancient Greek costume. Apparently he is in a trance, listening to the inspiration he is receiving from a genius astride Pegasus, who is rising out of the smoke of the altar in the very center of the painting. The remaining figures are all allegorical representations of Tragedy, Comedy, Farce, Song and Dance.

The stage dimensions of the New Bushwick are 35 feet from the curtain line to back wall, with a proscenium opening 30 feet in height. The width of stage from wall to wall is 50 feet, making it one of the largest vaudeville stages in the country. Special dressing rooms for animal acts, and large and roomy quarters for horses, dogs, monkeys, etc., have been built.

Suggestions for an All-Star Bill

NEW YORK ALL-STAR BILL. WEEK OF SEPTEMBER 11.

Imaginary bill framed up by New York correspondent and including acts appearing at the several vaudeville houses. Importance of act is indicated by position given:

- A—The Kratons, Hoop Rollers. Colonial; full stage.
- B—The Three White Kubbis, Song and Melody. Fifth Avenue; in two.
- C—Wilfred Clarke and Co., in farce, The Dear Departed. Bushwick; full stage.
- D—Frank Fogarty, Stories. Bushwick; in one.
- E—Billie Reeves, in A Night in An English Music Hall. Colonial; full stage.
- INTERMISSION.
- F—Wilbur Mack and Nella Walker, Songs and Patter. Fifth Avenue; in two.
- G—IRENE FRANKLIN, Character Songs. Bushwick; full stage.
- H—Frank Tinney, Comedian. Hammerstein's and Fifth Avenue; in one.
- I—Jewell's Manikins. Hammerstein's; full stage.

The absence of a dramatic sketch or playlet from this week's All-Star Bill is primarily due to the lack of one on any of the New York bills to fit into the chosen spot. Aside from one or two turns the foregoing program leans strongly toward comedy.

Irene Franklin is given the stellar position. It is recognition she deserves.

The Kratons make an excellent get-away number, while The Three White Kubbis could easily hold up the No. 2 spot. Wilfred Clarke and Co., Frank Fogarty and Billie Reeves, who are given positions in the order named, are comedy acts, but one is different from the other.

The bright and breezy little skit introduced by Wilbur Mack and Nella Walker, Irene Franklin's character skit; Frank Tinney's talk to the audience, and Miss Jewell's elaborate Manikins should make a pleasing and enjoyable second part.

This Week's Vaudeville Bills

New York, September 18 (Special to The Billboard).—Bills at local vaudeville theatres this week are:

Alhambra—Amelia Bingham, Alda Overton Walker, Frank Tinney, Charles Vance, McConnell and Simpson, Salerno, Musical Fredericks, Van Hoven, The Flying Martins.
Bronx—A Japanese Honeymoon, Wm. Court- ous and Co., Barry and Wolford, Chadwick Trio, Six Musical Spillers, Fred Watson, Zeno, Jordan and Zeno.
Bushwick—Victor Moore and Co., Sam Chip and Mary Marble, Eugene and Willie Howard, Trovato, Keller Mack and Frank Orth, Asahi Troupe, Harvey De Vora Trio and Hermann's Dogs and Cats.
Colonial—Irene Franklin, Edgar Atchison-Ely and Co., Jack Wilson Trio, Merrill and Otto, Mlle. Simone de Beryl, Six Musical Cutties, Lane and O'Donnell, Ollie Young and April.
Fifth Avenue—Lillian Russell, Kalmer and Brown, Ed Wynn and Edmund Rossion, Mr. and Mrs. Gene Hughes, Rawson and June, Helms Children, Walter C. Kelly.

Greenpoint—Everywife, Paul Dickey and Co., Jolly Fanny Rice, Aurora Troupe of Cyclists, Kaufman Brothers, Stuart and Keeley, James F. McDonald.

Hammerstein's—Herman Lieb and Co., Frank Fogarty, Willard Simms, York and Adams, Barnes and Crawford, Stella Tracey, Max Witt's Melody Lane Girls, Marini and Bronski, the Kratons, Froehlich, Bert Melrose, Luckie and Yost, Warner and Evans, Rice and Flynn, Baker and Moore, Leonard and Williams.

Orpheum—Billie Reeves and Co., Ryan-Richfield Co., Honor Among Thieves, Frank Tinney, Smith and Campbell, Big City Four, Slayton Trio.

DeHAVEN WITH REVIEW.

New York, Sept. 18 (Special to The Billboard).—Carter DeHaven and Flora Parker have been engaged by Lew Fields for his big review which opens at the American Music Hall in Chicago, October 9.

TEN KILLED AT FAIR

FAMOUS MIDGET DEAD

Biggest Day in History of New York State Fair Marred by Automobile Accident, In Which Ten Persons Lose Their Lives

Syracuse, N. Y., September 16 (Special to The Billboard).—The biggest day in the history of the State Fair, both in attendance and the matter of attractions, was marred this afternoon by an accident during the closing miles of a fifty-mile automobile race on the fair track, when a Knox racing car, driven by Lee Oldfield, a brother of Barney Oldfield, leaped from the track and plowed through a throng of spectators on the other side of the fence. Six persons were killed outright, and four more died later as a result of their injuries. A score more were injured, several so severely as to still be on the dangerous list.

Lee Oldfield, driver of the automobile, is in a serious condition, but is expected to recover. Oldfield is in the city hospital, guarded by an officer, and as soon as he recovers, it is said, he will be placed under arrest.

President Taft was the honored guest of the fair today, and had left the grounds just a short time before the fatal accident.

Little Russian Prince Nicholi Dies Suddenly in London, Ont., Railroad Depot—His Reputed Noble Birth Said to Have Been Fabrication of Press Agents

London, Ont., Can., Sept. 16 (Special to The Billboard).—"The Russian Prince," known as Prince Nicholi to the theatrical world, died suddenly at the Grand Trunk railway station shortly before 3 o'clock this morning. The Prince has been showing last week at the Western Fair, and was waiting for a train to Detroit, where he was to show at the Michigan State Fair. The Prince claimed to be the smallest man in the world. He was 38 years old, weighed 16½ pounds and was 27 inches high. The midget had been all around the world, and was said to have accumulated a fortune of about $200,000. While the story of his nobility and birth in the mines of Siberia have been used for circus purposes, he is said to have been the son of a resident of New Orleans, to which place his remains were shipped this morning for interment.

MADLYN JOURNE.

Starring in Forty-five Minutes from Broadway, under the direction of Marvin & Roche.

CHANGES IN FRIAR MANAGEMENT

New York, Sept. 16 (Special to The Billboard).—An important change has been made in the management of the Friars' Club by the appointment of Charles Clarke to assume general supervision of the details. Mr. Clarke held a similar position at the Green Room Club for years, and was immensely successful in the fulfillment of his duties. By appointing Mr. Clarke, the Friars really have created a new office, for he will have the authority of a general manager, thus relieving Abbot John W. Ramsey of many responsibilities.

MANTELL TRANSFERS COMPANY.

New York, Sept. 12 (Special to The Billboard).—Robert E. Mantell, who has been acting at the West End Theatre since the dramatic season began, transferred his company Monday night, September 11, to the Manhattan Opera House, where he spent the week in Shakespearean repertoire. Julius Caesar, which provided him with one of his most robust parts, was the opening bill. Miss Keith Wakeman is his new leading lady.

Chicago Labor Difficulties Settled

The difference between Producers Frazee and Federer and the Chicago Federation of Music have been adjusted by giving two weeks' notice to the present Cort Theatre orchestra members who belong to the Musicians' Union of North America, and the promised reinstatement of the former musicians on October 1.

A threatened strike of the machine operators in the Madison Street picture houses for a wage scale of $25 a week was averted Saturday night by the managers acceding to the union demands. Before the matter was adjusted (Manager Guy Morville of the Boston House, was obliged to dismiss a large audience when his operators walked out. The men have been getting $22.50 a week working two shifts.

LOUIS MANN SCORES.

New York, Sept. 12 (Special to The Billboard).—Louis Mann's opening performance in Elevating A Husband, at the Collingswood Opera House, Poughkeepsie, Monday night, September 11, took on the aspect of a first night in New York, with the best of New York friends, both of Managers Werba and Laescher and of the star, present. The play was acclaimed as having the regular Werba and Laescher earmarks of merit and warranted success. The cast included Douglas Wood, John E. Kelly, Charles E. Halton, Jessie Carter, Emily Ann Wellman, Marion Holcombe, Marie Howe, J. Homer Hunt, Edward E. Horton, Sterling Chesedine, Kitty Edwards, Katherine Kelly, Mall Hecht and Louis Mann.

BERBERS FOR BOHEMIAN GIRL.

New York, Sept. 14 (Special to The Billboard).—She Hsuan Ben Ali, the impresario of Arab and Berber acrobats, has sent his Amahl troupe of gymnasts, who have been appearing at state fairs and expositions in the Middle West, to join the Aborn Bohemian Girl Company, which opens in San Francisco on September 18. With his troupe of twenty-four Berbers now at the Hippodrome and another in the Bohemian Girl Company, which opened at the Majestic Theatre in Brooklyn on Monday, Hsuan controls all the Berber and Arab acrobats in this country. He is preparing to bring over another troupe, now exhibiting in Budapest, Hungary, to appear in Chicago some time in November.

RECORD HOLDER KILLED.

Verdon France, September 16 (Special to The Billboard).—Edmond Nieuport, the aviator, died today as the result of injuries received yesterday when his aeroplane was caught in a gust of wind and capsized just as it was rising from the ground. Nieuport was the inventor of the monoplan which bears his name, and which is probably the speediest air machine ever built. He was the holder of nearly all world's speed records for aeroplanes.

The Winning Widow Produced

Trenton, N. J., Sept. 16 (Special to The Billboard).—Before a large and extremely enthusiastic house, Max Spiegel's new musical comedy The Winning Widow, was produced at the Taylor Opera House, Trenton, N. J., on Friday, September 15, and was voted by all a big success. Perle Bartl, Joe M. Fields and George B. Scanlon, the stars, received numerous curtain calls for their clever work, while the comedy situations called forth plenty of laughter. Personal hits were made by Henrietta Wheeler, Ralph Whitehead, Harry La Mont, Frances Rubens, Harry Barton and others. The well-trained chorus of show girls helped the performance wonderfully. The book was written by Frank Kennedy, while Seymour Furth and Will A. Heaton are responsible for the music and the lyrics.

ANNA HELD ARRIVES.

New York, Sept. 13 (Special to The Billboard).—Anna Held arrived in New York, Tuesday, September 12. She immediately began rehearsals in the revised version of Miss Innocence, which is booked for the Pacific Coast.

Col. Edw. Butler Dead

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 11 (Special to The Billboard).—Col. Edward Butler, aged 73, veteran theatrical man and politician, died here yesterday. He was the father of James Butler, who is the head of the Empire Circuit of vaudeville. Col. Butler owned several theatres on the Empire Circuit, including the Standard of this city, and the Century of Kansas City.

TOM NORTH DARTS WEST.

Chicago, Sept. 14 (Special to The Billboard).—During his short off season before going out on the road at the head of Let George Do It Company, Tom North is to handle the publicity for James J. Ward, the youthful Chicago aviator, who will make a fight from Governor's Island, New York Harbor, across the American continent for the $50,000 prize offered by Wm. B. Hearst. Ward was recently one of the aviators of the Curtiss Exhibition Company, but was released by them last Monday to the management of Isaac Bloom of Chicago. With Tom in charge of the publicity end, there is not the least fear but that Ward will get much newspaper publicity.

OCEAN-TO-OCEAN RACE IS ON.

New York, Sept. 16 (Special to The Billboard).—The great ocean-to-ocean race is on. Robert G. Fowler, the first starter, is flying from West to East, having left San Francisco September 11. His plane was wrecked at Alta, Cal., on the 12th, but beyond a few bruises, Fowler was unharmed. Fowler immediately began work reconstructing the machine, but he will probably not be able to resume his flight before the 18th or 19th.

James K. Ward was the next starter, flying from East to West. Ward left New York on the 13th, but up to the present time his progress has been slow. He was at Sanquhar, Pa., on the 16th, having been detained there on account of bad weather.

Lincoln Beachey, C. P. Rodgers, James V. Martin, Harry Atwood, Amadee Ryburn, P. O. Parmelee and Earle L. Orington are the other entries. All the participants with the exception of Fowler will fly from East to West, starting either from New York or Boston, and finishing in San Francisco.

It is problematical when the different aviators will start, but all will try to get away within the next few days.

The staff of the Court Theatre at Wheeling, W. Va., since the consolidation of that house and the Virginia, is as follows: Feinler and Moore, managers; Warren E. Old, treasurer; Hugo Laupp, assistant treasurer; Prof. John Evans, leader of orchestra; Charles Feinler is business manager.

Houston Theatre Opens Auspiciously

Houston, Tex., September 12 (Special to The Billboard).—The New Majestic Theatre probably never witnessed within the confines of its dressing walls an audience that so literally blimed over with humanity from the last row in the balcony to the front seat in the parquet as was present at the inaugural evening performance of the season, Sunday, September 10.

The bill throughout was of an excellent character. It was well balanced and no feature seemed to be put to a disadvantage by contrast.

The Majestic is booked by the Interstate Amusement Co. out of Chicago and the management states that many of the acts to be presented on this stage will come over from the continental especially for this circuit.

The Billboard correspondent feels quite sure that the usual high standard of attractions will appear, so that they may continue to please the theatre-going public.

ENGAGES THREE STARS.

New York, September 16 (Special to The Billboard).—The Queen Aeroplane Co., whose executive offices are located at 71 Broadway, have just closed negotiations with three of the biggest aviators that defy the wind and gravity. They have signed Earl A. Orington, Rene Shanon and Monsieur Barrier to do their exhibitive and competitive work in their machines, which are equipped with 100-horsepower Gnome motors which are calculated to propel them with greater speed than hitherto accomplished. They have placed increased orders for motors with the Crane Mfg. Co. of Bayonne, N. J., the manufacturers of the Dixie motor boat, now that they have signed aviators of such weight and international reputation. In addition, they have the exclusive right to the aerial services of Arthur B. Stone, L. Lewkowitz, Doc Clark and J. H. Worden, the American Indian aviator, who at present are flying at fairs and celebrations. A ten-acre plot at Ft. George, N. Y., is kept busy fulfilling the requirements of the Queen Aeroplane Co. They will also be represented in the Hearst transcontinental contest now going on. The Queen Co. also booked the Canton (Ohio) Fair for next week, September 23 to 29.

HAVE NEW PRODUCTION.

New York, Sept. 16 (Special to The Billboard).—Aletheia and Aleko, who style themselves Greek exponents of telepathy and prophetic vision, have arrangements practically completed for a new production. The "atmosphere" of the offering will be entirely Grecian. The special scenery that is to be carried, the costumes, etc., will suggest itself of Greece. Aletheia has announced that she is not the Aletheia whose practice it is to give private readings. Her vaudeville work, she says, absorbs all her time. Except with Aleko, her present partner, Aletheia has never before appeared in vaudeville.

Mardi-Gras Celebration at the Famous Amusement Rendezvous Terminates in Disgraceful Scenes in which Hoodlums Create Veritable Bedlam

New York, Sept. 17 (Special to The Billboard).—Disgraceful scenes marked the celebration of the Coney Island Mardi Gras last night, which was attended by over 400,000 people. Hundreds of ruffians took advantage of the carnival spirit, and all during the night

BANNERMAN HAS FALL.

Morrisstown, Tenn., Sept. 16 (Special to The Billboard).—Pat Langan, one of the best bannermen on the road, fell 14 feet here while bannerling a wall for the John Robinson Shows, breaking his left hand in four places, also his nose. He is now in the Morrisstown General Hospital and a card from any of his friends will help cheer him up. Mr. Knupp, the general agent for the Ten Btg, will send Langan to his home in Weatherford, Tex., as soon as he is able to be about.

GABY ARRIVES.

New York, Sept. 17 (Special to The Billboard).—Gaby Deslys arrived here yesterday on the French liner La Lorraine. Mlle. Deslys is confident that she will attain considerable success in her vaudeville tour of America. She is reported to have brought over $700,000 worth of jewelry with which to dazzle the American theatregoers, among which is a marvelous pearl necklace that is said to have cost Manuel of Portugal, $320,000.

WHERE IS FRANK B. HOOPER?

The Billboard received a wire from C. E. Snyder, Leavenworth, Kan., September 15, advising that there was a death in the family of Frank B. Hooper, theatrical man. Anyone knowing Hooper and with what company he is connected, will kindly notify him.

Musicians Strike At Salem

Salem, Mass., Sept. 11 (Special to The Billboard).—As a result of a dispute between the Musicians' Union and Julia Cahn, manager of the Salem and Empire Theatres here, women players appeared in the orchestra at tonight's performance. The union has a rule that stipulates that every theatre must employ at least seven men in its orchestra, and when Mr. Cahn let two men of the Salem orchestra go Saturday, the union called a meeting and voted that unless Mr. Cahn used seven men at the Salem, union men would refuse to work in either house here. The Empire orchestra walked out in sympathy today, and unless the matter is settled in a satisfactory manner a strike at all the houses in which Mr. Cahn is concerned may follow. Mr. Cahn's action in employing women musicians is taken to indicate that he intends to fight the issue.

EMPRESS THEATRE POPULAR.

The Empress Theatre, the Cincinnati home of Sullivan & Conside vaudeville, is gaining in public favor with each succeeding week, and patronage is increasing correspondingly. This stimulation of interest is no doubt in a large measure due to the indefatigable efforts of H. E. Robinson, local manager, and Ed Aubrey, the press representative, two active workers, who never allow an opportunity to pass to put over some clever surprise for their patrons.

MOORE SECURES CONTROL.

Wheeling, W. Va., Sept. 18 (Special to The Billboard).—The Moore Circuit has secured control of the Board of Trade Building here, in which the Court Theatre is located. The stock was purchased in the name of Samuel E. Nixon, of Nixon & Zimmerman, of Philadelphia. Chas. A. Feinler is the present manager and lessee of the theatre, and the above course was anticipated by the combination of the interests of Moores, Nixon, E. F. Moore and Feinler several weeks ago. No change in the policy of the theatre is contemplated.

NO RELATIVE OF BERRY FAMILY.

Prof. A. E. Berry of the Berry Aeronautical Company wishes to state that the Albert Berry charged with murder in Pennsylvania, is no relation and in no way connected with the original Berry Family of aeronauts and parachute leapers. A number of papers have mentioned him as connected with the Berry Family, causing inconvenience and unpleasant comments. Prof. Berry has recently returned from Mexico, where he was doing military balloon work during the recent revolution, in which he had the misfortune to lose two fingers.

Frances & Lederer's Madame Sherry Company opened Sampson's Theatre, Penn Yan, N. Y., September 7, and gave a pleasing performance to a packed house.

women were insulted, and fighting was continuous. Hats were torn from the women's heads, and confetti, mixed with pepper was thrown into their eyes. Nearly all of the pepper victims were wealthy automobilists watching the throng from cars along the curb on Surf Avenue. Several hundred were arrested on this charge, and over one hundred were sentenced to terms in jail this morning.

The Ogre Scores Hit

London, Sept. 12 (Special to The Billboard).—Sir George Alexander produced at the St. James Theatre last night a new three-act comedy by Henry Arthur Jones, entitled The Ogre. The plot of the play can hardly be called original, as Mr. Jones uses the hackneyed theme of the rebellious wife, who threatens to desert her husband for another admirer and the complacent husband, who puts no obstacles in her way, knowing that she will finally surrender to his will. The dialogue, however, is bright and sparkling, and kept the house continually in a state of merriment.

The play was given a splendid representation by an excellent company, including George Alexander in the title role, Kate Cutler as the wife, and A. E. Matthews as the irresponsible son.

AVIATION FIELD.

The International Aviation Meet, which is to be held at the Airdrome of the Aero Club of New York and the Aero Club of America, takes place September 23 to October 1 inclusive.

HACKETT'S GOOD VEHICLE

The Grain of Dust Opens Regular Season at Olympic Theatre, St. Louis, and is Pronounced Surprisingly Excellent—Supporting Company Highly Praised

St. Louis, Mo., September 11 (Special to The Billboard).—James K. Hackett, with his new play, The Grain of Dust, opened the season at the Olympic Theatre last night. The Grain of Dust is Louis Evan Shipman's dramatization of the late David Graham Phillips' last novel. A large opening night audience was on hand, despite the sultry weather, and the consensus of opinion was that Mr. Hackett has a vehicle that will serve him for some time.

The play itself tells a direct story of the utmost simplicity. Frederick Norman, a brilliant young lawyer, sacrifices his financial and social prospects to marry Dorothea Hollowell, a poor stenographer. Dorothea does not care much for him and deserts him in his time of need. At the play's last moment, when Norman has recovered what he has lost because of her, Dorothea bobs up with a rather belated confession of love for him.

Mr. Hackett has surrounded himself with a company of surpassing excellence, when it might have been economical to have chosen lesser men for the little parts.

CAST OF CHARACTERS.

Frederick Norman	Mr. Hackett
William Tetlow	E. M. Holland
Isaac Burroughs	Frazer Coulter
Clayton Fitzhugh	Vaughan Trevor
James Galloway	Charles Stedman

Theatre Burns To Ground

El Dorado, Ill., Sept. 15 (Special to The Billboard).—The beautiful new opera house at El Dorado, Ill., was burned to the ground September 14. Lorraine Keene and Associate Players were filling a one night engagement and succeeded in saving all their wardrobe, scenery and properties, the last trunk being taken out while the theatre was a mass of flames.

A DARING FEAT.

San Francisco, September 16 (Special to The Billboard).—One of the nerviest feats that has ever been attempted by a professional wire-walker will be the one that Ben Beno, a local vaudeville performer, will try to walk across a wire over the crater of the Kilauea Volcano, in Hawaii, on next Thanksgiving Day. Beno has a guarantee of $20,000 from the cities of Honolulu and Hilo if he accomplishes the feat. The wire will be stretched 400 feet above the mouth of the crater and will be 1,200 feet from one end to the other.

It has been only the matter of a year since the volcano over which Beno will walk was active and filled with poisonous gases, and for that reason the task will be a hazardous one.

Before leaving San Francisco for Honolulu, Beno will interview the directors of the Panama-Pacific Exposition with the idea of inducing them to allow him to attempt the feat of walking across the Golden Gate. It is Beno's idea to have a wire stretched from one side of the Golden Gate to the other. The height is no object.

BOY INJURED AT FAIR.

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 16 (Special to The Billboard).—The only serious accident to mar State Fair Week occurred tonight when George Hargadon, 10 years old, son of W. J. Hargadon, an engineer, was probably fatally injured by the explosion of a dynamite bomb, which he had taken from the store-house of the company which held the contract for the fireworks display at the fair.

The boy's right hand was terribly mangled, and had to be amputated. He also sustained three fractures of the right leg and was badly bruised all over the body.

The fair was a big financial success, as well as from the standpoint of exhibits and attractions. The estimated aggregate attendance for the week is 115,000.

The Horse Show was one of the finest ever held in the state of Kentucky.

A big spectacle that thrilled the patrons was the head-on collision of two monster engines, which were sent at each other at a speed of 50 miles an hour, completely wrecking both. Two thousand feet of rail were laid expressly for this event.

P. A. Ikird has assumed management of the Beck Theatre, Bellingham, Wash. He succeeds Terry McKean. Mr. Ikird has for the past two years acted as treasurer for the Seattle and Grand Theatres in Seattle.

High Diver Falls; Dies

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 11 (Special to The Billboard).—Captain Matthew Dorsey, a high diver of this city, died at the Ashbury Hospital as a result of injuries received in diving from the high electric tower into a net at Twin City Wonderland Park, September 3. Dorsey was 25 years old.

CHILD SEIZED BY LION.

Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 16 (Special to The Billboard).—Laura Burns, seven years of age, was frightfully mangled and bitten by a huge lion in a sideshow at the State Fair yesterday. The lion's cage was roped off so the spectators could not get nearer than five feet, but the little girl crawled under the rope and stood near the cage. The lion seized the girl in his paw and tried to draw her through the bars, but the attendants beat and prodded the animal with bars until the child was released.

Against Ticket Scalpers and Lyric Theatre is Consequently Lightly Attended During Engagement of Gertrude Hoffman
—Saison de Ballets Artistic but Not Financial Success

Chicago, September 14 (Special to The Billboard).—The play-going public turned the tables upon the ticket speculators this week and, by refusing to pay the honra exacted by the hotel ticket stand, squeezed these gentry for a large part of their previous profits, made by cornering the choicest seats of the downtown theatres. The result was disastrous to the financial success of the week's engagement of Gertrude Hoffman's Russian Dancers, however. Both on Monday and Tuesday nights almost one-third of the Lyric Theatre was vacant, the empty space representing the seats which the ticket brokers had bought on speculation. The play-going public, however, inspired by external appearances, interpreted this vacancy to mean lack of interest. The result has been an inadequate attendance for what is generally conceded to be a highly meritorious performance. Miss Hoffman deserves double praise: first, for her enterprise and artistic judgment in recruiting such an excellent corps of artists, and, second, for her good sense in making her own efforts subsidiary to those of her company, and thus saving herself from comparisons that might not be construed to her advantage. She appears in but two of the pantomimic dances—as the Egyptian queen in a pantomimic treatment of Theophile Gautier's story, Oae of Cleopatra's Nights, and in Sheherazade, a thespic interpretation of The Thousand and One Nights. In both of these her costumes scintillate with exquisite jewels and are dreams of opulence and splendor.

SYNDICATE-INDEPENDENT TRUCE:

Chicago, Sept. 12 (Special to The Billboard).—O. L. (Doc) Hall, the dramatic critic of the Chicago Journal, possesses the sanest vision and deepest perspective of any of our writers on topics of the theatre. Commenting upon the pother that the announcement of the placing by William Brady of Douglas Fairbanks and A Gentleman of Leisure into Charles Dillingham's Globe Theatre has aroused in New York, Mr. Hall says: "I fail to see why there should be much more than a mere news-record of the occurrence. Fairbanks, then as now a Brady star, played The Cub last season in the Studebaker here, another Dillingham holding. George Tyler, an 'independent' ally, played Annie Russell at the Studebaker also. He played Margaret Anglin at the Boston Tremont, a theatre over whose portals Charles Frohman's name appears. Henry W. Savage, regarded by the 'Independents' as one of their most powerful allies, staged Excuse Me in a New York City theatre under the direct management of the heads of the 'syndicate,' and will send it to the Studebaker for its Chicago run. And Thomas A. Wise, a Brady star, is now loaned to Dillingham for service in Uncle Sam."

Lederer Back from Europe

Chicago, September 14 (Special to The Billboard).—Sam Lederer, genial manager of the Olympic Theatre, hopped off the Twentieth Century train from New York this morning, on the final leg of a holiday jaunt that took him to Prague, Bohemia, and back through the European capitals. Sam brought back with him his stalwart father, a six-foot two youngster of 28, and as straight and agile as a drum major. Lederer, pere, who has not been in Chicago for thirty years, will make his future home with his son, who says his father is good for another thirty years, a statement that seems reasonable to all of his friends who have met the well-preserved old gentleman.

CHICAGO THEATRE SOCIETY.

Chicago, Sept. 13 (Special to The Billboard).—Donald Robertson, dramatic director of the Chicago Theatre Society, which will guarantee ten weeks' season of dramatic repertory at the Lyric Theatre next February, wiring from New York yesterday to the directors of that society, announced the engagement of several players of international repute for the Chicago Drama Players Company. The list comprises Messrs. Herbert Kelcey, Edward Emery, Sheldon Lewis, Frederick Woodward, Eugene Woodward, James Cooley, Hylton Allen and Misses Effie Shannon, Hedwig Reicher, Charlotte Granville, Renee Kelly, Barbara Hull and Caroline Oden. In addition to these, four more leading people, all players of note, and five others for minor roles will be engaged.

Mr. Hamlin Garland, secretary of the Chicago Theatre Society, declares that the standard of American plays which have been submitted in MSS. in the competition that the society has sponsored, is higher than he expected. The contest is open to all American authors, and the requirements are that the MSS. be American in subject. They may be historical, sociological, satirical or frankly fantastic—but they must be complete, as the readers have no time for scenarios. The plays for the first season must be decided upon by November 1. All MSS. submitted should be addressed to Hamlin Garland, Cliff Dwellers' Club, Chicago, Ill.

Alexander Volsniae and Lydia Lapokowa are the stars of the aggregation, their vaulting lightness of motion suggesting flight. Theodore Kosloff, Maria Baldinn, Zinaida Schabert and Jan Zalesky are prominent in the company. There are three remarkably beautiful stage settings: a scene on the Nile, a wood scene, and the interior of a gorgeous Oriental palace.

SAID AND SEEN IN CHICAGO

Mr. Fritz Hottmann, manager of the Antollette Le Brun Grand Opera Company, was a Billboard caller Tuesday. He reports a successful operatic season among the Middle West Chautauques, including Winona Lake, Bay View, Mich., and Louisville, Ky. The company holds a record of playing to 30,000 people in twenty-four performances. They are set out on a guarantee for a tour of thirty weeks, beginning the 1st of October, opening in Pennsylvania and playing out to the Pacific Coast. Their tour is directed and booked by the Chicago office of the Redpath Musical Bureau.

The Hayden Troupe of wire artists closed with the Famous Robinson Shows on July 31 and have since been appearing in vaudeville. They have made many changes in their act and are going strong. Miss Edna Hayden, who sustained painful injuries by falling from the wire early in the season, has completely recovered and is a member of the troupe.

The Mack Brothers, Chuck and C. R., proprietors of the New Exposition Shows, supplied the attractions at the third annual horse show at Rensselaer, Ind., September 12 to 16. They have had a successful season through the states of Texas, Louisiana, Arkansas, Missouri, and Illinois, and are dated for several weeks through Indiana and Central and Southern Illinois. They were the extra attraction at the Chicago, September 15 (Special to The Billboard).—The three Klnw & Erlauger hoases, the Illinois, Powers' and the Blackstone, begin their new season with the next week, the first-named tomorrow night, the Blackstone Saadny, and Powers' on Monday evening. On Monday also, the Princess Theatre, which has been devoted recently to the exhibition of moving pictures of a high grade, will resume with musical comedy.

Fraze & Lederer's altercation with the Chicago Federation of Musicians over their non-use of an orchestra at the Cort threatened to interrupt the opening of Jefferson de Angellis and compay in The Ladies' Lion at the Illinois, but it is believed that through the intercession of House Manager Will J. Davis Jr. the trouble has been adjusted. Mr. De Angellis is credited with the composition of the books and lyrics and William T. Fraze with the score. The scenery and costumes of the production came from Berlin and are said to be upon a lofty scale of magnificence. The action takes place at Monte Carlo and on board an English man-of-war. Mr. De Angellis is supported by a large company comprising the following artists: Fraak Rushworth, Habert Wilke, Florence Martin, Anna Langhlin, Annabelle Whitford, Morgan Williams, Charles Priace, Thomas Gaffola, Eugene Francis, Anna Milward and Carol Oty.

Louis Evon Shipman's dramatization of David Graham Phillips' novel, A Graft of East, which had its premiere a week ago last night in Rochester, N. Y., will open the new season at the Blackstone Theatre on Saaday aight. Reports from Rochester would have us believe that the part of Frederick Norman is the greatest role that James K. Hackett has ever essayed. He is a brilliant young corporation lawyer, engaged to the catch of the season, Josephine Burroughs, the beautiful daughter of a captain of finance. Everything in raising smoothly until Norman suddenly discovers the hidden charms in a quiet little blonde typewriter, Dorothea Hollowell. In the end Norman marries the typist, having broken off his fashionable engagement after vainly trying to bewilder the simple little girl by less honorable methods. As a character study Norman is tremendous, and equal force and art are displayed by the author in the portrayal of the girl. In playing The Grain of Dust, Mr. Hackett will have the support of E. M. Holland, Frazer Coulter, Vaughan Trevor, Charles Steedman, Fraak Burbeck, Fred A. Sullivan, Daniel Jarrett Jr., Olive Oliver, Pauline Neff and Mary Moran.

After many conflicting announcements, it is stated as positive that the Princess Theatre will open its fall season on Monday night, September 18, with Bothwell Browne, in Miss Jack, a musical comedy. The book and lyrics are by Mark Swann, and the music was composed by William Frederick Peters, a Chicagoan. The production comes direct from the Herald Square Theatre, New York. Browne, who is a female impersonator, makes ten changes of costume during the action of the piece, concluding with the impersonation of Cleopatra, which he gave in vaudeville. In the supporting company are: Olive Ulrich, Hazel Cox, Suzanne Rocamora, Jonathan Keefe, James B. Curson, Rose Bennett, May McCabe and Ernest F. Young.

Chicago's Grand Opera Season

Chicago, September 12 (Special to The Billboard).—As announced in these columns, Massenet's Cendrillon, performed in French, will be one of the novelties of the Chicago season of grand opera at the Auditorium, beginning November 22. Other little-known works which the Chicago-Philadelphia company promises are Massenet's La Joazeur de Notre Dame (in French), Slat-Saeas' Samson et Delilah (in French), Nougues' Qao Vadla (in French), Victor Hermet's Noutma (in English), Wolf-Ferrari's Segreto di Suzanne (in Italian), and Wolf-Ferrari's I Gioielli della Madonna (in Italian). Mr. Andrea Dippel, the general manager, further announces several revivals of opera in English and the three German operas, Tristan and Isolde, Die Walkure and Lohengrin.

The first appearance of Mme. Luisa Tetrazzini with the Chicago-Philadelphia Grand Opera Company in Chicago will be outside of the regular subscription, but all subscribers to each of the series of operas are assured at least one performance with the celebrated artiste in the east. The repertoire selected for Mme. Tetrazzini's appearance consists of the following five operas: Lucia di Lammermoor, La Traviata, Rigoletto, Lakme and Cripiao e la Comare. The repertoire for the first week beginning Wednesday, November 22, will be: Samson et Delilah, with Jeanne Gertrude-Reache (debut), M. M. Dalmore, Dufrenoy, Huberdeau, Crabbe; Thursday night, Carme, with Mary Gardea (first appearance in the role), Alice Zepplini, M. M. Dalmore and Dufrenoy; Friday night, Lucia, with Luisa Tetrazzini, M. M. Bassi, Sammarco, Scott (debut); Saturday afternoon, Le Nozze di Figaro, with Margie Torte (debut), Mmes. White, Zepplini, Berat (debut) and M. M. Sammarco and Huberdeau; Saturday night, Il Trovatore; Sunday afternoon, Verdi's Requiem Mass, in concert; Monday night, Cendrillon; Tuesday night, Traviata, with Mme. Tetrazzini, M. M. Bassi and Sammarco.

William Sleeth, for many years known as Lotto, the Human Arrow, met with a painful accident while attempting to board a street car in Indianapolis, August 20. He was thrown heavily, and his left hand crushed in such a manner that amputation above the wrist was necessary. The injury is healing nicely and he is on the road to recovery. He would be glad to hear from his friends. Address, 1116 S. Illinois Street, Indianapolis, Ind.

THE WEEK IN CHICAGO

THE MAJESTIC BILL

ACTS NEW TO CHICAGO

Program Consisting of Nine Acts Has Five Numbers New to Chicago—Fred Warren and Matt Keefe Merit Highest Honors—Mary Norman is Received Enthusiastically

Reviews and Critical Comments on Acts Appearing for the First Time in Chicago Vaudeville Theatres—Acts That Have Been Altered Included

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 15 (Special to The Billboard).—Out of nine acts on the Majestic bill, five of them are new to Chicago. Of the nine acts only two could be called real hits. They are: Fred Warren (formerly of Warren and Blanchard) and Matt Keefe, who gives twenty minutes of a good sort of entertainment. Una Clayton and Company submit a little dramatic sketch intermingled with comedy called, A Child Shall Lead Them. Miss Clayton is wonderful in her part portraying the girl of the East Side type. There is heart interest throughout the story which wins the audience from the beginning. Dr. Ludwig Wullner, the world famous lieder singer, is headlined this week but is decidedly out of place on the vaudeville stage. Wullner has won much popularity in Chicago through his work with the Thomas Orchestra. This is undoubtedly the Doctor's proper sphere as the Majestic audience and orchestra hall audience are vastly different. As a vaudevillian Dr. Wullner might prove a hit in Milwaukee, but "here's hoping" that the Orpheum agents will not wish another "Dr. Wallner" on Chicago, this or any other season.

The show is opened by the Daleys, trick and fancy roller skating. Singing is introduced by the lady of the act, which is "one of the best things she does." The offering is reviewed under New Acts.

Jane Imes, singing comedienne, appears second on the bill. Her billing on the program reads: "Cute, cunning and coy." Very well, she's that, but she is not an artist in the line she has chosen. She is reviewed under the heading of New Acts.

Miss King, assisted by Claude Leighton, offers a pleasing novelty called, The Legend of Spring. In order to get a really good conception of the act we will reproduce the synopsis used by Miss King on the program: "On the first spring morn' at the break of dawn the Prince comes to the magic spring to look for the 'loving eyes and the face of his Lady Fair.' On the water is reflected the likeness of the Wood Nymph. On finding her he avows his love. She doubts and coquettishly hides him. As the Gods have sent the Prince to the Nymph they are angered at her actions and punish her. When sufficient punishment has been meted out, the Prince returns and wins the heart of the Nymph."

The setting for the act depicting a forest and spring is delightfully realistic and beautiful. Miss King is a toe dancer of a very good sort, but owing to an injury received while playing at Denver last week was unable to put her act on as it really should be. Mr. Leighton sings most of his dialogue in a pleasing voice with certain dramatic effects to make his talent appreciated. Notwithstanding the fact that Miss King should have been a bit instead of on the stage the act went very well and responded to several accolades.

The monotony of a rather slow bill was broken with the appearance of Fred Warren and Matt Keefe, who has come out of mistral to yodel in vaudeville. Mr. Warren does a black-face act and does it well. He is a genuine comedian and was surely welcomed by the Majestic audience. Mr. Keefe has a sweet tenor voice of a high quality which he used to great advantage. His yodelling proved a riot

The Daleys have a very ordinary roller skating act in some respects, and in others, different. Most skaters will not attempt until they have learned to keep on their feet. This Johnny Daley has evidently neglected as he fell down twice during the act and stumbled a number of times. This must be placed to the discredit of Johnny, but he must be given credit for some difficult feats well performed. The lady of the act is not extraordinary as a skater, but is gifted with a wonderfully sweet and sympathetic voice. She renders a very pretty ballad which made a big hit. Considering position and mishaps the act went well.

JUNE IMES, Singing Comedienne. Majestic, Chicago; second in nine-act show; time, 15 minutes; in one.

When June Imes sings she reminds one of a small boy who has run a dozen blocks to see a circus parade, with excitement and lack of breath combined it is hard to understand just what is being said. This is June Imes manner in putting a song over. There is too much "put on"; she is not natural. Miss Imes has a good voice but it needs training. Her repertoire of songs is poorly selected. They are of the popular variety, yet they are not "popular." Miss Imes would do well to cut her act about four or five minutes. Were this done the act would go much better.

UNA CLAYTON AND HER PLAYERS, Dramatic Playlet. Majestic, Chicago; fifth in nine-act show; time, 28 minutes; full stage; number of people, five.

When A Child Shall Lead Them opens it seems to border in plot toward indecency and degeneracy. It is highly suggestive of a child who has been born out of wedlock. This, however, is an illustration and instance of child innocence. The part of the child, who is a typical "gamin," is forcibly played by Miss Clayton. Later in the story it develops that the baby who has been forced on the old millionaire by the child mother has been abandoned by the real mother. There is the part of a wayward son interwoven in the piece which is overdone by Herbert Griffin. In the end, father and son are reunited by "Maggie" (Miss Clayton) through her trusting and loving influence. The "Kid" and Maggie are adopted by the lonely father and son, and a very pleasing and desirable climax is brought into the finish of a powerful little playlet.

DR. LUDWIG WULLNER, German Lieder-Singer. Majestic, Chicago; seventh in nine-act show; time, 15 minutes; full stage.

Dr. Wullner is great as a dramatic singer. He produces real feeling and sympathy in his readings. However, there's scarcely a large enough per cent of Germans in the Majestic audience to fully appreciate the great merits of Herr Wullner's work. He has a repertoire of several well-known German compositions. He has no voice for a soloist, and had it not been for his great dramatic ability he would have proven a failure.

Chicago Burlesque Attractions

VANITY FAIR AT THE STAR AND GARTER

Two years ago a song and dance team bearing the name of Bowman Brothers, the Blue Grass Boys, appeared in Chicago on the vaudeville stage. Last season they were again seen here in burlesque, doing their specialty. Here's a pretty instance of progress. This season finds these two clever youngsters heading a great show and "getting away with it." Vanity Fair the show is called which opened at the Star and Garter last Sunday, and although the rain was on the job the entire house was sold out for the evening performance. The show resembles a musical comedy more than a burlesque; in fact, Manager Moe is to be congratulated on the cleanliness of every attraction that has played the house this season. The comedy in Vanity Fair is bright and snappy, but is by no means the main feature of the show, for that honor has been claimed by the musical numbers. Ted Snyder's songs predominate all through the bill and that can mean but one thing—success. Ob, yes, Alexander's Rag Time Band did the usual vacuum cleaning stunt, and the Bowman Brothers are the boys to put it over in its true interpretation. Virginia Lou was another bread winner for them. In this number, as in all the others, the support of the chorus is excellent. When You're in Town is the opener and started the show off in fine shape. The costumes of the entire company are beautiful and rich. There is a small fortune represented in the costumes of the chorus alone. Vanity Fair offers a great olio. It is opened by The Brighton Quartet, composed of Messrs. Zarnes, Weston, Gordon and Tanner. The boys have a good repertoire and harmonize well. The offering took very big. Dewar's Comedy Animal Circus gives the burlesque audience a pleasing variation from the ordinary run of olio offerings. The formidable mule is introduced and furnished five minutes of screams. Tilford, a young ventriloquist, has a good offering. He offers feats which

Mayor Attacks Cafe Vaudeville

Chicago, September 14 (Special to The Billboard).—Through an order of Mayor Harrison yesterday, saloon vaudeville or vaudeville performances in places other than licensed theatres is put under police ban. The order especially bit "midnight vaudeville," which lures after-theatre crowds into the Loop District restaurants. In defying his stand, Mayor Harrison said: "There is no objection to these places having singers. Singing is not vaudeville; but if the singer also comes on the stage and dances, I consider that that is vaudeville and it has to stop. My order to Chief McWeeny include all places except licensed theatres. If these cafe owners are running theatres, they will have to get licenses to permit them to do so."

WILSON AVENUE BILL.

Chicago, September 15 (Special to The Billboard).—Frank Q. Doyle made "some spurt" on the stretch at the Wilson Ave. this week. Although this is the last fall week the Wilson will be booked by Mr. Doyle, he has several feature acts contracted for the next few weeks whose contracts will hold good. The new hooks (the W. V. M. A.) will have to "get up early" if they ever place as strong attractions at the Wilson as Mr. Doyle did the first half of this week. It is plain to see that Mr. Doyle's recent trip to New York was a very profitable one, as he brought some big acts to the Wilson and will lead in the past two or three weeks. With Zimmerman will head the bill for the week of the 18th. The show this week is opened by Flager and Melile, the little girl and the hobo, comedians, cyclists. The act is smooth and well worked and made a big hit. In a way the act was a relief from the habitual openers, acrobatic or gymnastic acts. This was a great item in favor of the team. The comedy introduced is not overdone and the riding feats, while difficult, were well performed.

Lillian Wright, Loyd and Clayton, premier acrobatic dancers, are second on the bill. Mr. Wright is very clever in wooden shoe dancing and is assisted by a duo of young men who are just as clever if not more. The trio works in A sniphtic comedienne, whose popularity is due to her originality. She was the headlinette attraction at the Majestic Theatre two weeks ago.

VAUDEVILLE CHATTER

Paul Goudron is now booking the Empire and Columbia Theatre at Milwaukee, Wis., and placed his first shows there week of Sept. 18. These houses are a distinct addition to the bookings of the Chicago office of Sullivan and Considine.

The Moscow Four will open for a tour of the Webster Circuit on September 28.

Prance and Galgano, Lavigne and Jaffee, Ed. Burnham and Co. and Rives and Stanley's Gents are attractions playing the Sullivan and Considine Michigan Circuit, booked by Gaston Goudron of the Chicago office.

Charles Berkehl, manager of the American Theatre at Davenport, Ia., was in Chicago last week, and reports fine business. He is playing some big attractions this season.

The engagement was announced at Escanaba, Mich., last week, of Frank Merritt and Claudia Tracy of Gannox and Tracy. Gaston Goudron of the Chicago Sullivan and Considine office, received clippings from the Michigan papers, telling of a serene given the happy young couple by the theatrical colony of that town.

Norman Friedenwald has placed Ferguson and Northland on Earl J. Cox's Time through Lester Rose, who is now in Friedenwald's office. The girls are from the Tivoli in London, and their first Chicago showing was at the Ellis Avenue in Chicago, last week.

Norman Friedenwald has placed the Tivoli Quartette on the Pantages Time.

Lew Williams and Co. are in Chicago after a Pacific Coast trip.

Bert Levey of San Francisco was in Chicago last week.

A new theatre, store and office building will be erected at the southeast corner of Lincoln and Fullerton avenues, Chicago, by Nicholas Wetzel Jr. Plans for the building have been prepared by Architect George F. Lovadel. The new structure, which will cost $75,000, will be commenced on October 1.

The new theatre which will be a part of the City Hall Square Building, is rapidly nearing completion, and it is expected that it will be ready for occupancy about the first of the new year. The name of the new playhouse has not yet been decided upon, but it will be one that will be recognizable as belonging to a theatre. Thomas J. Noonan, formerly manager of the Gardea Theatre, Chicago, projected the enterprise. The house is under lease to Herman Fehr, the Milwaukee amusement magnate, and it is reported that Mort H. Singer of the Princess will be the manager.

Malvern Troupe, after playing three fairs in Wisconsin, will commence a return tour of 25 weeks over the S. & C. Circuit West, opening in Cincinnati, October 5.

New York, September 16 (Special to The Billboard).—George C. Tyler opened the doors of his newly-leased Century Theatre Friday night, September 15, with a revival of Maeterlinck's The Blue Bird. Since the playhouse changed its management and name it has undergone some interior transformations as well. The row of "founders' boxes" has been made into a shallow balcony and in the space at the rear of the orchestra seats, where there was once a promenade, there is now a row of open boxes fitted with chairs.

In offering the public his three-act play, Lee Wilson Dodd stands responsible for the first Saturday premiere of the current season. This comedy, which partakes greatly of a satirical nature, was presented at the Comedy Theatre, September 9. Much heralding has been given the Dodd play with the breezy name. The critics were fairly blown to expectation for the week-end opening—but when recording the opinions, they failed to show much of the celerity of commendatory language that had been anticipated. They laud the author for his pleasant wit and humor—they praise him for the neatness of the satire and they credit him with a quickly-moving spirited action.

It is the quality of amateurishness upon which they focus their objections. The plot they accuse of not being palpable—they condemn Speed on its lack of depth and meaning. It seems to be a lot of hustle, noise and activity without the reasoned logic necessary to give a play promise of permanency.

To the cast, however, Mr. Dodd has given lines of color and suitability rendering some of the characters unctuous by keen antithesis and dialogue while others are brought out in other recognized ways. The chief roles were excellently filled. Orrin Johnson and Oza Waldrop justifying every morsel of eulogy the press bestowed upon them.

Speed is that sort of a work which impresses as being worth while—it shows instances of flaws but a little repair work will give it a grace and dignity and independence of movement that it needs at the present.

AGED VIOLIN MAKER DEAD.

Richmond, Ind., Sept. 12 (Special to The Billboard).—Alvin B. Clarke, a violin maker, died here last week, aged 89 years. Mr. Clarke was widely known among theatrical people, many of them using his instruments.

THE FATTED CALF.

New York, Sept. 16 (Special to The Billboard).—A new comedy called The Fatted Calf is to have its premiere in New England early next month. The play is from the pen of Arthur Hopkins. In the cast are: Frank Sheridan, Robert McWade Jr., Julia Hanchette, Lowell Sherman, Marjorie Wood, Mary Cross and May Malloy.

As for The Blue Bird, the changes in it are mostly in the personnel of the players. There are some of the New Theatre company back in their old roles, but Tytyl was played by a boy, and very well played at that, with Burford Hampden, a young English actor, in

Play of Social Inquisition, at Times Sordid, Withal Melodramatic, Elicits Diverse Opinions from Critics—General Impression is that Play Will Have a Long Run

New York, Sept. 16 (Special to The Billboard).—To William A. Brady we are indebted for a strong drama, very like melodrama. It is Thompson Buchanan's play of social inquisition, which because of a sensational court scene, has been termed The Rack. That the play is deep and sustaining has been generally agreed—the work of the author has been commended in spite of the fact that the reviewers detect a dilittante atmosphere to the book. One of Buchanan's critics excuses this on the grounds that the young author reveals in his product the essential elements of a masterful playwright. The author is but a young man and with his years his work will unquestionably mature. Although the structure of the play is in part similar to many others, its treatment and collateral development gives it a freshness, even if morbid, that justifies the prophecy of metropolitan appreciation.

The Sun accords Brady's latest production which had its premiere at the Playhouse, Friday, September 15, the following criticism:

"After much secrecy, various postponements and other incidents that should have piqued public interest in the play, William Brady produced at the Playhouse, The Rack, which is described on the microscope but otherwise admirable program of this new dramatic institution as 'a play of social inquisition.' Its author is Thompson Buchanan, one of the most promising of the younger writers for the American stage."

"Mr. Buchanan, in A Woman's Way and The Cub, proved the possession of undoubted talent. The play last night marked his first effort in such a field. He again achieved a decided measure of success. But it is not certain that his melodrama gained for him the right to be considered more than promising. The tale he reveals still seems unripe. If it were mature his material last night would have provided him with a success of long duration."

The Herald terms The Rack sordid but gripping, saying in addition: "A play of 'social inquisition' as the program described it, was offered at the Playhouse last night, when Mr. Thompson Buchanan's The Rack was given its first performance here."

"The evening did not pass without a speech from the reluctant author, who first intently refused, and then said:

Mr. Mackey played leading roles during the second half of the season with the Forepaugh Stock Co., Cincinnati. His Queen City engagement won for him the admiration of many Cincinnati playgoers, as well as a number of Kentucky's fairest daughters, from the surrounding Cincinnati suburbs. This season he will head the Southern Company of The Gamblers.

Ex-Balloonist Drowned

George Bridges, an aeroplane mechanic, employed by the Aero Exhibition Co., was drowned in the Ohio River near Cincinnati, September 13, when a skiff in which he was conveying dismantled parts of Aviator Jean Nazi's aeroplane, which fell into the river last Saturday, was run down by a towboat.

Bridges was 32 years old and a former well-known balloonist and parachute jumper. He leaves a wife, who is also an aeromant, and two small children.

ENTER THE AMUSEMENT FIELD.

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 16 (Special to The Billboard).—The Hudson Valley Agricultural and Horticultural Society of New York City has filed articles of incorporation with the Secretary of State to conduct fairs and carry on a general theatrical and amusement business. It has a capital of $25,000, and the following directors: Orasmus B. Lent, Montrose, N. Y.; Jen Smilling, Newark, N. J., and Henry Wilson, New York City.

Pink Lady For Europe

New York, Sept. 12 (Special to The Billboard).—Klaw & Erlanger have entered into a contract with Felix Bloch Erben of Berlin, contemplating the production of Messrs. McLellan and Caryl's The Pink Lady in all parts of Europe with the exception of Great Britain, where they will produce The Pink Lady themselves next January. Within a short time following the production at the Globe Theatre, London, The Pink Lady will be seen in Berlin, Paris, Vienna and Budapest. It will receive its initial performance in France at the Apollo Theatre, Paris, and its first presentation in Germany at the Theatre des Westens in Berlin. Contracts have already been arranged with J. C. Williamson for its production in Australia. This is probably the first time that a musical comedy originally produced in the United States will be seen in so many countries.

AGENCY IN NEW QUARTERS.

The Nixon-Nirdlinger Vandeville Agency has moved to its new offices in the Forrest Theatre Building, Philadelphia, Pa. All mail should be addressed to 133 E. Broad Street.

His First Broadway Indorsement

Edmund Breese aptly admitted that A Man of Honor, which enjoyed its premiere performance at Weber's Theatre Thursday night, September 14, was the first Broadway opening he had ever been featured in. This remark started the brains of the individuals in the audience to thinking and the play by Rabbi Isaac Landman continued them in their edifying, thoughtful mood. The play proves itself preeminently suited to the manly qualities of the Weber star who, until last Thursday, had opened only in metropolitan playhouses on streets that run at a tangent from the gay white thoroughfare. Breese's new vehicle is designated as a purpose play—this evidently being the demonstration of the evils of parental indulgence. The paterfamilias of the play happens to be a judge so peculiarly placed as to have to make a decision which, if rendered one way, will destroy the happiness of his only son, the other way will remove the hope and happiness of his only daughter. Landman has handled the plot with considerable ingenuity and displays material that promises much should the rabbi devote future time to the field of dramatic literature. To Joseph Weber must be extended a full quota of praise for the carefulness with which he lannebed his attraction. Personally, the producer expressed satisfaction at the piece and has evidently concluded to house A Man of Honor at the amusements theatre for a good run, as seats are being sold for many weeks in advance. The audience will undoubtedly respond to the new Weber offering.

The meatiest sections of the reviews of several New York daily publications are given herewith:

The Sun—"When the excitement of the opening night has passed and when the actors tone themselves and their parts down several degrees, A Man of Honor will be a pretty good play."

The World—"A serious purpose lies behind the drama, as it attempts to show that the modern man of wealth in rearing his family often weakens the character of his children by over-indulging them."

The Evening Telegram—"Mr. Breese, in the role of the judge, has what is known on Broadway as a 'strong part,' to which he does full justice."

MISS DUDELSACK CAST.

New York, Sept. 16 (Special to The Billboard).—Werha and Luescher have completed the cast of the Miss Dudsack Company by engaging Harry Davies, the tenor, for the part of Harry Parker. The company supporting Lulu Glaser is this new Viennese opera will include Thomas Richards, Anna Luchter, Bertha Holly, David Torrence, Joseph Herbert, Jack McKay, Harry Davies, Carl Sauermann, John Heath, Arthur Hyde, Irene O'Donnell, Grace Walsh, Margaret Langdon and Alice Sullivan. Mr. J. H. Goldsworthy has been engaged as stage manager. The date of Lulu Glaser's opening in Miss Dudsack was changed from Friday, October 13, Waterbury, Conn., to Tuesday, October 10, in Hartford, Conn. The company will also appear in Meriden and Waterbury, Conn., before opening at Boston for an indefinite run.

WEEK THROUGHOUT THE WORLD

CRYSTAL PALACE DOOMED

Famous London Institution Fails to Pay and Its Sale at Auction is Announced—Like Madison Square Garden, the Palace Had World-Wide Fame

The famous Crystal Palace at Sydenham, near London, like the Madison Square Garden in New York City, failed to pay, and is announced to be sold at auction, so another institution comes to a pathetic end. Madison Square Garden is in the heart of New York City, ideally situated for those who are arranging great public gatherings or amusements. The Crystal Palace, on the other hand, is outside of London—about eight miles from Charing Cross—but as a gathering place for large assemblages and popular crowds it has the advantages of great space and of undoubted natural advantages. The Crystal Palace Company was formed in 1851, with a capital of five hundred thousand pounds ($2,500,000), which was afterward doubled, and the huge glass and iron palace built at Sydenham. The building was a novelty, and as long as there was no serious competitor, was a big success, but when it did come the prestige of the Crystal Palace began to wane, and finally, in 1887, the company failed to meet the interest on its bonds.

Nevertheless, Crystal Palace is still regarded by Londoners as a part of their civic life. The building comprises a central hall 1,600 feet long, with ample transepts and lateral sections. The assembly room accommodates four thousand persons, and includes a great organ. There are also a concert hall and theatre, galleries containing the permanent exhibits, casts of notable works of architecture and sculpture, reproductions of the dwellings of the ancients, busts of eminent men, natural history and ethnological tableaux. The view from the towers extends into eight counties, and all visitors recall the sight of the park and the beautiful Kentish scenery. The park consists of two hundred acres, adorned with magnificent fountains. It is a play-ground as well, with its swings, maze, water-canal pool, open-air gymnasium, trolley-railway and switchback railways.

Special evenings are set apart for the display of fireworks, and thousands of visitors are attracted.

Cricket, foot-ball and polo matches attract other thousands; the London County Cricket Club has its home at the Palace. The Crystal Palace has entered into the life of the London amusement lovers in a way that no other amusement place ever has, or probably ever will, and its passing will be a matter of keen regret.

CHARLOTTE WALKER,

Engaged by Klau & Erlanger for the leading role in Eugene Walter's dramatization of The Trail of the Lonesome Pine, by John Fox Jr. The production will be made early next month.

Actress Punishes Stage-Door Johnny

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 16 (Special to The Billboard).—A sensation was caused in the Central Police Court here today when Magistrate David H. Scott arose from the bench to publicly congratulate a young actress who had severely punished a stage-door Johnny by administering a beating as severe as is customarily given in the prize ring.

The prisoner who appeared with both eyes discolored and his face adorned with court-plaster, was the son of one of the most wealthy and prominent families in the city, while the plucky and pretty girl with the pugilistic abilities was Miss Myra Dumont of the Miss New York Jr. Company.

The man had been annoying the actress all during the week and at the same time Miss Dumont was receiving practical lessons in self-defense from a professional pugilist. Last night the "Johnny" was on hand at the stage door of the Empire Theatre and while a score of chorus girls formed a ring and John J. Black acted as referee, Miss Dumont proceeded to deliver a series of swings and upper-cuts. Only the arrival of the police saved the masquer from being severely injured.

Magistrate Scott not only congratulated Miss Dumont but offered the suggestion that she instruct her many friends in the profession how to protect themselves against the stage-door nuisance. The object prisoner was compelled to apologize from the dock and was also fined.

SATAN SANDERSON PREMIERE.

Toledo, O., Sept. 9 (Special to The Billboard).—The first performance of the dramatization of Hallie Erskine Rives' novel, Satan Sanderson, was given in the Lyceum Theatre yesterday. A large audience was present, and from the manner in which the play was received its success seems certain. Norrann Blackett appeared in the leading role, and his work was remarkably good. In fact, the work of the entire company was good, and for a premiere performance the play went with remarkable smoothness, for which a large degree of credit must be given to Miss Rose Bonstelle, who directed the production of the piece. Kirk H. Alexander, Mrs. Jane O. Murray and Miss Frances Siller, the three people responsible for the dramatization, were present, and felt justly proud of their work. The supporting company includes Florence Rittonhouse, Edna Craig Randall, Welma Leonard, Lillian Weston, William Sims, William H. Prince, Harold Matthews, Burr Caruth, Stewart Robbins, C. W. Travis, William Lyons and Stanley Allen.

A Modern Marriage Produced

New York, Sept. 17 (Special to The Billboard).—The Bijou Theatre opened last night with a new piece called A Modern Marriage, adapted from the German by Harrison Rhodes, and dealing with the absurdity of modern views of marriage. Cyril Scott was seen in the leading role, and was supported by a strong company. The play was well received.

DIVORCES ACTRESS.

Dr. Charles T. Pearce of Cincinnati, was granted a divorce Sept. 15 from Mary Pearce, known to the stage as Mary Hall. The decree was granted without a contest on the grounds of wilful neglect, and the additional proof that the defendant had been granted a divorce in another state a year ago, and had since remarried.

Miss Hall is a well-known actress, and at the time of her marriage to Dr. Pearce was leading woman of the old Pike Stock Company in Cincinnati. Last year Miss Hall was leading woman of a Pittsburgh stock company.

Leon and Bertie Allen are playing the Gus Sun Circuit.

MARY MANNERING

Returns to Stage and Will Be Featured by Liebler & Co., in Their Magnificent Production of The Garden of Allah.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 16 (Special to The Billboard).—Mrs. Mary Manning Wadsworth will probably accept the offer of Liebler & Co. to appear in the part of Domini Enfield, in the magnificent production of The Garden of Allah. It is said that the Lieblers have offered Miss Manning the largest salary ever paid on the dramatic stage to any artist with the exception of Sarah Bernhardt. F. E. Wadsworth, Miss Manning's husband, is in New York discussing the contract with the Liebler management, and it is likely that details will be arranged and the contract closed in a day or two.

SUE GOODWIN'S NEW ACT.

Sue Goodwin, late of Moody and Goodwin, is now rehearsing for a new act to be known as Sue Goodwin and Company, in Gold and Silver, and will open shortly on the Interstate Time for Cella Bloom. Miss Goodwin has added two new drops to the act, which will close in gold-cloth costumes in front of a silver sparkle drop. Happy Golden, the Cincinnati boy, late star of Gus Sun Minstrels, and Roy Morris, comedy acrobat, have joined. The act will be a singing, talking and novelty comedy acrobatic one, in three acts and with nine changes of costume.

SHOW PEOPLE MARRY.

Harry S. Girton and Miss Lottie S. Walters, vaudeville performers, both of Indianapolis, Ind., were married in Cincinnati September 16. Miss Walters is known professionally as Lottie Wood. Mr. and Mrs. Girton will leave for Cuba to fulfill engagements there, after which they will travel through the Southern states.

Miss Margaret Utter, a member of the Merry Maidens Company, which played at People's Theatre, Cincinnati, week of September 10, was married to Jack Chapman, a New York business man, in Corvinton, Ky., September 16. This was the second wedding that occurred in which a member of the company was a principal during the week's stay in Cincinnati. Miss Gertrude Turner and Jack Campbell, both members of the company, were the principals in the other.

Marty O'Toole, the baseball player, has some fine vaudeville offers.

Is Edna Goodrich Married?

London, Sept. 16 (Special to The Billboard).—It is reported here today that Edna Goodrich, the actress, and fourth former wife of Nat Goodwin, has married Baron Keane, a wealthy English nobleman and sportsman. The report, however, cannot be verified.

THE RUNAWAY PREMIERE.

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 11 (Special to The Billboard).—The Runaway, a new comedy drama, was given its premier presentation here tonight, with Miss Billie Burke in the leading role. The play is a good, clean comedy, and was well received by the large audience. Miss Burke is surrounded by an excellent company, among them being George Howell, Edwin Nicander, Emily Wakeman and C. Anshrey Smith.

NEW MANAGER IS POPULAR.

Montgomery, Ala., Sept. 14 (Special to The Billboard).—The Runaway, a new comedy drama, was given its premier presentation here tonight, with Miss Billie Burke in the leading role. The play is a good, clean comedy, and was well received by the large audience. Miss Burke is surrounded by an excellent company, among them being George Howell, Edwin Nicander, Emily Wakeman and C. Anshrey Smith.

EDNA AUG FOR FOLIES BERGERE.

New York, Sept. 14 (Special to The Billboard).—Edna Aug has been engaged by Henry B. Harris and Jesse L. Lasky, to create an important character part in the new production to be made at the Folies Bergere, on September 18.

ENGAGES GERMAN TENOR.

New York, Sept. 15 (Special to The Billboard).—Henry W. Savage announces that he has a surprise for New York first-nighters in the person of Paul Ker, the noted Berlin actor-tenor, who will make his American debut in A Million Leo Dittichstein's adaptation of the French farce, which will be one of Savage's early productions. Mr. Ker has been one of the conspicuous personalities in Berlin theatrical and artistic life for the past six years.

QUAKER GIRL PRINCIPALS.

New York, Sept. 16 (Special to The Billboard).—Daphne Glenn and Mabel Gay, two of the principals in Henry B. Harris' production of The Quaker Girl, the London Musical success, which opens at the Park Theatre, New York, October 23, arrived from England on the S. S. St. Louis, last Saturday.

Covington Theatre Burns

Fire of unknown origin gutted the Colonial Theatre, Covington, Ky., early on the morning of Sept. 15. The loss is between $15,000 and $20,000 fully covered by insurance. The theatre was built about a year and a half ago by John J. Ryan of Cincinnati, and he conducted the house for some time, recently leasing it to Parker & Stephens of Covington. A performance was given the evening of the 14th, and when the employees left there was no trace of fire.

Chester Fennessy, manager of the Colonial Theatre, Rochester, N. Y., has just completed an extensive trip through the North and West, visiting Cleveland, Detroit, Chicago, Indianapolis, Louisville and Cincinnati. Mr. Fennessy was very much pleased with conditions in the amusement line in these larger cities of the West, and brings back with him many new ideas for new features to be installed in the Colonial for the entertainment of its patrons. The Colonial is the most prominently located theatre in Rochester and has established a record for local houses by running all summer to splendid business.

Music News and Vaudeville Notes of the Road

IN PUBLISHERS' ROW

Notes from American Music Publishers of Their Latest Songs, and the Artists Through Whose Aid They Are Popularized

M. WITMARK NOTES.

Myne Lorraine, who played at Forest Park last week, this week starting out over Don-trick's Time, has been using with success, River Shannon. She added I'd Love to be Loved by a Girl Like you, which has proved to be her highest hit. Miss Lorraine, who is a male impersonator, has created a sensation wherever she has played.

Williams and Stone, who played the Century last week, went very big in their new act, in which they sang Baby Rose and Never Mind the Family Tree. Both numbers look like winners.

DeMos Jones, who is playing the small time around Chicago, is singing with great success Good-bye, My Love, Good-bye.

The Temple Quartette was without doubt the hit of the hill at the Majestic last week. Mr. Henry, the tenor, sang Witmark's new ballad, If All My Dreams Were Made of Gold, which forced him to respond in several encores. This

J. FRED HELF CO.

Jack Davis makes a most favorable impression with the child ballad success, Wanted—A Harp Like the Angels Play.

The Musical Fredericks continue to successfully feature Gee, but it's Great to Meet a Friend from Your Home Town.

Love Me to a Yiddish Melody, the clever Hebrew character song, is Albert Leyton's big applause winner.

The Quaker City Minstrel Boys are featuring When a Boy from Old New Hampshire Loves a Girl from Tennessee.

The Helf successes in Margaret King's repertoire includes Hands-Up and Lord, Have Mercy on a Married Man.

Love Me to a Yiddish Melody is the chief encore getter of the Nine Crazy Kids.

Emma Carus made her usual hit with Helf's novelty song, Hands Up, at the Fifth Avenue Theatre, New York, during the week beginning August 28.

WILL ROSSITER GOSSIP.

Diamond & Nelson have a riotous encore getter in Let's Make Love While the Moon Shines.

Abbie Mitchell won splendid recognition with her rendition of Mammy's Shuffin' Dance and That Carolina Rag at Hammerstein's week of September 3.

Frank L. Croot is making a special feature of the march song hit, When It's Honeysuckle Time.

Adele Oswald received strong press notices with her rendition of Twilight during her engagement at the Majestic, Chicago. She has in rehearsal several new Will Rossiter numbers.

Knight Bros. & Sawtelle have at last found a successor to a song they have been using for the past fifteen years. It is entitled, When the Band Plays Ragtime at the Zoo, and is from the pen of Roger Lewis and looks like another Oceana Roll.

STERN & CO.

Barry and Halvers are singing Macdonald and Walker's Mississippi Dippy Dip.

The Ringlins are now playing their act, The College Athlete and the Singer, in and around New York City. Miss Ringling is singing Henry & Bryan's waltz ballad, When You're in Love with More than One, You're Not in Love at All.

MAY AUFDERHEIDE,

Brilliant young composer whose clever compositions have placed the J. H. Aufderheide Music Co. in the front ranks of American music publishers.

Misses Mayo and Rhinehart have joined forces in introducing one of the funniest vaudeville acts of the season. Stern's new novelty comedy song, On the B. A. R., is one of the act's feature numbers. Miss Rhinehart is featuring Lewis & Beouett's "talking" song, My! What a Funny Little World This Is, for her "single" number.

V. KREMER CO. NOTES.

Ethel Le Von is scoring big with Honey Sal and Any Old Way You Cook Chicken. The Three Whelans write that Honey Sal,

Anderson Sisters Musical Company is playing an extended 20 weeks' engagement, featuring the famous Anderson Sisters and Jack C. LeRoy, late of the Whitney forces. The company is now playing at the Palace Theatre, Memphis, Tenn., and breaking all house records. This is a fine up-to-date house, and we have received splendid treatment from all connected with it. After the termination of the engagement the company will play a six weeks' engagement on the road, and then return here for the balance of the season. A fine chorus is carried and the principals include Frankie Martin, Ruby Lester, Mrs. Earl Moore, Anderson Sisters,

H. B. BINNER.

A member of the music firm of Betts & Binner.

I'm Going Home and Slog Me an Irish Come All Ye are going very big.

The Mortimer Sisters are so confident with Slog Me an Irish Come All Ye that they have ordered special wardrobe for same.

Little Puff of Smoke, Good-night, continues to score for Abbie Mitchell, Pauline Dempsey, Jennie Adams, Ed. Connelly and many others.

Jennings and Hawley are featuring Good Old Fashioned Love to repeated encores.

Tell Me if Love is a Dream, the new ballad, is positively going over as the season's hit.

AUFDERHEIDE MUSIC NOTES.

Welser and Hunter are featuring with great success, That Ever Lovin' Bear-Cat Dance, a new rag dance. They are opening their act with I Want a Patriotic Girl.

Lewis and Lewis are using In Bamboo Land and I Want a Real Lovin' Man.

The University Quartette is going big with Moontime is Soontime, I Love You Dearie, I Want a Patriotic Girl and Driffling in Dreams With You.

William Scott, with the Overture Quartette, is putting over the Bear-Cat Dance.

Miss Cordie Haager, with George Austin Moore Company, is using I Love You Dearie.

Jerome Weldon is singing very successfully That Ever Lovin' Bear-Cat Dance.

Frank and Breeding are using My Sunday Girl.

Muriel Fisher, A. H. Flais, Allen Fisher, Dan Keely and Producer Jack C. LeRoy. Mr. LeRoy has a contract with an Eastern play company and will produce some of the latest musical comedies.

Good old Nat Haines of Haines & Vidocq, is very much peeved. And all on account of a party who gave the name of Nat Haines, and who, the original Nat claims, allowed the inference to be drawn that he was the Nat Haines.

Nat No. 1 says that Nat No. 2 got into a fight recently with four or five members of the Cleveland Baseball Club while on a train going to Cleveland, and when he swore out a warrant for one of them he gave his name above stated.

Nat also states that his attorney is "On the trail" of the impostor, and will land him sure.

Clever Cooky opened at Evansville, Ind., September 2 for a twenty weeks' cruise on the sea of vaudeville for Gus Sun. While playing Vincennes he was presented by Mr. Schaefer of the Kaiserhof Hotel, with a number of pearls, a gem for which that locality is noted, large numbers being found near there.

Johnnie Crossett, the high still walker, who has been advertising on high altitudes for the Kerkendall Show Company, has joined the Lucas High-Class Vaudeville Show, and will play one week stands in Nebraska, Minnesota, North and South Dakota during the winter.

The Hamiltons, Ollie and Pess, recently closed an eighteen months' engagement with D. N.

Personal Paragraphs Pertaining to the Vast Army of Artists Who Are Popularizing Vaudeville in America and Abroad

Peddy's Modern Concert Company, which they state was the most pleasant engagement of their career. They joined E. J. Jones' Vaudeville Show under canvas at Hahbersham, Tenn., September 11, for an indefinite period.

Al. Grossman, the blackface comedian, opened at the Auditorium Theatre, Quebec, Que., September 11, with ten weeks of Canadian time to follow over the J. H. Aloz Circuit, arranged through Al. Root, the Rochester, N. Y., agent. Grossman is introducing his original novelty, Blue and White.

The Three Shorties were forced to lay off nearly three months on account of injuries received in Newark, N. J., but since their return have played nearly all of the G. M. Gorman Circuit and will play in and around Boston until the cold weather. They will be seen in New York soon.

John Rajan, who was injured with Gentry Bros. Show June 23 at Parkersburg, W. Va., is still in Chicago under care of Dr. Max Thorok, the White Rats' local physician. Mr. Rajan expects to resume his acrobatic work in a few weeks, in vaudeville.

Don Mason is in his 12th week on S. & C. Time with his sketch, The New Chanfeur, and doing so well that he has refused the offer of a part in a new Eastern production opening in November.

Eulaide Kohler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Kohler, was stricken with typhoid fever while with the Wortham & Allen Carnival at Keokuk, Iowa. She is improving and will be able to go on the road again in a few weeks.

Harry Spingold has placed Houghton, Mosher and Houghton at Milwaukee for this week, and has booked The Scarecrow Man and Three Dixie Girls for a tour of Sullivan & Considine Time.

The Hipp at Charleston, W. Va., opened on Labor Day.

Miscellaneous Theatrical News

PLAYHOUSE NOTES

Budget of Brief News Items Contributed by Correspondents from All Sections of the Country Pertaining Particularly to the Plans of Local Theatre Managers

The Turn Hall Theatre, Rockville, Conn., was opened Sunday, September 3, under new management. John H. Yost and Charles Gerch have engaged the house for the season of 1911-12. Moving pictures and high-class attractions will be the policy of the management. John H. Yost has had varied experience in the theatrical business, having managed both the Turn Hall and the Opera House and was with Sousa and his band for several months. The very best pictures obtainable, together with the best vocalists, will make the Turn Hall Theatre a popular place of amusement.

The Columbia Theatre, Alliance, Ohio, opened the season the week of September 11 with Chas. H. Rossman's Chicago Stock Co., playing six nights and three matinees to capacity houses at every performance. The Columbia this season is under the management of Mr. Nat S. Smith, who several years ago managed the Craven Opera House in this city. Mr. Smith is a man of wide experience, having also managed houses at Salem, Ohio, Ft. Wayne, Ind., and at present controls the Opera House at Delphos, Ohio. The Columbia should enjoy a successful season under his able management. Mr. Raymond S. Wallace has been retained as treasurer of the Columbia.

North Vernon, Ind., is coming to the front as one of the best little show towns in the country. It has two picture shows, the Philharg Theatre and the Lyric Picture House, besides a small alldome playing picture exclusively. The Philharg Theatre is the only house playing travelling shows. The house is owned by Phillips & Verharg and managed by Frank S. Reed, who had the management of Buckskin Ben's Famous Show for several years. The Philharg plays stock companies, burlesque, and has handle almost any show coming that way. Pictures are shown each night when the house is not used for a road attraction.

The Burnett Buell Theatre, Louisiana, Mo., opened September 11 with a production of The Third Degree. The theatre, which is up-to-date in every respect, is owned by Clarence Buell, who also personally takes care of the management.

Stock and Repertoire Companies

Wisfred St. Claire and her company played Anderson, Ind., the week of September 4, and broke their second house record. Last season while playing here, they showed at the Crystal Theatre and broke the house record. They then played on a return date and broke it again by several hundred dollars. This season which is the fifth week out, they hold five record weeks. They played at the Grand here this season, which has twice the capacity of the Crystal and played to S. B. O. on three nights. They expect to play a return date here in February.

The Man From The West, with C. L. Erickson as manager, has been playing to good houses through Arkansas. We have lost several days on account of rain, which has hurt the usual good business in this territory as too much rain has almost ruined the cotton crop and corn was a complete failure.

Texas will have plenty of shows this fall. Fourteen one and two-cur shows are already here.

Elizabeth Morrill, leading lady with the Nickerson Bros.' Stock Co., has completed the manuscript of her new play, Love's Cure. The piece was produced at the Fort Scott (Kan.) Alldome September 8 and was heartily received. The theme of the play is based on the effects of morphine. The climaxes are strong and the production abounds in clever lines.

The moving picture business in the Southwest certainly needs a "doctor" as I never saw so many bad-order machines as they have there. Most managers insist upon employing boys who really can't turn a crank, let alone run a machine. Of course, there are some exceptions.

I met "Jolly" Jack Harvey, who is piloting Al. Gibbs' Boston Bloomer Girls. Jack reports fair business in Central Texas, but has cut out East Texas and West Louisiana, on account of the big strike in the lumber mills. He is working North on the Cotton Belt.

Tom Jennings has closed his repertoire company and has gone to Newbo, Mo., to repaint his outfit. He will open again in a few weeks.

Richards Brothers closed their wagon show on account of bad business in Texas.

Dana Thompson's Sunny Dixie Minstrels are doing a nice business in Arkansas, heading for Louisiana.

Elmer Jones is doing a swell business in Washington and the Northwest.

The roster of The Golden Rule, Ltd., is as follows: Howard Hall, Charles Dickson, Eugene Powers, Mart J. Cody, Philip Sheffield, Arville Alderson, Roscoe C. Bockley, Albert Dorris, manager; Bernard Randall, treasurer; Charles McEwen, carpenter; Frank Armstrong, electrician; Ben Krane, advertising agent; Charlotte Townsend, Jennie Dickerson, Madge Tyron, Mirzah Chedler, Sylvia Norris and Patrico Fisher.

ment. Edward McCuen is treasurer, and Frank A. Emerson assistant manager. Jay Lynott is head usher.

New Britain, Conn.'s theatrical season opened September 4 with vaudeville at Keene's and Russell Lyceum Theatres.

The Columbia Theatre, Johnstown, Pa., (H. W. Sherer, manager), opened the season September 3 with a packed house.

DISCUSSES MELODRAMA

Some Observations on a Form of Theatrical Endeavor, at Present in a State of Desuetude—Can Melodrama Come Back?

By TOM NORTH.

Things occur coincidental in a great many instances, and this is an instance. The evening I got my instructions from our editor-in-chief to prepare a special story for this Theatrical Number, I received an invitation from Colonel Wm. Roche to visit his Alhambra Theatre, Chicago, and see melodrama come back. That's the coincidence. It once flashed over me that I had my story. I went, and I saw that Colonel Roche had the rejuvenation of the Alhambra and melodrama. I saw the real old-fashioned melodrama that had in years gone by made the Colonel and the Alhambra famous. I saw the real old time hero and the heavy, the good-hearted old persecuted father, with a bad brother. I heard the same old lines of how the old gray-haired mother, "now lying asleep in yonder hills," had hoped and prayed that her boys would grow up to be as she wished; I saw the heroine kidnapped and heard her shriek with defiance, "You coward, you'll regret this some day," and I saw the regret in the last act. I stopped up the "old son of Ireland," the stuttering comedian, who forgot to stutter when he did a singing act with the sonnette; I heard the real regular quartette harmonize, composed of a couple of had men, a mountaineer and a cowpuncher. I heard the crowded house whistle and yell for more "harber-ahop" chorals. I saw the Indian girl save the papers and the "gal." I saw in Act I. The Golden Ranch, Twilight, "You dirty coward." In Act II: Interior of Ranch home. Same Night. "Starlight, save white sister. Act III: Devil's Gulch, Den of the Outlaws. "Hands up, boys, I'll play this game to the finish." In Act IV: Same as Act II. One week later. "You're come into my heart like the summer and blossomed like the rose." The curtain had descended upon the lovers swearing to be true ever afterward, and I realized I had looked upon old-time melodrama again. But as I looked upon the faces of the patrons coming out of the theatre, I fully realized the satisfaction, the realization that the folks were pleased. I wandered to Colonel Roche's office and asked him: "Colonel, can melodrama come back?" and his answer showed the spirit, the make-up and the man that he is: "I'm going to make it come back!" That's the Colonel, and I knew he had so resolved when I glanced into the lobby and saw a three-sheet, labeled: "NEXT WEEK—The Heart of Chicago." Col. Roche has the enviable reputation of playing over one hundred melodramas a year when melodramas were in their prime, at his Chicago houses, the Alhambra, Bijou and Academy. He is the best sheet writer on melodrama races. He knows

T. M. A. NEWS

Vancouver Lodge No. 34, T. M. A., is progressing rapidly and they have had to find larger quarters. The lodge is now located in the Orange Hall. This hall is considered to be the best in the city for lodge purposes. At the last regular meeting three new members were elected, the lucky trio being A. C. Cooper, Chas. Chester and Ralph Carter. The lodge has formed a Degree Team, of which Chauncey Southren is the captain. They have formed a swell initiation, as the three new members found out. The degree team, after the meeting, tendered the rest of the members of the lodge a Dutch lunch, which was thoroughly enjoyed by all. It is the intention of the lodge to give similar entertainments throughout the winter months. Bro. Chas. Engelbritt of Calgary was a visitor at the last regular meeting. Bro. A. M. Hamilton left for Australia September 6, and Vancouver Lodge wishes him all kinds of good luck in his new home.

Deputy Grand President of Western Pennsylvania, Harry Dunkle, says there isn't a post office at his present locality, but remarks that he will buy stamps and attend to his correspondence when he gets back to Pittsburgh—or Pittsburgh.

At a recent meeting of Los Angeles T. M. A. Lodge, First Grand Vice-President Wm. T. Horne, of Oakland, Cal., was visitor, and was accorded a grand reception. Mr. Horne is very popular with all T. M. A.'s.

Bro. Metcalf is getting busy already for the 1913 convention. He states the boys in Spokane and along the Pacific Coast will show the Eastern boys the time of their lives when they arrive in Spokane.

Cincinnati Lodge No. 33 held its regular stated meeting, Wednesday evening, September 6, initiating four new candidates, after which a Dutch lunch was served. Visitors always welcome.

Deputy Grand President of Southern Ohio, Andy G. Hetteshelmer, now located as Manager of the New Lyceum Theatre, Cincinnati, writes all visiting T. M. A.'s to call and see him.

Dr. Edward H. Moss, physician for the Cincinnati T. M. A. Lodge No. 33, has returned to his duties after a three weeks' vacation, spent in Wisconsin and Michigan.

Jos. W. Hixon, member of Piqua (Ohio) Lodge will soon issue a call through The Billboard for the annual tax of The Wild Irish Rose Club. Secretary Newman, please note.

Theatrical and Musical Companies

The third company that will be sent on tour this season in Charles Klein's The Gamblers, by the Authors' Producing Co., is now in rehearsal, with Charles Mackay and Lillian Kemble in the leading roles of Wilbur Emerson and Catherine Darwin; Joseph Adelman, William Lloyd, Herbert Mansfield, Gideon Burton, Frederick W. Strong, William A. Evans, Arthur Rankin, Thomas Martin, Frederick Ware, Paul Knight, Grace Ellis, Winifred Clarke and Milda Robertson. This company will begin its season at Norristown, Pa., on September 18, and will tour through the South.

Roster of the Indian's Secret Company: Roy W. Sampson, mgr.; Art H. Duquaine, agent; Wm. Valentine, treas.; Cal. Cullahan, Russell Ellwood, Elliott Hathaway, Chas. Porter, Harry L. Raymond, Laura DeVoto, Francis Martin, Chief Lone Star.

A TRIO OF T. M. A. BOOSTERS.

NEW FILM COMPANY

Concern to Be Known as the Majestic Moving Picture Company is Headed by Tom Cochran—Mary Pickford, of Biograph Fame, Will Lead Stock Company

New York, Sept. 16 (Special to The Billboard).—The past week has witnessed the entry of the latest film manufacturing company in the field. Mr. Tom Cochran, who is known to almost every film man in the business, is at the head of the concern and is managing its affairs. Mr. Cochran has opened a suit of offices in the 45th Street Exchange Building at 145 West 45th Street, rooms 1014 and 1015. At the head of the stock company is Miss Mary Pickford, the Little Mary of Biograph fame and known throughout the country by that name.

Mr. Owen Moore, also formerly of the Biograph Company, is directing the stock company, which is now working on Long Island. The firm will be known as the Majestic Moving Picture Company. It will be an independent firm. The aim of the company is to make high quality pictures only. Mr. Cochran's long association with the motion picture business thoroughly enables him to secure such people and equipment as is necessary to make high-grade pictures, a fact which is evidenced by the selection of director and leading lady of the first company to be formed.

LIABILITY OF EXPRESS CO.'S.

The question of the liability of express companies for delay occasioned in film shipments has been a subject of serious investigation by perhaps every exchange in the country since the initiation of the industry and it has been almost invariably held that even though a delay is directly traceable to the forwarding agents, it is possible for the express companies to avoid payment of damages, inasmuch as they never undertake to deliver shipments at any stated time. This has been their defense whenever they have been asked to make good for loss occasioned by their carelessness or neglect, and, as a consequence, neither the shipper nor the consignee has any redress. A new scheme making them liable has just come under notice, and it is perhaps worthy the attention of exchange and others generally interested in the shipping end of the business. It appears that some time ago, last November, to be accurate, Collins & Collins, who control the Buffalo Bill, Pawnee Bill pictures in New York, had occasion to ship their films from one point to another, and fearing the possibility of any slip-up, they asked the express company to guarantee a time of delivery; on such being refused, the astute shippers took a receipt stating that the package would be shipped out by a certain train. The film did not arrive and the advertised show had to be called off, much to the annoyance of the manager of the theatre where the entertainment was advertised. There was a loss—a big one—and the express company at first refused to pay. They continued to disregard the claims until the eve of a snit being opened, when they agreed to settle the claim without having the case aired before a judge. There's a lesson in this incident; why not all profit?

GOTCH-HACKENSCHMIDT WRESTLING MATCH.

BINFORD FILM REJECTED

National Board of Censorship Passes Unfavorably on Picture in which Beulah Binford, Paramour of Henry Clay Beattie, is Principal Character

New York, Sept. 14 (Special to The Billboard).—A moving picture film portraying a story built around the life of Beulah Binford was rejected by the National Board of Censorship, Tuesday, September 12 on the grounds that it would attract people through some immoral connection. The film was made and is owned by Mr. L. J. Rubenstein and is called "The Wages of Sin." The story is entirely free from any sensational or immoral scenes or even suggestions, and Mr. Rubenstein intends to exhibit the film even in the instance of having taken the matter to law.

PATHE WEEKLY.

Pathe's Weekly of September 12 contains two especially notable subjects in so much as these two were photographed while the important part of the events was occurring. The Bologne Auto Races is one instance and the resumption of the long flight by Aviator Atwood at Nyack on his way to New York the other. The Manchester, N. Y., wreck and the Middletown wreck on the N. Y., N. H. & H. Railroad are examples of splendid photography and much pains in the placing of the camera or selection of scenes.

FILM SHOW FOR CITY.

Chicago, September 13 (Special to The Billboard).—If Alderman Herman J. Bauer, chairman of 70-cent gas and penny telephones, in his way, the city fathers will have a more picture show of their own in the City Hall. At the present time the city's censors are September 25, he intends to introduce a bill to establish a theatre in the City Hall, which all films can be exhibited and censored. At the present time the city's censors are obliged to visit the motion picture factories and view the films. The alderman would make it mandatory for the manufacturers to bring their films downtown and to pay a fee for inspection of their pictures.

JOINS ENGLISH THEATRICAL

New York, September 14 (Special to The Billboard).—Miss Violet Mersereau, the elegant and petite leading lady of the Nestor Stock Company, has signed an agreement to play a legitimate production in London. She will leave New York in about two weeks to take her work in England, where she will appear as Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm. Miss Mersereau will be accompanied by her sister, Miss Clara Mersereau, who has been playing in the Nestor pictures also for some time, and her mother, who always accompanies the two sisters. The legitimate engagement speaks the high quality of Miss Mersereau's work with the Nestor Company, where she has become popular in the very short time she has been playing.

New Song Slide Invention

A novel and ingenious song slide has been patented and will be manufactured by the Levi Song Slide Company of New York. The slide is so arranged that a spotlight will be thrown upon the singer or lecturer at the same time the slide is being shown. The invention is called The Spotlight Song Slide and consists of nothing more nor less than an ordinary slide with a small circle in the lower left-hand corner for the purpose of admitting light from the lamp into the theatre, and is so arranged that the light will fall to the left of the picture and in such a way that the singer's face can be lighted.

The device, if it may be called this, can be attached to any and all slides and even to films. The films can be manufactured with the aperture already made, or old films can be made over into the spotlight variety. The hole for the passage of the light is in every picture and also in every slide, so that a constant light will be thrown upon the singer or lecturer wherever an ordinary projecting machine is used for the films or a double dissolving lens is used on the stereopticon.

The position and shape of the light aperture is not unchangeable as they may be arranged to light either the head and shoulders of the singer or his entire body. The position of the screen on the stage may demand the spot in various places, which demand is easily satisfied by shifting the blank space in the slide covering.

The complaint about the absence of personality in the illustrated song singers, because of their being kept in the dark is easily overcome by this newest device and without any additional expense to the theatre manager and only a trifling additional cost to the slide manufacturer.

BY REGISTERED MAIL.

The Imp release of September 21. By Registered Mail, while being an extraordinarily good film from many standpoints, is especially notable for the difference in photography which can easily be detected between it and other films. The characters seem to stand out clearly and naturally and the background of each picture plays an important part. Excellent scenes have been chosen for the playing of the picture and when so well photographed the little play bears much interest aside from that attached to the plot.

The story is that of a little girl who returns herself to her parents by tagging, addressing and stamping herself so that she will be carried through the mails. The theme is novel and well carried out, thus being abundant in entertaining qualities.

Humor has it that Sarah Bernhardt has at last submitted to the tempting offers of a French cinematograph firm and will shortly be seen on the screen in a special adaptation of her great success, Camille. In order to obtain the fullest dramatic effect in her acting, the Divine Sarah articulated each word as if to an audience.

Melville Joins Lubin Forces

New York, Sept. 14 (Special to The Billboard).—Mr. Wilbert Melville, managing director of the Solax Company, has resigned his position with that concern to accept a flattering offer from the Lubin Company. Mr. Melville has been in full charge of the Solax plant as the personal representative of the president during the absence of that official. He has made a most enviable record for himself during the year or more he has been with the Solax organization and leaves behind him a host of friends and admirers, who wish him well in his new venture.

NESTOR MOVES OFFICES.

New York, September 15 (Special to The Billboard).—The Nestor Film Company, which has for some time been located on Fourth Avenue, New York, has moved its entire office equipment and forces to the new building which was provided for them at the studio and plant in Bayonne, N. Y. The new address of the firm will be 43d Street and Avenue E, Bayonne.

KINEMACOLOR IN INDIA.

On Saturday, September 9, the Kinemacolor Company left London with King George V en route to India, where they will photograph the crowning of the king as head of India. The coronation in India had been postponed in order to get a better season for photographic work and allow the Kinemacolor photographers to do better work, or the even would have taken place before this. The entire festivities will be filmed just as was the coronation of the king as King of England.

The Child in the Photoplay

"...but know, your sweetest strains are discords all, compared with childhood's happy laugh, the laugh that fills the eyes with light and every heart with joy; oh, rippling river of life, thou art the blessed boundary line between the beast and man...." Robert G. Ingersoll.

To bring the mountains and plains, the great out-of-doors, into the crowded, cheerless city, is miraculous. To teach the people of America the customs and habits of other nations is indeed worthy. To show the earth's industries to all who wish to learn is commendable. To record the great current events of our day for the education of posterity in ambitious. To present the epoch-making incidents of history rivals the power of Aladdin's lamp. To give moral lessons through the drama is uplifting.

Dramatic, scenic, travelogue, industrial, topical, historical, biblical and scientific films each play star parts on the moving picture stage. But no single class of production makes a universal appeal which compares with that of the child film.

The nature lover gazes in rapt attention upon scenic beauties; the scientist finds pleasure in the wriggling, squirming forms shown in an enlarged drop of water; the student becomes engrossed in the historic subject; the excitable youth will call for thrills and mystery; the religious man gives favor to the biblical productions; but none of us, from prattling youth to gray old age, but joys to look upon a pretty child in happy parts.

In most cases the Frenchman's idea of comedy differs so materially from that of an

Wrestling Film A Winner

Chicago, September 12 (Special to The Billboard).—As was exclusively announced in the columns last week, the remarkable Gotch-Hackenschmidt film, which were taken for a Gotch-Hackenschmidt Picture Company, Chicago, by the Selig Polyscope Company, were given their first public presentation at the Majestic Theatre, Chicago, about six hours after they were taken at the White Sox Ball park. This is said to establish the world record for speed in this kind of endeavor.

That the pictures represent the high mark of achievement in several other films

CHICAGO AMUSEMENT NEWS

ACTS NEW TO NEW YORK.

CHARLES DILL AND EMILY WARD, singing and dancing; Fifth Avenue; twelve minutes; in one.

The billing of Dill and Ward reads: "Introducing the girl with the diamond dress." The bill, which is the cause for the special line in program, is one that will give reason for feminine contingent in the audience to take particular note. Miss Ward wears the gown during the concluding number, which, incidentally gives the team a solid footing after a neat interesting routine of singing and dancing. Dill and Ward were originally programmed to appear in the Fifth Avenue show, but at the Tuesday night performance they were down in No. 3, where the act fitted nicely.

THE WHITE KUHNS, melody and song; Fifth Avenue; fourteen minutes; in two.

In the West, where The Three White Kuhns have been for some time, the melody and song of this near-ratskeller number has regaled thousands and thousands. In this neck of the woods, where the Kuhns have only recently made their entrance, they should soon become favorites of our Western brethren have devoted in making them. For the turn proposed by The Kuhns is entertainment, indeed, from the opening, which is, by the way, unusually strong, until the concluding song, which they jump energetically an accompaniment to their rag numbers, all of which are popular selections, the Kuhns imbue the audience with that swaying motion extracted from violent songs. One of the trio carries an immense fiddle, which, instead of playing, he bangs viciously with the bow. In a dandy spot, No. 4 at the Fifth Avenue, the Kuhns scored bigly.

BESSIE LEONARD, singing comedienne; Fifth Avenue; fourteen minutes; in one.

Bessie Leonard has her opening worked up nicely. A special drop is used, showing the places to two theatres—one a high-class vaudeville house, and the other a picture amusement structure, where also vaudeville, but of minor grade, forms part of the program. Some mistake, Bessie Leonard, who is billed the latter named theatre, comes into the "high-class" house, but from which he is ejected. She walks on the stage, followed by a band, who drags after him her trunk, at the same time muttering unkind words about getting into the wrong theatre. With the aid of the stage band, Miss Leonard indulges in a little talk, and then starts into a song, "The Comic Opera Pirate," a tuneful little number. Miss Leonard, during this selection, attired in the proverbial pirate costume. Her changes are made behind her trunk, which is placed near the entrance. Song number two, called "It's No Fun to Be Sweet Sixteen," a third and last number bears the title of "Billy Green Could See Me Now." Appropriate changes are made for each of the numbers, while the changes are being made, Miss Leonard puts up a running line of talk. Possessing a lot of magnetism and the ability to put over her songs, which have been well selected, Miss Leonard turns out to be a single act, that should be welcomed.

LE LEVIE LOYAL, equestrian comedienne; Fifth Avenue; nine minutes; full stage.

An imitation of an inebriate while riding, ending up upon a big iron gray equine, is the principal feat accomplished by Miss. Levie Loy. The trick is used for a finish. The remainder of the act runs along smoothly, but without creating any excitement.

THE COLONIAL BILL.

New York, Sept. 16 (Special to The Billboard).—Again playing his original part of the Drunken Bell in A Night in An English Music Hall, the Reeves, assisted by a company of ten, sang the exit spot on the Colonial program, "seamed up," to use an expression typifying unusual vaudeville success. As far as the act itself is concerned, it remains the same of yore.

The Kratons, three people, with a novelty in rolling, opened the show at an hour earlier than the audience, or rather a portable portion of it, deemed it necessary to present. The late-comers missed the treat of the delinquent one to contend with.

With some difficult feats in equilibrium, The Kratons gained attention. Charlie Case, who followed them, talked about his father and his relatives. In the time allotted him, Case did much about his parent, and though the audience insisted, Case refused to let them into more of his family secrets.

Only the clever delineation of a Tnd, by Thomas J. Ryan, saved Mag Hagerty's visit in a severe thump. Will M. Cressy, a visit in author, has written many better sketches. After Julius Lonzburg took several bows in response to the applause following his acrobatic play in conducting the orchestra, The Victoria Four sang five numbers. The quartet is fitting nicely with a well chosen series of songs.

George Lench, Kingsley Benedict, William Ryan and Thomas Delmar played Joseph Hart's part in Among Thieves, a comedy written by Frank Craven and Scott Welsh. The part—that a grim, common burglar—with the greatest of virtues, is played by William Ryan, who has the best of the chance offered him.

Charles Vance sang four numbers, finishing with the Oceana Roll. Billie Reeves, as we said before, closed the show. What results obtained has also been related.

ON INTERSTATE TIME.

New York, Sept. 12 (Special to The Billboard).—Clayton Wilbur, the singing comedienne, opened at week at the Grand Theatre, Knoxville, Tenn., for a tour of the Interstate Circuit, Miss Wilbur is booked far into the season.

BRANEN'S NEW VENTURE.

New York, Sept. 16 (Special to The Billboard).—Jeff T. Brauen, the well-known song writer, has formed a partnership with Joe M. Hollander, and the two will combine their talent in constructing songs, plays, sketches and monologues. Offices have been established in the Gaiety Theatre Building.

SARNTHALER TROUPE ARRIVES.

New York, Sept. 16 (Special to The Billboard).—The Sarnthaler Troupe of six serenaders and Swiss dancers arrived in New York Wednesday on the S. S. Blucher. The act opens tomorrow at the Empress Theatre in Cincinnati for a twenty-five weeks' tour of the Sullivan & Considine Circuit. The Cincinnati opening marks the first appearance of the act in this country.

OPEN ON S-C. TIME.

New York, Sept. 16 (Special to The Billboard).—Fred W. Hixon and Company, Bartholdi's Cockatoos, Dean and Price, Gruet and Gruet and the Sarnthaler Troupe have been booked for a twenty-five weeks' tour of the Sullivan & Considine Circuit, opening Monday at the Empress Theatre in Cincinnati.

S. & C. BOOK TINKER.

New York, Sept. 16 (Special to The Billboard).—Onthidding all others, Sullivan & Considine have affixed the name of Joe Tinker, the short-stop of the Chicago Cubs, to a contract which binds him to appear in vaudeville for a short tour of the Sullivan & Considine houses. Tinker's season will begin immediately upon the expiration of the baseball term.

HEIMS TAKES OVER CATALOGUE.

New York, Sept. 16 (Special to The Billboard).—Newton B. Heims of Hartford, Conn., has taken over the catalog of the Felbhelmer-Kennedy Co. of Philadelphia. Mr. Heims is located in the Regal Building, 1387 Broadway, here, occupying the offices formerly used by Felbhelmer-Kennedy. Billy Moran, who has managed the office since its opening, has been retained by Mr. Heims.

LUNA PARK NOTES.

It is rumored that Fred McClellan, the former popular manager of Luna Park, and owner of The Sinking of the Maine, will be located in the park business at Atlantic City next season. All of this year's attaches of Luna wish him success in his new field.

Zoe, the lady who is featuring in Luna as the famous Parisian novelty, closed on Labor Day, and will play the Toronto State Fair week of September 25, with other big fairs to follow.

Herbert A. Bradwell, well-known builder of park concessions, passed to rest on Sunday morning, September 3. Ed T. Byrne, a personal friend of his, furnishes the following information: Mr. Herbert A. Bradwell, who built the Johnstown Flood, the Deluge and the Messina Earthquake and made a fortune out of these operations, died last Sunday morning, September 3, in the Kings County Hospital, of a "broken heart." Three years ago Mr. Bradwell took the Johnstown Flood to London, where he lost a great deal of money. After the same was open to the public and making money, it was destroyed by fire which made him penniless. Two months ago Bradwell came back to Coney Island looking toward the future, but every turn went wrong. Saturday, September 2, he was taken to the hospital and in a little more than ten hours he was dead. He was thirty-eight years of age. His father, Thomas A. Bradwell, was property-master at the Metropolitan Opera House for many years. He leaves a widow and one son 13 years old, also a sister Ella, who was a cabler for Anderson Reid in Luna Park prior to his death.

Miss Sadie Hubbard, who has spent previous winters in Panama, will go back again this season, residing at Colon, Panama. Miss Hubbard is at present cashier in Luna at the Motordrome.

One of the greatest events of the season is Musical Night, September 17, which will be held by the song publishers of all music houses. A warm contest is expected.

Jack Wilson, who made openings on the Motordrome all season, left on September 6 to join Wilson's Six Russian Dancers, which opened at the Wilkes-Barre (Pa.) Fair, as manager of the front.

Ed T. Byrne, announcer in front of the Virginia Red, and his wife, Helen C. Byrne, plan to be in the Sinking of the Maine, will spend two weeks at Lake George, N. Y., and the Adirondacks at the close of the season, afterwards opening the winter season with the National Land & Irrigation Co., which opens at Pittsburgh, Pa., the week of October 12 to 28, thence to New York at Madison Square Garden the week of November 6.

PLANS FOR NEW THEATRE FILED.

New York, September 14 (Special to The Billboard).—Plans were filed Wednesday, September 13, with Building Superintendent Mills for the construction of the building which is to supplant the old Atlantic Garden on the Bowery. W. H. McElrick, the architect, estimated the cost of the new structure at $825,000.

The new theatre will be called the Atlantic and will be located on the west side of the Bowery, 50 feet south of Canal Street, and will have a frontage of 100 feet. The seating capacity will be 734 in the orchestra, 445 in the balcony, 403 in the gallery and 96 in the

RIVERVIEW EXPOSITION CLOSURES.

Chicago, Sept. 12 (Special to The Billboard).—Riverview Exposition closed its seventh season Sept. 10 with the largest attendance in the history of this big and important amusement enterprise. The management says that the total attendance turned in is approximately 9,000,000 against 7,000,000 last season. It has been a hugely profitable year. The receipts for everything have been at the "top notch." Most of the money was made on Sunday and Monday nights under the management of "Jack" Prince. Twenty race meets have been held and the crowds have averaged 17,000 at each. World's records have been smashed night after night, and Chicago, in the meantime, has taken the motorcycle races up as a "speed bug" fad.

N. P. Valerina, vice-president and treasurer of Riverview, said tonight: "We are highly satisfied with the year and have already made plans for some big sensational stunts next season. Anybody that's got anything that's really big ought to get in touch with us immediately, as the choice spots are already spoken for." Riverview is being given credit for the handsomest paper that the "billposters" ever handled in America. One 32-sheet stand of the Derby, a 32-sheet of the Motordrome and a 24-sheet of the motorcycle races are works of art, and show a distinct advancement in the line of show-printing.

Charles R. Macdon, Riverview's director of publicity, who was injured late in July, in an automobile accident, recuperated sufficiently to be on the job during the closing week and receive the congratulations of his friends.

The motorcycle races will continue Saturday and Sunday afternoons until October.

FRIEDA HALL MAKES A HAUL.

Chicago, September 13 (Special to The Billboard).—A new record in dramatic literary achievement has been made by Miss Frieda Hall, a Chicago writer, by having three plays accepted at once for immediate production. Miss Hall recently submitted to Manager A. H. Woods in New York the newest of her musical comedies, Polly Put the Kettle On and The Picture Girl. Both were accepted immediately after having their reading. She also disposed of a one-act serious play, called Telepathy, and before she left the Eastern metropolis she arranged for the early production of another musical comedy calculated as a vehicle for Florence Blinley, the vivacious comedienne. The Picture Girl is designed for Lee Kohnman, who will be seen in it at the head of his own company this season.

Miss Hall not only wrote all the dialogue, fabricated the situations and composed the lyrics, but she wrote all of the musical numbers of her pieces as well. She has been writing for the stage (or as she whimsically expresses it, "not for the stage, but for the public") for a number of seasons. Her first efforts in this direction were tabloid dramas and musical skits for use in vaudeville. Later she scored a big success in The Voyagers, which was produced at the La Salle Theatre. In writing this musical comedy she worked without a collaborator, and was librettist, lyricist and composer, thus justly earning the title of "first sole woman composer" of a musical comedy. She has since been a most prolific writer, having more than 300 musical compositions to her credit.

TRY-OUTS AT THE HUMBOLDT.

Chicago, Ill., September 16 (Special to The Billboard).—The Humboldt Theatre, located at Milwaukee Avenue and Ohio Street, is the only theatre in Chicago playing dumb acts exclusively. Two acts are put on the first three days and two acts the last four. In conjunction with the acts four reels of pictures are run. The house is one of the largest family theatres in Chicago. Mr. J. Mendelsohn, who made the house one of the most profitable on the North Side and is to be congratulated on the huge success of his novel idea in running only dumb acts. The audience for the most part is made up of foreigners, Italians predominating. The regular bill for the last half includes Frank E. Hall in a novelty musical act which goes very high and Murphy's Monkeys and Rats, which also made a big hit. In the tryouts were: Miss Barker, in songs. Her voice was hardly audible in the arena row, so it appeared that vaudeville loses one more aspirant to the laurels of the fickle public. The Sioux City Four, a straight quartet, submitted a harmony singing act. The boys all have fair voices, but the act needs something out before it will be presentable. Alonzo Moore, a colored magician, presents twenty minutes of "black art." Some of Moore's feats are good but very few original. If Betsy Ross had never done her little sewing stunt on the national colors, it is certain that Alonzo would still be searching for an "applause-getter." Miss Thompson, a balladist, sang a couple of songs and went fair.

ROWLAND & CLIFFORD IN NEW FIELD.

Chicago, Sept. 16 (Special to The Billboard).—Owing to the tremendous success of Dave Lewis in Don't Lie to Your Wife, Rowland & Clifford announces that next season attention will be given by this firm to musical plays. It will be the first elaborate attempt that Rowland & Clifford have made in the musical play field. Announcement will shortly be made relative to the plays that will be produced.

FEATURE ACTS FOR THIS WEEK.

President Theatre—Lewis Irving & Co. in a dramatic playlet, The Struggle.
Apollo Theatre—Walter Law & Co. in a dramatic sketch, At the Threshold.
Ellis Theatre—Andy Rice, the Broadway favorite; Ethel Alton & Co. in a sketch.
Century Theatre—Dale Freese Co., Alphonse Zelazka, the Paderewski of South America.
Plaza Theatre—Roland Travers, magician; Apollo Trio.
Academy Theatre—O'Brien & Sherry in The Battle of Too Soon, Teddy Osborne's Pets.
Wilson Avenue Theatre—Frehal Bros., The Rathskeller Trio.
Willard Theatre—Billy Van, the minstrel man; Mme. Tendebo, the iron-jaw contortionist.
Linden Theatre—Gilroy, Haines & Montgomery, Julian & Dyer.
Parkway Theatre—Gennaro and his Band.
Zeh Zarow & Co., comedy cyclists.
Majestic—Ruth St. Denis, Ethel Green.

CANCELS CONTRACT.

Marvin & Roche, proprietors and managers of the Alhambra Theatre, Chicago, have cancelled their booking contract with Stair & Havlin, owing to the scarcity of good attractions that the latter firm control upon the road. During the first three weeks at the Alhambra, Marvin & Roche produced their own plays with their own companies, and capacity attendance was the rule, but as soon as the road attractions began their season the business began to drop.

Colonel William Roche, president and general manager of the firm of Marvin & Roche, in referring to the change said:

"We have discovered that it is absolutely suicide for us to continue playing melodramas of low class, and that Shakespeare was right when he said 'The play is the thing.' When we offered Forty-Five Minutes from Broadway at the Alhambra we had a week of phenomenal business, and the two weeks following, when we presented our own companies, we did well, but our business of late has fallen off sixty per cent, owing to the booking of mediocre attractions. For this reason we have decided to discontinue our own shows. In October 1 we will inaugurate the new policy by producing for the first time outside the Loop a Stubbom Cinderella. This will be followed by The Chorus Lady, The Golden Girl, The Squaw Man, The Bine Mouse, The Time, Place and Girl, The Broken Idol and The Girl Question. Ralph T. Kettering, our general representative, has arranged with Mort H. Singer to secure all the Singer attractions as soon as they are available, to be used exclusively by us. He has also secured all the original settings, costumes and effects of the Singer musical shows, so that when they are offered over our time they will be seen exactly as they were at the Princess and La Salle Theatres. We have engaged Charles Damerel as our musical comedy producer, while William Jossey will look after our dramatic direction. Madlyn Journe will be starred in A Stubbom Cinderella and it is our intention to secure several well-known stars for the other plays. We are going to be our own booking agency and supply our own attractions."

VAUDEVILLE CHATTER.

Leopold Pan of the Hodkins Lyric Circuit, is back at his desk in the Chicago Opera House, after two weeks at Joplin, Mo., and at other cities in the Southwest. He reports everything going nicely on that circuit, and says that the class of attractions being sent South this year measures up to the highest standard established by Chase E. Hodkins.

The Three Rosinis, a new act around Chicago, which had its first showing at Forest Park through the kindness of J. C. Matthews, played the Linden Theatre the last half of last week and stopped the show on Thursday night. The act was placed to open the show in order that it should not be too close to the Tivoli Quartet. The fact that these two acts are on the bill made the number of men more than it should have been on a five-act bill. This particular show lacked women, as the Salvaggi Sisters were taken ill at the last minute and were replaced by Johnson's Dogs.

Percy Hammond and Dick Little have each hopes that Managing Editor Keely of the Tribune will assign the reviewing of the Majestic bill to the other writer. Percy Hammond can't see "see" vaudeville, and Dick Little doesn't like the assignment because he has to be there to write it.

Frank Winninger, oldest daughter of the Winninger Brothers, will make his debut in vaudeville shortly, and Kerry Mesger has promised to arrange a tour of Western Vaudeville Time for him. Mr. Winninger broke in his act with his own company and was well received.

A. H. McKechnie, late representative of the Player, has established The International Press Service, and will not confine his efforts exclusively to American newspapers.

There is a movement on foot to organize a club of dramatic writers who follow vaudeville. Harry Rose is the most active in advancing the plan. Writers who have signified their willingness to join are Richard Little of the Tribune, John O'Connor, Harry Bonnell and Lester McDonald of Variety, C. P. McDonald and Harry Rose of The Player, E. E. Meredith of The Missouri Breeze, E. O. Blackburn of The Billboard, A. D. Meany

Adventures of Pete Conklin

By HIMSELF.

CIRCUS IN WAR TIMES.

I showed in Vicksburg right after the surrender in 1863 with S. B. Howes' Show. Our trip was very exciting. We ran by all the Confederate batteries, forts and Island No. 10 and arrived in Vicksburg, all O. K.

On the steamer "Emma Graham" we are not allowed to go ashore without passes, so remained aboard until Mr. Howes arranged with the provost marshal for passes and a permit to show.
We all grew tired of waiting. I said to Jim Robinson, "I am going up in the town." He said, "You haven't a pass." I replied, "I did not require one." He said, "You had better not try it without a pass." The moment you put your foot on the gang plank you will be arrested and placed in the guard house." I replied, "I will chance that."

There was a negro soldier on guard. I knew I could give him the rush. He shouted, "Who goes there." I replied, "Who goes there." He said, "Gib me the countersign." I repeated, "Gib me the countersign." In a very loud voice. He said, "Say Fort Sumter or you can't go by." I did as requested for the negro was rattled by this time, and I went up in the city. The city was a sight, almost destroyed by the shot and shells of the Union Army. The people were compelled to live in "dag-outs." There was a hot time in the old town. I walked up Main Street to the Washington Hotel; it was in a very dilapidated condition. The bar was still there, crowded with Federal and Confederate officers. Conversation was friendly and all having a very good time.
Whiskey was selling at one dollar a drink. It was being consumed as rapidly as if but ten cents a drink. The saloon was owned by a friend of mine named Dixie, who was glad to see me.

We had a sociable drink of Pike's Magnolia, the name of the whiskey. While we were talking, Mr. Howes entered and was surprised to see me. He looked very dejected and said,
"How did you get here without a pass." I said in a joking way, "I do not need a pass as the commanding general is an old friend of mine, Maj. Gen. Morgan L. Smith." "I am glad to hear that Conklin," said Mr. Howes;
"you may be able to do some good for us, as the provost marshal will not give us a permit to show here. If you know the general, perhaps you can fix things up for us."

The general outranked a provost marshal, so I thought I could fix it. We hired a rig and drove out to Gen. Grant's headquarters, three miles distant. Gen. Morgan L. Smith made his headquarters here also. When we reached the house, we were halted immediately. It did not take me long to explain things to the officer of the day. After reading my card in to the general, in a few moments he appeared at the door.

"Well, well, Pete Conklin—How are you?"
was his astonished greeting, on seeing me.

"I am well," I replied.

"I am feeling fine after the great victory," said the general, "but whatever brought you here?" I replied, "I am here with a circus, and as you have had the odor of gun powder until you are tired, perhaps you would like to change it to the odor of saw-dust? We brought a circus to cheer you up after the great victory."

"Good," he said, inviting us in. I then introduced Mr. Howes, and told him about the provost marshal and not to mind him but go out and see my friend the general, as he out-ranks the provost marshal. I feel sure he will give us the desired permit to show.

"I will fix it all right," said the general.
"We want a circus. It is a good thing to cheer our boys up. I know Gen. Grant will be pleased, so go ahead with the show and if you haven't men enough to put up the tents, I will send a regiment of negroes to help you."

"Gen. Grant has gone down the river to spend the day with Admiral Porter on his flagship.
Here is your permit to show; go right ahead and get everything ready."

"Where are you going to pitch your tent?"
"I don't know just now; I'll look around for some level spot."

He said, "The only level spot is the old mansion near the Washington Hotel. I think you will find room enough for the tent. If the trees are in the way cut them down. We must have a circus. I will give you a note to the old rebel who lives in the mansion and he will not refuse."

I thanked him and said we would have everything ready to show tomorrow night. If Gen. Grant will be here tonight, I will have the hand acreade him. "What do you say to that?" "It is a good idea and to please the general, I want you to sing the song you composed in St. Louis, entitled 'I'm Going to Fight mit Siegel.'"

"What time shall we get here?"
"About 9 p. m."

I thanked the general for his kindness. On my way back I called at the mansion with the letter to the old gentleman. After reading it he said, "I can't refuse, because the Yank-s have got us."

We promised not to destroy his property or trees. "You talk like gentlemen," he said, and invited us in to enjoy some very fine peach brandy he had that the Yankees knew nothing about. We sampled it and found it all O. K. We found the old gentleman a good hearted man. He said he lost everything but his honor and nearly lost that.

Charles McClain and self laid out the lot.
I left all to Charley to get the tent up. I called on the provost marshal and showed him the permit. He was completely outwitted, but said —"Go ahead, I have been in the regular army for sixteen years and never heard of such a thing as a circus showing during such excitement." This was a saying about being in the army sixteen years which he used at every opportunity, until it became a by-word with the soldiers. I thought it would be a good thing to use as a joke on the provost marshal. I did, and it made a hit. According to promise I took out the band and concert people and gave the general a serenade. Everything was quiet and the band was walking up and down. We had one of the finest hands in the country—all solo players.
Wallace Reeves was the bandmaster. After the band finished the first piece, the general came to the door. The general wanted to know the meaning of the music.

I said, "General, I brought our boys to serenade Gen. Grant." "Good!" said Gen. Smith;
"come in boys, the best we have is a Little Blue Top Whiskey." We were all introduced to Gen. Grant and after refreshments, the concert began. I sang 'I'm Going to Fight mit Siegel', which made a hit with the general. They all sang their song, and after each song they took a little more Blue Top. The boys began to feel pretty good, especially the band. We had a fine quartette; they sang 'Come Where My Love Lies, Dreaming'. Charley Devere sang 'Let Me
Like a Soldier Fall, and at the end of the last verse, as he finished, his foot slipped and he fell. They all thought it was part of the song and it made a big hit. But Blue Top was the cause of the fall and hit. The band played a fine selection, 'The Echo', which closed the concert. After saying good-night to the general we walked home feeling very happy.

I said, "Now boys, we will give Robinson a little serenade before we retire. So we went very quietly into the hall and reached Robison's room. As I thought, 'We soon found out our mistake. I said, 'Boys, are you ready?
'et her go!' "What will we play?" I said, "Play the 'Faust March', which they did. The noise was enough to raise the roof. Every one was awake. We were playing at the door of a room occupied by an old lady. She screamed and as sure that the Confederates had recaptured Vicksburg.

The tent was up and everything in readiness for the night show, with provate boxes for the general and provost marshal. Everything went without a hitch. The band playing 'Hail to the Chief' when Gen. Grant arrived. It was a fine sight and his crowds, all soldiers, not a female in the audience. Gen. Grant and Morgan went to the dressing-room to look at the horses and were much pleased with the show.

He had his son with him, and we made the boy a present of a little pony. I run a joke on the provost marshal which sent them all out in good humor. The show finished with trick mule—after introducing him, I said—"This mule has been in the army sixteen years and is still a mule, and will always be ooe." The crowd saw the point, and such a roar that went up was never heard under a circus tent. The provost marshal saw the point, too, and when all eyes were on him, he sneezed. At every performance 'The Knight of the Cap and Belt' (the hero of this story) went the audiences home in good humor. The boys went back to the camp singing 'I'm Going to Fight mit Siegel'. This song I composed in the early part of the Civil War. I was playing at Deagle's Theatre, St. Louis. Gen. Siegel was very popular with all the Germans. I sang it with great success and it was the hit of the country and soldiers.

The Busby Theatre, McAlester, Okla., which has for the past two seasons been under the management of H. A. Spellberger, has been taken over by the proprietors and will be managed the coming season by Messrs. Ralph and Roy Busby as manager and assistant manager, respectively.

ADVERTISING TALKS

Prompted by an earnest desire to see each particular advertiser secure the best possible results, we again call attention to the advantage of getting advertising copy in our hands as early as possible each week. It would be well to bear in mind that the first form close on Thursdays and the last ones the following Monday a noon. Advertisements reaching the publication office Monday can not be given a preferable location.
Every week copy for advertisements reaches this office after the paper has gone to press.

In order to assist advertisers in getting best results we are constantly referring to them inquiries received for goods of various kinds. So well is it known that this policy is pursued, that those seeking certain films, machines, novelties, or goods of any sort take it for granted that we know where they can be purchased and write direct to The Billboard.
Hundreds of letters of inquiry are received every month and they are promptly forwarded to our advertisers. This is no more than right, but we doubt if any other publication devotes such careful and prompt attention to this very important matter. We are glad to receive inquiries and it is a pleasure for us to refer them to our advertisers.

Many regard the advertising columns of The Billboard as a general supply directory of anything needed in the amusement world.
If you fail to find it advertised in The Billboard, it is not for sale.

Advertisers are sometimes surprised to receive orders for goods long after the advertisement appeared. This is due to the fact that many persons make it a point to keep The Billboard on file, so they can refer to the advertisements to secure anything they may desire from time to time. This is particularly true of special issues and advertisers will find that they will receive results from ads in the Theatrical Number, issued last week, many weeks hence. Valuable lists of attractions, dates of fairs, carnivals, conventions, etc., published in The Billboard, also have a tendency to cause readers to preserve copies of the paper for future reference. Advertisers naturally receive greater value from a paper that is carefully preserved than from one which is read, cast aside and forgotten.

DEATHS.

SPAIN.—Mrs. Lottie Spaine, known professionally as Lottie Lawrence of the Lawrence Sisters, died at Marietta, O., August 20, of a lingering illness of eleven months. She was at Rose Hill Cemetery, Chicago, Ill., Spaine was survived by her husband, seven-old son, mother and sister, Addie Lawrence Steers.

BLAIR.—Frank Blair, well-known actor and producer, died August 27, in Los Angeles, after a long illness. Mr. Blair was a son of San Francisco, and was 53 years of age.
He formerly played with Emily Melville, his son, Augustus Daly, Fannie Rice and Nellie Heury.

LANDIN.—Edward G. Landin died August after a short illness at his home in St. Paul, Minn. Mr. Landin was a well-known vaudeville actor, having appeared in vaudeville for years, and also with the Lattimore-Leigh S.
Company, Harry P. Brown Stock Company.
He had recently closed an engagement with Man on the Box. Mr. Landin is survived by his wife, a bride of a year, father, mother, sisters and a brother.

DOHM.—Arthur Dohm, for four years the urer of the Chatterbox Opera House, Bloomington, Ill., died September 9, of valvular trouble. He was a genial good fellow, well liked by the patrons of the house.

Ten young women, winners in a popular contest conducted by the Nashua Telegraph reached New York last week in automobile conducted by Mr. B. E. Warren, publisher of the paper. They occupied two boxes at the train of Philadelphia. At Beverly, they left for Hartford, and again met the President Hartford. Their objective point is Nashua, and their return to Nashua will through the Berkshire Hills. Altogether, will motor one thousand miles. So far have had only two blow-outs.

When ordering professional copies, say you saw it in The Billboard.

Resume of the Week's Important Amuse

BALTIMORE, MD.

Stephen Shipley, a well-known Baltimore boy, holds the amateur skating championship of the world. He will sail for England about October 1, and will defend his title there later in the month.

The parks and resorts down at Westport had the best time in their history on Labor Day. The resorts are on the upper branch of the Patuxent River and this stretch of water is the Henley of Baltimore. The club-houses of the local rowing clubs are on the opposite shores. The Middle States Regatta was the event of the day and 55 clubs from all the Eastern States and Canada were represented. More than 50,000 spectators witnessed the races from both sides of the river. The Ariels and Arundels, both local clubs, won two out of the first three events. The enthusiasm was lutease and it was a glorious day for sport.

With more than half of the guarantee fund in hand before the specified time, Bernhard Ulrich is much gratified with the way Baltimoreans respond to the call for grand opera. The result is all the more encouraging because of the fact that many of the music lovers are either abroad or summering at the Northern resorts. The time limit expires October 7 and the first opera will be presented on November 7. There will be 10 operas this season.

Miss Eleanor Hopkins Davidson, otherwise known to the profession as Nell Paudleton, a well-known Baltimore girl, announced her marriage September 8, to Louis M. Ream, a young Chicago millionaire. She resided in this city with her mother, brother and three sisters in the fashionable section of East North Avenue. She began her theatrical duties as a chorus girl with The Shepherd King. She was a picturesque blonde with a charming manner and exceedingly graceful. Possessing these natural advantages, her success behind the footlights progressed rapidly. Her next engagement was with The Fair Co-ed. Then followed engagements in The Belle of Mayfair, The Arcadians and The Slim Princess. Her last appearance in this city was with Adeline Genes. In The Bachelor Belles. In the summer of 1910, she was playing at a Broadway theatre and she met Mr. Ream, who happened to be in town on business.

Mr. Ream's father has been at his summer home at Thompson, Conn., and has been informed of the marriage, but as yet the expected parental acquiescence is still forthcoming and there are no indications of fatherly forgiveness.

September 12 is Defenders' Day, although it is only a local holiday, yet it commemorates one of the most important events in American history. It was on this day 97 years ago that Francis Scott Key saw the "Dawg's early light" and composed his famous national anthem—The Star Spangled Banner. Those who had time to celebrate found much pleasure everywhere. The weather being warm afforded some advantage for the parks. It was German Day at River View and there was a great gathering of the former subjects of the Fatherland with their families and many who had never seen the land of the Kaiser. The day marked the closing of Bay Shore Park. This great pleasure resort has had a remarkable season. It is an ideal spot for an outing on a warm day and there were thousands of pleasure-seekers at the park each day. September 17 will end the season of 1911 at River View. Most all the parks will be closed after this date, as all the theatres in town are open and now claiming the attention of the public. The Academy of Music will open September 30, with The Pink Lady, and then the season will be on in full blast. All the regular theatres will be open and the indications for a prosperous season are very bright if the people are given the right kind of attractions. The playgoers here are very discriminating and will not patronize bad shows. If a show does not make a good impression on Monday night, the balance of the week means poor attendance.

The Auditorium Theatre was closed during the week September 11 as the show which the Shuberts had intended to produce did not meet with the approval of the managers. As the details of the show were not perfect, according to the views of the Shuberts, they preferred to keep the house dark rather than give a performance that was not complete in every essential point.

Marshall Faruan has issued a special warning to all managers of picture theatres that they are not to exhibit any films showing any poses of Benah Blinford—"The woman in the case" in the Beattie trial in Richmond, Va. As to whether she will be permitted to appear in person on the stage of a vaudeville theatre is being considered by the Board of Police Commissioners. The prospects are that she will not be permitted to appear.

There was another romance at Hollywood Park during the past week. This time it was among the performers in the musical comedy company, Miss Helen Buckwalter was married to Louis J. Petel at the residence of Rev. Dr. David T. Neely. The couple are residents of the City of Brotherly Love and have been in the profession for some years. They met years ago while playing together in the same burlesque company, which often appeared at the Monumental Theatre.

The lot on which the new Empire Theatre stands was transferred to the theatre company last week. A deed was filed by Charles H. Knapp. The lot faces 89 feet on Fayette Street and extends back 155 feet. Rapid progress is being made on the building and an effort is being made to have it opened by November 1.

Paul Philippoteaux's famous painting of the Battle of Gettysburg is now on exhibition at the Fourth Regiment Armory on West Fayette Street. The canvas is 350 feet long and 25 feet high. The painting can be seen every day.

CINCINNATI, O.

The local amusement park season is over. The final day at Chester was September 17. A good crowd was out and heartily applauded the local amateurs that held forth at the Opera House. September 17 was McNamara Protest Day. The labor unions of Cincinnati and vicinity combined and held a big outing to protest against the kidnapping of the McNamara brothers and to raise funds for their defense. The entire gate receipts were turned over to the unions and sent on to the National Headquarters to add to the McNamara defense fund. A special entertainment in the opera house in the afternoon was one of the features.

The Lyric Theatre opened September 10 with Lew Dockader's Minstrels, and played to fair business during the week. Neil O'Brien seemed to be the favorite with the audiences, being greeted with applause at every performance. One of the minstrels, Roy La Pearl, is killed as "The man with the big voice" and he certainly lived up to it by slugging from the roof of a department store in Fountain Square. The square was crowded with people, and despite the rumbling of traffic, La Pearl could be heard distinctly. He was loudly applauded.

Norworth and Bayes, in Little Miss Fix-It, in its second week at the Grand, duplicated the big business of the first week.

Keith's Columbia had Ruth St. Denis, in The Dance of the Five Senses, as the headliner. Miss St. Denis carried a company of 25 people, including a band of Hindoos. To say that Miss St. Denis created a furore is putting it mildly. The balance of the bill was very good, Sherman, Kraatz and Hyman, singers, being especially well received.

The Travelling Salesman tarried at the Walnut Theatre for the week, and the clean comedy, chestra. Sig. Tirindelli greatly appreciated the invitation, but was induced to remain at the Cincinnati Conservatory, and has answered the Seattle Board to that effect.

Jack Campbell, electrician of The Merry Maidens Company that showed at People's week of September 10 and Gertrude Turner, a number of the chorus of the same company, were married in Covington, Ky., September 11. There was a wedding party after the show at Hoerner's Hotel. Campbell is 29, and lives in Dayton, O. His bride is 24, and a resident of Brooklyn, N. Y.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.

The Arah, Kiss Waltz and Alma were the three holdovers at the big playhouses. Although the trio are excellent productions and received the unanimous praise of all dramatic critics, the haul was poor, owing to the fact that only a few of the advance army of vaudevilleists are arriving in town.

One of the best and most pleasing productions of the week, September 11, was Billy Van and the Beaumont Sisters, in the Lucky Hoodoo, presented by W. Dayton Heggarth, at the Grand Opera House.

In the vaudeville field the Wm. Penn Theatre was an easy winner and this house is establishing an unprecedented record in good bills. Miss New York Jr., at the Empire (Western Wheel) was one of the best and most appreciated burlesque attraction of the four houses during the week of September 11. The show is an excellent example of clean, refined, up-to-the-minute burlesque, without a dull moment.

The American opens September 18, with appropriate ceremonies, during which a bottle of wine will be cracked on the stage to inaugurate the Blaney-Spooner Stock Company there. Gus Fay, principal comedian with the Big Gayety Company (Eastern Wheel) received serious injuries at the close of the performance September 9. Fay, in leaping from the stage to the aisle, a feature of his work, crashed into one of the iron chairs. Almost all of his ribs were crushed and splintered. The show was so weakened by his loss that it has found difficulty in getting by until he can rejoin.

STANLEY RUSHTON.

ST. LOUIS, MO.

With the opening of four of St. Louis' most prominent playhouses this week, we have, for the first time in our theatrical history, to have the season open with a premiere production. This was the case at the Olympic Theatre, September 10, when James K. Hackett put on his The Grain of Dust for the first production. The play is very strong and Mr. Hackett has established a new character that will serve him during the coming long season.

The business at all the openings was good, but the weather is yet too warm for any big houses, and while baseball and circuses still find it warm enough to remain in this territory we will give our audiences and outdoor resorts what is still due them on their season.

Arthur Bideood, who plays the part of one of the kids in the cast of Mother, now playing at the Garrick Theatre here, was overcome by the heat on Tuesday night, and compelled to abandon his part in the cast. He had visited the Sells Circus in the afternoon and it is thought the excitement completely upset him, and the humidity of the evening caused him to suffer prostration. Dr. Kenney of this city, attended him, and it is thought that he will be able to resume his part in the cast in a few days. In the meantime his brother will assume his part, cutting out the scenes where they will be on the stage together.

The Engles of Alton, Ill., have been informed by their Grand Council that they can not use the name of the order, especially their aerial number, in advertising a street fair.

The Princess Theatre made a big hit last week with The Princess Minstrels, as nothing girls. Capacity business was successful by the S. R. O. again. Manager Daa. S. Fishell is having a hard time in squeezing in enough performances to take care of the business offered him.

Baldy Strang and his troupe of Scotch Laddies are making a big hit over the Aldom Circuit of the Eastern Theatrical Exchanges. Their act is a complete novelty on any bill.

Manager Leo Reichenbach of the Standard Theatre, is to have the Glat Wrestler Frank Getch, to appear with the Imperial Burlesques at his theatre next week. This is sure to mean a big week at the Standard, and Leo lost no time in getting this feature as soon as the match was over.

The Annual Carnival of Lamps Park opened on September 9, and is doing the usual profitable business. The large amount of concessions that are on the grounds and the several contests in attendance prizes are making this the biggest of Lamps history. The free attraction this year is Lionheart, with his daring slide for life, and sensational wire walking. This act is proving a strong drawing card.

Louis Judah, newly appointed manager of the Garrick Theatre here, resigned September 12 to go into the mercantile business. Mr. Judah arrived Sunday from Los Angeles, Cal. He expected to leave this city at the end of the week. He goes to Winchester, Ky., where he will become partner with his father-in-law in an established mercantile business. Mr. Judah has been very successful with the Shuberts, having managed theatres for them in Cincinnati and Los Angeles.

It is said about town that Fent Farnum will install a stock company in the Imperial Theatre here, and will open its season about October 1.

Billing is going up in this city announcing the appearance of Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show, which will exhibit at Haddon's Park, for one week, commencing October 1.

The monster Hippodrome of Frank Talbot's is nearing completion and it is expected that it will open about October 15.

Mr. Harvey of the Hazenbeck-Wallace Shows, and Mr. MarLean of Palm's Fireworks Shows, were both visitors to the Sells-Floto Show while in this city.

AVENUE THEATRE, VANCOUVER, B. C.

Erected in 1910 by the Western Canada Amusement Co., Ltd., and opened April 10, 1911. This house has the distinction of being Vancouver's prettiest theatre. George B. Purvis is local manager.

from 2 to 5 p. m. for one month. The painting was placed on exhibition through the efforts of Col. J. Frank Supplee.

Miss Lillian Seville, or, as she is better known to her folks at home as Lillian Samuels, has reached a high pinnacle in her career. She is a young Baltimore girl who has achieved a great success on the stage. As Pepita, in Madame Sherry, she appeared in this role in Norfolk, Va., September 4. The manner in which she enacted the part was very gratifying to her friends in Baltimore and Norfolk. She was the recipient of many floral perquisites after the performance and many warm congratulations. The critics were extravagant in their praise of her stellar success and Manager was elated over the fact that her performance more than realized his expectations.

George W. Rife denied the rumor that the Shuberts were negotiating for the New Empire Theatre. He said that the New York firm had made no advances to him and under no circumstances would the theatre be used by any firm other than the Empire Circuit. What disposition will be made of the Monumental Theatre will be announced later.

Charles W. Greobie, proprietor of the Lexington Hotel, which adjoins the Holiday Street Theatre, was granted permission by the Board of Estimates to rope off the block fronting the hotel, known as the City Hall Plaza, which is opposite the City Hall. The street pavement affords a space of about 3,000 square feet. On the night of September 12, Mr. Greobie had a barn dance for the public. The block was festooned with long strings of colored incandescent lights and the music was furnished by the Fifth Regiment Band.

George W. Barbier, the versatile press agent for the Columbia Players now at the Alhambra Theatre, came over from Washington in an automobile. While on his way over, Mr. Barbier was held up by a constable who had his eagle eye set for speeders. He was obliged to leave $50 as collateral with the authorities in Montgomery County. Now that he is in Baltimore, he will endeavor to see Governor Crothers, so as to have his money refunded, not that he needs it, but as a matter of principle.

bright dialogue and little heart thrills were enjoyed by fairly good audiences.

Heack's Theatre offered the old-time thriller, The Denver Express. The cast was a very capable one.

A condensed version of Lew Fields' The Girl Behind the Counter, in which Nat Fields and a company of 10, mostly girls, do some lively work, was the feature at the Empress Theatre. Harry Thompson, monologist, scored, and Anna Buckley's performing dogs, Guy Rawson and Frances Clare, and Newel and Nihil were the balance of a bill of extraordinary merit.

The John Lawrence Players, at the Lyreum Theatre, offered for their third week, A Western Girl. The play is very much melodramatic, and was well handled by the Lawrence players. The Auditorium presented a well-balanced vaudeville bill, with Miss May Oliver, a very clever singer, as the feature.

Two good burlesque shows drew well at the Standard and People's. The Merry Widow was the offering at the Standard, and was pronounced by some critics to be the best show seen at this house in several years. People's had The Merry Maidens, with some good comedy and one of the best choruses seen here for some time.

Business for the week at the various houses was very good, considering the extremely warm weather.

Col. James E. Fennessy attended the funeral of Edward Butler, veteran theatrical man, who died in St. Louis, September 10.

It is reported that Ruth St. Denis, Keith's star, is engaged to be married to C. B. McGee, who has been doing her press work.

Manager John Ilavlin of the Grand Opera House, is back in Cincinnati, after spending the summer at Bensonhurst, N. J.

The Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra has been engaged to play at the music festival of the University of Illinois at Champaign, Ill., next May.

Signor Pier Adolfo Tirindelli of the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music, and one of Cincinnati's foremost musicians, was complimented with the offer of the conductorship of the Symphony Orchestra of Seattle, Wash., as successor to Henry Hadley, who recently resigned to accept the conductorship of the San Francisco Or-

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

The New Cort Theatre opened with a blaze of glory Saturday night, September 2, with Baby Mine as the initial attraction, which kept the capacity house in roars of laughter throughout the whole week. The theatre is a dream of beauty and ranks with the best in the country, not a post in the house to mar any sight on the stage, and the acoustics are most perfect. The capacity is just 1817, divided as follows: Ninety-six box seats, 53 loge seats, 696 orchestra seats, 464 balcony seats and 500 gallery seats.

Some clever work has been done by the electricians, hardly any light is visible to the audience, the light coming in a suffused glow from cunningly concealed electric lamps hidden behind moldings and studded in plaster decorations. The stage is 90 feet wide and 33 feet deep, with a proscenium arch 37 feet wide and 36 feet high. From the stage to the grid iron the distance is 83 feet, so therefore this house can handle any production, no matter how elaborate.

A feature is the dressing-rooms, all above the stage, running up five tiers, all ventilated and fitted with built-in dressing tables and all modern conveniences. The decorations are most unique, fruits and flowers predominate where ever possible. Considerable praise is due Mr. Barnett Frankel, the publicity man, for the immense amount of space he secured in all the daily papers giving a full description of the house, embellished with illustrations and other pictures, also full-page interviews with John Cort, and followed this up with announcements of the grand opening and full description of the play and audience. Homer Orran, the resident manager, has surrounded himself with a most efficient experienced force, and with the bookings already arranged, the house will be open the whole year around, and every evidence of success is predicted for the New Cort Theatre. A most noticeable feature is the very attractive electric illumination in front of the theatre, which can be seen many blocks away and every stranger can find Cort's Theatre without asking.

The American Theatre changed hands September 8. The Granmans who purchased the lease a few weeks ago, have sold out to Howell and Grey, who will conduct the house, offering vaudeville, musical comedy and moving pictures at ten cents admission. The lease runs for seven years at a fair rental and the house looks like a winner as both Howell and Grey are experienced theatrical men. The Central, located on the same block, formerly run by Howell, will close, which will help the American very materially.

Ferris Hartman, the comedian, was sued September 6, for $10,500 back alimony by his former wife, Mary Hartman. Mr. Hartman declares he has paid her, and she has sworn in her complaint that he has not.

Pantages Theatre, now in course of construction on Market Street, is being rushed in the hopes of getting the building ready to open this year. The steel frame is almost all up, and an eight-hour shift has been working for several weeks.

M. Pierre Grazi, managing director of the Paris Grand Opera Company, which is to open a season of twelve weeks at the Valencia Theatre here, beginning November 13, left for Paris to arrange for the season.

Beginning September 10, all the five-cent theatres here that have used vaudeville in connection with moving pictures will charge ten cents admission if they continue to use films from the General Film Co., also but two changes of pictures per week will be furnished by the film company. Many of the managers are afraid of a big drop in business with this change, but in a few weeks, when the public get accustomed to the new policy there is no doubt it will prove a better proposition than they anticipate, for this idea that the public will not pay the additional five cents is all wrong, for at all the popular-priced houses such as 10, 20 and 30 cents, it has always been the rule that the 30-cent seats always sell in preference to the others, and the 10-cent tickets are the last to go.

The Campus, at the Savoy Theatre, presented by the Ferris Hartman Company, featuring Walter De Leon (the author) and "Muggins" Davies, is one real musical comedy, full of catchy music, quick action and college "yells" that will enthuse everybody. Chorus of 25 and good scenery. This show just closed a sixteen consecutive weeks' run at the Grand Opera House, Los Angeles, and will be a success anywhere at any time. It will travel East this season and is already booked for a run at the La Salle Theatre, Chicago, and the writer predicts a big success for it. It is one of those shows that one can see more than once.

Mile, Nordica, the diva, is due to arrive here on October 13. Maria, a new Spanish opera, was given its premiere at Idora Opera House by the Lamhardt Grand Opera Company, Tuesday, September 5, and served to introduce Manuel Salazar, the South American tenor. The house was packed to the doors and the opera was voted a big success.

RUBE COHEN.

OMAHA, NEB.

Business at all the theatres continues encouragingly good, and the managers feel very well satisfied with the business for the three weeks they have been open, and the Ak-Sar-Ben Carnival and parades, September 30 to October 6, will bring thousands to Omaha who always patronize the playhouses.

The Woodward Stock Company, with Miss Eva Lang as leading lady and a very capable company of players, opened at the American on September 9. The Chaparrone was the play presented and the house was packed with an enthusiastic audience. Manager Woodward is well pleased with the reception given his company, which is composed mostly of strangers to Omaha audiences.

N. J. Burgess, manager of the Brandeis, says that his theatre this season will play all of the best Stair & Havlin shows; in fact, any good attractions that he can book, as the theatre will be an "open door" house, so that Omaha audiences will see many attractions that they would not if the theatre confined its bookings to just one circuit.

Manager Woodward will have girl attendants in gray uniforms, with white aprons and caps, in charge of the side aisles at the American. This will be the first theatre in this city to have girl ushers.

H. J. ROOT.

KANSAS CITY, MO.

The Willis-Wood Theatre opened Sunday, September 3, with four nights and two matinees of The Country Boy in order to catch the big Labor Day theatre patronage, and then it was dark until the week of September 17, when The Commuters came for the week. Thus this was practically the opening of the Willis-Wood, for Frank Woodward, manager of the house, returned to Kansas City then from a two months' vacation in the East. O. H. Buckley, business manager, came back to town the last of August and superintended the September 3 opening. Mr. and Mrs. Buckley spent the summer in New York City and at Kinder's, a resort near Cayuga Lake, N. Y.

The Shubert Theatre presented for two weeks, commencing September 10, motion pictures of Dante's Inferno. Not the least of the instructive and artistic presentation of this masterpiece is the deep voice and clear words of the lecturer.

The Grand Opera House did a big record-breaking business the week of September 17, when The Girl I Love was the attraction. This Askin production came direct here from Chicago with the original company. Every performance, commencing with the Sunday matinee saw the Grand "sold out."

tinued for the second week of September 10. The first week of September 4, the weather interfered with some of the special programs arranged for the fair, and the management decided to continue it this second week, which with good weather proved a great success.

Sella-Floto Circus showed here for two days, Sunday, September 17 and Monday, September 18, with two performances each day. Then this circus was seen across the line, in Kansas City, Kan., September 19, making practically three days here. Sella-Floto is a popular circus and with the admission price of twenty-five cents can certainly do the business. The tents were capacity at all the Kansas City performances.

The big Third Annual Missouri Valley Fair opens at Electric Park, September 23, and continues for two weeks. Everything is in readiness at the park and it is all beautifully decorated with grains and grasses to indicate the agricultural and horticultural aspect of the fair. All the exhibition space has been taken by the merchants and manufacturers of Kansas City and elaborate displays are promised. M. G. Helm is the treasurer of the Fair Association and devotes his time and also donates his park to the success of this exposition. Mr. Helm is the owner of Electric Park. Sam Benjamin is the secretary of the fair.

WILLIAM W. SHELLEY.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

Sunday night, September 10, marked the closing of the season of the big Twin City Wonderland Park, the only amusement park of its kind in the entire Northwest. Schepp's trained dogs, monkeys and ponies furnished the final free out-door attraction and Keebler's Military Band rendered the concert program. All of the regular attractions delighted the in the St. Paul Auditorium. Sunday night, January 29, 1912. Two evening and two matinee performances will be given, during which Wolff Ferrari's new opera, The Jewels of the Madonna, and Victor Herbert's Natoma, will be produced, together with classic favorite operas. Frank Coffey, a Wright aviator, who together with Howard Gill exhibited at the Minnesota State Fair here, the week of September 4-9, fell Tuesday, September 5 with his machine in front of the grand-stand, dropping from a height of 100 feet and wrecking his machine, but escaping with no physical injuries himself. The cause of his fall was a defective engine, and the aviator, finding that he had lost control, shut off the power and attempted to glide to the earth, but the tail shifted, causing the machine to fall in almost a straight line. Coffey, however, retained his seat and remained unhurt.

RODERIC STE. FLEURE.

VANCOUVER, B. C.

The season of 1911-12 is now nader way in this city and managers are looking forward to the best season in their history.

The George B. Howard Company at the Avenue Theatre offered The Walls of Jericho for the second week of their new season, and played to excellent business.

After Dark was presented by the Sanford Players at the Empress Theatre. The scenic effects in this play were excellent and caused much comment among theatregoers.

A new motion picture theatre will be opened on Granville Street by Messrs. Bake Brothers. Independent films will be used.

The Versatile close their engagement at English Bay, September 16, and sail for Australia.

The Kluemacolor Coronation pictures were shown at the Opera House week of September 11.

As previously announced in these columns, Alexander Pantages, head of the Pantages' Circuit of Vaudeville Theatres, will operate a Canadian vaudeville circuit in conjunction with the one in the United States. This circuit will embrace all the important cities in the Dominion of Canada and will have its headquarters in Vancouver. It is anticipated that Mr. Pantages will spend a considerable portion of his time in this city when the circuit begins operations.

Mr. Pantages closed a deal this week whereby he becomes owner of a piece of property in New Westminster, now occupied by the Morey Block. The price paid has not been made public. The site is an ideal one for his purposes, being in the heart of the business district and fronting and backing on two streets.

This move on the part of Mr. Pantages will likely block the plans of a local syndicate who had their eyes on New Westminster for some time, with the idea in view of opening a popular-priced vaudeville theatre.

Mr. Pantages has two splendid locations in view for the erection of the new Pantages Theatre in this city, but he has not decided on which location to accept. It is expected that an announcement of the exact location will be made shortly. However, it may be said that the theatre will occupy a prominent location on Hastings Street, and will cost in the neighborhood of $500,000, the work of construction to commence early in the spring.

Like other prominent theatrical folk, Mr. Pantages has invested a large sum of money in Point Grey, Vancouver's swell residential district.

J. M. McLEAN.

Notwithstanding that Emma Eames has married again, she is still several laps behind Lillian Russell and not yet in hailing distance of Nat Goodwin.

PAUL D. OUTCH.

For five seasons Mr. Outch acted as treasurer of the Grand Opera House, Hazleton, Pa., during which time his energetic bustling and wide awake business methods did much to increase the popularity of the theatre he represented. As a reward for his faithfulness he has been appointed manager of the Grand.

AIRDOME THEATRE, ELWOOD, IND.

As the accompanying illustration shows, the Airdome Theatre is so constructed that it is possible to give shows regardless of the weather of John D. Kiefer and will run popular-price attractions until January 1.

Edward Gibbons, a tar-wagon driver, was badly burned when a load of tar exploded September 7, and that his burns were not fatal was probably due to the rescue work done by John and Emma Ray. The Rays as they were billed as headliners in a sketch at the Orpheum the week of September 3. They were sightseeing in a motor car and jumped from their machine and hauled Gibbons from the burning tar and hurried him to the Emergency Hospital, where his injuries were treated.

Gene Greene, a singer of popular songs, was "water-bound" eight miles out of St. Joseph, Mo., by a railroad washout and could not arrive here in time for the Sunday matinee performance, but was on the evening entertainment and assisted by Charles Straight at the piano, made a big hit. Greene was on the bill at the Orpheum the week of September 10.

All of the Woodward Stock Company players arrived here the week of September 10, ready for a week's rehearsal of the opening play, The Widow's Might, which starts the stock company's season at the Auditorium Theatre the week of September 16. O. D. Woodward, manager of the Woodward Stock Company, and the Auditorium Theatre, in addition to his interest in the management of the Willis-Wood Theatre, went to New York and personally selected the entire company and will personally superintend the putting on of the plays here. Kansas City can be assured that these plays will be the best and newest as O. D. is a past grand master in the art of stage craft.

J. Lavery, assistant treasurer of the Gillis Theatre, has gone to send a few days at his old home in Liberty, Mo., and from there he will go to St. Louis for a short while. Mr. Lavery is combining business and pleasure on this trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph R. Donegan left here the night of September 19 for St. Louis, to attend the funeral there of Col. Edward Butler on Tuesday, September 12. Col. Butler was the owner of the Century Theatre and the Hotel Edward here. Col. Butler was well and favorably known here and had many friends in this city. Mr. Donegan is manager of the Century Theatre, the Western Wheel of Burlesque.

The Merchants and Manufacturers' Fair at Carnival Park, Kansas City, Kan., was continued for the second week of September 10. The first week of September 4, the weather interfered with some of the special programs arranged for the fair, and the management decided to continue it this second week, which with good weather proved a great success.

Sella-Floto Circus showed here for two days, Sunday, September 17 and Monday, September 18, with two performances each day. Then this circus was seen across the line, in Kansas City, Kan., September 19, making practically three days here. Sella-Floto is a popular circus and with the admission price of twenty-five cents can certainly do the business. The tents were capacity at all the Kansas City performances.

The big Third Annual Missouri Valley Fair opens at Electric Park, September 23, and continues for two weeks. Everything is in readiness at the park and it is all beautifully decorated with grains and grasses to indicate the agricultural and horticultural aspect of the fair. All the exhibition space has been taken by the merchants and manufacturers of Kansas City and elaborate displays are promised. M. G. Helm is the treasurer of the Fair Association and devotes his time and also donates his park to the success of this exposition. Mr. Helm is the owner of Electric Park. Sam Benjamin is the secretary of the fair.

Monday afternoon, September 18, the Lyric Theatre reopened as a motion picture house, showing ten daylight motion pictures to a performance, and baving their bill further augmented by the employment of an orchestra of 18 lady musicians, a pipe organ and the soloist, Tenie Murphy-Sheehan, assisted by ten talented singers.

Minneapolisians who wish to hear grand opera will probably have to journey to St. Paul the coming season, as the announcement is made by General Manager Dippel of the Chicago Grand Opera Company, that the season would begin Maryland State Fair, Although One of the Best in History of Association, Has Less Attendance Than Last Year.

El Paso Prepares for Statehood Celebration

MARYLAND STATE FAIR.

Going to Timonium! was the salutation heard everywhere from September 4 to 9, and there was an average daily attendance of 10,000 people. The event was the thirty-third anniversary of the Maryland State Fair and Agricultural Society of Baltimore County. The fair at Timonium, Md., is an annual affair that has become historic. Secretary Nussear stated the attendance was not as large as last year, and the fair managers claim this was due to the lack of accommodations and bad train service. The managers have filed a complaint with the Maryland Public Service Commission for redress.

in the household department, with which he has been connected for twenty years. This department constitutes one of the main features of the fair and next year it will be housed in a new building on a much larger scale.

GREAT LEONA SHOW.

The Great Leona Show played its first bloomer of the season, week before last, at the Grangers' Picnic, Williams Grove, Pa. The outfit was set up in the rain on Monday and torn down in the rain on Saturday. It was a continuous pour down all week. However, the show more than made up for the bloomer by playing to a record-

Miss Robinson is back at her desk in the Majestic Theatre Building, Chicago after a brief absence, during which her position was filled by her brother, Harry. Miss Robinson is one of the most energetic and successful women agents in America, and has a wide circle of acquaintance among projectors of amusement throughout the United States and Canada, who will be glad to know that she is again "on the job."

The electric railway which will run near the fair grounds will not be ready for operation for some time.

The second day was Baltimore Day, which is always the chief event of the fair. Mayor Preston, with a party of prominent citizens, were on the spot extending greetings and shaking hands with all. All the candidates for the November election were on hand to greet the people from the rural districts. The exhibits in all departments were in excellent condition and there was a fine display of farm products. There were many exhibits from the far West and South. Mrs. Donald R. Hooker, with her faithful band of Suffragettes, had a special booth at the fair and distributed considerable literature to aid their cause—votes for women. The Midway had all the best of it, as it gathered in all the loose change in sight and the best part of the fair's profit came from that source. The attractions were more numerous than in previous years and the good weather with the large crowds were in their favor. Despite the success of the fair, there was gloom on the closing day. President Alexander McCormick was taken seriously ill Friday night and was obliged to remain at home. He has had 32 years' service at the fair and in view of his advanced age he has expressed a desire to retire from the presidency. Next winter he will likely be succeeded by Vice-president E. Gittings Merryman. Mr. McCormick has endeavored to resign many times but his thorough knowledge of the "machinery" of the fair and his energy has made the directors persuade him to remain. Mr. McCormick was chiefly interested

STATEHOOD CELEBRATION.

El Paso, Tex., Sept. 18 (Special to The Billboard).—One of the greatest events in the history of El Paso will be the Statehood Celebration in this city on October 19, 20 and 21. Ten thousand dollars have been subscribed by the different business interests in El Paso; the railroads have offered cheap rates and everything points to a record-breaking crowd.

Governor Mills of New Mexico, Governor Connitt of Texas, Governor Sloan of Arizona and Governor Gonzales of the state of Chihuahua in the Republic of Mexico, have all been invited to attend, and all have accepted the invitation and will be present.

There will also be a great aviation meet at the same time and a big baseball tournament, and the Nat Reiss Carnival Company will be here for the three days' carnival. Big preparations are going on and everything points to a very successful celebration.

FAIR SECRETARIES' REPORTS.

The annual fair of the Salina County Fair Association at Salina, Kan., August 29 to September 1, was quite a successful event. The attendance on the first day was 1,200; second day, 1,245; third day, 2,475; fourth day, 1,400. The stock, agricultural and art exhibits were of the usual high class, while the amusement attractions were of the best obtainable. The harness, running and motorcycle races were well contested and aroused considerable enthusiasm, while the free acts, balloon ascensions, high dive, trapeze performances and girls' band were enjoyed by all who attended. The amusement attractions were furnished by the Campbells' United Shows.

The annual event of the Union Agricultural and Horticultural Society, held at Trumansburg, N. Y., is known as The Big Fair. The dates this year were August 29, 30 and 31 and September 1, and from the attendance, 8,000 on the second day, 20,000 on the third day and 10,000 on the fourth day, it will be seen that the name was lived up to. No record was kept of the attendance on the first day, as admission was free. Industrial conditions in this vicinity are good, and this helped make the fair a successful one both from a financial standpoint and from the customary "fair" outlook. The free acts were: Bragger Brothers, Bolliul Troupe, Troupe of Japanese Acrobats, and Charles Morak, aviator, who made very successful flights from the grounds the last two days, returning to the point of starting. A full list of privileges and concessions were carried. There were also baseball games and some good racing, although the fields were not large. The annual meeting and election of the society will be held December 1, at which the policy for next year will be outlined.

The Milton District Fair was held at Milton, Iowa, August 30, 31 and September 1. Good weather ruled and the attendance was 1,000 on the first day, 4,500 on the second day and 2,500 on the third day. The industrial conditions in this neighborhood are very good, and this, with the fine line of amusement attractions and exhibits, was responsible for one of the most successful fairs in the history of the society. The Casting Campbells and Gus Henderson were the big free acts, and there were also trotting and running races, games, sports, etc., as well as privileges and concessions too numerous to mention.

The Calumet County Agricultural Association Fair held at Chilton, Wis., August 31 and September 1 and 2, was a fairly successful one, the paid attendance on the second day numbering 2,900 and on the third day 1,900. No admission fee was charged the first day. This is considered a good attendance in view of the fact that this is purely an agricultural community, with no large towns or villages to draw from. There was a very good exhibit of cattle, horses, swine, sheep and poultry, and baseball games and fine trotting races for the sportively inclined. An acrobatic turn was the big free act. The privileges included merry-go-round, Ferris wheel, refreshment stands and a few small shows. The people who patronized this fair, however, want larger and higher-class shows, which will be provided for the 1912 event. No gambling is allowed and it is impossible to find a cleaner fair.

The Henry County Agricultural Association Fair, held annually at Mt. Pleasant, Iowa, is the largest county fair in Iowa. The dates for the 1911 event were August 15, 16, 17 and 18. The first day was devoted to getting everything in first-class running order. On the second day the attendance was 6,000; third day, 13,000; and fourth day, 7,000. Every day is a holiday during the fair, the banks and stores closing each afternoon. Good industrial conditions are in order in this neighborhood, and as a result the exhibits were on a larger scale than ever before. A fine racing program was given. A trick house was the free attraction, and the privileges included merry-go-round, Ferris wheel, refreshment stands and a few small shows. The people who patronized this fair, however, want larger and higher-class shows, which will be provided for the 1912 event. No gambling is allowed and it is impossible to find a cleaner fair.

The Pattonburg Fair Association's annual fair was held at Pattonburg, Mo., August 29, 30, 31 and September 1. The attendance on the first day was 2,000; second day, 5,000; third day, 7,500; fourth day, 2,200. The big free attraction was aeroplane flights on August 30 and 31, by Jack C. Henning in a Wright biplane. The harness and running races had many followers, and the regular exhibits of live stock, agricultural, horticulture, art, cooking, and floral hall were enjoyed by all. The industrial conditions in this neighborhood are good.

The fair of the Montgomery Agricultural Board was held at Dayton, Ohio, September 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8. The attendance was very good—25,000 on the first day; rain on the second day kept the attendance down; 8,000 on the third day; 28,000 on the fourth day; and 6,000 on the fifth day. The racing program was a good one, $7,200 in purses was paid. The accident were the Six Juggling Roses, Montambo & Bottella, parachute jump; Miss Anna Woodward, soloist. There was a complete line of concessions, all of which made money.

The best fair held in Western Canada in 1911, is the report from the annual event of the Edmonton Exhibition Association, Ltd., held at Edmonton, Alta., Can., August 15 to 19. Good industrial conditions prevail in this community, and this fact, coupled with the extraordinary list of agricultural and stock exhibits, a fine racing program and the No. 1 amusement attractions furnished by the Parker Amusement Co., was responsible for the unprecedented attendance of 51,000 for the five days, an average of over 10,000 per day. The free acts were Leon Morris' Wrestling Poulies, Mlle. De Oesch, Steiner Trio, comedy acrobats; Stahl, high dive; Bertini, aerial bicycle descent; Russian dancers and Miss Alice's Trained Dogs and Leaping Greyhounds. The privileges consisted of restaurants, doll, knife and cane racks, Hoop-La, novelty stands and an excellent midway. The purses and stakes for the racing meet amounted to $12,600, and attracted the highest class of horses that have ever raced here. Three Canadian track records were broken by the harness division, Bland S. pacing a mile over the half-mile track in 2.034. In the running division the Alberta records for five furlongs, one mile, mile and an eighth and mile-and-a-quarter were broken.

The Columbia County Fair at Portage, Wis., was held August 29, 30, 31 and September 1. Good weather and high-class exhibits and attractions brought out a total attendance of about 25,000, which figures would have been reached at least 5,000 but for the fact that the aeroplane, which had been contracted for as the big feature, was damaged in an accident, forcing the calling off of this portion of the program. The list of attractions included Three Leightons, Rose and Ellis, baseball games and a well-contested racing bill. There were a fine line of concessions, and all made money, especially the lunchstands.

WADDELL AND LITMAN.

Excellent industrial conditions, good weather, good exhibits and attractions, combined to make the fair of the Fox River Agricultural & Fair Association at De Pere, Wis., August 29, 30 and 31, a success. The attendance on the first day was 13,000; second day, 33,000; third day, 15,000. The fair was one of the highest and best in the state. Horse racing, motor cycle racing and a hydro-aeroplane were among the list of attractions. The Kanazawa Japanese Troupe and the Mario-Aldo Trio gave acts. The list of privileges included merry-go-round, doll and cane racks, freak shows, lunch and refreshment stands, cameras, etc. Wittmer, who was to make the hydro-aeroplane flights, met with an accident on the 29th, falling into the lake. He was uninjured, but the machine was badly damaged. Wittmer will fly at De Pere September 17 in order to fill the contract.

LATEST FERRO MACHINE.

One of the most popular and efficient money-getters that followed the fairs and carnivals this season as well as operating at many parks and amusement resorts was the ferrotype machine, the latest form of which has been developed by the New York Ferrotype Co. of 183 1/2 Delancey Street, New York. It is what they call the Automat and so constructed and designed as to take the picture of the subject posed before it automatically, dropping the unfinished picture into a mechanical solution in which it passes until developed and then punching it out by a copyrighted puncher into a pocket from whence it is taken absolutely and perfectly finished in an exceedingly short time. The machine is seven inches high, about 9 1/2 inches long and 7 1/4 inches wide. It is made of brass, nickel-plated and when loaded with 100 plates, weighs but four and a half pounds. Both the rectangular picture and the button can be developed in the Automat. This machine allows a capacity of ten to fifteen exposures per minute; in fact much faster than the successive subjects are ready to pass in front of it. The machine is fitted with a thoroughly dependable shutter which assures the best results for either time or instantaneous exposures, requiring no particular setting and is opened and closed by pressure on a pendant bulb. It can be reloaded in full daylight without damage to the stock.

The New York Ferrotype Co. has, during its time of existence, manufactured a number of popular machines. None, however, of such entire satisfaction as this latest creation, the Automat. This concern is pleased to announce that Mr. Herman, who was formerly connected with them in an official capacity, has returned to their midst as manager.

FAIR NOTES.

The Leavenworth County Fair, Leavenworth, Kan., which was held September 4, 5, 6 and 7, was very successful, the attendance being nearly 30,000 for the four days. Showers spelt what would have been the best day, that is Lashor Day. The free attractions were furnished by the Carver Shows and consisted of fancy swimming and diving by girls, trick shooting by Dr. Carver, the diving horses, lucking horses, steers and mules and rope spinning. These attractions were the best ever provided by the fair management and were the means of drawing a large attendance. Dr. Carver deserves much credit for putting up a good, clean and exciting show. Music was furnished by the Thirtieth Infantry Band, one of the best army bands. The midway was good and in connection with the band concerts was the means of securing a big evening attendance.

Cromwell Dixon, the world's youngest aviator, was the special feature attraction at the Smith County Fair, Smith Center, Kan., September 6 to 8. Dixon made ten successful flights in Curtiss aeroplane. The longest distance flight from the fair grounds was 12 miles, the highest flight was 3,000 feet and the longest length of time in the air was 20 minutes. Dixon holds the record for the most successful aeroplane flights in Kansas. Thousands of people were in attendance and it was the most successful fair ever held in Western Kansas. Smith County is the banner corn county of the state this year.

Salem, O., is going to have the greatest celebration on October 6 and 7 ever attempted by any city of its size in Ohio. On these dates it will hold a Home-Coming Fall Festival. Negotiations are pending for an aviator and plenty of other outside attractions are booked for these dates. In addition fully $5,000 are offered in merchandise and cash premiums for farm displays. Trolley and steam line will draw from 50 miles around. W. G. Fawcett is secretary of the association, under whose auspices this festival is being held.

The free amusement features at the Missouri State Fair have always been the best money could provide. This year the attractions will be superior to those of previous years. The vaudeville stage opposite the grandstand will be occupied by stars of comedy, acrobats and gymnasts in new acts never witnessed before. There will be no dull moments at the State Fair. The shows and concessions on the ground will be of a high grade, and no exhibition will be permitted that women and children can not witness.

Pierce County Fair and Speed Association of Pierce, Neb., were forced to call off their fair, which had been set for August 30, 31 and September 1. The weather conditions were very bad, and the Crelighton Fair, dated the week ahead of Pierce, dropped out, which left an open week between the Neilgh and Pierce Fairs, and as the association was afraid that the horsemen and amusement people would not lay over the week, the event was called off.

The Gordon County Fair, to be held at Calhoun, Ga., for five days and nights, October 17 to 21, 1911, will be the highest and best fair ever held in North Georgia. There will be special program features, each day, and with the best crops North Georgia has had in twenty years, business is expected to be good. The Whitfield County Fair at Dalton, Ga., comes the week before the Gordon County Fair. The jump is only 25 miles.

Captain C. A. ROLLER SKATING NEWS

Present Indications Point to a Season of Prosperity for All Well Conducted American Rinks—Sport Enjoys a Great Popularity in Europe—Rink Notes

By JULIAN T. FITZGERALD

The latest indications for the skating game for the coming season are good. Roller skating continues to maintain its popularity throughout the United States, and there is every indication to believe that the exhilarating pastime will continue for several years to come, except where unfavorable conditions arise, which in many instances has already developed owing to the lack of judgment on part of the rink managers, who still believe that a skating rink can be operated the year around, regardless of climate or locality.

Roller skating is decidedly a winter sport, just as much as ice skating, except under certain conditions which exist in connection with popular summer resorts or amusement parks, where rinks can be operated in open-air pavilions, but to conduct a rink in an enclosed building, such as is used for a winter rink, during the months between May and October, is a grave mistake, and invariably results in failures. I would advise a short season and a merry one, and the skaters will be tuned up for the opening date, just the same as if the skating craze had just started.

Roller skating in Europe has attained even greater popularity during the past two or three years than has skating in America, and a skating boom which has never before been equalled is still spreading throughout the foreign countries. The American promoters have, of course, been the leading spirit in starting the last great craze in Europe, still that has been disputed by a correspondent of a London paper, who gives Mr. John Calvin Brown the credit for opening the first rink. The correspondent stated that on May 19, 1907, Mr. Brown opened a skating rink at his White City in Manchester, and that several other small rinks were shortly afterwards started in various places, but all in a small way. In the fall of 1907, Mr. C. E. Crawford went over at the representative of the Samuel Winslow Skate Co., and opened Tournament Hall in Liverpool as a rink on a large scale, and it was an immediate success and a credit to the good judgment and management of Crawford, who because of that success was enabled to enlist capital and open rinks in twenty-five other cities. Crawford is a great business man and a hustler, and if he is not given credit for opening the first rink, he deserves all the praise for his efforts in placing the skating game where it is today.

We must not overlook the fact that our own popular rink manager, none other than Mr. Edwin B. Barnes, who at present is managing the Coliseum Rink at Nissen Park, Winston-Salem, N. C., was also instrumental in adding to the history of roller skating by his great work while he was managing several of the big rinks in Europe. Mr. Barnes went over there after Crawford had launched the boom, and taught the Europeans how to manage rinks, and while there was one of the most successful rink managers on the continent. Besides being successful as a rink manager, he contributed some of his valuable time to the writing of skating news, and many good stories pertaining to the history of roller skating were published as a result of his untiring efforts for the good of the game.

While I have said in the preceding chapters that roller skating for this season looks very

GUS BLUHM.

Mr. Blum gained his title of Champion Exhibition Skater of the Western States at Janesville, Wis., 1873. He was a pioneer of Chicago, and learned his skating in the 60's, along with Caille Curtis, E. T. Goodrich and E. W. Pratt, at the old West Side Skating Rink, Chicago.

His favorite movements were twists, whirls, grapevines and pirouettes or toe spins. He was unbeatable at grapevines, and the originator of many. As a burlesque and novice skater, imitating a beginner on skates, he had no equal.

Probably many admirers of his skillful skating are not aware that he began his business career as an apple boy in Chicago, and today is one of our millionaires.

He and his family were at San Francisco during the earthquake, and they very narrowly escaped with their lives, but lost all their personal effects, including all his much-prized skating medals.

He leans toward another profitable season, and rink managers must remember that you can not stand still and expect the dollars to roll into your coffers, but you must do everything in your power to create an interest for roller skating. The hustlers and up-to-date managers are the ones who will reap all the benefits, and I hope you are one of them.

JULIAN T. FITZGERALD.

Secy. Western Skating Association.

CHICAGO ICE PALACE CLOSED.

The Ice Rink Company of Chicago, which built the beautiful Ice Palace at a cost of several thousands of dollars, will not open up in October to ice skating, as was planned at the close of last season.

The rink has been leased out to a large syndicate for a long term of years, and will be converted into a large dancing palace. The arrangements were completed the day following Labor Day by President Chas. H. Hermann, with a company of promoters who control large dance halls and conventions from the Coast to Chicago. It is also the intention of the new promoters to fit the Ice Palace suitable for prize fights and other amusements; that is, they are in the hopes that the fight bill for Illinois will be passed in the near future.

The cause of this last move of diverting the ice rink into a dance hall, is said to be the skating fans, who after years of hard work, coaxed the promoters into building this beautiful building, and then did not rally to the support of maintaining it.

JOE FOREST.

Mr. Forest hails from San Francisco, Cal., and is a skater of note. Two years ago he went to Honolulu, H. I., and competed in several long-distance races. Among the most important was the roller Marathon, over the full route, which he won, defeating the pick of the skaters on the islands and many of his own countrymen. Forest is also a short-distance skater and after returning to this country skated in Missouri and Kansas against the best in that part of the country. He was seriously ill during April, 1911, but has so far recovered that his appearance this winter is looked upon as a certainty.

CARNIVAL NEWS

Amusement Company Engaged to Play at Decatur, Ill., Fails to Materialize—J. L. Wood Voices Complaint at Treatment Received in Gadsden, Ala.—Miscellany

FAILED TO MATERIALIZE.

Decatur, Ill., September 15 (Special to The Billboard).—The Central States Amusement Company, a carnival organization that has been advertised extensively as the one to show here for the Moose Carnival this week at Dreamland Park, has dissolved. The manager of this company, Ralph J. Phillips, paid his bill at the hotel early Sunday morning and left for parts unknown, leaving a small crowd of connoisseurs here to get out of town as best they could.

As far as it is possible to determine, Phillips never was connected with a carnival company going by the name mentioned, and no such company ever existed. He was figuring on a company playing in Indiana to "hit the rocks," and expecting the breakdown to come in time for him to get the show here for a week. His plans were upset, however, when he learned that the company weathered the storm and remained intact.

MANAGER'S COMPLAINT.

J. L. Wood, manager of Four Brother Shows, writes The Billboard as follows:

"The Foster Transfer Co. of Gadsden, Ala., contracted to move the Four Brother Shows at $1.40 per load, round trip. The show was moved to the lot on wagons equipped with dirt and stone bodies and it was impossible for the showmen to get two horse loads on such wagons. The L. & N. E. track runs along one side of the show grounds and the agent agreed for us to load on that track Saturday night by hand. Foster was seen and offered $1.00 per load for the day trip, which would leave him 40 cents per load to do the night work, but he wanted the night trip, and the showman said he would load some by hand anyway. Foster went away and immediately ran an attachment on the whole show before the work was done and before the bill was due. It being Saturday afternoon and no time for trial, it was cheaper for the show to pay the coat than to come back for trial.

"Please take warning, fellow showmen, when you play Gadsden, Ala. Do not do business with the Foster Transfer Co."

Signed, J. L. WOOD, Manager.

MACY SHOW NOTES.

Among the latest additions to the line-up of Macy's Olympic Shows are: Mysterious Mack and Compa, Edwin C. Dale, manager; they are putting on various escape acts and are featuring The Man Hunt, an entirely original show which makes good everywhere. George Takawa, with one assistant (Grandpa) behind the Japanese vase wheel; K. Kaida, Japanese bowling alley; Sol Goodman, with two nobby concessions and three assistants; Mr. Newman and wife, with some swell candy wheel. The new 50-ft. top with two 20-ft. middle pieces, has arrived for the Armstrong Circus to replace the one which was destroyed recently in the blow-down.

Harry Small, manager of the Olympic Minstrels or Old Plantation, has added some new scenery and a new front drop, which is a great help to the show, and is also working out a new and original idea for a front which promises to be a scream. Reiter of the Olympic Minstrels; Harry Small, manager; Billie Freeman, stage manager; Charlie Mason and William A. Wallace, ends; Albert Allen, interloper; Archie Armstrong, John E. Kennedy, Lillie May Kennedy and Mottrell Freeman. Macy's new merry-go-round, Charlie Babb, manager, with three assistants, has been getting its share of the money since its arrival last week. Delivery on the machine was slow, but it finally arrived and is doing nicely. Develo reports nice business with his two concessions, the high-striker, which he manages, and his new idea trick stairway, with which Mrs. Develo and her harem skirt gets the fast nickel.

Crsin, the original hoop-la king, and his wife, are building a new idea hoop-la that promises to put one over on the old style, and that will get more and faster money. Armstrong's Ladies' Band just received another supply of late music and they are playing some concert now. Business in Southern Missouri is not extra good, but everyone is doing enough to be able to keep smiling and the train moves regular and on time.

PARKER SHOW NOTES.

The Parker Shows, Eastern Company, Ned Stonington manager, last week at Council Bluffs had their biggest week of the season, under the auspices of the Commercial Club. It made one think of the days when the Elks made the carnival business popular and profitable. The shows were located in Bayless Park, occupying one city block in the heart of the city. The four streets surrounding the park were inclosed with a high fence and lined with booths, highly ornamented and illuminated, some of them with star fronts. The trees throughout the park were also decorated with electric lights and the effect was beautiful. Six thousand dollars were donated by the local merchants, all of which was expended on advance preparations. An average attendance of seven thousand people daily, Labor Day fifteen thousand, and all the shows were well patronized.

The run from Clinton, Iowa, to Council Bluffs, was 355 miles, and as it was necessary to open Monday afternoon, (Labor Day) our trainmaster, F. Johnston, had made previous arrangements with the Northwestern for clear tracks and a fast run. The superintendent informed us that it was the fastest run ever made by a circus train over that line. Making the 355 miles in twelve hours, and at one time, by the watch, tearing off a mile a minute, which is going some for a train of twenty-nine cars, twenty-one of which were flats.

Friday at Clinton, Jim Hathaway, received a telegram from Fred (Hoppy) Holmes, stating that his sister-in-law, Mrs. Cora McBride, well-known among the carnival profession, had been found dead in bed that morning and that the remains would arrive in Davenport Saturday afternoon for burial alongside of those of her father and mother. Manager Stonington of the Parker Shows, immediately gave orders for the closing of the Parker Shows Saturday afternoon, and chartering a special train, took the band and eighty members of the company, and with flower offerings, attended the funeral in Davenport. The deceased's husband, D. C. McBride, and her sister, Mrs. Fred Holmes, arrived in time for the funeral.

Flowers were received from friends from all parts of the United States, including the Parker Shows at Vancouver, B. C., the funeral director stating that it was the most beautiful collection that had ever entered his establishment. Immediately after the funeral the Parker people returned in their special train and closed the week at Clinton.

GREAT EMPIRE SHOW NOTES.

The Great Empire Shows have added the following shows to its atrium since last writing: Tom Hassen has brought on the Royal Troupe of Claqueuses, the only troupe traveling with a carnival; Doc Barfield, with his Georgia Minstrels, the Midgets, the smallest married couple on earth; the Paama Woaders, and four concessions. The weather is against us for the past two weeks, but everyone is satisfied, as we have some dry days. The entire company regrets to learn of Mr. Joseph Thoney, our contracting agent, leaving, after being with us the entire season, but all wish him good luck in his next position, which will find him at his desk as usual at 1440 Broadway. We next go to Kentucky for the rest of the month.

WORTHAM-ALLEN NOTES.

"Nothing succeeds like success," and the Wortham-Allen Carnival has been a wonderful success ever since it first saw the light of day, which was May 30, 1910. At this time four moves were contracted and afterwards made over the McKinley electric system. Success greeted them at every stand, and by the time the show reached Springfield, Ill., several additions were made, the show enlarged and the moves made over the steam roads.

Messrs. Wortham and Allen had ideas and good intentions and the show came home a winner and thoroughbred. This season the show opened is rarer and better, the proprietors living with the times and offering novelties that help to build up the carnival business instead of degrading it. By shrewd contracting, promoting and straightforward business dealings their most sanguine hopes have been realized, and they now have one of the largest and cleanest carnivals traveling, consisting of twenty-two complete and distinct shows, each with beautiful hand-carved wagon fronts and headed by showmen who are capable of getting the money. Messrs. Wortham and Allen are reaping a harvest.

The line-up: Wild Animal Show. C. A. Wortham, manager; Humana Roulette. C. A. Wortham, manager; Combined 1 and 2 Wild West. Buckskin Ben, manager; Jangle Show. Buckskin Ben, manager; Mlle. Christine. Wm. Smith, manager; Arabia. Geo. Donovan, manager; Seven-in-One. William Wallace, manager; What is It? William Wallace, manager; Glass Show. William Wallace, manager; Pennant Winners. Curry Howard, manager; Ice. Jess Snitterly, manager; Streets of Cairo. Chas. DeKreko, manager; International Theatre. Chas. DeKreko, manager; City of Yesterday. Chas. Bell, manager; Squeezer. Chas. Bell, manager; Paraphox's Daughter. Walter C. Van Horn, manager; Kit Carson Show. Geo. Smith, manager; Jumping Horse Carry-us-all. O. J. Bucklen, manager; Ferris Wheel. O. J. Bucklen, manager; Merry Widow Wheel. O. J. Bucklen, manager; Plantation. Red Murray, manager; Tiny. W. M. Ewing, manager.

From thirty to forty concessions are carried, many of which were with the show last season. Ben Frost operates four concessions; Joe La Velle is doing nicely with his five; The Plunders have added two more, and Geo. Johnson has three.

No expense has been spared in the free acts particularly. Ewing's Juvenile Band of 26 pieces; Dare Devil Demos. In his sensational Dip of Death; Ewing's Zommes, in drills, wall scaling and pyramid building, and the Sensational Guilties.

Messrs. Wortham and Allen have surrounded themselves with a capable dozen aide-de-camps, namely: Walter Stanley, general superintendent; Cliff Wodetsky, general press representative; Harry Sanger, promoter; O. J. O'Dell, promoter; W. D. Roberts, promoter; B. A. Gervely, secretary and treasurer; Walter C. Van Horn, superintendent of concessions and free acts; R. Dempsey, master transportation; Geo. Strube, master construction; Al. Goodwin, night watchman; Geo. Fowler, chief electrician; Harry Clutter, electrical engineer.

Mr. Wortham manages the show back, and Mr. Allen attends to the general contracting ahead.

Business at the Indianapolis State Fair was extraordinary, while business at Milwaukee State Fair exceeded all expectations. Illinois State Fair follows, with Arkansas State Fair, Ft. Smith Interstate and Southern fairs, carrying the show to November 25.

ADAMS SHOW NEWS.

The Adams Amusement Company is now playing the best time hooked by the company, playing last week at Fredericksburg, Va., to enormous crowds. The show was fifty miles from Washington, D. C., and Mr. and Mrs. Adams went to their home at Baltimore, Md., J. E. Mitchell and Doc Hamilton and his wife all went to their homes in Philadelphia for three days during the storm at Fredericksburg. The show consists of Adams' Old Plantation, O. L. Adams, manager; Electric Palace, J. E.

Mitchell, manager; Joy Ride, Jack Samsel, manager; Dorine, the Maid of the Mist, S. Sullivan, manager; Rasha, Wild Girl, Doc Hamilton, manager; Cagle's Big Vaudeville, Bert Cagle, manager; The Hippodrome, Doc Hamilton, manager; Carry-us-all and Ferris Wheel, George Osterling, manager. The music is furnished by Bontato's Royal Italian Band. Prof. Charles Cole is the free attraction with his sensational high dive.

Harry Perol and wife are with the show with their knock-down cats and babies; John Cautrell has the shooting gallery. Freedman and his concessions are doing fine. Big Bill from Georgia has the High-Striker, which seems to be one of the top money-getters. Mrs. Hamilton is running the Country Store. Mr. and Mrs. Young are doing good with the Candy Wheel. Katie, the Jap, and his bowling alley is one of the top-notchers. Charlie Hurdabaugh and his toss-up-in knife rack, is getting the money. Little Johnny Hayes, the post-card kid, has closed his gallery, and is now running the knife spindle.

Mrs. O. L. Adams is kept busy during business hours as Mr. Adams is now doing the advance work.

WINSLOW SHOW NOTES.

Col. J. D. Sweeny has the No. 1 ticket-box in the big annex, Jim Broderick, No. 2, and Bob Broderick, No. 3. The show is under the management of Fred Wheeler.

Charles Eckels paid a visit to Litchfield, Ill., last Sunday.

Andy Logsdon sold his cook-house at Olney, Ill., and has gone to Kansas City.

L. C. Kelley, general agent, has booked some big celebrations for the latter part of September and October. Whitehall and Shelbyville, Ill., on the atreils, are billed like a circus.

G. R. Fat returned to Watseka from Cripple Creek, Colo.

CARNIVAL NOTES.

George Wallace, general agent for the Welder Amusement Company, was a caller at The Billboard office last Wednesday, having come from Tennessee, where he had been booking the company for their first grand Southern tour, which starts at Portsmouth, Ohio, under the auspices of the Sheet Metal Workers the first week in October. Nicholasville, Ky., under the auspices of the firemen, follows. The official staff remains the same and is as follows:

W. H. Welder, manager; T. Bowlin, secretary; S. W. Welder, treasurer; Geo. Wallace, promoter; Geo. Conway, second advance; Freddie Kash; programs and queen contest; Max Goodwin and Charlie Barlow, hipposters. The Dixieland Minstrels, under the management of Thomas Sheets, is the feature attraction; the Palace of Electricity, M. Malcom, manager; Roock's Jungle Show; Princess Josephine, S. Williams, mgr.; Zanda, the woman of mystery. The Zandas, managers; The Igorote Villaz; Bert Kelly, manager; Sea Divers, S. A. Kurr, manager; Society Circus, White Johnson, manager; among the shows carried, while Captain Joe Milnor, the half-man high diver, is the feature free attraction.

John O. Smith of Reading, Pa., father of J. A. Macy, of Macy's Olympic Shows, has announced his intention of rejoining the shows at Traman, Ark., about September 20. He will place two baggage cars, one flat and a privilege car with the shows. Mr. Smith has disposed some of his real estate holdings in and about Reading and will put the Olympic Shows in Class A order. He is sole owner of same, J. A. Macy, (whose real name is J. Arthur Smith) is his son and general manager. The show is now in the forty-ninth successful week without closing and will stay out this winter in Alabama, Florida and Tennessee. The shows put in Sunday and Monday at White City Park, Springfield, Mo., and the balance of the week at the stock show at Cabool, Mo. Develo in the Cage of Death, and Armstrong's Ladies' Bane are the big features that have helped to make this show a success.

George H. Parker Amusement Company is playing in Texas to good business with the following line of shows: Enreka Shows, St. Pierre Brothers, managers; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Ramsey, piano and drums; Fred Blackwell, mental telepathy; Mrs. Al. St. Pierre, spectacles; St. Pierre Brothers, the Frog and the Clown Working World. L. A. Wright, manager; Jim Baugh, Plantation Shows; Alligator Joe's Five-in-One. F. V. Anderson, manager; Gladys Molder, Electric Lady Show. L. A. Wright, manager; carousel and Ferris wheel. The concessions are as follows: Novelty shooting gallery, Mrs. Coburn; hoop-in, S. Coburn; African dip. Walker; cat and hat rack, L. A. Wright; novelties, Mrs. Jim Baugh; high-striker, Baker. All under the general management of G. H. Parker.

Mrs. S. J. Cantam and son, Carleton, agent the week with her husband, manager of Cantam's Carnival, while the company was playing the Main State Fair at Lewistown. It seemed natural to see her in the ticket box again. Miss Phyllis Cantam, who has been visiting her father for the past month, returned home with her mother to enter school at the beginning of the school year. Wm. Keefe, who has had the ice-cream cone privilege with the company all season, has closed his stand and gone to Kansas City to join Pickett and his Photo Gallery, who has been working a park there all summer.

The White Hall (Ill.) Home-Coming Committee have closed contracts with the Four Casting Campbells, the Wahlund-Tekla Trio and the Duenn Sisters for free attractions at their home-coming and carnival, September 26, 27, 28 and 29. The Famous Winslow Shows, Electric Salina, the Dancing Girl, the Lion's Den are to furnish all the pay attractions. The Patterson (Ill.) Band is to furnish all the concert, free act and parade music. Everything will be on the streets.

W. I. Swain, manager of the Swain Stock Company, under canvas, entertained James F. Donaldson, general press agent of the John Robinson Circus, at Shelbyville, Tenn., during Mr. Swain's engagement in that city. Mr. Donaldson was escorted over the entire lot and shown the innermost secrets of Mr. Swain's methods of conducting his large and well-equipped aggregation.

The Cosmopolitan Shows No. 2 play Ft. Scott, Kan., week of September 18, under the auspices of the Ft. Scott Baseball Association. The members of the city objected to the appearance of the carnival company, claiming that it was demoralizing, but the mayor and council granted them permission to show without charging any license.

The Famous Winslow Shows have closed a contract with the Shelbyville (Ill.) Home-Coming Committee to furnish all the pay attractions for their home-coming week, October 9. Bud Mars, in his aeroplane, will be the free attraction.

Hugh Ettinger has left the George Chapman Amusement Company. This company has had a very successful season. An entire new outfit will be purchased for next season.

CARNIVAL CONVERSATION.

By "RED ONION."

To those who are and to those who claim—The easiest thing in the world is to find the people who are ready to claim the results of the brains and labor of another person. If I take it I give you credit for it; you do the same.

Carnival showmen who went into the circus business this season—How do you like your circus experiences? Which do you prefer, your lost bank roll or the experience? Are you as enthusiastic about a fifteen car show now as you were at the beginning of the season? I refer you to my previous tip in this matter.

The Coney Island Mardi-Gras, ending week September 16, marked the closing of the shows at that resort for the season. Many will take to the fairs, while others close until next season. The Mardi-Gras consisted principally of crowds, noise, confetti and floats. Shows never profit during such a week at Coney-by-the-Sea.

(Doc) Irving's Ralston Fire Walkers, from the Society Islands in the South Pacific, have been exhibiting in this country for several weeks. The company consists of the following natives: Ralston, priest; Ceril and Cenira, women, and Tetwaura and Gaston Hurl, men, the latter interpreter. The show is run by Charley Connelley, talker; Mark Hendricks, lecturer; Harry R. Brooks, tickets; Pat Dokerty and Joe Miller, canvas.

The Hartford Fair is reported a big "bloomer" for the shows—no reasons are given. There are reasons why it should not be. Hartford is a modern city.

You have got to take off your hat to Phil Hamburger, when it comes to girl show talkers. Phil has the line of "girl" talk that turns them in the direction of the ticket box.

G. W. Allen's Electric Girl should prove to be one of the strongest cards under canvas. It stands in its class on a distinct novelty. There are limitless possibilities for its elaboration into a positive sensation. Showmen, look this over if you want to make a ten-strike.

Reports from Orangeburg (N. Y.) Fair are that the people went there to eat, as lunch boxes were much in evidence. All showmen and concessionaires know how much business can be done at an "ent fest."

"Doc" Irving's Art Theatre is a neat frame-up that gets the money. The stage is under the direction of Mrs. Charles Connelley, with the Misses Bessie Stanley and Mena Costello as the leading beauties; Nelson (Pete) Brothers, talker; Mrs. Brothers, tickets, and Mike Martin, canvas. This show is now in Canada.

The Great Everett's Big Mystery Show features Miss Virginia La Belle, known as the Lady Raffles, in what is called The Escape from Neptune's Prison. Wm. Everetts, manager; H. E. Powers, talker and tickets; Chris Shontz, canvas. It is a good show, too.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Collier have one of the finest knife racks that travels the road. They know how to frame up neatly and are always improving their rack in some way. They also work hard and get the money.

The Poughkeepsie Fair is not a farmers' fair. The gentleman from the country (he with the muddy boots and bewiskered chin) was noticeable by his absence; which was plainly felt at the box offices of the various shows. On the big day many were compelled to reduce their admission prices as an inducement to get even—a condition which is generally reversed.

The shows at Poughkeepsie were: Luken's Trained Wild Animal Circus; Dou Fulano, educated horse; Beautiful Orient; Loretta, two-headed baby; Luken's Three-in-One; Dunworth's Five-in-One; Irving's Art Theatre; Irving's Ralston Fire Walkers; Buffalo Bill and Pawnee team; Wild West Moving Pictures; Heckler's Bill's Wild West Moving Pictures; Heckler's Bill's Circus; Allen's Electric Girl; The Great Everetts; big mystery show; Circling Wave, and Collihan & Dirkin's Merry-go-Round and Ferris Wheel, and last, but not least, Rubber-Neck Joe. Every kind of concession at this fair except pop corn.

Geo. W. (Windy George) Eisele, known some years ago as one of the best of all-day talkers in the business, has retired from that line on account of his health. He is now running a fountain pen concession, and at the close of the fair season goes West to a health resort. George has been a hard worker.

Robert (Doc) Irving, who has such shows as the Ralston Fire Walkers, Diving Girls, Electric Girl, Art Theatre and others, says: "The people haven't the money to spend for fair-ground amusements." I can't help it, Doc.

Talent and labor—Regarding agents, press agents and talkers, it may be well to employ those who possess talent that will enable them to labor intelligently. Do you get me?

Oscar V. Babcock, the greatest of all the loop-the-death-trap-loop and gap riders, has some excellent fair bookings for his act. Babcock rides with such accuracy that we wonder sometimes if he is not a mechanical man, without that his act is a during and pleasing one.

The spectacular production, The Downfall of Rain, such as was witnessed week of August 23, does not appeal to managers directly, although it did wonders to help the business anticipated at the fairs later on.

W. Manrice Tobin, known at the Buffalo Exposition as the king of talkers, and who has have prepared a little spread, and smugly the young men into the apartment with the aid of a large basket and rope. They are seen by Prof. Jenkins, whose entry into the room is a bombshell to the hilarious party, but the professor proves to be a good fellow and proceeds to enjoy himself with the rest. Miss Prim, passing the door, has her suspicions aroused. She enters, but the young men hide themselves, the professor under a couch. She exits, not quite satisfied that all is well. The professor emerges from the escapade without being suspected and is hailed as a jolly good fellow by the students. On the same reel is.

THROUGH THE DELLS OF WISCONSIN IN A MOTOR BOAT (Scenic; length, 250 feet).—Taken in the dells of Wisconsin, showing the shady nooks, the wooded cliffs and the splendid stretches of water, a panorama of picturesque islands, rocks and crooks in the stream. (Copyright 1911 by Independent Moving Pictures Co. of America.)

BETWEEN TWO LOVES (Drama; release September 23; length, 1,000 feet).—Grace is the daughter of Farmer Howard. Her mother is dead and she and her father are inseparable companions. Ben Wagner, a clean-cut young fellow, is engaged to work on the farm. Grace and the farm laborer fall in love, but the old farmer refuses to permit their marriage, with the result that they marry and leave him. The young husband dies, leaving his wife and child in destitute circumstances. She appeals to her father, but he refuses to own her as his daughter. One day her house is destroyed by fire, and, homeless, she takes her child and starts on foot for her old home. She arrives exhausted and seats herself and the baby on the porch. The old farmer, a soured, disappointed man, is seated by the fireside thinking of his daughter. Suddenly he hears the crying of an infant; he opens the door and his daughter and her baby fall into his arms. There is a happy reconciliation and the daughter assumes her old place at the head of the household of the happy old farmer. (Copyrighted 1911 by Independent Moving Pictures Co. of America.)

POWERS

GRAY WOLF'S GRIEF (Drama; release Sept. 12; length, 1,000 feet).—Doctor Enth-bone and wife are spending a vacation in the West. The wife's horse runs away, and she is rescued from death by Gray Wolf's squaw, named Silver. Heels, the four become great friends. Silver Heels is taken sick, and the doctor discovers she has tuberculosis. He tells Gray Wolf that her life can not be saved unless she is taken to a city where she can be treated, so Gray Wolf allows Silver Heels to accompany the doctor East. Several months pass and Gray Wolf imagines he hears his squaw calling him. He makes his way to the city, arriving in time for Silver Heels to breathe her last in his arms. Imagining the doctor and his loss, he is about to kill him, when Silver Heels appears and stays his hand. He carries her West and buries her alongside the tepee where he can always be with her.

THE HORSE THIEF (Drama; release Sept. 16; length, 1,000 ft.).—A half-breed and his squaw hold up the sheriff and his wife and steal their horses. A band of cowboys later recognize the horses and force the Indian and his squaw to return to town with them. The sheriff is grateful to the half-breed for not shooting his wife during the holdup, and claims that he lost the horses in a card game. The half-breed is freed, but is ashamed of what he has done, and returns the horses to their owner and swears to lead an honest life henceforth. He tears a playing card in half, giving the sheriff one part and keeping the other himself. Some time later the sheriff loses his position through drink, and the half-breed, a model citizen, is elected in his stead. The new sheriff captures a suspected rustler, and in searching his prisoner finds half a playing card. He matches the piece, recognizes his one-time benefactor, and realizing that "one good turn deserves another," sets him free.

phan girl in financial difficulties, a large sum of money if she would aid him in a "little joke." The broker's plot was to have the stenographer hide in the artist's rooms, then place a love note where it could be found by the engaged girl, making it appear as though the artist had dropped it. The plan worked; the girl hurries to the artist's rooms, confronts him and discovers the girl hidden in the room. The girl broke the engagement and the man who had wrecked two lives was happy over his infamous scheme. One day the stenographer and her sister were passengers on a boat, as was also the artist. The little sister fell overboard and the artist, at the risk of his life, saved her. The girl then realized the wrong she had done, and going to the other woman confessed everything, with the result that the two sweethearts were again brought together. THE HONEYMOONERS (Comedy-drama; release September 22; length, 1,000 feet).—A young couple on their wedding day determined to outwit their friends and escape the jokes that were to be played. The bride slips out the back way to the train they were to leave on; the groom follows until the last minute and then—misses the train. The poor little bride has no money or tickets and is put off the train. The groom takes the next train after a wait of several hours. The train is held up by a wreck, adding to the unhappy young man's woes. The wreck is finally cleared away and the train continued along. The husband was in the car telling a sympathetic acquaintance of his unhappy lot. Suddenly he looked out of the window and saw a little woman crouched beside the track, tear-stained and miserable. It was the bride. He pulled the bell rope and stopped the train. Then rushing madly down the track, he picked up his bride and they vowed they would go through life hand in hand, because, when they were not together, something awful was more than likely to happen.

Business is not up to expectations, and Mutt takes it out on Jeff, with the result that the dog catches free Jeff from Mutt's clutches and take him away with the stray dogs. On the same reel is.

OBLIGING A FRIEND (Comedy; length, 1,000 feet).—Kitty, the cook, was discharged for engaging in boxing lessons with her pugilistic steady. Mary informs her husband that unless he returned home that evening with a cook, she would go home to her mother. John is unable to get one, so Jack Wilton, who has been practicing with a Biddy's masquerade costume, is pressed into service. Jack takes his place in the kitchen, but Mary sees her husband fastening the new cook's dress. Tears. Kitty returns and finds her "steady" with his arms about the new servant. The rolling-pin descends on Jack's head. Jack leaps through the window, minus the skirt, which Mary has snatched as he passed, and dashes down the street, pursued by the neighbor's dog and a howling mob.

THE YOUNG DOCTOR (Drama; release September 22; length, 1,000 feet).—If only Jack Walton had received his "sheepskin" and would come out in answer to their urgent invitation. Bob felt sure that Jim would be cured, but under Dr. Martin's old-fashioned treatment, he was growing worse. Fortunately Jack had received his diploma that week and on getting his friend's letter, started West at once. And, true to Bob's prediction, Jim was soon on the road to recovery. However, Jack had angered the old doctor, who would have nothing to do with the young man until Mrs. Martin lay at death's door and her husband had given up all hope, then he called the young man to his aid. Luckily the good woman's life was saved, and later Dr. Jack Walton's sign hung beneath that of Mr. Martin—for Miss Edith Martin had been instrumental in uniting the two doctors in family as well as professional ties.

rough Westerner, who has staked a claim in a rich mining district. Very soon the two sons become deeply enamored, and a rivalry starts between the father and the boys. Flowers, candy and lunches follow in quick succession. The father is soon put in the background. One of the boys gets his brother in disgrace by means of a practical joke, and the older son thinks he is the favored suitor. About this time the Westerner arrives. Having struck a rich claim, he comes to claim his bride. She accepts him at once, and the Glens are left mortified and chagrined. They finally accept the situation, and take the matter as a joke.

NELLIE'S SOLDIER (drama; release Sept. 22; length, 1,000 feet).—Sheriff Blinn of Viscera County, California, has been receiving a rake-off from a gang of timber thieves. The Government sends a detachment of cavalry to eject the intruders. Sergeant Bell orders them to leave, which they do, swearing vengeance. Bell telegraph for authority to arrest the sheriff. The telegraph operator, Nellie Mason, with whom Bell has fallen in love, is sending the message when the sheriff and a gang enter and insult Bell. In the scuffle that follows a pistol is discharged, killing a bystander. The sheriff intends to falsely accuse Bell of the murder, and Nellie hides him in an old deserted cabin in the mountains. She then wires to hurry the authority to arrest the sheriff, which she recolves and notifies the troops, who arrive just in time to save her and her lover from being killed in the deserted cabin by the outlaw sheriff and his followers.

GREAT NORTHERN.

THE CONSPIRATORS (Drama; released Sept. 16; length, 852 feet).—Mr. Wilson, a solicitor, receives a wire from a client, a confirmed invalid, to call upon him and arrange for the disposal of his stocks and shares. His clerk, a member of a gang of accountants, reads the telegram and wires a message to the gang that a good haul can be made. The first epistle does not please him, and he crumples it up and throws it on the floor. The clerk joins his confederates, and Wilson is captured and confined in a dungeon, while the clerk takes his bag and goes to call on the client. Meantime a servant has found the crumpled note and informed Mrs. Wilson, who calls in Sherlock Holmes, who goes at once to the client, and disguising himself, takes his place. The clerk is overpowered when he calls and Holmes, with the aid of the police, eventually captures the rest of the gang and restores Wilson to his family.

LUX.

BILL AS A BILLPOSTER (Comedy; released September 15; length, 573 feet).—Bill gets a job as a billposter. His zeal in placing his advertisements in every nook and cranny creates much merriment. He finally gets blown sky-high, but unlike Humpty-Dumpty, he soon gets put together again. On the same reel is:

HIS MANIA FOR COLLECTING ANTIQUES (Comedy; length, 357 feet).—An enthusiastic antique collector purchases a suit of armor and wears it home, hidden under his overcoat. Many amusing incidents take place on the way home, but the suit of armor renders its wearer impervious to the assaults of those whose wrath he arouses; he is even victor in a combat with a professional strong man. Arriving home, however, his exasperated wife, who has been much annoyed by his behavior, discovers that his head is still vulnerable, and belabors him with less consideration than vigor.

BILL AS AN EXPRESS MESSENGER (Comedy; release Sept. 22; length, 344 feet).—This is an exceedingly amusing comedy, showing Bill seeking a position. He finally secures one as express messenger, where we see him pushing a tricycle express cart. The results can best be imagined. On the same reel is:

THE STOLEN DIAMOND (Drama; length, 629 feet).—An old miner finds a very large diamond. At a celebration in honor of his success the diamond is stolen. The thief manages to throw suspicion on the sweetheart of the daughter of the miner. All believe him guilty except the girl. The sheriff, in examining the cabinet from which the diamond has been stolen, finds a knife that belongs to the accuser. He is confronted with the evidence, and at the point of a revolver forced to lead the sheriff to the spot where he has hidden the diamond. The diamond is restored to its rightful owner, who, as a compensation, gives his daughter in marriage to the lover who has been wrongfully accused.

CHAMPION.

THE BLACK HORSE TROOP OF CULVER (Educational; release September 25; length, 950 feet).—Showing this troop of horsemen in their daring riding feats at the Culver (Ind.) Military Academy, one of the foremost private schools of this character in the country. An educational film of high value.

THE COOK OF THE RANCH (Comedy; release September 27; length, 950 feet).—A cowboy falls in love with the cook of the ranch, but she pretends to make merry of his tender sentiments. In a spirit of mischief the cowboy scrawled a note to the cook asking for a tryst. He then sent a similar note to a "haythin' Chinese" who worked on the place, and then notified the foreman to be on hand to help along the fun. There was war when China and "Ould Ireland" met. But the joke was so funny that it soon traveled all over the ranch, and the cook overhearing it, seized a rolling-pin and butcher knife and started for the cowboy. It was some chase, but luckily the cowboy escaped. Meantime everybody was hungry, and the cowboy appealed to the cook, telling her how madly and jealously he loved, with the result that the cook was pacified and the hunger of all was soon assuaged.

STAR FILMS REGISTERED

FOR $200 (Drama; released Sept. 21; length, 1,000 feet).—Scotty's only daughter, Ethel, was gradually becoming blind. Doctors stated that an operation was necessary, costing $200. Scotty did not have the money, and to make things worse, lost his job. He secured work at an oil well, and one day while on a special job, saved the foreman's little daughter's life when she had strayed too near a cliff. His heroic act was witnessed by the frantic mother through a surveying instrument. At the well, Scotty fell exhausted and was carried to the foreman's house. On regaining consciousness, he told of his own little girl, whom he was struggling to save. The tale excited the sympathy of the men, all of whom had witnessed the valiant deed. A collection was taken up, with the foreman as the largest contributor, and Scotty was enabled to save his little girl from a calamity shortly worse than death.

"CHARLESTON FLOOD AND HURRICANE"

Regular Imp Release of September 18th.
(Copyright, 1911, by I. M. P. Co.)

It is a great picture, a grand scoop, a climax to the Imp's special efforts to make you glad you're Independent. Despite the fact that the picture was taken in the midst of flood and hurricane, it is clear and sharp. It is a marvelous feat in photography. There are scenes of tremendous waves dashing over docks, with buildings in the background denuded of windows and roofs askew; buildings crumbled like houses of cards; railroad tracks lifted from their beds; heavily loaded freight cars overturned; huge trees uprooted; vessels driven ashore and stranded high and dry; streets flooded; vehicles almost huddled deep in the flood. In the midst of all this, Freeman Owens kept turning the crank of his moving picture camera, thinking nothing of his own neck, but glorying in the fact that the Imp would have another beat-of-the-world. Wire your exchange this very instant! Show your colors! Help the Imp in its efforts to give you what you want!

MARY'S MASQUERADE (Comedy; release Sept. 20; length, 1,000 feet).—Mary, niece of Mrs. Van Cort, arrives from school, and volunteers to take the place of one of Mrs. Cort's guests who is unable to attend a dinner party. Mary puts on one of Mrs. Cort's gowns, and after tripping and stumbling over the train, runs straight into a man, whom she meets in the hall, and who turns out to be the guest of honor. Mr. Randolph, Mary tries hard to uphold the dignity of her position, but occasionally lapses into her girlish manners, which are particularly fascinating to Randolph. She finally comes to grief trying to dance, and goes for a good cry. Randolph discovers through an autographed photograph who she is, and searching for her, finds her in a summer house, where he manages not only to dry her tears, but to produce a smile. Moreover, it is not impossible that in a few years she will change her name to one beginning with an "R."

A CURE FOR THE CRIME (Comedy; release Sept. 27; length, 1,000 feet).—Bill Crook, a sneak thief, enters the home of Dr. Livingston and is caught in the act. The surgeon, in a humorous way, gives him the alternative of arrest or submitting to an operation on his skull. The thief chooses the latter, and is led by the doctor and his colleagues to the operating room, where they place him under the influence of ether, after which they bandage his head. When he awakes he is made to believe that his bump of acquisitiveness has been removed, thereby making it impossible for him to commit a crime. He is also warned that the removal of the haudages under a month means instant death. Bill goes forth under the impression that he can not commit a crime. Although he has a number of interesting encounters with temptation, he pursues honesty to the end. At the end of four weeks, Doctor Livingston removes his bandages and pronounces him cured, after which he rewards him for an act of bravery and secures a permanent position for Bill, who is a crook no longer.

THE DEATH OF NATHAN HALE (Educational; release Sept. 29; length 1,000 feet).—Captain Nathan Hale receives orders to join in the defense of Long Island. On his way he stops to visit his sweetheart, where he finds his rival, Dalton, who has just proposed and been rejected by Dorothy. Dalton, seeing that Hale is the favored suitor, resolves to be a soldier also, and enlists with the British. Hale joins his command, but the tide of battle goes against the Continentals, and Washington orders a retreat to New York. Washington is anxious to learn the movements of the British, and Hale volunteers to obtain the information. Disguised, he makes his way to the British army, where he is recognized by Dalton. Hale is arrested and condemned to be hanged as a spy. In prison he is not permitted to write to his mother or sweetheart, but Dorothy manages to slip by the guards and bid him a tearful farewell. The next day Hale is led out and executed as a spy. His last words are: "I regret I have but one life to lose for my country." The last scene shows a statue of Nathan Hale in City Hall Park, New York City.

THE MAIDEN OF THE PIE-FACED INDIANS (Comedy; release Sept. 30; length, 500 feet).—The travesty begins with an encampment of Indians eating their daily luncheon of Boston beans and custard pie. Ha-Ha-Minnie, the

CIRCUS AND WILD WEST

Miss Saunders, Equestrienne with Sells-Floto Shows, Seriously Injured While Performing in St. Louis—Hagenbeck-Wallace and 101 Ranch Wild West Have Merry War in Arkansas

RIDER SERIOUSLY INJURED.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 15 (Special to The Billboard).—While riding in a Roman standing race at the close of the afternoon performance of the Sells-Floto Circus here, September 12, Miss Mammie Saunders, equestrienne, was thrown to the ground and trampled on by the horses of another rider, who followed so closely he could neither stop his team nor turn aside in time to prevent the accident. Miss Saunders was leading in the race when one horse lagged momentarily while the other kept on going, causing her to lose her balance. She attempted to catch one horse but missed her hold. She was rushed to the City Hospital where it was found that her back and breast were bruised and her right shoulder and neck had been severely wrenched. Whether she was injured internally could not be determined at the time.

OPPOSITION WAS LIVELY.

Fort Smith, Ark., Sept. 15 (Special to The Billboard).—It was a merry war that was carried on in this city between the 101 Ranch Wild West Show, the Wallace-Hagenbeck and the Ringling Shows. The Ranch was the first on the field, with the Wallace a close second, and the Ringlings a week later. The Ranch being the first on the field, and a Wild West Show, they did not resort to extreme killing, but the business all through the state. At Muskogee the business was almost the same as here, but the crowd that were unable to gain admission were not as large as in this city.

THE TWO BILLS SHOW.

By F. AL. PEARCE.

As I mentioned in my last letter everyone was looking forward to spending a pleasant Sunday in Kansas City, and I believe it is safe for me to say that no one was disappointed. The day was clear but warm, and as all the parks were still open and the majority of the theatres as well, there were plenty of places to visit and all were well patronized.

Monday being Labor Day, we naturally looked for a tremendous business, but throughout the entire morning it rained, which had a tendency to injure our afternoon business, though we had a very good attendance. At night business was all to the good, practically a turn-away.

Mrs. C. N. Thompson concluded her visit to the show here and returned to her home in Florida. On Sunday she gave a farewell dinner to a number of her immediate friends. The dinner was held at the Coates House and the guests included Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Wilcox, Tony Mason, Tom Smith, Bob Cavanaugh and Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Thompson.

Tuesday, Harrisonville, Mo., where we were somewhat late in arriving, due to a delay in two circuses went at it just as they did in the days past. It was a banner fight and the Ranch and the Wallace Show were on the boards, but the Ringlings were denied space.

The Ranch played to more than capacity at both shows but the attendance at the Wallace performances indicated that the circus lovers were waiting. Beyond all question the 101 Ranch drew the largest crowd of people into the city of any other tented exhibition that has ever been here and they were not the people who content themselves with seeing the street parade and then going home. They all flocked to the grounds and those who were fortunate enough to gain admission saw the show. Many were disappointed as the tents, notwithstanding their magnitude, could not accommodate them all.

CLOSES WITH YOUNG BUFFALO.

Miss Jolla Allen, who with her dancing horse, Teddy, has just closed a successful season with the Young Buffalo Wild West as a feature act, is about to enter vanderville for the winter season.

101 RANCH DOING BIG BUSINESS.

Oklahoma City, Okla., Sept. 16.—The Billboard was correct when it predicted that this city would be a battle ground for some of the big ones this season. The 101 Ranch Wild West Show has come and gone and did a land-office business here. While this aggregation has improved wonderfully both in magnitude and merit since last being seen here, the fact that it was in its own state helped to make it the strongest show that has ever played the town. It was utterly impossible to take care of the thousands who flocked to it and two days could have been very profitably put in here. The Barnum Show follows the Ranch in here on September 21 and will do splendid business, but it is questionable if they will draw the crowd as did the Wild West Show. Sells-Floto is also due here but the people of this section do not take kindly to the two-bit shows. The 101 Ranch has been doing a phenomenal getting out of the Kansas City yards. However, we were there in time to handle all the business that we got, for this is a very small town and to make matters worse, located in the "Show Me" state.

Wednesday, Nevada, another one, in early with quite a long haul to the lot. Nothing exciting occurred here other than the attendance of some four hundred inmates of the "Daffydill" factory located at the back of the show lot. Representatives of one of the leading moving picture concerns have been busy for some time with us, securing new pictures of the show in general, and any other subjects that may strike their fancy, using the various people with the show to good advantage.

Thursday, Joplin, arrived early, long haul to the lot. It was not the regular show lot here, for we located in Electric Park, a very fine amusement resort, containing riding devices and other forms of amusement. Here our business was very satisfactory at both performances, notwithstanding that the street car company met with considerable difficulty in handling the crowds.

Friday, Pittsburg, Kan. Here we had a big day's business with a night house that was really wonderful for a town of this size. One of the grooms was accidentally kicked by a horse to Joplin and though no serious results were anticipated he died during the night while making the run here. He had only joined the show at Kansas City on Monday and nothing is known concerning him. His name he gave to the boss of his department as Thomas O'Brien, but no one knows whether this is correct or not.

Saturday, Ft. Scott, Here, too, we had a long haul, and on to a soft lot, one that sure kept them busy getting the show on. In the afternoon we had a capacity house; at night only fair business.

From time to time this season we have had visits from some of the "light-fingered" gentry, who not being satisfied with plying their nefarious trade in the towns that we visit, also venture on the show lot, and in a number of instances to their sorrow, especially so in Ft. Scott. A party of three were all ready to operate at the big ticket wagon when it opened for the afternoon sale. They were soon spotted, also captured, and carried to the big show top, where "razor backs," canvas men, ticket-sellers, ushers: in fact about every one that could do go got in a few punches, each apparently vying with the other to see who could hit the hardest. When they were finally turned loose they stood not on the order of going but did depart and in extreme haste. This is the fate that is in store for all these fellows that are caught around here.

Fred Gerner, our high-jumper, claims he has found a "White Hope" in one of the working men on the show, and he is sincere in his belief, so much so, in fact, that he intends taking him to his quarters at the close of our season and thoroughly try him out.

Speaking of the close of our season brings to mind the fact that there are many rumors about concerning the same around here, but, as it has not been officially announced, it is just as well not to place any bets on the date.

While we were in Wichita, the members of Billy Sweeney's Band accompanied by C. A. White, secretary of the local lodge of Eagles, journeyed to Fairmount Cemetery and placed a handsome floral remembrance on the grave of A. V. Schmidt, a well-known musician, who was one of the big show hand here last season, and who has at different times been connected with the leading musical organizations. At the time of his death he was with the Cohan-Harris Minstrels.

A few of the boys joined the Eagles while in Wichita, and a number of others joined the T. M. A. Lodge in Kansas City.

It has always been quite customary to disperse with straw hats on the first day of September. Some of the boys here were a little dilatory about doing so and there was no end of fun in watching the antics of those trying to secure and demolish the straw sky pieces.

A very amusing and likewise interesting incident occurred at Emporia, Kan. A number of the boys were having a sociable game of "craps" along the railroad near the sleepers, when two of the town officials, loaded down with the power and authority to act, appeared on the scene. They had no inclination to take part in the game and shoot, though they did have their guns out and in readiness. Their part in the game consisted merely of relieving the boys of all money in sight and then they departed as silently and as mysteriously as they came. Since then the boys have been telling about what they should have done but have completely forgotten what they did do.

Major Little has left for a few days' visit to his home at Pawnee, Okla. Generally speaking, good health prevails around the show and every one seems to be happy, and now, not wishing to monopolize all the space in this issue I will close for this time.

HERE AND THERE.

By GUY WEADICK.

New York, September 13.—Arrived back in God's country last Saturday on the Lusitania and was sure glad to get back, notwithstanding our seven months spent across the "creek" was a success from every viewpoint. In fact, we go back next spring to play engagements contracted for before we left.

Replying through the columns of The Billboard to many inquiries received while abroad from vaudeville artists and others in various branches of the business, as to conditions prevailing in Great Britain and Europe regarding the American acts, would say I wrote an article on this subject in Paris and it appeared in one of the issues of The Billboard during the month of May. However, I will say again that American acts are well liked over there, provided they are of good material and are understood by our English cousins. The fact that it is an American act, alone, does not warrant its being a success. Many artists going over there with an act which is a pronounced success in America, have to make considerable alterations in their show before it is really understood and appreciated. These are the wise ones. The fellow who says, "Well, they liked it this way in America and I won't change it," is the one who invariably sails back without work and knocks the country. But he who sticks to the old adage, "When you are in Rome do as the Romans do," goes ahead and collects each week. That is what he went over for. Another point—in rare instances an act going to Europe on "spec," gets away with it. These cases are very rare, and an artist going over on the "spec" basis is taking a full chance. Again, do not believe all the stories you hear about how much more money they pay over there than they do in America, because, as a general rule, the salaries there are not as large as here. True, your railroad fares in England are not as high as in the United States. If an act is in right, it is usually booked away ahead, with contracts that are as good as gold. But on the continent the jumps are sometimes very high and the excess rate on engagements very high. The only way to play safe if you contemplate going across the water to work and make money, is to be booked over from this side by a responsible agent, receiving your contracts before sailing. Examine them closely before signing. If any of the clauses are objectionable or anything not satisfactory to you, have it changed. Do not let it go and kick over there. There are some very nice engagements to be played over there, and the managers, as a rule, try to make your stay a pleasant one. Many Americans are recognized headliners in Europe and are always working. As I said before, it is a good place to work if you get in, but if you can't get in by being booked over from America, you do not improve your chances any by going over on "spec." Duke R. Lee, who has been chief of the cowboys with the California Frank Show, tells me he has severed his connections with that show to embark on a new venture. I also hear he is contemplating another marriage.

Reports from San Francisco announce that Gus Hornbrook's two big Wild West features, Cheyenne Days, on the Orpheum Circuit, and Arizona Joe's Broncho Busters, on the Pantages Time, are receiving the hearty welcome from Californians that is only bestowed upon such clever and sensational exhibitions as given by Otto Kille, Jimmie Parker, Art Bowlen, Adelle Von Old, Lucille Minkell and Martin Van Bercy who are the principals in the above-mentioned acts.

From Cheyenne, Wyo., comes the following list of victors in the contest held at the World's Greatest Frontier Day Celebration, under the direction of Chas. R. Irwin of that city:

Champion bucking horse rider of the world for 1911—Chas. McKinley of Plattville, Colo., on Denver; 2d, Frank Carter of La Grange, Wyo., on Rocking Chair; 3d, Chas. Farra of Depew, Okla., on Whizzer; 4th, Hugh Clark of Cheyenne, Wyo., on Wild Cat; 5th, Clate Danks of Cheyenne, Wyo., on Miller Kid; 6th, Ed McGarry of Bear Creek, Wyo., on Archibishop. Amateur contest—1st, Ernest Green; 2d, Hugh Steinhilber; 3d, Everett McGuehin; 4th, P. Williams.

Champion ropers (roping in teams)—1st, A. L. Clark and Buffalo Vernon; 2d, Webb and McKinley; 3d, Dolan and Dolan.

Wild horse race—1st, Silk Carter; 2d, F. R. Curtis; 3d, Will Fitzgerald.

Col. Fred T. Cummins is back again fresh from foreign triumphs. I visited him yesterday in Jersey City, in the Union Trust Building, the largest office building in town. He has located in a suite of four offices and a large bill room, where already his assistants are framing up new "dope" on special lines of new paper for next season, when the Colonel says he is going on the road "bigger, better and grander than ever." The large reception room in his suite is fitted up in an artistic way, with photos of Wild West celebrities, many of whom lay claim to the fact that it was with the Colonel's show they first gained fame in the Wild West world. Indian costumes and weapons of war, curios, etc., adorn the walls and give the room just the aspect one would expect to surround a man of Col. Cummins' type. The office force consists of three clerks and two stenographers, and the "big smoke" next to the Colonel is Geo. E. Kiley, who has been associated with the Cummins enterprises for years. From the genuine earnestness and hustle evinced by all concerned with the office, it sure looks like another big one on the rails next season. But Col. Cummins says he wants it distinctly understood that he is framing up this new independent of any other showmen, contrary to a recent rumor that others were interested.

Jim Kinney, the cowboy, formerly with the Two Bills and 101 Ranch Show, is at present with the King Carlo Wild West at Coney Island, as is Charlie Robbins, who is chief cowboy.

W. E. Hawks Jr. is at Bennington, Vt. His father, W. E. Hawks Sr., died a few days ago in that city and will be remembered as one of the cattle kings of Idaho in the good old days, "before the grazer and the wire fence east the long shadow over the open range forever."

Arthur Voegtlin has again outdone himself in the wonderful scenic production of Around the World, the new show at the Hippodrome in New York City. All those who have been fortunate enough to witness his former artistic creations, upon viewing his latest, can only sit and admire and gasp. "What next?" Mr. Voegtlin is truly a master of his craft, and what is more, a capital fellow with it. He counts his friends by the thousands, all of whom join in wishing him continued success in his already famous work.

CIRCUS GOSSIP.

The Frank A. Robbins' Show is again on the Eastern shore after thirty-three days in Michigan, where it played to the largest business for years. But two bad days were had, both due to heavy rains.

Frank Rose is now acting as twenty-four-hour man of the Hagenbeck-Wallace Show, filling the vacancy made by Charles Phene, who is sick at his home in Denver, Colo.

Albert Hohendorf, late of the program department, has been appointed boss property man with the Hagenbeck-Wallace Shows.

Mrs. Kelley, of the Four Kelleys, wire act, with the Wallace-Hagenbeck Show, is sick at her home in Petersburg, Ill.

Dr. T. J. Stinkard and wife joined the Hagenbeck-Wallace Shows at Jonesboro, Ark.

Charles H. Aldridge has closed his season as stage manager and interlocutor for J. J. Magee's Old Virginia and Southern Dixieland Company, and is now at his home in Uniontown, Pa.

The good car No. 1 of the Young Buffalo Wild West arrived in Charleston, W. Va., Saturday night, September 2, and found the citizens there busy in preparation for Labor Day celebration. The city was in gala attire, waiting to entertain the thousands that were invited and came from miles around; it was afterward estimated that 20,000 visitors were entertained. The elaborate program was headed by an excellently organized street parade in which every reputable business concern was represented by appropriately decorated floats and right here is where Young Buffalo commenced making known his early advent in the city. Car Manager George A. Keady engaged a large flat wagon on which he erected an eight-sheet billboard, draped it appropriately and securing an especially choice position in the long parade line, sent it forth with the full car crew of agents aboard, announcing through megaphones our date in the city and covering the boards throughout the march with paper. This proved very interesting to the thousands of spectators who lined the streets, and a great ad for Young Buffalo. Of the program features on the Kanawha River, besides boat races, etc., it was announced some local man would jump from the bridge railing, 90 feet into the river. This feat did not appear worthy of the plaudits of so vast an assemblage, in the mind of one of our agents, Charles F. Meyers, of Pittsburgh Local No. 3, I. A. B. & B. A. of A. and, arrayed in a hatline costume, he mounted the topmost part of the bridge structure above the driveway, refraining from the usual "ape-tacular stall" of the professional high diver, he dived gracefully head foremost, as straight as an arrow into the river, 138 1/2 feet below. Meyers is the first man who ever dove from this point, and his performance in more ways than one is remarkable, considering it was his first attempt above 50 feet, and his lack of preparation. It certainly was a pretty stunt and I have no doubt a good brush will next season be lost from the ranks of the hippsters and a nervous young man will be bidding for honors among the death-defiers.

Garrett Johnson, formerly a banner painter, haritone and concert player and sideshow ticket seller with the Downie and Wheeler Shows, residing at Mr. Wheeler's home town, Oxford, Pa., completed the painting of advance car No. 2 while at Georgetown, Del., September 8. The car was tastefully decorated with red trimmings, while the background was of white. It is one of the most attractive bill cars that has passed on the P. B. & W. Railroad lines for years. Mr. Johnson, while at Georgetown, made many friends, and is expecting to be a guest of his fellow townsman, Wheeler, on the date of the show in that city.

At Oelwein, Iowa, the Gollmar Show encountered one of the worst wind storms of the season, the storm coming up at 1:30 p. m., and lasting till 2:30. The big tent was about half filled with people, and a stampede for the exits was made. Fortunately no one in the audience was injured during the rush. The presence of mind of all the employees of the show, who assured the audience there was no danger, prevented a panic. The menagerie and big tent was damaged by being badly torn by the wind.

J. M. Richards, in charge of advertising car No. 2, of the Kit Carson Buffalo Ranch Wild West Show, has the following crew: Harry Beltz, bass billposter, assisted by G. H. Paadgett, Denver Smith, Simon Slade, Bill Chapman, C. H. Kinghertz, Al Colvard, Dan Murphy, E. O'Connell, C. H. Glouster, H. Buckner, in charge of lithographs; A. E. Wallace, assistant; C. L. Martin and D. I. O'Neill, hammers; Ed. Barton, programs; Jack Conway, chef; Walt Moran, porter.

Sig Santelle's Circus gave two performances to big crowds at Rockville, Conn., September 1. The Santelle Show is a one-ring show, playing small cities and towns. It carries a good-sized menagerie. Each and every act met with approval and received hearty applause, especially Oscar Lowande, hareback rider, jumping from one horse to another, making two complete somersaults, also the Lowande Family, with the tally-ho act.

California Frank's Wild West opened in Philadelphia, Pa., September 6, on the lot occupied earlier in the season by the Two Bills and did excellent business. Perfect weather aided in increasing the receipts and the show itself was highly commended and welcomed after a complete season's absence of outdoor organizations since the early openings here of the other tent and arena shows. One accident marred the opening performance when Kill Hundreds, a Sioux Indian, was thrown from his horse during a race with a cowgirl and trampled by two of the ponies behind him. The Indian's leg, arm and ribs were fractured, and his condition was regarded as serious.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Fisher, Mr. and Mrs. E. LaMar, Arthur LaMar and Jack Ernst, of the Barnum and Bailey Show, spent Sunday, September 10, at Bloomington, Ill. The show played in Decatur on the 9th, and the show folks took advantage of the opportunity to spend the holiday at home. Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Fisher and Jack Ernst expect to enter vaudeville at the close of the circus season.

Jack Anslet has withdrawn from the Goldman & Anslet Shows and has purchased a new outfit—tent, 70-ft. round top and 2 30-ft. middle pieces, and will open a vaudeville show at once near Dallas, Tex. A big band and orchestra will be a special feature. The show will stay out all winter. H. Moneysmith will go in advance of the show.

The Bert Silver Model Tent Show, Band and Orchestra, closed their regular Michigan tour of eighteen weeks at Riverdale, September 5, twelve miles from their headquarters, Crystal. The outfit has not lost a performance for the past two seasons. For next season the show will be enlarged and the same route taken.

Owing to the fact that Downie and Wheeler's Shows are billed at Georgetown, Del., for September 22, and Frank A. Robbins' Shows for September 26, the advance agent of Rice and Cole's Shows, which are booked to exhibit at Snow Hill, Md., September 18, passed the town by in search for a better opening.

Will Rogers, trick rope expert, who played at Shea's Theatre, Toronto, Canada, last week, entertained a bunch of friends, including Johnny Mullens, Pat Long, Chuck Hass, Bob Bickell, High-Pockets Campbell and Cliff Markham with the Circle D. Ranch Wild West Show, by giving a box party at the theatre.

Jack L. Duncan, the Oklahoma cow pincer, well known in the show business as a fancy and trick rope, also rope spinner, has just closed a two years engagement with Chas. H. Tompkins' Western attractions. He is now preparing for his vaudeville engagements.

The Downie and Wheeler Shows are using muslin posters about the towns in lower Delaware, instead of paper posters, as is the custom of other circuses. So thoroughly are the towns posted that one is reminded upon entering that a carnival is going on.

Everything points to a long season south for Gollmar Bros. Show, and the rumor that the show would have a short season is heard no more. If the business done by this show is a criterion to judge by, it surely will be out a long time yet.

The John Robinson Show had two turn-aways in Memphis Labor Day. Professionals declare the show better billed and the newspapers better handled than any other tented organization that has ever shown the Tennessee city.

Boy O'Neal, editor of the Mercury Banner, at Huntsville, Ala., entertained James F. Donaldson, general press agent of the John Robinson Circus while he was in that city attending to the publicity of the Ten Big.

Eddie Delivan, superintendent of the front of the main show of the Barnum and Bailey Show, visited friends in Chicago, September 10, making a flying trip from Decatur, and joining the show again at Springfield, Ill.

Chas. A. Pheeny, twenty-four hour man with the Hagenbeck-Wallace Shows, is confined to his room in Cape Girardeau, Mo., suffering from holla. He expects to rejoin the show within a week or ten days.

J. C. Miller has returned to the 101 Ranch Show from a trip to his ranch in Oklahoma. He brought back with him the film of the 101 pictures, which were taken this summer on the show.

At Vinton, Iowa, the Gollmar Show was compelled to give three shows to accommodate the enormous crowds. The first show began at 1:30 p. m., the second at 3 p. m.

Pat Cristman, with the 101 Ranch Wild West, visited his old home town, Chillicothe, Mo., which he had not seen in fourteen years. He renewed many old acquaintances.

With E. G. Smith's Show are: J. J. Ray Dee, wire artist; Harry DeCleo, aerial artist; Prof. Dickey's Band, under the direction of C. E. Dickey and Chas. Ward.

The E. G. Smith Show continues doing a good business through Central Pennsylvania, and is now touring towards Ohio. The outfit will winter at Atwater, O.

George Brubaker, checker-up with the John Robinson Show, has resumed his duties in that position after three week's activity as twenty-four hour man.

The Riding Baileys, who had the Cheyenne Frontier Pictures in Akron, O., on September 4, were the guests of the Young Buffalo Show, on that date.

Otto Floto and Wm. England, of Kansas City, Mo., were present at the afternoon performance of the 101 Ranch at Kansas City, Kan., September 9.

Wm. (Slim) Clarkson, bass canvasman with James Adams Show for the past five years, is now resting at 214 Walnut Street, Helena, Ark.

Campbell Brothers had a blow-down at Michigamme, Mich., and no performance was given. At Iron Mountain they encountered one of the worst storms of the season, making it necessary to call the afternoon show off.

Clyde Engles, Harry Kramer, Max Shortall and George Tarbox are in charge of the Barnum and Bailey Annex on the front.

J. L. Springer has closed with the John Robinson Circus and is general agent of the Missouri Girl, Western Company.

Andy Nolan, who has been with the 101 Ranch Wild West Show for several weeks, left for Birmingham, Ala.

Vester Pegg, on the 101 Ranch Show, received a bad fall on an outside horse, which he had ridden but twice.

James Duval, the eccentric fellow with the Frank A. Robbins' Show, is booked for the winter in vaudeville.

Willis Bloom, of the Wallace-Hagenbeck Show, has joined Kid Wheeler's brigade with the John Robinson Circus.

L. H. Heckman, of the John Robinson Show, made a flying trip to Ohio September 10 and 11.

Campbell Bros.' Show will remain out for a long season, as business is beyond expectations.

Carl Jensen is now chef and has full charge of the cook house with E. G. Smith's Show.

Frank Hicks has succeeded F. D. Dunlop as boss hostler of E. G. Smith's Show.

THE CIRCUS AND CHILDHOOD.

By SAM J. BANKS.

As circus day approaches, the average parent notes a change for the better in the disposition of the small boy. The little rascal does all manner of errands with surprising alacrity, whereas formerly he was morose or sullen whenever he had to stop playing with his school-mates or chums and run to the store for a bar of soap or loaf of bread. He even asks, "Pa," (or "Ma," whichever the case might be), "hain't you got something I can do for you?" And then, when he has done something, he eventually slyly swing around to the one subject uppermost in his mind and says something like this, "Say, Pa (or 'Ma'), the circus'll soon be here, won't it? Gee, but I bet it's a big one, for them pictures orer on Jimmy Fadden's pa's barn shows elephants 'n' camels 'n' clowns 'n' men 'n' women ridin' horses 'n' EVERYTHING! You goin' to let me go to the circus, Pa (or Ma)?"

Ah, the fact that the circus is advertised to give performances in the town accounts for the marvelous change in little Willie, or George, or Sammie, or Charlie. That's it, THE CIRCUS!

The mere mention of the word "circus" recalls to the mature mind the most tender of juvenile memories. In gentic retrospection, one recalls the days long gone by, when the annual visit of the circus perturbed the little mind just as perceptibly as it now excites the offspring. The word "circus" awakens in one tender memories of those years which can never return. The word acts just as magically on the parent as it does on the son; and, no matter how old one may be, one always feels an irresistible craving to see the circus one's self. And it goes without saying that when circus day comes the parent will go and see the great show; but it likewise goes without saying that he will offer that stereotyped stock excuse, "I had to go to take the children, you know." Well, a poor excuse is better than none, and the above "lets him out."

But to return to the ubiquitous boy; as I said before, the parent feels an irresistible desire to see the show himself. And, knowing that he will, he answers the boy's questions thus, "Well, my son, if you are a good boy until circus day, I'll take you to see the elephant and clown." At that the youngster jumps up and down and claps his hands in great glee.

And then daddy tells him to run along and play; or maybe takes advantage of his acquiescent mood and sends him on an errand. No parent ought to miss the opportunity to take the boy or girl to the circus; for the practical lessons in natural history which all youthful minds will inevitably absorb while viewing the beasts in the menagerie, can not fail to be of inestimable value.

AN OLD-TIMER.

The following will no doubt be of interest to oldtime circus people who were acquainted with the Sells Brothers' Circus back in 1882. Out of twenty people, there are only five survivors who were with the original Sells Bros. Show in that year. Most of the performers are also dead, there being but a half dozen that are still living. It only goes to show how short life is and how quickly one generation replaces another. All of the Sells are dead, including their son William, who was known as Little Willie at the age of twelve years and who used to ride on top of another man's head standing upright. This was when the Sells Show was known as the S. H. Barrett Circus, in 1882. The musicians who are still living include Ned Howson, Gerry Gaston, Gus Menger, "Pop" McMonis and O. A. Peterson. Peterson has since been with forty-eight other shows and is still trotting most of the time as a cornet player and band leader. Most of the shows were dramatic, minstrel or musical comedy organizations. Of course, there were some that only existed from one to three and six weeks.

A couple of years ago, Peterson had the misfortune to lose all of his route books, covering a period of twenty-eight years. He felt the loss very keenly, as the books could never be replaced. He is known as the veteran band leader, and if there is anyone who has been connected with more shows, Peterson would be glad to hear from him at 116 North Tenth Street, St. Joseph, Mo.

SHOWMAN HELD UP.

Williamson, W. Va., Sept. 10 (Special to The Billboard).—J. O. Riley, owner and manager of the Riley Comedy Co. Shows, was held up by five unknown men near this city, September 2. They attempted to rob Manager Riley, and in the battle that followed he succeeded in wounding two of his assailants, and was himself shot twice through the leg. Mr. Riley is in the hospital at Huntington, W. Va., where he is getting along nicely and will soon be able to join his shows.

HER SECRET WAS SAFE.

Mrs. Patrick Campbell is not kindly inclined to criticism of her work. At a rehearsal of a new play one morning her manager, Charles Frohman, stopped Mrs. Campbell and said: "Mrs. Campbell, it seems to me that those lines should be delivered thus," repeating the lines in question. Mrs. Campbell drew herself up and said: "Mr. Frohman, I am an artist."

"That is all right," Mrs. Campbell, replied the urbane manager, "I assure you I will never reveal your secret."—New York Sun.

Within the last year nearly every daily newspaper in Chicago has raised the rate for amusement advertising, the increase averaging 25 per cent. It is generally conceded that the "high cost of living" has made deep inroads upon the receipts of the theatres during the last season and it looks as though the "high cost of advertising" is going to have a similar effect. From the early season's appearance of the amusement columns of the Chicago dailies, however, it would seem that the newspapers have not financially gained by increasing the rates as all of the theatres are trimming their daily and Sunday display space to the minimum. The Chicago theatres, in other words, have "handed in their horns" in the matter of spending money with the dailies. One manager told The Billboard representative this week that it requires an expenditure of $1,500 a week to properly exploit a production in the Chicago daily newspapers today and that the same advertisement could be secured for 25 per cent less a year ago, and 40 per cent less three years ago. The theatres feel that after the mediocre business of last season they will have to cut their advertising this year in proportion to the raise in rate. Consequently the only gain the newspapers will make in the increase will be in space for additional news.

The Girl and the Tramp, under the management of Fred O. Byers, opened September 3, at Waukegan, Ill. A number of Chicago people came down to witness the performance, as did Mr. Carlos Inskip, the author. Arrangements are now being made to take this company over the Stair & Havlin Time after the holidays.

AGENTS! A REVELATION NEW BUSINESS

REMARKABLE OFFER READ EVERY WORD

Investigate this phenomenal opportunity to make money. Sells on sight. Actual experience not necessary. 100% PROFIT. Everybody enthusiastic. Irresistible selling proposition. I want live agents, general agents and managers at once everywhere. No charge for territory.

This Is Your Opportunity

—your chance to make good. Jump into the big income class. No reason on earth why you shouldn't get there, simply follow my instructions, make an earnest effort—success is yours. Anyone can sell this marvelous machine. Half a minute demonstration does the trick. Everybody amazed at the wonderful accuracy of this device. You pocket 100% profit every sale. Opportunities like this come only once in a life time. You've been looking for opportunity—felt you were built for better things. Catch hold. Success is ambition, plus a plan. Listen to the words of success. Young men, old men, farmers, teachers, carpenters, students, bank clerks—everybody makes money. One man (H. C. Wingo) sold 720 sharpeners in six weeks; profit, $1080. Stauffer, Penn., sent third order for 300 machines. Krantz, N. D., says: "Had a good day and stoppers selling fine. Took 27 orders." Corey, Me., "Went out at bed time and took 5 orders in one hour. People want it." Applewhite, La., "Took 6 orders in thirty minutes." Crafts, New York, "Sold 3 in fifteen minutes." Hurmon, Texas, says: "The man who can't sell the Never Fail Stripper better go back to chopping cotton for he couldn't sell $10.00 gold pieces for $1.00 each." Strong talk, but true. $1000.00 Reward to any one proving that any testimonial given is not genuine and unsolicited.

$45 TO $90 A WEEK

can easily be made as sales agent the NEVER FAIL at home or traveling, all or spare time. This is a new proposition. A positive Automatic Razor Sharpener—absolutely guaranteed. The thing all men had dreamed of. Perfect in every detail, under every test. With it you can sharpen to a keen, smooth, velvety edge any razor—safety or old style—all the same. Handles any and every blade automatically. Just a few seconds with the NEVER FAIL puts a razor in a better shape to give a soothing, cooling, satisfying shave than can an expert operator, no matter how careful he works. Men are excited over this little wonder machine—over its marvelous accuracy and perfection. They are eager to buy. Women buy for presents to men. Agents and salesmen coin money. Field untouched. Get territory at once. Write for full facts concerning this high grade offer. Sworn to proof of success never before equalled. Don't envy the other fellows. Make big money yourself. Don't pass this opportunity by. Act prompt. Investigate.

To the long list of players whom they have elevated to stardom, Liebler & Co. have added the name of Dorothy Donnelly, when a contract was signed extending over a term of years, during which this actress will appear at the head of her own companies. The first vehicle for the new claimant of the electric letters will be a comedy by Edward Sheldon. The author of The Nigger, Salvation Nell and The Boss, wrote this comedy for Miss Donnelly, and it is considered by the actress and her new management a most perfect fit. It is called Princess Zim Zim, and is the tale of a Coney Island snake charmer, George C. Tyrie's wily characterization of it is "a gold mine." Miss Donnelly, in becoming a Liebler & Co. star, takes her place in a notable company, including Viola Allen, Eleanor Robson, Gertrude Elliott, H. B. Warner, William Hodge and other players who were promoted to stellar prominence by this firm. Miss Donnelly was born in New York City, and is one of a family distinguished in stage affairs, her parents being Thomas Lester Donnelly, formerly manager of the Grand Opera House, New York, and Sally Williams, the well-known character actress. She is sister of Henry Y. Donnelly, the comedian, a niece of Fred Williams, and is first cousin to Fritz Williams. After an education gained at the Convent of the Sacred Heart, Miss Donnelly began her stage career the season of 1897-8, appearing on tour with Donnelly and Girard in My Friend from India. In the fall of 1898, she joined the Donnelly Stock, at the Murray Hill Theatre, with which she remained three consecutive years, working her way up from comparatively small roles into leading business. The season of 1901-2, Miss Donnelly was first Rose Dunham in New England Folks, later creating Madame Alvarez in Soldiers of Fortune, supporting Robert Edson, a part which she played for over a year.
She spent the season of 1903-4 with Arnold Daly in Candida and The Man of Destiny, and the next year she had a busy time of it, first appearing with Mr. Daly in Candida, then with Marie Doro in Frigate, next with Manrice
Campbell's production of Ibsen's When the Dead Awake, then in The Proud Laird, and finally in On Satan's Mount, in Boston. Since then she has been seen, in 1905-6, The Little Grey Lady; 1906-7, The Daughters of Men; 1907-8, The Nov-ers and The Lion and the Mouse, and 1908-8,
The Lion and the Mouse and The Sign of Socety. Miss Donnelly's most recent success was Madame X.

From Berlin comes the report that the Kaiser has issued an order forbidding any member of the imperial family hereafter acting as theatrical "angel." And some people are mean enough to wonder who has been "stung."
It is stated that the Oppenheimer Bros., who manage the Suburban Garden in St. Louis, are planning a similar amusement place in Cincinnati at which a stock company is to play during the summer months. If the proposed invasion of Cincinnati occurs it will be necessary to construct a new theatre here.

BE A GUN MAN SELL OUR PISTOL SCABBARD WATCH FOB.

Antonio in sixty days.

Okemah, Okla., July 19, 1911.
ALAMO LEATHER & NOVELTY CO., San Antonio, Texas.
Gentlemen:—Your last shipment of Pistol Scabbard Watch Fobs came in today, and opened with a ready sale. I have been in the souvenir business for the last ten years, and have handled various novelties and souvenirs. I have had success in most every effort, but this new sensation that you have sprung by placing on the market the Fob, beats anything I have tried. The fact that they are constructed of real leather and a miniature six-shooter and Scabbard, complete in every respect; also that they are manufactured at San Antonio, near the OLD ALAMO, all tends to help the buying public appreciate the nobly souvenir.

I first bought in small lots, but find to hang one card in window, I must keep a large supply inside, as there are no questions asked. The sale is made on sight. Traveling men, preachers, ladies and children all are anxious to pay the price. You have made a hit, and I wish you much success.

Yours truly,
G. H. FARNUM.

A customer at PENDLETON, OREGON, writes, after ordering a quantity:
"Sold them all in less than an hour. Please rush five gross."

Send me at once by express, as before, 1/2 gross Novelty Watch Fobs. Please send us prepaid, 1/2 gross
You said they would sell very fast. Fobs. This is the best novelty WELL! I guess they do sell. I have we have ever struck. Sold three five dozen in one week. I sold dozen today.

Respectfully yours,

It's So Simple and so easy to adjust your tie with this new OXFORD Necktie
Holder

The Tie does not go around the neck

THE wearer ties his scarf upon the Holder and shapes the knot to suit his own taste. It is then always neat and nifty and is put on and taken off in a jiffy. Simply attach the Holder to the collar button and the trick is done. No pulling and tugging.

It saves the tie and the collar, your time and your temper
Try one. Gold plated. Printed instructions for tying the tie with each Holder.

AGENTS, STREETMEN, FAIR WORKERS, DEMONSTRATORS, NOW IS THE TIME to get in on the big money with this "Oxford" Tie Holder. The latest and best Tie Form on the market. Gold-plated and in a class by itself. Retail at 15c each; two for 25c, or with Tie, complete, 25c. Write at once for prices.

$1500.00 MADE IN ONE MONTH WITH A 'LONG' POPCORN CRISPETTE MACHINE

You might just as well make as much J. A. M. Maryland, took in $250.00 in one day. Every nickel brought almost a cent profit. Best season just at hand. You can make lots of money this Fall at County and Street Fairs, Parks, Amusement Halls, Circuses, etc. Or, stay in your own town—rent a small store—a window—where the people will pass—set up your machine—sell Crispettes—make big money. Crispettes are fine—different in shape, taste and quality. Everybody—young and old—loves them. Sell for 5c a package—popular price—easy to get money. Think of fortune made in five cent propositions—5c and 10c stores—moving pictures—street cars—easy money—mounts into the dollars—then figure what you can do. Write me today. Get particulars—reports from others. Act upon the prompting you have—now—address chief's daughter, is saved from a fierce Mexican by little Fauntleroy, the big cowboy, with whom she promptly falls in love. A number of interesting and amusing situations follow in this novel burlesque, ending in Ha-Ha-Minnie being bound to a railroad track to meet her fate. She is saved by Fauntleroy, who arrives in the nick of time, and ever after they live in peace and happiness. On the same reel is:

TURNING THE TABLES (Comedy; length, 500 feet).—Martha is a shrew, and John, her second husband, determines to cure her. He induces a sailor to impersonate her first husband. It is done so remarkably well that it attracts the police, and by a laughable mistake Martha is dragged to jail charged with disorderly conduct. John secures her release, and although the arrest was a mistake, it serves the double purpose of completely taming her and allowing him to be master of his house.

KALEM.

ARIZONA BILL (Drama; release Sept. 25; length, — feet).—Arizona Bill, a cowboy, is discharged. Mounting his horse he rides to town. Black Dog, a worthless Indian, exchanges his crowbar for one of the ranch horses. Passing Arizona Bill's house he sees Bill's handsome horse and makes another exchange. One of the cowboys at the ranch discovers his horse gone and rides in pursuit, finding the horse outside of Bill's house. He accuses him of stealing it. Nancy, the rancher's daughter, informs her father of the theft of the horse, and the father, with a number of cowboys, start after the thief. Bill succeeds in getting away from his captor, but is pursued by Steve, who gets the drop on him and compels him to walk in front of his horse towards town. In the meantime Bill's wife sees the Indian thief and recognizes her husband's horse. At the point of a gun she effects the capture and rides in with the Indian just in time to rescue Bill.

HAL CHASE'S HOME RUN (Comedy-drama; release Sept. 27; length, — feet).—Grace's sweetheart, Tom, is an ardent fan and seems to give more attention to base ball than he does to her. Tom induces Grace to visit the ball game, and she also becomes an enthusiast. The home team is in a slump. Tom asks Grace to marry him, but she refuses her consent unless the home team wins the pennant. Quite discouraged, Tom calls on his friend, Hal Chase. Hal says the team can win out if they capture a decisive game to be played on that day. At the game Tom and Grace are quite despondent when the game stands 2 to 0 in favor of the enemy in the last inning. With two men on bases Hal Chase knocks a home run and excitement reigns supreme. The home team has won the pennant and Tom his bride. Featuring Hal Chase, the premier first baseman and manager of the New York Americans.

Rehearsals of The Echo, which is to be sent on tour this season by Messrs. Well and Pollock, began last week under the direction of Mr. Frank M. Rainger. Among the list of principals already engaged are: Frank Woods, L. R. Jefferson, Ned Randall, Al. Hinton, Charles Holly, Caroline Dickerson, Bunno Woods, Grace Belasco, Silence Tower and McBride and Karanagh. Negotiations are now pending with a prominent player who is to be featured in the role formerly played by Bessie McCoy.

The following is the staff of the Powers Opera House, Decatur, Ill.: Thomas P. Ronan, manager; Frank Owens, treasurer; Jesse Hill, asst. treasurer; Robert Walter, musical director; Russell Greene and Elmer Gasaway, stage carpenters; Walter Addis, electrician.

Gus Rennerl, of the Rennerl & Peabody's Shows, has thoroughly renovated the Gem Theatre, Springfield, Mo., and promises an excellent line of attractions for the coming season. Thos. O. Redd will manage the house.

Catharine Countiss began her season in The White Sister, under Stair & Harlin's direction, at the Majestic Theatre, Jersey City, Monday September 4. Her company includes: David Proctor, John Maurice Sullivan, William Belfort, Frederick Robertson, George C. Gunther, J. Anthony Smythe, Isabel Sherman, Alice Adams, Anna Berger Price, with Julia Starr as organist, and a choir for the interpretation of the convent chapel music, composed by Camilla Von Horn. Recale Foye, Julia Yerance and Ida Young, W. T. Royer is company manager, with Frank E. Morse in advance. The original scenic production has been purchased from Liebler & Co. The play has been staged by Miss Countiss, with the assistance of Dwight Dana and George H. Wiseman, respectively stage manager and musical director for the Viola Allen production. The rehearsals have been very thorough, covering a period of four weeks.

The Chase-Lister Company (Northern) opened its season August 12 with fourteen people, ladies' orchestra, and a full new line of its own plays. Clint and Bessie Robbins are the features with the company.

FAIR NOTES.

The officers are all busy completing arrangements for the Big Badger Day and Night Fair at Plattville, Wis., Oct. 3, 4, 5 and 6. The buildings have all been overhauled, and freshened up with two coats of paint, and more ground has been added to the site. The track has been worked until it is in the pink of condition. Everything points to the largest exhibit that has been seen on the grounds, and all that is needed is good weather to make this the banner fair. The night fair program is being completed and will be an innovation. Electricians are busily engaged making all connections, so that when the gates of the Big Badger Fair are thrown open to the public there will not be a hitch.

PLAYHOUSE NOTES.

The Cambria Theatre, Johnstown, Pa., under the management of H. W. Sherer, opened the season September 3 with "The Country Boy" as the attraction. Proprietors Sherer & Kelly have spent $7,500 in remodeling the theatre in the effort to make it the finest between Pittsburgh and Philadelphia. The auditorium has been placed on the ground floor. Manager Sherer has booked some of the best attractions that have ever appeared in one-night stands, including The Commuters, Ethel Barrymore, Blanche Bates, Blanche Walsh, Francis Wilson, Elsie Janis, Harry Lauder, Chocolate Soldier, Madame X, Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford and Francis Ring.

Manager E. L. Johnson, of the Gayety Theatre, Omaha, Neb., states that there is no doubt but that the ladies of Omaha endorse good, clean extravaganzas as presented at his theatre. The College Girls was the attraction week of August 27, and 2,228 ladies attended the week day matinee, while at the evening performances at least one-third of the audience were ladies, at the regular scale of prices. This is a remarkable showing, considering the fact that Omaha is one of the smallest towns on the Columbia Circuit.

A great many of the profession will alt up and take notice when they play Brockville, Ont., this season. The old Grand has been replaced by a new theatre this year at a cost of $90,000, and Brockville now boasts of one of the finest theatres in Canada. F. I. Ritchie will continue as manager; Sid Eden will look after the front of the house; Shiner White is stage manager; Howard Alberg, fly man; Mike Frey, electrician. Baby Mine is the opening bill September 18.

The Harrison Theatre, Missouri Valley, Iowa, has passed under the direction of C. C. Pratt. Through inefficient management, the Harrison has received very little attention the past two years, thus spoiling an excellent show town. The present policy of the new management will be to book only a few of the big ones, giving a substantial guarantee. As a "jump breaker" between Minneapolis, Omaha and Kansas City, this house will no doubt attract attention.

The Valettes Theatre, Terre Haute, Ind., opened Labor Day with an entire new interior and a change in policy. The house is booked by the Western Vaudeville Managers' Association and formerly played three shows a day, four acts and pictures. The new policy will be ten acts each week and pictures. The seating capacity is 1,200. Hoefler & Barhydt are the owners and Jack Hoefler is manager.

The following is the roster of the Temple Theatre, Rochester, N. Y.: J. H. Finn, manager; C. M. Livingston, superintendent; George Green, treasurer; Bert Caley, stage manager; Charles Cole, assistant stage manager; Frank Reynolds, electrician; L. M. Livingston, assistant electrician; Roy Fisher, operator; Mike Mongovan and Bud Gallagher, proprietors; Charles Pehl, flyman; Mert Clark, main door.

Borick's Theatre, Elmira, N. Y., completed the most successful summer season in its history September 9. The Manhattan Opera Co., in high-class repertoire, had been the attraction since May 30. The new theatre erected by Schweppe Bros. in this city, as yet unnamed, will open about September 18 with high-class vaudeville.

Spartanburg, S. C., opens another vaudeville house under the management of H. H. Grant of the Happy Hour. Previously, the Happy Hour had been playing only motion pictures, but now has pictures only as a side. Manager Grant has with him this week the Mathews Trio. The Happy Hour is having a large and well-pleased house.

The new Princess Theatre at Marshalltown, Ia., opened September 9 under the management of Harry Renfro. The house cost about $10,000 and will be booked by Sullivan & Considine. This is the third vaudeville theatre in Marshalltown, a town of 12,000 people. W. V. M. A. and the Capitol City Amusement Co. book the other houses.

The new Grand Opera House at Blairmore, Alberta, was formally opened Wednesday, August 23. The new playhouse was erected at a cost exceeding $15,000, and is said to be one of the most improved and modern theatres in that section of the country. Max Bloom, in the Sunny Side of Broadway, was the opening attraction.

Manager Harry C. Erlich opened the 1911-12 season of the Davidson Theatre at Fort Scott, Kan., with that splendid farce-comedy, Billy Bands Rosa follows on September 22 with a big advance sale. Manager Erlich has a long list of high-class attractions and the outlook is very bright for a prosperous business in this vicinity.

Manager A. W. Carle, of the Grand Opera House, Stevens Point, Wis., has booked the following fine attractions for the earlier part of the season of 1911-12: Cat and The Fiddle, Cow and the Moon, Servant in The House, The Aviator, Cal Stewart, Three Twins, Marie's Uncle Tom's Cabin, Busy Izzy and Mary Jane's Pa.

Manager H. B. Barton, of the Orpheum Theatre, Dea Moines, has been presented with the entire collection of photos of the leading stars that have appeared at this Foster Opera House in that city for the past twenty years. Mrs. Foster made this presentation, as the Foster Opera House is going out of existence.

The People's Theatre, Leavenworth, Kan., opened its season September 12, with Billy, a Shubert attraction. The attendance was good and this year promises good for the new leasee, George E. King, also manager of the Atchison Theatre. The People's was under the management last year, of P. H. Alexander.

Completely transformed and under entirely new management the Calro, Ill., Opera House will open its thirty-first season Monday, September 18. The initial performance will be Heart Breakers. This house will be under the management of Messrs. Candee and Gallagher, two local business men.

Capt. W. D. Ament's circuit of theatres at Jackson, Tenn., and Meridian, Miss., are playing to a wonderful business. A very good line of shows are being given, and the performers who give them have nothing but praise for the management and the comfortable surroundings of the theatres.

WIG Real Hair, Billy Kid, Chinese, Indian, $1 each. Negro, $2, 50c and $1. Lady's Wig, $1.50 up. Import Character, $1.50. 6 yds. Crepe Hair $1. Papler Mache Heads, Helmets, etc. Art catalog free. KLIPPERT, Mfr., 4-4th Ave., N. Y.

SUE GOODWIN

IN VAUDEVILLE

The above likeness is a reproduction of Sue Goodwin, late of Moody and Goodwin, who is now presenting a new three-act known as Sue Goodwin and Co., in Gold and Silver. Miss Goodwin has added two new drops to the act, one a large illuminated Moode, and the other a beautiful silver drop. Is also using the purple velvet drop. The act closes in gold cloth costumes in front of silver drop, constituting singing, talking and novelty acrobatics, with nine changes of costumes. Miss Goodwin still retains her original title of Gold and Silver. The act opens abortly on the Interstate Time.

boxes, making a total of 1,770. The stage will be 30 feet wide by 35 feet deep. The entire building will be fireproof. The office portion will extend into the air eight stories, while the theatre will have four stories. The facade will be of brick, limestone and terra cotta, being ornamented with carvings in the stone over the entrance arch and the copings.

William Kremer built the Atlantic Garden fifty-three years ago. He died in 1900 and since that time his sons, Albert and William, had kept the place going. September 1 last it was closed. The maps that show the shifting of population in the city give the reason why the old Garden was condemned to destruction. It doesn't fill the requirements of the present Jewish and Italian population that would patronize it. Who will have the theatre has not been given out.

of the New York Telegraph, O. L. Hall of the Journal, and Jack Laft and C. Sharp and Tom Burke of the American.

The Garden City Trio have turned down a nice offer from I. M. Herk for a season in burlesque.

Walter Keefe is playing some big acts on the Miles Circuit and in other houses booked by him. Among them are May Yobee, Celli Opera Company, Count the First, McGrath and Yeoman, Hap Handy and Willie Zimmerman.

Cooks and Oats will appear at the Miles Theatre in Chicago week of October 2, and are going East, where they will show their present offering, which is new in that country.

Frank Q. Doyle left Thursday night for Detroit, Grand Rapids and Toledo, where he has new houses opening.

Willie Zimmerman played the Wilson and Willard Theatres in Chicago last week, completing his American engagement.

The Tivoli Quartet is playing a few weeks in the Middle West for J. C. Matthews before opening on the Pantages tour.

Gilroy, Haynes and Montgomery will shortly make another trip over the Pantages Circuit.

Mr. and Mrs. Denver showed their act in Chicago last week and the billing, "the craziest act on earth," was pronounced to be appropriate.

Myrtle Byrne & Co. are playing in the Middle West for J. C. Matthews.

Among the acts now playing over the Hopkins Lyric Circuit are George Lindsay, the Original Potts Brothers and Company, Walton and Brandt, Marjorie Brennan, Rohlsch and Childress, and the Goodwin Brothers.

Count the First, the wonderful man monkey, who is now playing in the Middle West under the direction of Charles E. Hodkins, is seen at Weber's Theatre in Chicago this week, and has the Miles Theatre in Detroit and the Temple in Grand Rapids to follow. The monkey makes a tour of the Pantages Time later.

Vilmos Westony, the Hungarian pianist, playing the Sullivan & Considine Circuit, was an emphatic success last week at the Empress Theatre in Chicago. During his stay in the Windy City, Westony was the guest of honor at various social events. One of the organizations to entertain him was the Wagnerian Society.

The Rathskeller Trio were in New York last week, having just finished a season's work over the Sullivan & Considine Time. They resume work this week opening today at the Wilson Theatre in Chicago. For the week of September 25 they are booked at the Willard in Chicago.

Harry Darcy, formerly of Darcy and Carr, has formed a partnership with Andy Williams. The team will be known as Darcy and Williams. Mildred Nevins and Jewel Evans have been engaged to support them in an act, entitled The Hypnotist and the Coon, now being written by Charles Horwitz.

SONG HIT IN ENGLAND.

New York, Sept. 16 (Special to The Billboard).—Edgar Selden's successful ballad, All That I Ask Is Love, is being sung by many artists in England with unusual results. The piece is also a big seller in John Bull's country. V. O. Feldman, of 23 Arthur Street, New Oxford, London, who is the English representative of American publishers, has been giving highly gratifying reports about the sale of the song.

WITMARK MUSIC NOTES.

Whettee & Crosson, who are playing over the Sullivan & Considine Circuit, have been using Garden of My Heart. They have now replaced it with Ernest Ball's latest ballad success, Good-bye, My Love, Good-bye, which went very big for them. They are also using Any Girl Looks Good in Summer.

The Comedy Four, who have just opened on the Interstate Time at Peoria this week, report that Baby Rose went very big for them and proved to be the song hit of their act, taking encores each performance.

Miss Dorothy Drew, who is playing with Harry Couley Co. in The Musical Holdup, and who has been using Garden of My Heart for several months, has added Good-bye, My Love, Good-bye to her act, and claims that the song is the successor of Garden of My Heart.

Nick Bazell, who is playing with Geo. Sidney's Banjo Izzy Co. at the National Theatre this week, opening Sunday matinee, says Baby Rose was the hit of the show, with Any Girl Looks Good in Summer winning second place in song hits.

Melrose and Lewis, playing Cox's Time this week at Peoria, Ill., is singing all of Witmark's song hits, and each number is going big for them—Where the River Shannon Flows, and the Irish ballad, They've Won Every Nation's Battles But Their Own.

Baton and Miller were callers at Witmark's Chicago office, and they tell us that Dixie Delay Dear is the hit of the act. They are using Yiddish Love, which they have replaced with Never Mind the Family Tree, a new Jewish character song which looks like a winner.

The Quaker City Quartette, playing Pantages' Time, are using all through the South My Heart Has Learned to Love You, River Shannon and Mother Machree. All these songs are going very big for them, River Shannon being the hit of their act.

Kanker and Merritt Sisters, now making a tour through the South and Southwest in a new musical and dancing act, are without doubt the hit of every bill of which they have appeared, and are using Red Pepper Rag, Thoroughbred March and Enchantment Waltz.

Fitzsimmons & Cameron, who played at the Plaza Theatre last week, used with great success, Wal I Swan.

Miss Adele La Rne, the dainty soprano, who opens at Seattle week of September 11, has picked some of the best ballads published this season, and we may look forward to hear of Miss La Rne's big successes. She is singing several of Witmark's numbers, including Good-bye, My Love, Good-bye, Poor of Hope, Mother Machree and If All My Dreams Were Made of Gold.

May, Archer & Billie Caver, who are playing the Orpheum Time are the hit of every bill on which they have appeared, singing the new rag song, Ragtime Love, and the song hit of the season, Baby Rose.

Ryno & Emerson, playing W. V. Time, are singing with great success the new Irish ballad, Killarney and You, and Witmark's latest ballad which looks like another hit, If All My Dreams Were Made of Gold.

Trudell & Fuller, playing on Dontrick's Time and appearing at Peoria last week, was without doubt one of the best singing and dancing acts which played this town for some time. They are using in the Garden of My Heart and Slip on Your Glad Rags.

Billy Doyle, playing the small time around Chicago, is singing with great success on San Francisco Bay. Last week he was at Morse's Garden.

Schuman & Schuman, playing Des Moines, Ia., sang Good-bye, My Love, Good-bye, and went very big, and then created a riot of applause when they finished their act with Mother Machree, taking several bows.

Dolly Goodman, the little singer of the Ghetto, who has started out on the Doyle Time, is singing with great success and taking many encores with Witmark's new Jew song, Never Mind the Family Tree.

Jimmy & Myrtle Van, the clever song and dance artists, playing over the W. V. Time, are singing Any Girl Looks Good in Summer and Baby Rose with great success, and for the dance are using Dreary Moon and Sailing Sweetheart, You and I.

Metz & Metz, singers of merit, who are singing their way into popularity over Loew's Circuit with I Love the Name of Mary, Good-bye, My Love, Good-bye, and their highest song hit, Where the River Shannon Flows.

J. FRED HELF CO.

The Dixie Serenaders, the first act to use that march song success, Gee, But It's Great to Meet a Friend from Your Home Town, are still singing the number.

Al Johnson, one of the headliners in the all-star bill at Shubert's Winter Garden, is singing Lord! Have Mercy on a Married Man.

At Hammerstein's Victoria, during the week beginning September 4, Lottie Gilson featured Wanted! A Harp Like the Angels Play and Lord! Have Mercy on a Married Man.

Gee, Ain't It Tough When There's No One Around to Call You Dear is sung by the Golden Clover Four.

Love Is the Only Thing in Life is a pronounced success with Robert H. Hill.

Love Me to a Yiddish Melody, the new Hebrew character song, is an applause hit with Mike Bernard and Willie Weston.

Lord! Have Mercy on a Married Man, the new comic song, is being featured by the Jack Wilson Trio.

When Tony La'pard played the Barbershop Chord is Ricka Knight's chief encore winner.

Shaw and Lemare's repertoire includes these Helf song hits, Hands Up, Love Me to a Yiddish Melody, and Lord! Have Mercy on a Married Man.

Gee, Ain't It Tough When There's No One Around to Call You Dear, the melodious waltz ballad which is making acts, is Pauline Welch's featured song.

Gee, But It's Great to Meet a Friend from Your Home Town is still the most popular song in the repertoire of Fred Darcy's American Trio.

Oh, You Bear Cat Rag brings Jack Sidney plenty of applause.

WILL ROSSITER GOSSIP.

Dodie Randall, Ollie Westerman and Carr & Berry are among others getting the encores with I'd Love to Live in Loveland with a Girl Like You.

The Tivoli Quartet are meeting with pronounced success in New York at present, particular mention being made of their rendition of That Carolina Rag and Some of These Days.

The World's Comedy Four are touring the South and write that the two big hits down there with them are That Carolina Rag and Somewhere This Summer with You.

The Manhattan Trio report excellent results from the use of When It's Honeysuckle Time and Let's Make Love While the Moon Shines.

Polly Moran is booked solid on the Orpheum Circuit for a period of two years. Her special song numbers will include That Carolina Rag and When I Woke Up This Morning.

Cornell & Meredith are featuring Casey Rag and When I Woke Up This Morning.

Wolf & Lee report that Let's Make Love While the Moon Shines is the best encore collector they ever used.

The Twili City Quartet also speak in glowing terms of Let's Make Love While the Moon Shines.

My Ever Lovin' Southern Gai has been the standby of the Franklin Bros.' act for the past year. They will use as an encore number the waltz success, I'd Love to Live in Loveland with a Girl Like You.

Mabelle Adams will feature I'd Love to Live in Loveland with a Girl Like You in her new playlet, Zila.

The Musical Mitchells are using a medley of Will Rossiter songs, consisting of When It's Honeysuckle Time, Let's Make Love While the Moon Shines, I'd Love to Live in Loveland with a Girl Like You and That Carolina Rag.

Nell Able will shortly open his fall season. He will exploit That Carolina Rag and When I Woke Up This Morning.

Arthur Angel is playing time in the South and writes that Jesse James is a splendid laugh provoker for him.

STERN & COMPANY NOTES.

The Mendelsohn Trio selected three Stern bits, namely, Bryan & Henry's I Like the Hat, I Like the Dress, and I Like the Girl That's in It, which they will feature, also a novelty song, On the B. A. R., and the coon song, The Mississippi Dippy Dip.

Here are some of the artists using Krouse & Goodall's ballad, I'll Go to the End of the World with You and Then to the World Beyond: Mr. Nat Cafferly, baritone soloist with Rolfe's Band, Young's Pier, Atlantic City; Mr. Buchanan, of Holmes & Buchanan; also Miss Dimond, soprano soloist with the Cape Del Opera Quartet.

Arthur Lichty is using an almost Jos. W. Stern & Co. catalogue of songs. Here are some of those he is featuring: Bryan & Henry's I Like the Hat, I Like the Dress, and I Like the Girl That's in It; Krouse & Goodall's I'll Go with You to the End of the World and Then to the World Beyond; also I'm Getting Kind of Lonesome for My Old Kentucky Pal, I'll Start a Little Nation of My Own, The Mississippi Dippy Dip, Child Love, When You're in Love with More Than One, You're Not in Love at All, and many others.

Rold Miller, the tenor and composer, has been selected by the Victor Phonograph Co. to sing Stern's I'll Go to the End of the World with You and Then to the World Beyond.

Geo. Scott is featuring My! What a Funny Little World This Is.

Miss Mary Marib, of Chip & Marble, playing the Percy Williams houses, is using Stern's kid song, Dear Little Jammy Face.

Nat Cafferly, the baritone soloist with Rolfe's Band, now playing at Young's Pier, Atlantic City, N. J., is using Krouse & Goodall's high-class ballad, I'll Go with You to the End of the World, and Then to the World Beyond.

I Like the Dress, Miss Howard is also singing Oppenheim & Cooper's new song, Child Love. Messrs. Miller and Draper, the producers of Elks' Minstrels throughout the country, paid their annual visit to New York City in search of new material for the coming season. They intend to use Stern's The Mississippi Dippy Dip, I'll Go with You to the End of the World and Then to the World Beyond and I Like the Dress.

Young and Young are singing Henry and Bryan's I Like the Hat, I Like the Dress, using the "boy and girl" version of the song.

Henry Burr, the tenor, has selected Krouse and Goodall's high-class ballad, I'll Go with You to the End of the World and Then to the World Beyond, to use in his concert repertoire for the coming season.

GOTHAM-ATTACKS NEW NUMBERS.

Turkey Red is the title of a new Indian number published by the Gotham-Attacks Co. Fred Watson is using What Makes Me Love You the Way I Do, one of the Gotham-Attacks numbers.

I Seem to Miss in Every Girl Just What I Find in You, is a new one that is being published by the Gotham-Attacks Music Co., and if present indications count, it ought to go big.

Aida Overton Walker Company is scoring heavily with Porto Rico, That's Why They Call Me Shine and That Minor Strain.

MUSIC NOTES.

Walter H. Childs and his Cornet Band, with the The Florida Blossoms Company, are having much success in Texas. The roster of musicians is as follows: Walter H. Childs, bandmaster, cornet and violin; George Crump, cornet; G. W. Motto, clarinet and violin; Frank Hopkins, alto and violin; Warren Thornton, alto; John H. Tobias, trombone and baritone; Clifford Prados, trombone; George Christian, baritone and cornet; Joe Miller, tuba and alto; Joe White, snare drummer; Clarence Stewart, bass drummer.

NEW ATLANTA THEATRE OPENS.

Atlanta, Ga., September 12 (Special to The Billboard).—Messrs. Frohman, Klaw and Erlanger opened last night the new theatre, the Atlanta, with George Beban in his own play, The Sign of the Cross. It is the most modern and finest playhouse in the South, standing as complete as the house after which it is modeled, the New Amsterdam, in New York City. In the building have been embodied all the features known to modern stage architects looking to the protection of theatre-goers. When the curtain went up, the house was packed from pit to dome. It would be difficult to imagine a more brilliant audience than that which greeted George Beban and his company. The play scored a decided hit. Mr. Beban is surrounded by a large and capable company. His delineation of the character of Pietro Massena was most impressive, and one critic referred to him as a character actor of the caliber of Wardell and Dodson, while another compared him with Mansfield. The theatre has a seating capacity of 1,700. Homer George of Atlanta and New Orleans is the acting manager.

LAW STICKLER SOLVED.

Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 15 (Special to The Billboard).—A problem of the Sullivan-controlled weapon law which had caused actors and theatrical managers much perplexity and annoyance here, has been solved by the district attorney's office and the police. Permits have been issued to managers of the theatres, to those of their employees who need revolvers, and to actors and actresses who have to use pistols in their parts. The weapons, however, must be possessed only during the time they are in use in the playhouses or while being transported from one theatre to another. Only blank cartridges may be used at any time.

ASK TAFT TO ATTEND PREMIERE

Webster City, Ia., Sept. 15 (Special to The Billboard).—Des Moines Masons have forwarded a request to President Taft, asking a slight change in his plans while in Iowa, Sept. 23, in order that he may witness the presentation of the Masonic play written by Joseph E. Morcomb of Storm Lake. This piece will be presented in Des Moines the evening of Sept. 23. The presidential party are in Ottumwa the afternoon of that day, and in the evening leave for Chicago. If the invitation of Des Moines Masons is accepted, Mr. Taft can get out of Des Moines after the play and reach Chicago the following morning. The acceptance of the invitation merely means the leaving of Ottumwa a little sooner.

PRODUCING OLD MELODRAMA.

The Associated Theatrical Managers have leased the rights and title from Lincoln J. Carter to produce his once famous melodrama, The Heart of Chicago. The season opened at the Alhambra Theatre, Chicago, where it enjoyed a very successful engagement, with excessive heat as its principal opposition. It is now in its fourth week of the season. The question in the minds of the promoters was, can melodrama of the proper sort come back? From all present indications the answer is that it will. A new scenic equipment has been furnished the old play, and an excellent cast has been engaged to interpret the various roles.

Following is the roster of the company: Associated Theatrical Managers, owners; W. D. Emerson, manager; D. T. Hamill, advance representative. Cast includes Chas. D. Marlowe, Fred Siegel, Ralph Wheeler, Dell Harris, Ted Grant, R. B. Pearson, J. Devlin, Lew Allen, Adolph Knoll, Queenie Tlenary, Loretta Griswold, Mabel Emerson and Dorothy Marks. The company is booked over the Star and Havin Time.

HARRY RIDINGS RESIGNS.

New York, Sept. 12 (Special to The Billboard).—His health is attributed to be the cause of the resignation of Harry Ridings, general representative for Henry W. Savage on Monday morning, September 11. The withdrawal came as a surprise to the theatrical field at large although those of intimate touch with the genial Savage lieutenant were confident that this course would have to be taken if he were to keep from succumbing to a most harrowing nervous breakdown. Strong denial is made of any rupture between Ridings and Savage, but it is understood that the former will make some new business association. His successor has not as yet been appointed. Ridings is at a Mt. Clemens recreation resort.

FAIR SUES AVIATOR.

Columbia, Tenn., Sept. 11 (Special to The Billboard).—J. D. McCurdy, the aviator, compromised the $5,000 breach of contract suit brought by the Maury Co. Fair Association of this city for $750 and lawyers' fees and court costs. McCurdy had contracted to make three flights a day at the fair grounds, September 6, 7 and 8 but the fair management say that when he arrived on the grounds he claimed it would be impossible to fly on account of the condition of the grounds, as there would not be room enough for him to alight. McCurdy made arrangements to ship his machine to Cincinnati, but the fair people served attachment papers on him and sued him and his company for $5,000 breach of contract and damages. The Fair Association state that they lost heavily by the failure of the airship to fly, as this was the free attraction and drawing card and had been advertised for a hundred miles around. McCurdy's loss was also considerable, as he was to get $300 each day for the three days, and instead got nothing, and had to pay the association and lawyers about $1,000, and was out the expenses of himself and crew to and from Columbia.

WEDDING AT FAIR.

Lockport, N. Y., Sept. 15 (Special to The Billboard).—A novel attraction at the Niagara County Fair was a public wedding ceremony performed on a high platform where all the patrons of the fair could watch. Police Justice William Hoover united Miss Helen Wood, an 18-year-old Miss, and Edgar Octola, aged 21. The wedding was the feature of the day.

INTERVIEWS LAURA JEAN LIBBEY.

Fall River, Mass., September 12 (Special to The Billboard).—"I love the stage. Why, I simply adore it. I think I have lost my interest in mere prose writing since I have seen my characters, my own creations, living on the stage. I love the drama, the kind which makes life happier," said Laura Jean Libbey, the novelist, to The Billboard correspondent. "How long will you remain on the stage?" "That depends wholly on my other duties. I am a busy woman and may not find time to act steadily and write, too. I left my home in a hurry to fill this contract. Oh, no, I'm not an actress, but people say I fill acceptably the leading characters of my own plays. I suppose I can act like them because I created them—because I love them." "Oh, no, I shall never attempt Shakespeare," said Miss Libbey. "Please don't compliment me too much by so asking." "Would you remain on the stage if you had the time?" "Yes, I think I should; but I have a home and must write much to keep my readers satisfied." Miss Libbey is appearing at the Academy of Music in Love or Conscience and The Shadow of the Past. TO BUILD AMUSEMENT PARKS.

Wheeling, W. Va., September 15 (Special to The Billboard).—The Tri-State Amusement Company of Follansbee, W. Va., has been incorporated with an authorized capital of $25,000, of which $4,500 has been subscribed and $450 paid. The object of the company is to build and conduct places of amusement, parks, etc. The incorporators are: J. W. Thomas, M. K. Lott, Earl M. Godfrey, Thomas Godfrey and James Walsley, all of Follansbee.

LAST WEEK AT WHITE CITY, CHICAGO.

Chicago, Sept. 16 (Special to The Billboard).—Under a shower of confetti, and with all of the gaiety of the era of carnival, White City will wind up the season of 1911 on Sunday night, September 24. A parade of twelve floats of artistic and unique design, richly illuminated and drawn by Shetland ponies, and a public mass quadrade and high-jinks, will be nightly features until then. The farewell opera by the White City Company, in Terrace Garden, will be The Mikado.

PRIMROSE PATH AGAIN.

Portland, Ore., Sept. 18 (Special to The Billboard).—It is rumored that George Primrose, the minstrel man, and his wife have made up, and that the divorce suit that he recently instituted, and her cross-complaint will be dismissed, and a formal announcement of their reconciliation made.

PLAYHOUSE NOTES.

Dalton, Ga., is to have a new theatre. Frank Reynolds and others will convert a big three-story building into an opera house, with ground floor, balcony and gallery. The building will not be vacant for some time, but the material will be assembled and everything made ready to start the work.

H. W. Fairall has been appointed manager of the Children Theatre, Iowa City, Ia. The theatre has been thoroughly remodeled, and Manager Fairall has hooked some very good attractions for the coming season. Cushman's Comedians were the opening attraction on August 28.

ELTINGE FASCINATES.

than seems entirely consistent with good manners, it must be admitted that he does nothing that has not frequently been done before, both by men and women, on the stage and applauded as either highly humorous or amazingly undignified.

"The Fascinating Widow" itself is described as somewhat different comedy with music, but the differences are largely in the minds of the authors and producers. Mr. Eltinge's purpose is served by having a story which involves two suitors, one of whom is preferred and the other despised by the girl's mother. Needless to say, the girl herself loves the unlucky suitor. He assassinates his rival, and a detective is summoned to arrest him. Then, at the instigation of some of his college chums, he disguises himself in women's clothes, appears on the scene as 'the fascinating widow,' and is able to enjoy the society of his sweetheart, while so compromising his rival that the mother is ultimately forced to see in him the better man.

"There is the usual scene in which the man smokes while in women's clothes, there is again the doctored punchbowl which infuriates those who have previously been models of temperance, and there are other similar devices which audiences of the kind this entertainment will attract have long voted hilarious. There are, too, the usual broad vulgarities which plays of this kind permit, with the more insinuating sort of suggestiveness which will appear innocent only to the least sophisticated.

"But the impersonator's popularity is enormous, the theatre was crowded and there is every likelihood that it will continue to be filled for many weeks to come."

BUSHWICK THEATRE OPENS.

As a testimonial of their sincere regard for Percy G. Williams' friendship and business acumen, countless telegrams of well-wishing and a galaxy of inconceivably originally designed and delicately lined floral tributes were heaped along the walls of the lobby and the rear encircling aisle.

All the various theatres on the Williams Circuit were represented by special designs and pieces. Prominent among these was a huge map of Greater New York showing the location of the numerous Williams houses by tiny incandescent light globes bearing the name of the theatre. The several boroughs were designated by differently-colored flowers. The map was eight feet long by six feet wide, and distinctly a work of the florist's art. It was sent by the employees of the Colonial Theatre. The name of the designer was not affixed, but it would not take long to find the party who conceived the idea. She spent a most busy evening seeing that everybody enjoyed themselves and otherwise pushing the interests of P. G. Williams.

The Alhambra Theatre was represented by a huge clock some eight feet high. The hours designated the various houses on the Williams Circuit, and the hands stood at 11 o'clock, which also marks the eleventh theatre which Mr. Williams has acquired in Greater New York. The Greenpoint Theatre employed a large light-house exquisitely done in flowers. The offerings of the other houses, all done in flowers, were as follows: Crescent, a magnificent bottle of champagne; Bronx Theatre, a three-sheet in colors, bearing the names of the acts on the opening bill. The Gotham and Orpheum were also represented by appropriate set pieces. The biggest set piece of all was sent by the United Booking Office of America. It stood some ten feet high, was circular in design, and bore the names of the Williams theatres, with the Bushwick in the center. One of the oddest of the tributes was a telegram of best wishes from the vaudeville booking firm of Albee, Evans & Weber. The telegram was a most perfect reproduction of the regulation telegraph blank, with the message inscribed in flowers.

There were many other individual offerings: a huge aeroplane from Attorney Grossman of the well-known firm of theatrical attorneys; Lonia Wesley, the vaudeville manager; Clifford Fisher, the vaudeville agent; John Auer & Co., Martin Samper, the Kemore Van & Express Co.; William C. Massand, manager of the Colonial Theatre, etc. The afore-mentioned Miss Nellie Revell, general press representative of the Williams Circuit, sent a huge piece representing the first page of a newspaper, which bore pictures of Mr. Williams and the Bushwick Theatre. The title announced it as The Press of Greater New York, and it was dated Brooklyn, N. Y., September 11. In glaring red headlines it announced "New Bushwick Theatre Opens a Big Success."

The ceremonies in connection with the opening of the house were brief. Manager Williams followed Frank Fogarty on the bill and in a few words told of the Orpheum Company's plans for the conduct of the theatre. Herbert Gunnison, business manager of the Brooklyn Eagle, replied on behalf of the citizens of Brooklyn, expressing appreciation for Mr. Williams' efforts to boost Brooklyn and of the high regard in which he is held by his fellow citizens.

The opening bill was the most genuinely and consistently excellent that Arthur Klein could assemble. Irene Franklin, assisted by Curt Green, headlined. Her fellow supporters were Wentworth, Vesta and Teddy, acrobats; Avery and Hart, colored comedians; the Hawley Haight Company in The Bandit; Frank Fogarty, Wilfred Clarke and Company in The Dear Departed; the Chadwick Trio; Jack Wilson and Co., and the Aurora Troupe of Cyclists.

BILL AT HAMMERSTEIN'S.

New York, Sept. 16 (Special to The Billboard).—The current seven-day period at Hammerstein's may appropriately be called Irving Berlin Week. For the overture, Conductor George May selected and played one of Berlin's compositions; during the intermission the audience is regaled with more Berlin music, and even the exit march is the result of Irving Berlin's fertile productive powers. But the most magnificent element in making this an Irving Berlin Week was Berlin himself—he headlined the bill. He acted like a real feature—absorbed all the applause, was the recipient of so many floral tokens of well-wishes of friends as to transform the stage into a miniature floral shop, and to cap it all Berlin made a speech.

Berlin, by way of further identification, is the writer of Alexander's Rag-time Band and numerous other hits. As to his act, he sang eight numbers—all his own compositions. Monday night some obstreperous person who evidently had paid a lengthy visit to the chamber of swinging doors bellowed forth the request that Berlin sing Yum Yum. Berlin merely smiled and disclaimed authorship of the piece, for which reason he said he could not sing it. Audible giggles in various parts of the house and a general crawling of necks followed the sally, which was quickly forgotten, however, when Irving began his next song. A detailed review of Berlin's efforts is given under the title of New Acts.

Proceedings were begun Monday night at 8:04 when Sartello (a new act) performed a few tricks in magic and finished by drawing several pictures. Another new act, Ward Baker, the violinist, followed him. Kalmer and Brown were on a little too early. No. 3 position, to derive the approbation that they usually receive. Several changes have been made in the act since it was last shown here. The changes and substitutions have neither added to or detracted from the value of the turn.

A reception was given Mrs. Annie Yeamans, who, after a little heart-to-heart talk with the audience and after performing a song and dance number she used thirty-five years ago, finished with the Mulligan Gnarls hit, a song not forgotten at this date. It is a reminder of the Harrigan and Hart days.

Frank Tinney had the audience laughing from the time he spoke his first word until he made his final exit. Tinney puts over his talk in splendid fashion.

The first half of the show was closed by Charles Richman and his company playing the farcical playlet, The Fire Escape. The piece was liked at the "Corner" house.

Jewell's Manikins, back at Hammerstein's after only a brief absence, was placed to open the second half of the show. Miss Jewell is featuring the Death of Cleopatra scene. Jewell's Manikins is the best act of its kind seen hereabouts.

As we have previously related, Irving Berlin was given the choice spot of second after the intermission. We have also told of the success that attended his efforts.

To follow an act that has registered a success like that accomplished by Irving Berlin is being placed in a difficult spot. Melville and Higgins, who followed Berlin, were best with the customary difficulties but readily overcame these obstacles and retired with flying colors.

The chatterbox, a term synonymous to Julius Tannen, was in operation for about fifteen minutes. Tannen was able to keep the audience seated until he had finished—so much to his credit—but when he made his exit about one-half of the crowd rushed for the doors. Thus Fields and Lewis, who followed Tannen, were compelled to work to an only half-filled house, as was Mile. Martha, the trapeze artist, who closed the show.

FIFTH AVE. BILL.

New York, September 16 (Special to The Billboard).—The newcomers, as far as Gotham two-day variety is concerned, "usurping" niches in the Fifth Avenue bill this week are Dill and Ward, the Three White Knives, Bessie Leonard and Mile. Levis Loyal. On account of this engagement being their getaway date in Manhattan a review of their respective offerings is detailed in the new acts column.

A disruption of the numerically-arranged order of the acts occurred early in the week, and instead of closing the show, as originally programmed, Mile. Levis Loyal, the equestrienne, was chosen to conduct the opening ceremonies. Smith and Campbell were moved from No. 6 to Chapter No. 2. Mr. Piffeltiff, a term which the boys of Camping Out fame have attached to their rapid-fire conversational routine, sounded the hit-registering gong with the audience. One of the "new acts"—Dill and Ward—chosen to open the show, were moved up to Spot 3. There they did nicely. The Great Howard, ventriloquist, following them, went exceptionally high.

For some time Bessie Leonard had been consistently heralded by Edward F. Gleece, the Fifth Avenue press representative. The confidence imposed in her as manifested by this unusually strong billing, was not promiscuously placed, for Bessie Leonard has framed up one of the neatest single acts seen hereabouts in some time. Besides, she possesses an abundance of personality, magnetism, nuction, or whatever you choose to call it. It is no wonder, therefore, that the Fifth Avenue audiences are placing the O. K. stamp upon her work.

Another Western act, for Bessie Leonard is also from the glorious woolly, to score substantially are the Three White Knives, of whom we have more to say in the new acts review. The ability of Wilbur Mack and Nella Walker is undisputed. Their offering, which they style a musical flirtation called The Dollar Bill, is a bright, breezy little song and patter number, made thoroughly enjoyable by the deftness with which Mack and Walker handle it.

Amelia Blugham, who was on next to closing, retails the scenes from The Modern Lady Godiva, La Tosca and Madame Sans Gene for vaudeville use. The selections are good ones, taking applause as a criterion.

Frank Tinney closed the show. The fact that Tinney fills such an unusual position—rather, such an unusual position for Tinney—is due to the fact that this week the burnt cork comedian is playing two heels. He is on at Hammerstein's about 9 o'clock. From the Victoria he listens to the K. & P. house. The lateness of the hour did not seem to affect Tinney, for the audience laughed and remained in their seats until the very finish.

The Pathe Weekly, showing pictures of events of current interest, preceded the exhibition of the "good-night" slide.

La Clair and West have closed their hunkalog for the season and opened their regular winter season on the Canfield Circuit in Cincinnati, September 18. They have a new act which is a novelty, characterizing their songs, and Mr. La Clair making three changes.

while not entirely new are clever and nicely done. He made a very good impression and responded to several encores. Dainty Diane, singing "Kiss Me," which she is responsible for, which in this song she scores heavily, though the remainder of her repertoire is all good and went over well. Among those in the company are: Wm. T. Bowman, Robt. W. Mack, Jaa. M. Bowman, Virginia Kelsey, Billie Davies, Dainty Diane, Althea Luce, Caspar Zarua, Joe Weston, Wm. D. Norton, Harry Tanner, Nellie Sawyer, Dalay Grant and a chorus of sixteen clever girls. Business broke all records for the present season owing to the excellent class of entertainment offered this week.

AL. REEVES' BEAUTY SHOW AT THE COLUMBIA.

Rightly billed, Mr. Reeves, you have a "beauty show" that any manager might be proud to say of. "That's my work; give me credit." It must be a real pleasure to play the Columbia, the loop burlesque house. The matinee always do a big business owing to the favorable location. There are just four men with the Reeves show this season, but they are "some boys," every one of them. Al Reeves, George Scott, William Luman and Andy Lewis are "it." Each of these gentlemen may be called comedians of the very highest order. There is such an abundance of good laughs all through the show that it is really hard to place the credit with any particular person. The musical numbers are well rendered and well received. There's a four chorus girls in the Reeves show who are going to make a big noise some day. They are Catherine Crawford, Beatrice Morton, Lucille Manion and Vera George. A pianologue specialty is introduced in the second half by Zella Russell and received with hearty approbation. Miss Marie Brandon is a toe dancer of no mean note and made a big hit through her offering with the Reeves show.

DISCUSSES MELODRAMA.

his people. He knows the shows. His outcome in this, his greatest undertaking, will be watched by showmen all over the world who know the Colonel and know that when he says "I'll make melodrama come back to my houses," that there is something doing.

I thought it would be a pretty good idea to see and find out how the show printing business felt toward melodrama. Then I bled myself up to the National Show Print in the Tribune Building, to have a talk with "Tommy" Hanks. "Tommy" was in excellent good humor, and we talked upon several subjects, and finally came to the point.

"Mr. Hanks, do you think melodrama can come back?"

"Yes," he replied: "It's as good as gold. You can take it from me that the melodrama business is bound to come back. Why, it's as good as old wheat. They can't hand them the old stuff; that is, old melodramas. They've got to give them new shows, and then it will be a continual procession of dollars into the box office. You remember in years gone by that they dubbed, and dubbed and dubbed, until finally they whipped melodrama into shape, and you know the answer. But there is one thing about present conditions of some theatres regarding the playing of melodramas. Take, for instance, the National Theatre here in Chicago. We couldn't get a nickel with a melodrama in that house because of the high-class shows that the patrons have been used to, and which we have educated them to. However, Wm. Roche has a regular gold mine in the Alhambra that he has just opened with melodrama. The folks around that house have been educated to melodrama in the olden days. If you are around that vicinity at any time since Col. Roche has gone into melodrama, just drop in and see the multitude. It's a cinch."

"Are you doing any printing for melodrama?"

"No," replied Mr. Hanks, "but we are more than busy printing up other stuff for the music shows and commercial people," and a broad smile illuminated Tommy Hanks' face, as he replied again: "Of course, melodrama can and will come back."

Lincoln J. Carter is the real fellow to interview on this subject, says I to myself, but, talk about your hard men to locate! This can only be done with a dozen Pinkerton men. At any rate, Mr. Carter furnishes his view on melodrama coming back by putting out, or rather, being interested in, two musical shows, namely: The Cow and the Moon and The Cat and the Fiddle, and NO melodramas, and at one time Lincoln J. Carter was the melodrama king! Not many seasons ago King Carter sent out fifteen to twenty melodramas and they all cleaned up big cash trip. I am mighty proud to know that was enrolled on the Carter books in capacity of agent for several seasons, and had the prince of good fellows, John H. Hanks, for a boss. Many a Carter agent and manager has made good and are now at the top of the list.

Well anyway, in looking for Mr. Carter I ran across E. F. Carruthers of the United Fairs Booking Association, and heavily interested in three outlying Chicago theatres.

"Howdy, Mr. Carruthers, can—"

"You'll have to hurry along with me, and I'll talk it over, whatever it is," replied the busiest man in nine states and New Mexico.

"Come along!"

I struck his gait and got with him. He was bound for his room in the Hotel Sherman. At Randolph and Clark Streets I managed to elude my voice the shrill whistle of a traffic officer and yelled: "Do you think melodrama can come back?"

"Not on your life; it's not worth a cent. I wouldn't (and by this time we were midway across the busy street, dodging all sorts of vehicles) play one as a gift. Why? Simply because (and now we had entered an elevator in the hotel, and E. F. said, "Fifth floor" to the elevator aviator) the class of people that went to see melodrama in the old days are all in the dirt now, and they want and get big music shows, and (now we're at the fifth floor and getting out) they—there you are. See that scrub woman or domestic? (I saw an attaché of the hotel.) Well that's the kind that's in what I called the 400 a while ago. A few years ago she would have been satisfied to have gone to see a melodrama, but now—now, if her man would say melodrama to her no—well, she would throw him over quick. Ask her. (But I didn't.) So long, mighty busy. No, sir, melodrama can not come back," and that's the unbiased opinion of one of the younger generation in hall-show business.

Now comes a press agent's views, also a dramatic critic's. Ralph Kettering is the press agent alluded to, and Ralph "press agents" five Chicago melodrama houses. Erie Delamarter is the dramatic critic alluded to, and he "dramatic critics" for the Chicago Inter Ocean. Scema like Kettering and Delamarter had a wordy argument on differences of prices for Chicago downtown melodrama and outlying melodrama. The gist of the argument Mr. Delamarter tells as follows:

"Mr. Kettering is puzzled over something. He can not see why melodrama at $2 a seat in a downtown theatre is perfectly good art, and why, conversely, equally good melodrama at 75 cents a seat in a neighborhood theatre is not good art. The man who owns a department store five miles from the loop demands of himself and his patrons through the posters the same solution of a business problem. Mr. Kettering presumes that his premises are correct. Were this admitted as a fact, there would be no argument. There is none, however, as the question was asked much as the rest of us would inquire of each other as to tomorrow's weather. But a chance consideration of the suggestion hints that three factors enter into the problem. If these three factors enter into the problem, if these three factors enter into the problem, are they not worthy of remuneration on the downtown scale of prices? If the prices in the one case are more convincing and less given to big joints and awkward methods of locomotion than their brethren, do they not deserve more serious treatment? And finally is there anything in the name of the richly salaried producing manager which guarantees neat thrills instead of jumping-jack astonishment? Answer: This is so in all three cases. Mr. Kettering granted the firm which admitted The Boss or The Deep Purple would not permit The Queen of the White Slaves or The Scout's Revenge to stray into a theatre in Chicago's loop without some degree of subjugation for the extravagance which delighted the gleesome gallery god of the old Criterion a decade back. He opines that the titles would be amputated first of all."

Richard Henry Little, the feature "Round About Chicago" writer on the Chicago Tribune, also doubts "theatrics." When asked, he said: "What? Stand back T. North and allow me to glance at thy features! Of course, you're sane! Snre! Ask not the question or ask not what the answer shall be. What? Well, just tell 'em I said 'Nevah,' and then I shrieked 'NO.' In such a sonorous voice that Lincoln Carter, Kreimer, the one-time melodrama Al Woods, and Hal Reid thought Frisco was voicing onto the Great White Way! No, T., melodrama can not come back!"

Jack Laft, who keeps Chicago American readers advised as to things theatrical, said: "Yes and no. Melodrama is a faded, old-world, for vanderlike, or Wisner and Armstrong's Deep Purple, for housea such as McVicker's, yes. Outlying houses all want and get musical shows and dramas. But no more 'melodramas.'"

J. H. Handley of the same sheet, said Laft had voiced his opinion.

Boh Clark of the Chicago Inter Ocean, said: "Come back? Why no, not a chance. That is, not as long as moving picture housea educate."

There's an answer, eh?

"Doc" Hall, the one best bet for daily theatrical news in Chicago and who tells 'em about 'em in the Journal, said: "Snre, the right kind can come back, but not the old, a la Desperate Desmond kind. That's come dead and buried, and much of the interest of some days at the door of the advancement of the one-time melodrama theatregoers. They're educated to higher and better things now, and they patronize them. Instead of the gallery, they now go to the balcony, and former balcony-goers now through the lower floors, and the theatre manager must give 'em the goods and the real goods. But they wouldn't patronize one of the old melodramas of the lurid kind."

Mollie Morris of the Chicago Daily News, said: "It seems as though the melodrama has gone, and then again it seems and looks like it is still with us, but not in the 'I-shall-get-you-ye style, or 'In-yonder-hills-the-sleeps-little-one, or any of that sort of melodrama. Theatregoers of Chicago have advanced two hundred per cent in their knowledge of plays and authors in the past two years, and managers must now show 'em."

Percy Hammond and James O'Donnell Bennett, the former on the Chicago Tribune, and the latter on the Chicago Record-Herald, would have both remarked something like this (that is if they could have been found): Courageous striving for a high artistic ideal deserves commendation in itself, and in no form of amusement is the truth of the statement so fully verified as in the everlasting affection which we all treasure for the Shakespearean era, etc.

Ashton Stevens of the Chicago Examiner, was "among those absent" also, but R. F. Rickson, part owner of the Crown and Imperial theatres (Chicago's two finest outlying houses), finished the story when he said: "Two of us are now building a theatre on Chicago's North Side that will cost $125,000, and open next March, and there will be NO melodrama appear there." and may be safely called the bit of this week's bill.

The boys have a cross-fire gag on aviation and acroplanas which might be improved upon. After singing Alexander's Band, in German, they completely atoned the show. It may not have been intended as such, but it was really a great burlesque on Dr. Wallner.

Una Clayton and Company present a comedy playlet called A Child Shall Lead Them. The offering is reviewed under New Acts.

Big Screen Welch, Sig. Mealy and Ed. Montrose are there as usual with "the big laugh stuff." Measars, Mealy and Montrose do some excellent acrobatic work, while Welch keeps the noise up. The act has not been changed in any manner since last seen here. They are still using the "hall game" as a closer and get away big.

Dr. Ludwig Wallner, assisted by the famous accompanist, Conrad V. Bos, appears next, introducing songs in German. Mr. Wallner has a great amount of dramatic ability which is nicely utilized in his songs. The act is reviewed under the heading of New Acts.

Mary Nerman, in her impersonations of "Some Women I Have Met," is enthusiastically received. Her character work is extremely clever. She offers impersonations of women in all spheres from the wife of the millionaire who and shopping in America such a bore, to the girl who takes her first auto ride. In this hit Miss Norman is a positive "scream" and had a hard time in getting off.

Howard's Musical Shetland Ponies and Dogs were billed as the closing act, but owing to the illness of the star pony, Mr. Howard was forced to cancel at the last minute. The Bromleya, in a novelty casting act, were substituted and offered a very clever act in this line. Some daring feats are carried out, which made a big hit.

The bill for the week of the eighteenth will be headed by Ruth St. Denis, in her Hindu dances. Manager Glover feels confident that with such a headline business will be exceptionally big. Those who know will realize that "there's method in his madness."

one and are costumed very nicely. Miss Wright makes several changes of costume during the offering and the time consumed by her in this is utilized by the boys to very good advantage in single and team work. Some new and novel steps are introduced which won heavy applause. As Miss is featured, one would naturally expect more from her, but the work she does convinces the audience that she is an exceptionally clever girl. The trio took several encores.

Lopez and Lopez appear in a neat musical offering called the Act Beautiful. Senor and Senorita Lopez have provided a beautiful setting for one of the prettiest and best musical acts ever seen in Chicago. The act is unique and novel throughout and fairly stopped the show on Tuesday night.

The Church City Four followed Lopez and Lopez and finished their first number before the audience could be convinced that Lopez and Lopez would not respond again. However, the Church City Boys were not long in showing their listeners that there was "some singin' goin' on." Their rendition of the Rosary was put over in a truly artistic manner and the applause proved to the boys that their good efforts were not wasted. The command of harmony in this quartet is wonderful, and abetted by the excellent work of Bert Reed at the piano. The boys appear in full dress and each one knows just how to carry it to the best advantage. Their stage presence is easy and natural and all bisterousness or roughness is pleasantly eliminated from one of the best straight quartets in the business.

Will J. O'Hearn and Company (and a carload of special scenery, so the program says) presents a sketch called A Romance of Killarney. Mr. O'Hearn is a clever artist and is supported by clever people, but there's no bottom in the sketch. It is empty, plotless, and meaningless. There is a great amount of clever talent being wasted in the present vehicle used by Mr. O'Hearn. The act itself is a failure, but the good work of the players was appreciated and well applauded.

PASSERS-BY ENDORSED.

"My boy knows when to smile," she says shortly, when the derelict Burns and Little Peter see each other for the first time, and the two child minds meet. A tender and appealing situation this—it brings the second curtain down. There is grace too to the writing of the passage in which Margaret, at the piano, sings an old song, with Peter's mind wandering in the past and his lips voicing the story of that dull old English home. And there is the flare of drama in the appearance of the unexpected guests, the discovery of Margaret, Peter's strength, and the womanliness of Beatrice.

"The last act, with Margaret waiting, fearing, hoping for the return of her boy, while Beatrice is at her side, and the subsequent disclosure of the sentiment that still lives in the hearts of the two lovers, brings a delightful blend of things that cause the smile or tear."

The World gives the following encomium: "C. Haddon Chambers' comedy, Passers-By, which was acted for the first time in the Criterion Theatre, will make play-going more profitable to people of discriminating taste than any other event that the new dramatic season has supplied. Its success before its first audience was decisive and deserved, not less for the delicate charm and fresh humor its lines and incidents contained, than for the skill and evenness of its general performance, although against the latter there is room for the objection that some of the principal characters seemed to be more American than English."

"It must be said that Mr. Chambers, in common with the other London authors whose plays periodically reach our stage, has been faithful to the familiar conventions of comedy. He also adds unconsciously one of the conventions of melodrama, for, in addition to the bachelor, his fiancée of equal social position and his former sweetheart in lower life, there is also the son, whose mother is the latter of the women named. Convention, however, is at the foundation of most plays. It is the nicety with which the old blocks are fitted together and the fresh fillings with which they are overlaid, which gives this one attractions that are all its own."

"The propensity of 'Pine,' Peter Waverton's valet, to invite into the lodgings during its owner's absence the flotsam on the tide of Piccadilly's ever-changing humanity, leads to the developments which form the substance of the play."

Alan Dale lays great stress upon the conflicting interests of the production and, in his characteristic colorful comment, coincides with his fellow critics in stamping his approval unhesitatingly on the new Frohman offering.

THE CHILD IN THE PHOTO PLAY.

American's, that it has been very difficult to choose successful subjects for this country from the mass of material submitted from Europe.

Though hundreds of foreign comedies of undoubted merit have been released in this country, some of them of unusually high-class type, notably the comedies of Aristophanes, presented in feature lengths, color, and staged in the most elaborate manner, their impression upon the American mind has been slight. It was not until the advent of Jimmie, the now famous Ganmont boy, that the old world and the new became a unit in their judgment of a film's success.

He is as mischievous and roguish as the liveliest child we have ever known, but which these qualities displays cuteness and subtlety hard to associate with a child only five years of age.

This is where Jimmie proves the most wonderful. Not quite six years have passed since his birth, yet he is able to imitate people of every age and walk to life and to mimic their most characteristic gestures in a perfectly true-to-life manner.

In child parts he is frank and natural in all his actions, and it is his personality, combined with this naturalness, which marks the difference between Jimmie and other child actors that we have seen. He is a child of laughter and happiness, and his bright face shines in the minds of all who see him on the screen.

Probably no child actor has been cast in so many and different parts as has this young star who each week makes fun for hundreds of thousands as he appears in some new character, disclosing always a fresh and delightful proof of his amazing versatility.

Remember that an old woman at Marcelline, who saw Jimmie acting on the pier of the old pier, exclaimed with fervor: "Ah, how sweet he is; I could eat him." The old lady echoed the thought of every audience to which the youth plays.

Versatility is an easy word to use regarding him, for no matter what the part, refined or crude, grave or gay, jocund or dignified, pleading or directing, that of youth or that of age, weakness or strength, servant or master, courted or courting, loved or jilted, he plays it not as an actor coached into the part, but as a genius finds the character he would portray, and displaying only by his youth, face and figure his own personality.

WRESTLING FILM A WINNER.

tions was demonstrated to the satisfaction of an invited audience, comprising prominent amusement and motion picture journalists of Chicago, at the Selig exhibition rooms, 20 East Randolph Street, this afternoon. Primarily, in the interest and wide appeal of the subject; secondly, in the excellent photography, and, lastly, in the spontaneity and spectacular action unusual in a wrestling match.

The pictures are run in two reels of 1,000 feet each, which are spun off, allowing for intermission, in about forty minutes. They show every phase of the meeting of the participants in the world's championship wrestling match on Labor Day, September 4, 1911. Frank Gotch, American champion, and George Hackenschmidt, nicknamed "The Russian Lion." The 35,000 excited fans who filled Comiskey Park on this occasion are shown in all of their animation, both previous to the entrance of the principals and after the match was over and present a wonderful picture of human life. Preliminary to the bouts and in the intermission, many ring-side notables, including Referee Ed Smith, Battling Nelson, Paddy McFarland, the Marquis of Queensberry and others are shown, and the fourteen minutes' duration of the first bout, with its wonderful tactical moves and feints, affords a liberal education. In the sport of wrestling as practiced by the world's chief exponents of the sport. The pictures, as taken by the Selig Polyscope Company, give their spectators an advantage in following all of the intricacies of the match that even the possessors of the ten-dollar seats did not have at the rinkside. The films plainly show what the audience then could not see, that in the last and deciding fall, Hackenschmidt, evidently overcome by a terrific feat of Gotch, lay down by throwing his own shoulders backward to the mat without the least resisting struggle.

The critics who viewed the pictures at the majestic last week and at the private exhibition this afternoon, are unanimous that they are at once the most complete and exciting films ever secured of a sporting event. The Gotch-Hackenschmidt Picture Company are getting ready to sell the state rights on these remarkable pictures, and already are in receipt of hundreds of offers for territory in the United States and Canada, and the colonies.

the character. Mytyl was again done by Claribel Campbell, who has grown considerably during the summer, and who is a shade taller than Master Burford. Morris Hunsick is the Fire, W. H. Denny plays the Dog, Alice Butler the Fairy Berylline, Helen Lackaye is the Light, and Harriet Sterling is Night. Dore Davidson appeared in the double role of Gaffer Tyl and Father Time. But Ceell Ynpp is back again in his original role of the Cat, and Gwendolyn Valentine is the same drooping Water she was before.

Some slight changes have been made in the method of presenting the play, and the Christmas tree scene and the scene in the Palace of Luxuries have been cut out. The Blue Bird was as delightful as ever, and the audience appeared to enjoy it.

THE RACK STIRRING.

"Thank you, but I'm getting credit instead of a man who did it, namely, Brady." Whereupon he brought out the producer, Mr. William A. Brady, and made him share in the applause.

"The Rack is not a pleasant, airy trifle by any means. It begins in a drawing room, passes through melodrama with some shooting on the side and arrives in the Supreme Court, bringing most of its principals along, except the villain, who was shot.

"The villain, Jack Freeman, was a end who had blasted the happiness of the Mackenzies, having succeeded in divorcing them, he next attacked the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon. Gordon orders him out of the house, but by an innocent pretext he lures Mrs. Gordon to a room alone with Mrs. Gordon. Freeman makes violent love, but is repulsed. He struggles with the woman, when there is a knock on the door. He goes into the corridor; two shots are heard and the villain is killed.

"The husband is accused of the murder, and the trial scene shows the wife on the rack. She protests her innocence at first, but finally breaks down and says she killed the man. Then Mackenzie steps to the stage center and testifies that he had heard the struggle from the next room and had shot the despoiler of homes. "And I was justified!" he exclaims. Quick final curtain.

"The play is sordid, unconvincing, most of the time, and the road house is close to vulgar. It has its moments of melodramatic interest, but they will scarcely atone for the rest of it.

"Miss Katherine Grey played the heroine, Blanche Gordon, very well. She was warmly welcomed when she came on, having been absent from New York for two seasons, touring in Australia. Mr. Milton Sills was the husband and acted earnestly. The villain's part was ably taken by Mr. Conway Tearle. A picturesque figure was Mr. Wilton Taylor, who did some good character work as the road house keeper. Mr. Joseph Greene, acting the District Attorney, and got up in his lines in a remarkably short space of time and deserves credit for it.

The World finds the play well produced and well acted but treats the play with indifference. Let it be understood, however, that the Buchanan melodrama possesses much of merit, that will arouse the morbid curiosity of New Yorkers to encouraging patronage.

CARLOS INSKEEP ATTRACTIONS.

Reports from all of the Carlos Inskeep attractions are not only very flattering, but the business is truly wonderful. George L. Barton, general manager of this growing firm, is much elated at their success. The Girl and the Tramp companies, of which there are four, are playing to record business everywhere, and When a Woman Wills, of which there are two companies, is doing a wonderful business. The success of this firm has been so great that Mr. Barton has made arrangements for the production of four companies, two of When a Woman Wills, and two of The Girl and the Tramp. These companies will open beginning October 15, and by the first of November they will all be en tour, making in all ten attractions under his direction. The Light That Leads will not take the road until the first of January, owing to the amount of work at the home office which requires Mr. Barton's presence there every minute.

Franz Lehar's coming to America will be an important event in musical and theatrical circles. It was A. H. Woods who prevailed upon the famous composer to make his first visit to the United States to conduct the initial performance of what he considers his best opera, Gypsy Love, which Marguerite Sylva will present at the Globe Theatre on Monday, October 30.

A troupe of Zouaves will be a feature of the Dustin and William Farnum production of the big A. H. Woods play, The Littlest Rebel. One hundred and fifty people will be employed in the interpretation of Edward Peple's new drama, Outside of the Littlest Rebel, who is a girl, Percy Haswell is the only woman in the cast, and she appears in the first act only.

Paul Armstrong and Wilson Mizner are home from London with the partly finished manuscript of The Greyhound, which A. H. Woods will produce. The scenes of the new play are laid on shipboard, dealing with the life of ocean gamblers. The authors will make several crossings before they definitely finish the play to get well acquainted with deck and smoking room life. Many ocean steamship characters taken from real life will be portrayed in the cast.

TAFT AT CELEBRATION.

Webster City, Ia., Sept. 15.—Webster City is planning a big celebration Thursday, September 25. It is the annual observance of Watermelon Day and is celebrated under the auspices of the Commercial League. This year added preparations are being made as President Taft and party will spend most of the afternoon in the city. He was routed through Iowa that day on a regular train over the Illinois Central. The Webster City League engineered a big stunt by buying the President in special train across the state that day if he and his party would stop. Secretary Hilles, for the President, approved the plan and so Webster City has a big added feature to its annual watermelon feast.

FAIR NOTES.

On Thursday night, September 14, the big Herschell-Spittman merry-go-round, belonging to Josiah Pearce, at Ocean View, Virginia, was burned. The carousel contained thirty-six horses and four chariots, and was being operated Saturdays and Sundays at the Ocean View pleasure resort.

The Tri-County Fall Festival to be held at Griggsville, Ill., September 18-23, has been declared off; also the Fall Festival at Barry, Ill., will be postponed to a later date.

Applications for mail addressed in this list must be signed individually by addressee.

THE BILLBOARD MAIL FORWARDING SERVICE

Persons desiring to avail themselves of The Billboard's facilities for forwarding mail matter to members of the amusement profession, are requested to bear in mind that the headquarters for this gratatious distribution of mail are CINCINNATI offices, where all such matter should be addressed unless it is known that it will be more convenient for addressee to receive it through the New York, Chicago or St. Louis bureaus. In Cincinnati a corps of experienced clerks is employed for the sole purpose of recording the whereabouts of transients, and handling mail addressed to them in care of The Billboard.

The postoffices adjunct of the New York, Chicago and St. Louis bureaus of The Billboard is maintained only for the accommodation of those who can procure quicker service by having mail sent to the branch offices, where they can call for it in person, or from which it may be remailed to them with greater despatch than from the publication offices at Cincinnati. No attempt is made to handle mail addressed to the branch offices without specific instructions, while thousands of pieces of mail matter pass through the Cincinnati offices every week and are remailed to addresses from information at hand without the delay of holding and advertising these names in this list.

In addressing mail to individuals in care of The Billboard, kindly indicate what company (if any) each is identified with or in what line of the business he is engaged.

All mail advertised in this list is being held at the Cincinnati office unless otherwise indicated by the characters * (New York),  (Chicago),  (St. Louis).

recalled in performances of The Merry Widow. She left this production to become a Mrs. Lockwood.
 Harrison Grey Fiske has engaged Gladys Haason, Mattie Russell, Elizabeth Fagan, Edwallyn O'Connell, Helena Van Brugh and Gilda Varese for roles in Mrs. Fiske's new medium, The New Marriage.
 Daniel Frohman promoted Arthur Byron, one of the principal members in the cast of Thy Neighbor's Wife, when this play began its tour Monday, September 18, at the Walnut Street Theatre, Philadelphia. This was not Mr. Byron's first stellar experience, as in the West he was starred in The Lion and the Mouse.
 Sydney Smith, one of Henry W. Savage's young managers, was removed to the hospital last week, where an operation was performed. His condition is not regarded as serious.
 Hubert Henry Davies, author of John Drew's new play, A Single Man, and of The Mollusc, which Kyle Bellew is now performing over the country, called for Liverpool Thursday, September 14, on the Cedric, in response to a cable summons announcing the death of his father. It was Mr. Davies' original intention to remain in America for several months. As it was, he had to leave to launch his two newest plays but was denied the opportunity of carrying out an intended trip to Buffalo, where Mr. Bellew gave his first performance of the Davies play, The Mollusc. Hubert Davies has already signed a contract with Charles Frohman for the next John Drew play.
 Orme Cuddegar has written a serious play that has been accepted by the Authors' Producing Company.
 The cast of Geo. M. Cohan's new musical farce, The Little Millionaire, which had its first presentation on any stage at Parsons' Theatre, Hartford, Conn., Monday evening, September 1, and which will be brought to the Geo. M. Cohan Theatre Monday, September 25, is as follows: Jerry J. Cohan, Geo. M. Cohan, George Parsons, Tom Lewis, Sydney Jarvis, Earl Benham, Donald Crisp, William Ford, Mrs. Helen F. Cohan, Lila Rhodes, Julia Ralph, Josephine Whittell, Maude Allen, Amy Mortimer, Dore Rogers and Charles W. Weil.
 A No. 2 Pink Lady company is now being rehearsed by Julian Mitchell to open in Baltimore the end of this month and will travel westward to Chicago, perhaps replacing The Folies of 1911 at the Colonial. In the No. 2 show will be Tom Water, Alma Francis, Cecil Cunningham, Wallace McCutcheon Jr., Lillian Concord, Fred Thersell, Bert Devlin, Joe Donner, Marie Cernon, George Harvey, Eddie Morris, Gypsy Dale and Dan Young. Mr. Waters will play the role created by Frank Lalar, which is the comedy hit of the piece.
 Mrs. Leslie Carter is recovering so rapidly from the serious operation which she underwent about two weeks ago, that her manager, John Cort, expects to put the company that will present Two Women on tour this season into rehearsal the end of this week.
 Lawrence D'Amico will begin his tour under John Cort's management in a revival of Augustus Thomas' comedy, The Earl of Bathwick, at the Collingwood Opera House, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., on Monday, September 18. Mr. D'Amico's supporting company includes Katharine Emmet, Louise Sydmet, Susanne Ryholm, J. H. Carvill, John Alden, Leonard Ide, Ernest A. Elton, Robert W. Smiley, John Taylor, Erving Glick, Lewis E. Parmenter, Harry Driscoll and G. F. Stewart.
 The company that will tour the West in Charles Klein's The Gamblers, under the management of the Authors' Producing Company, opens its season at the Savoy Theatre, Astor Park, N. J., September 15. The cast includes Paul Everton, J. Palmer Collins, Frank Losee, Edwin Caldwell, Franklin Seagriff, Matthew Snyder, Eugene Fox Croft, Edward Lehay, William Tanpost, George Fisher, Marie Knowles, Nellie C. Haynes, George Snyler, Evelyn Green and Gertrude Dallas.
 The concert opened Thursday night, September 14, when the 255th performance of this play was given. The 300th performance was given on Tuesday evening, the 19th, the same night on which The Woman was presented for the first time. Mr. Belasco's Republic Theatre in West 42d Street.
 Robert Hichens sailed for New York last Saturday in order to assist in the forthcoming production of The Garden of Allah at the Century Theatre.

Ahlstrom, Leslie Fisher, Lumsden Hare, W. S. Phillips and Annie Esmond. The Whittaker for the Defense is the latest work of A. E. W. Mason, the English novelist.
 Grace George makes her first appearance as Bontine in Shakespeare's Much About Nothing Thursday evening in Detroit. This will be the second production designed for the long repertoire season at the Playhouse in New York, others being: Just to Get Married, an English comedy by Cicely Hamilton; and The Earth, by James Bernard Fagan. It is planned to make about ten productions during the regular season at the Playhouse, partly of those known as the standard dramas and partly of new plays by American and foreign authors.
 The new Franz Lehar comic opera, Gypsy Love, with Marguerita Sylva and Henry E. Dixey, will come to the Globe Theatre, New York, on October 30, and will make its first appearance in Philadelphia on October 2.
 Maud Raymond has been engaged to appear in the new Winter Garden entertainment with Gaby Deslys.
 Miss Fay Templeton sang the part of Buttercup with the juvenile Pinaflore company at the benefit in aid of the stage children's fund given at the Casino Theatre on Friday afternoon, September 15.
 Frank Keenan has been selected to take the leading part in Leo Dittrichstein's adaptation of The Million, thus completing the cast for that production.
 Ethel Canning arrived from London September 13 on the Atlantic of the White Star Line. She will sing the role of Nancy in the new musical comedy, The Three Rascals, by R. H. Burnside, music by Raymond Hubbard.
 Mr. Robert Hilliard began rehearsals at the New Amsterdam Theatre for A Fool There Was, his company including Alphonse Ethier, Virginia Pearson, Stella Archer, Edna Conroy, Rosta Wurster, George Clare, S. L. Richardson, Reginald Barker, Aldon Wheeler, Robert Newcomb, Harvey T. Clarke, Doris Merritt and Ida Desmond. The Coast to Coast tour begins at the Apollo Theatre, Atlantic City, September 28.
 Charles Frohman returned last Tuesday, August 12, from Atlantic City, where he successfully directed the first presentation of Miss Billie Purke's new play, The Runaway. This was Mr. Frohman's first trip out of town since his recent illness. It was the opinion of doctors and those who accompanied him that the journey to Atlantic City greatly benefited Mr. Frohman.

 Frazee & Lederer have secured the rights to Miss Louise Dresser's services and have placed her under contract to star in a new musical play which they have in preparation. The piece is a musical comedy version of Miss Black Came Back, in which May Irwin once starred. Various new scenes have been added to the original manuscript, and George W. Lederer and Junie McCree are authors of the present version. The piece will be produced in Chicago on or about October 23.
 During the coming week the Kinemacolor Co. will show new views at the Majestic Theatre. In the past week the business has increased materially and it looks as if Kinemacolor would make an indefinite stay at Park Circle. However, the engagement is limited, as on October 1 the theatre will pass into the hands of Messrs. William Harris and Frank McKee, who intend to re-christen it the New Park Theatre.
 Beginning Monday, September 18, the Kinemacolor colored motion pictures will again be seen at the Herald Square Theatre.
 It is likely that Gerard Conventry will be associated with Frazee & Lederer in new productions.
 With four weeks of capacity audiences to its credit at the Knickerbocker Theatre, The Siren has earned the title of "the musical hit of the season." Donald Brian and his clever associates, now thoroughly at home in their roles and inspired by the cordial warmth of their nightly reception, are giving brilliant performances of this dainty musical play, which has proven a worthy successor to The Dollar Princess and The Arcadians.
 In the happiest comedy he has had in years, surrounded by a capsule cast of players, John Drew is drawing audiences to the Empire Theatre, largely because of John Drew, but also because of the refreshing story that runs through the four acts of A Single Man.
 William Faversham is the attraction at the West End Theatre this week. He is presenting Edward Knoblanche's comedy, The Fann, in which he appeared last season at Daly's Theatre. Following his season at Daly's, Faversham presented The Fann in the larger cities of this country. He will continue to appear in it during the greater part of the present season. Thereafter it will be an important feature of Mr. Faversham's repertoire. The company for this season is practically the same as that which was presented at Daly's.
 John Mason is nearing the end of his engagement in As A Man Thinks, August Thomas' latest and greatest play, in which he has appeared at the 39th Street Theatre for many consecutive months with the interruption only of a brief summer vacation. Another attraction has been booked in the theatre for a run soon and Mr. Mason will be obliged to leave New York, unless Messrs. Shubert can find another playhouse in which to continue his offering.
 The first musical production to be offered in New York this season under the direct management of the Messrs. Shubert was The Kiss Waltz, a new Viennese operetta, with music by C. M. Ziehrer, which inaugurated an indefinite engagement at the Casino Theatre Monday evening, September 18. The American adaptation of The Kiss Waltz has been made by Edgar Smith and the lyrics are by Matthew Woodward. This operetta was one of the great European musical successes of a year ago. A review of same will appear in the next issue of this publication.
 Seven Days is running this week at the Cohan & Harris Grand Opera House, with the company that Saturday night, September 10, closed an engagement at the Astor Theatre.
 This week is the last of the long and highly successful run of Geo. M. Cohan's capital comedy, Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford, at the Geo. M. Cohan Theatre. It will be immediately transferred to the stage of the Park Theatre, where Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford is to begin an engagement Monday, September 25. This comedy leaves New York City with an unbroken record of 426 consecutive performances to its credit, a precedent insofar as straight comedy productions are concerned.
 A Gentleman of Lelshire, after becoming acquainted with the New York theatre-going public at the Playhouse, moved to the Globe Theatre last Wednesday, September 13.
 Victor Moore has arranged to star again. His new medium is Owen Davis' dramatization of Sewell Ford's stories, entitled Shorty McCabe. The piece is to be produced with a veritable-sized company and without a chorus about Thanksgiving Day. Frazee & Lederer will guide him.
 The first performance of Gypsy Love in Philadelphia will take place at the Forrest Theatre on October 2.
 On Monday, September 18, the first regular performance of Robert Edson's new play, The Cave Man, was given at Providence. A few weeks from now a Broadway theatre will house the attraction.
 Next season Henry Miller may be the active manager of Chauncey Olcott's affairs. Augustus Olcott's present manager, has already announced his retirement at the end of the season and he abandons theatricals with nearly half a million dollars. Meanwhile, a warm friendship has sprung up between Miller and Olcott, and it reported that Olcott has been financially interested in some of Miller's more recent ventures. When Olcott rehearsed Macushia, his present vehicle, Miller took charge of the staging, and there is reason to believe that he will be still more closely associated with him another year.
 On Monday evening, September 25, Mr. Geo. M. Cohan and his own company will take possession of the Geo. M. Cohan stage and present that author, actor and composer's new musical farce, The Little Millionaire. In view of the fact that Mr. Cohan has not been seen as a player in New York City since the presentation of The Yankee Prince, more than two years ago, his return to the stage is being accepted by a myriad of admirers as an event of importance.

 Miss Suzanne Westford, sister of Miss Lillian Russell, has signed with Arthur Hammerstein to play the role of Lisette, in Naughty Marietta in the support of Miss Trentini. She succeeds Kate Ellmore in the cast of the Herbert-Young opera.
 The first performance of Henry B. Harris' production, The Arab, scheduled to take place at the Lyceum Theatre, Monday, September 18, was postponed to Wednesday, September 20.
 To the cast of Mrs. Fiske's comedy, The New Marriage, Harrison Gray Fiske has added Douglas Paterson, J. T. Chaille, and the Japanese actor, T. Tammamoto.
 Frank Daniels was chosen by Klaw & Erlanger to act the principal comedy role in The Pink Lady when that musical comedy is produced in London this winter. His is to be the part played at the New Amsterdam Theatre, by Frank Lalar. The London engagement probably will be played at the Duke of York's Theatre, beginning in November. The other members of the cast have not been selected definitely. Meanwhile, another Pink Lady organization is now in rehearsal, with Chicago as its objective point.
 Winthrop Ames is to have Al Canby associated with him in his individual theatrical enterprises as general representative.
 Foy's new musical play will bear the name of Over the River. The piece has been known at previous stages of its development as The Pet of the Petticoat and A Night Out.
 Ernest Lambert, who fitted from The Red Rose cast overnight, is not to remain long at liberty. He was placed under contract Friday, September 15, by F. Ziegfeld Jr. The latter expects to add Lambert to Anna Held's supporting company in Miss Innocence.

UP AND DOWN BROADWAY NOTES

principal revue is to bear the title A La Broadway. There will be no ballet in this fall's Folies bill. In addition to A La Broadway, the cabaret skit, Hello Paris, in improved and enlarged form, will be moved down to the regular bill.
 John Cort, president of the National Theatre Owners' Association, returned to New York Monday, September 11, from the West, where he had been directing the bookings of theatres of the Northwestern Theatrical Association, of which he is manager.
 The Eastern company in Charles Klein's The Gamblers, headed by Wright Huntington and Miss Mabel Brownell, began its season last Monday night, September 11, at Newburgh, N. Y.
 When The Fortune Hunters opens in New Brunswick the latter part of this month, John C. Brownell, the clever character actor, will appear in his old role.
 On Monday, September 18, the old Folies Bergere productions, consisting of Heil, Gaby and Temptation, began a tour at the Broadway Theatre, Brooklyn. These productions have enjoyed a run of nearly six months at the Folies.
 As a temporary attraction between the disappearance of the Russian Ballet and the launching of its autumn production, the Winter Garden barbers again Monday night the original show, La Brille Paris. Miss Stella Mayhew and Miss Dorothy Jordan are still the principal singers; Will Dazle, Al Johnson and Tempest and Sunshine are the leading dancers; Frelle both sings and plays her violin; and Harry Fisher and Barney Bernard air their show-biz perisage. Fifty or more others aid in the merriment.
 Another play is forthcoming from A. H. Woods. It is entitled The Master of the House, and is from the pen of Elmer James. The cast will include the following: Julius Steger, Amelia Gardner, Florence Reed, Dodson Mitchell, Frank Burbank, Helen Reimer, Eva Randolph, Catherine Clarke, Mary Severs, Babo Morgan, Lawrence Eyre and Ella Rock.
 George Fish, formerly of Indianapolis, will open a new stock theatre in Trenton about the 1st of October. The opening attraction will be Hotties. Mr. Fish is giving the piece most elaborate production.
 Mary Munnering Wadsworth has overcome the objection of her husband, Frederick E. Wadsworth, to her desire to return to the stage, and makes the announcement that Mr. Wadsworth himself will go to New York at once to settle the details of her contract with Lieber & Co. to take the part of Domini Endell in The Garden of Allah.
 At the meeting of the Theatrical Managers Association of Greater New York, held September 14, a committee of three was appointed to confer with various labor organizations concerning demands made on the members of the association. Among the controversies to be settled are those instigated by the Musicians' Union affecting orchestra playing and the request of stage hands for shorter hours. It is expected that the committee selected will be able to amicably arrange the difficulty.
 The premiere of The Quaker Girl, the opening attraction at the Majestic Theatre, Monday night, September 18, when Frank McKee assumed control, presented Ethel Jackson in the role which the management had awarded Lucy Weston.
 The resignation of Miss Weston came as a surprise, both because of her suitability for the role and because her engagement had been ratified by the English stage manager. The explanation offered is that Martin Heck and his Orpheum Circuit proved more alluring than musical comedy. Miss Jackson can be recalled in performances of The Merry Widow. She left this production to become a Mrs. Lockwood.

 Harrison Grey Fiske has engaged Gladys Haason, Mattie Russell, Elizabeth Fagan, Edwallyn O'Connell, Helena Van Brugh and Gilda Varese for roles in Mrs. Fiske's new medium, The New Marriage.

NASHVILLE, TENN.

No one is more pleased these days than Manager George Hickman of the Orpheum Theatre. The Orpheum, since it began playing acts from the Keith Circuit, has proven a big drawing card in every way.

O. A. Neal, Nashville's new manager of the Bijou Theatre, is supplying his patrons this week with a very interesting production, St. Elmo. This play is proving to be a big drawing card to the Bijou patrons. It is a great pleasure to note that E. C. Cantrell, the hustling advertising man for three houses, the Bijou, the Grand, and the Orpheum Theatres, is again back at this old stand on the door at the Bijou.

At last Nashville has a handsome motion picture theatre, The Elite. This beautiful house has been rebuilt at a cost of $10,000, and is owned by one of the strongest amusement companies in Nashville, The Crescent Amusement Co., with a capital stock of $75,000. The seating capacity of the Elite numbers some 500 upholstered chairs, the walls are all very handsomely painted; in fact everything is as up-to-date as one would wish. A $7,500 automatic Wurlitzer Pianochestra supplies the music. This magnificent instrument contains 370 pipes, and is one of the most expensive styles built, and at the present time is the largest instrument of the kind built in America. The Crescent Amusement Co. now controls and owns eight moving picture theatres and each one is supplied with a Wurlitzer Pianochestra.

Manager E. P. Furlong of the Fifth Avenue Theatre, is giving his patrons a very classy bill of vaudeville this week.

W. R. ARNOLD.

SEATTLE, WASH.

A modern, up-to-date, $100,000 exclusive photoplay house on Second Avenue is the latest big addition to Seattle's theatrical enterprises. The new theatre will be located at 1412-1416 Second Avenue, between Union and Pike Streets, on a site adjoining the north side of the Times Building. John H. Clemmer, owner of two theatres in Spokane, and his son, James Q. Clemmer, owner of Dream Theatre in this city, are financing the moving picture venture, plans of which are already drawn by Architect E. W. Houghton. Charles Frohman and Klav & Erlanger have finally fixed the opening date of the new Metropolitan Theatre as October 2, and the opening attraction will be Richard Carle and his company in the big laughing success, Jumping Jupiter.

Following the footsteps of Seattle, Victoria, B. C., has planned a Follies, which will be held September 11-16, under the title of "Do It in Victoria" Carnival.

John Cort has engaged Frances Sisson for Mrs. Leslie Carter's company. He has also engaged Felice Morria, who has been seen in Seattle at the Orpheum, for his Sadie Company.

Manager Pantages states that he will open his splendid new theatre in San Francisco not later than November. It will cost nearly $400,000.

Harry Corson Clarke has his company all organized for a road tour.

Sonsa's Band, which just returned from Australia, will be heard at the Seattle Theatre, September 23.

Herr Franz Adelman, for the last six years identified with the musical affairs of Seattle, left September 4 for New York City, from there to Europe, to be gone two years, during which he will devote his entire time to study.

LEM A. SHORTBRIDGE.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

Vaudeville season at Keith's Theatre opened September 11 to a crowded house. The headliner was Prof. Houdini.

Messrs. Spitz and Nathanson, proprietors of the Empire Theatre, already have two companies of The Thief on the road and good reports about business are received weekly.

Billie Watson and The Girls from Happyland did capacity business at the Westminster Theatre during the week of September 4. Manager Collier says it was the biggest week in the history of the house.

George U. Gray, manager of the Imperial Theatre, reports excellent business so far this season and feels sure of big business with the bookings he now has for 1911-12.

The Soring Maid, at the Empire Theatre last week, drew crowded houses at every performance and the S. B. O. sign appeared early in the week. This attraction was greatly enjoyed by the big audience present.

Mr. Berton Churchill, of the Albee Stock Company, received a beautiful gold watch from Mr. E. F. Albee on Churchill Night, September 8, at Keith's Theatre, and in addition to this beautiful gift, Mr. Lovenberg announced a three years' contract with Mr. Churchill for the Albee Stock Company.

W. E. GREENE.

TOLEDO, O.

Thomas Chlem, who has been in Toledo with many attractions in burlesque, is among the entertainers at the Wayne Hotel grill room. Thomas has some voice and making a decided hit.

Dave Altman was with us at the American as manager of Al. Wood's chief of the Secret Service Co. Dave has not been in town for the past three years. Looks well and claims that melodramas are in for a good season.

Satan Sanderson, a new offering for the popular-price theatres, was presented in this city the past week with the well-known star, Norman Hackett.

The Jersey Lilies presented at the Empire Theatre the past week with James Cooper and Charlie Howard, were a big card and among one of the best in the burlesque offering at the local playhouse.

Babe Andrews has taken the second-hand position at the Keith's stage. Will be very popular and should make good.

Bratley's new theatre, the Columbia, opened for the season, September 11. The house was tested to capacity at all performances. It is a very cozy place and should prove to be a winner. Among the features of the house is a $5,000 pipe organ.

Keith's is already ready for their opening on Monday, September 25. The attractions will open Monday afternoon and close Sunday. James Latham is now banding the publicity for the Auditorium. Jimmy is some biller, just back from a circus.

No. Henry Myers is not with a show, just had his picture in the paper because it was some event of Cris and him being twins.

The Orpheum Theatre Stock Company has closed, and the house is again showing pictures. Bill Bettis, manager of the Coloual, says that he has all the attractions in good pictures, and his house is always crowded.

Old Man Potaskel is home from the Toledo Beach, and making some good eatings for the wonder show people at the Oyster Bay Annex. Bill Keene went to see the parades or conventions at New York. Bill did not have any string for his hat.

JACK TIERNEY.

TORONTO, ONT.

The total attendance for the 12 days of the great Canadian National Exhibition which closed September 11, was 916,000. If it had not been for some inclement weather the million mark would have been reached. However, the management is already planning for next year on a greater scale than ever. Before the close of the fair the press boys passed a resolution thanking the manager and Secretary J. O. Orr and Press Manager J. K. Withrow for their courtesy and general endeavors to make things pleasant for the members of the fourth estate.

The season at Scarborough Beach Park, the big White City, closed in a blaze of glory September 10. An immense crowd was present to bear a choice program rendered by the 74th Regiment Band of Buffalo. The genial attraction manager, George H. W. Moran, informed your representative that this season just closed broke all records for attendance etc. for previous ones at this favorite people's playground. Next season will see several new novelties installed.

Mr. Edgar L. Wild of New York, has been appointed local manager of the Strand. The gentleman has had the best of experience in his particular line and this city's latest up-to-date amusement resort is bound to be a big success.

JOSEPH GIMSON.

SAVANNAH, GA.

The theatrical season never looked brighter in this city, everything in the way of amusements are opening up strong, and if all predictions come true, Savannah is to have the best season in years. The Savannah Theatre opened September 5, and Manager William B. Seeskind is back again with the best line of hookings ever offered the people of this city.

Since the affiliation of Jake Wells with the Bandy Brothers of the Liberty Theatre, Savannah is to have something new in the way of theatricals, the house now being devoted to the Star & Havlin Circuit, which insures forty weeks of the best plays known at popular prices, a partial list of which are given below.

The Kinemacolor pictures of the Coronation opened this house on Labor Day, and did a tremendous business for that week followed by Henry Hicks, In the House Next Door, which also fared well. Dante's Inferno will be shown here week of September 18, and the following shows have been booked. St. Elmo, Driftwood, The Soul Kiss, Beverly of Graustark, The Millionaire Kid, School Days, Fantasma, Around the Clock, Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch, The Traitor, The Winning Widow, The Man Between, The Goose Girl, Tiberius, Beulah Poynter, Salvation Nell, The White Slave, The Rosary, Ward and Vokes, Across the Pacific, Dave Lewis, The Virginian, Billy Van, Billy Clifford, Checkers and many others of as much prominence.

The Bijou is the only house that is exclusively devoted to vaudeville and Manager Henry C. Fourton, who is now in charge, assures his numerous patrons that he will continue to give them the best possible talent, with a change of bill twice weekly. It is something remarkable to see the tremendous crowds which tax this house nightly, never before in the history of theatricals of this city has a house done such an enormous business.

The Savannah Picture Play Company, which is building the Arcadia, the new picture house here, announced the opening for about September 20. This house when completed will seat 750, and will in all respects be one of the handsomest and best appointed picture houses in the South. The work is being rushed on the theatre, and it is expected that the opening will take place on time.

The Odeon and Folly Theatres have been doing a tremendous business all summer, and these popular picture houses are under the management of "Montgomery," who owns and operates houses in Columbia, Atlanta, Jacksonville and this city.

Savannah is to have a poultry show, November 18 to 24, this being a new enterprise for this city, it will, no doubt, prove very successful.

With the coming of the Grand Prize Automobile Race and the Vanderbilt Cup Race in Savannah, Thanksgiving Week, everything in the theatricals should boom, as at least a hundred thousand people are expected here during that time, and this will be one of the greatest events ever held in Savannah. Concessionaires should get in direct communication with B. H. Levy, who will have in his charge all the concessions. This is the time for all people in this line to get busy.

ARTHUR M. ROBINSON.

FALL RIVER, MASS.

The theatrical season will soon be in full hum. Already the Academy of Music is open. The premier show at this house was given September 1. It was a drama, A Prisoner for Life, and was witnessed by a full house. The next show was The Newlyweds and Their Baby, which went big. This is in many ways remarkable for the hills are running short time, and consequently the operatives and the citizens as a whole have less money. With such interest at the beginning despite the scarcity of money it looks as if the season would be a good one for conditions at the mills are expected to improve. The Academy has been remodeled. In fact it is more attractive than for years. George S. Wiley is manager. Julius Cahn is lessee and agent.

The Premier and Bijou have been running twice a week, three-act vaudeville and pictures during the summer and will continue this policy during the winter. Manager Benson is doing all possible to make both houses a success.

The Palace, built last spring by Wm. Stecker, is now managed by Jack Barry, an old theatrical man. He is running two or three acts of vaudeville with two changes a week, and first-class pictures.

The Star, Pastime and Scenic are dispensing straight pictures to good audiences.

FILM NOTES.

The company of Nestor players now working on Western pictures will shortly leave for Pennsylvania, where in the Mauch Chunk region they will play Western pictures, until the fall season is over and the weather will no longer permit. The company will then move on to Lower California, where it will spend the winter taking Western pictures and such others as are suitable.

New York City no longer harbors David Horsley and the Nestor Film Company. They have removed the executive offices from 147 Fourth Avenue, New York, to their own building at 688 Avenue E, Bayonne, N. J. All communications to Mr. Horsley or the Nestor Company should be addressed to Bayonne.

The Nestor Film Company will, on Saturday, September 23, start releasing comedy split reels, with Mint and Jeff occupying the larger part of the reels. David Horsley, who skillfully steers the Nestor ship, is very anxious over this comic double bill and predicts a tremendous success.

Will M. Carroll has opened a picture theatre at Jacksonville, Ill. The house is one of the best and most up-to-date in Central Illinois, and good business is looked for. Mr. Carroll for several years played leading parts with repertoire companies.

MOVING PICTURE THEATRES.

Desperate Desmond, the well-known melodramatic travesty by Harry Hensfield, is now being filmed by the Nestor Company, and the first release will be announced in the immediate future. Thomas Hackett, of Essanay fame, is directing Desperate Desmond's desperate efforts in winning fair Rosamund. We foresee a big success.

The Taylor and Brown Amusement Company of Big Stone Gap, Va., will open a motion picture show within the next week or two with C. O. Brown as manager. This will be in connection with their house at Big Stone Gap, Va., and Norton, Va. They will use licensed films. No name for the house has as yet been announced.

CARNIVAL CONVERSATION.

since become one of the big exposition promoters, he having had the Cliff Dwellers on the Pike at the St. Louis World's Fair, started in the business with the Travla Midway Company. Tobin is the only talker that has ever risen from a Midway front to the position of a recognized promoter. Talkers, all of you have a chance.

John P. Tobin—Where is that portable dance hall you were going to frame up for carnivals? Many think your idea an excellent one. John, suppose you really do it next season.

There are many devices, shows and games at Coney Island that would get the money and prove valuable additions to carnival companies. In many cases these additions would help promoters and managers to realize a portion of their ambitions. It seems, however, that the habitual Coney Islander prefers to remain there, regardless of any opportunities that may be offered on the road. The loss is considered an even break.

The bol-we-evil of the carnival business—That class of so-called strong game workers who are usually so weak that they can not even put up their own stands, let alone listen to an argument that will advance the business interest whereby all concerned would profit.

Many seven-in-one shows are nothing more than seven pits with one real attraction. More is the pity.

Just as soon as the Coney Island and any other showman finds out that the public are not "suckers," as he is wont to call them, just so soon will he start and continue to do well. With all due respect and apologies to P. T. Barnum for not conceding to his precedent, "the sucker a minute" gag.

Wilber S. Cherry, the general representative of the Smith Greater Shows, is among the few general agents that do not have to leave town immediately after signing a contract. Cherry can always come back.

The New York State Fair, at Syracuse, and the Danbury (Conn.) Fair, put out the best line of paper and do more and the most intelligent advertising than any of the Eastern fairs I have yet seen. By the way, both are real fairs, that know how to do things.

I am not kidding about this: There is a show in storage at Brighton Beach that is made entirely out of bread. It is the work of a German genius, and portrays the life of Christ. If some showman who is looking for a good proposition, it would be well for him to investigate this bread show. Speaking jokingly, the public should "eat it up."

The Middletown (N. Y.) Fair would have been a big winner if it had not rained all week. So say all the showmen and concessionaires who went there. It rained every day except the last day (Friday). Cheer up, Middletown; you are a good place anyway—that's worth something.

When riding devices have to lay off and shows go into storage just at the very beginning of the fair season, something is radically wrong. Where does the fault lie? There must be something the matter with the owners. The very best of a Merry-go-Round playing a week and laying off a week. I know two or three who are guilty. Think a minute.

A circus is a circus, a carnival is a carnival, a fair is a fair, a park is a park. Each to his own. Do you get this?

ROLLER SKATING NEWS.

The Kullerbocker Ice Company has purchased the machinery and ice plant and have built a plant just across the alley from the Ice Palace, and will manufacture ice, using the machinery from the Ice Palace by piping underground and connecting the two places. The men are at work on the decorations for the new dance hall, and the floor will be laid shortly, and everything will be in readiness before the cold weather sets in.

What effect this latest move will have on ice skating in Chicago is yet to be seen. Another rink, less expensive, may be built by men who have thought of building the second rink for Chicago. If such a move is made, a site more suitable for a skating rink will be the result.

SKATING NOTES.

Mr. Edward B. Barnes, manager Colliseum Rink, Winslow-Salem, N. C., writes that by special request he has consented to hold his rink open one week longer. It looks like business wasn't very good in North Carolina.

Oklahoma City, Okla.—Manager W. T. Yoder of the Colliseum Rink, who did not intend to open up this season as was reported, opened his rink a week ago and stated that wonderful crowds are patronizing the rink. Mr. Yoder intends to stage some championship races this winter.

Shawnee, Okla.—The roller rink at Benson Park has been doing a real winter business during the hot summer days.

Lawrence Sibenaler, the champion of Oklahoma City, has started the racing season by winning his novelty match race against Mr. Pratt, a heel and toe wanker, who was to walk one-half mile while Sibenaler skated one mile. The skater won, and a crowd of 600 people headed the 200 skaters witnessed the event.

Mr. Tom Butler, manager of the great team of ice skaters, Butler and Baple, has returned from Europe, where he was booking ahead, and was visiting in Chicago last week.

Milwaukee, Wis.—Riverview Palace Skating Rink opened for the season Saturday evening, September 2, to a packed house. Skating is just as popular as ever in the beer city.

Cleveland, O.—Manager Harris C. Shannon of the Elyseum Rink (Ice), writes that they are putting the rink in first-class condition for the fall opening, and some good contests will be promoted there this winter.

Reports from the summer skating rinks in many of the popular parks throughout the United States, have in most every instance been satisfactory to the promoters. In many cases it was reported that it was even better than the year before, and in many instances the rinks have decided to remain open as long as the weather will permit.

Chicago, Ill.—Madison Gardens, just fitted out with a new skating floor and several new decorations that go to make the Garden one of the most popular skating rinks in the country, will open up to the public on Saturday, September 16. Manager McCormick will have skating every night and matinees Saturday and Sunday afternoons during the entire season.

Chicago, Ill.—Manager Miles E. Fried of Sans Souci Rink, will open up his rink on September 16 with one thousand pairs of new roller skates, purchased last week from the Chicago Roller Skate Co.

Aurora, Ill.—The Colliseum Rink that was closed to skating the past two seasons, may be opened up for roller skating this winter. The rink was remodeled and used for moving pictures, and it was the intention of Manager Rubens to build on the rear and use same for a skating rink, but that plan was dropped. The skaters are now anxious for a revival of the game.

During the month of October, for the benefit of the ice skaters, I will publish a complete record of the championship events skated in 1910-11, naming the champion in each class, both Western, Eastern and International championship races. This will be the most important skating record ever published.

Mr. Al Flath, promoter and manager of amusement parks and skating rinks, was a visitor in Chicago last week. Mr. Flath, who was assistant manager of Ravenna Park, Milwaukee, Wis., closed there Labor Day. Flath is looking to get hold of some good rink for the winter, and no doubt but that he will boom skating in whatever locality he locates.

Earl Reynolds of the Reynolds and Donegan team of roller skaters, is filling in some good time. They had a fine week at the Temple, Detroit, Mich., week of August 27, and week ending September 3 at Rochester, N. Y. Their act is always good for a return engagement.

The last professional roller race of the season will be skated at the Riverview Rink, Chicago, on Sunday night, September 10. Twelve of the fastest skaters in the West will try to take the honors away from the California star, Fred Martin.

Henry Becker, one of the greatest little skaters the game ever knew, will be out of the game for good, if the reports said to have been received from his doctor are true. Becker has been skating under difficulties for a long time, having injured his leg in a bad spill some time ago, and has never had the same confidence in his skating since. Now comes the word from his physician that he must quit for good or suffer severely if the injured member is hurt again. The roller game loses one of the greatest skaters I ever saw.

To all skaters who have earned for themselves a reputation worthy of recognition for the skating world, and whose records and past performances will bear close examination, I earnestly request you to send me a list of your performances or records accompanied by a photo, and same will, if found correct, be placed among the records of great skaters in the form of a book in which is published as soon as the records and biographies of all skaters is complete. This book will be a complete history of skating, and when completed will be the most valuable book ever published.

Mr. Joseph W. Munch, formerly a Minneapolis (Minn.) skater, and at present manager of the Riverview Palace Skating Rink at Milwaukee, Wis., has a fine record as a professional skater, and wants it known that even though he is a rink manager, he is still in the game as a racer. Joe, who was a team mate of Alfie Moore when he was the champion of the world, has done some good racing, and for the last six years has defended his title of champion of the Northwest, and as this is the greatest event skated there every year, much interest is taken in the annual event. Mr. Munch won the Northwest championships at Minneapolis in 1905, and has defended his title annually, winning a medal each year. In 1909, in December, he was presented with a diamond-sludded medal at the championship races at Minneapolis. He has many records to his credit besides a number of medals. He says he is just as good as ever, and will go after the championship again this winter.

RINK NOTES.

The roller skating rink at Schuylkill Haven, Pa., was reopened to the public on Labor Day. Music was furnished by the Citizens' Band of Schuylkill Haven. The attraction for the entire week was Miss Adelaide E. D'Vorak, the champion lady skater of the world. This was the second engagement that Miss D'Vorak had at this rink. There were large audiences present throughout her entire week. The rink is under the management of P. R. Naffin and runs attractions once a week throughout the season. The latest attractions which were introduced by Miss D'Vorak at this rink are, "The Human Fish Pond" and "Musical Chairs." The champion speed skater of Schuylkill County is Charles Fisher, aged 16 years. This young man promises to make good in the racing game. He has skated against Jesse Carey in a seven-mile race and would like to meet other fast skaters.

G. J. Chandler of Lebanon, Ky., has opened a skating rink in the heart of his home town. It is his intention to feature professional skaters all throughout the season. His floor has been prepared and laid down with especial care, and the building has been so remodeled as to insure a cozy auditorium for lovers of sport awhirl.

The Vernons have just closed a successful five nights' engagement at the Lindington (Mich.) Rink, this being their third engagement at this rink within the last five months. The rink, which is owned and managed by Horan Brothers, is enjoying fine business.

The Colliseum Rink at Grand Rapids, Mich., owned by Mr. Herstick, and managed by Geo. Zindel, is being enlarged. The rink, which is modern, and up-to-date in every respect, will be ready for its opening sometime in October.

The Palace Rink at Cheboygan, Mich., managed by Nisker and Malek, is enjoying good business and is now in its fifth season. The rink at St. Ignace, Mich., is also doing nicely.

The Vernons report that the outlook is splendid for a very good season for rink managers in Michigan.

The rink at Gaylord, Mich., under the management of A. Karlsake, opens the season September 18.

A. Trudo opened a new rink at Manistique, Mich., September 4 to turn-away business.

The rink at Vanderbilt, Mich., opens September 18 under the management of C. LaFever.

The Temple Rink, Owosso, Mich., opens September 23, with George Wright as manager.

SWEET SIXTEEN DELIGHTS.

"It will be well to speak thus at once in praise of the music of When Sweet Sixteen, and to make appreciative mention of the pleasant light voices, the graceful dancing and the nimble cleverness of all the company.

"Back of the music and the intermittent vanderbilt which grows from Mr. Hobart's ideas is a general scheme of satire on the newly rich. Papa wants daughter to marry a moneyed miser, mamma has eyes on a Scottish lord, and daughter finally chooses the presumptuous secretary of the miser. Thus will sweet sixteen have a mind of her own.

"Plot and satire are neither here nor there when the action of the song-play is once under way. A manicure girl named Gertie has the swing of the newly rich one's mansion, a whole young ladies' seminary outfit is on constant call for chorus effects, and everything happens generally as it does only in farce-comedy land.

"Mr. Herbert personally conducted the orchestra and was a cheerful vision to the large audience.

"The Times reviewer is frank to express the following criticism: 'The principal tunes of the piece are Graft, The Wild Rose, Honey Love, Hearts are Trumps, and Rosalind. These have melody and swing to recommend them. There are novelties in the orchestration, a feature one may always expect in a Herbert score. There is a very clever use of the drum in Oh, Those Boys, the French horn plays its subtle part in Hearts are Trumps, and the aforementioned life in Graft caught many ears besides Kitty Gordon's, who was there in a box.

"In one instance the song called The Golden Long Ago, Mr. Hobart seems to have listened carefully to the words of There Were Two Prince's Children from The Merry Widow. However, he soon forgot The Merry Widow to plunge into the Laugh song, which closed the act, and which tells how they laugh in opera in the South and many other places. This, with Mr. Herbert's accompanying music, and the performance by the company, brought the curtain down with good effect. It had to be raised many times. Part of the finale was repeated, and finally Mr. Herbert and Mr. Hobart appeared to share the applause.

"Perhaps the three actors who were entrusted with these three roles had something to do with the success with which they were projected beyond the footlights. At any rate, they were the most successful in the cast. William Norris was Mr. Todd, Harry S. Fern, Zeke, and Miss Eva Williams, Gertie Greene.

"The chorus was comely and sang well; the orchestra played with spirit under Mr. Herbert's direction; the piece was prettily mounted, and the costumes were charming in a simple way. And When Sweet Sixteen contains enough comedy and entertaining music to while away an evening for many people."

SAID AND SEEN ON CHICAGO'S RIALTO.

Chorus Lady, a vehicle and part that yielded a fortune to Rose Stahl. Rodney Ransom, of course, will play the gallant young horseman who loves Patricia.

At the Crown, Three Twins will hold forth next week. Mayme Gerue will head the aggregation and will sing and dance the Yama-Yama number originated by Bessie McCoy. Sixty handsome showgirls and hollers are in the company.

Four weeks of business proves that Rowland & Clifford have struck another winner in Edward E. Rose's new play, Rock of Ages. The fifth week starts tomorrow, and the play, with many changes suggested by its spring tryout, comes into the Imperial Theatre for a week. In The Rock of Ages, the enterprising firm seem to possess a rival even for that money-maker, The Rosary. The opening week at the American Theatre, St. Louis, August 20, resulted in a gross that created a new record for that house. Miss Jessie Arnold, wife of Edward E. Rose, the author of the piece, and the leading lady, has established a permanent organization of the Rock of Ages Society in Chicago, and the first gathering of the Chicago Chapter will be at the Imperial Theatre this week. The object of the society is to conduct rescue work among the girls of the larger cities.

At the Haymarket, Salvation Nell, Edward Sheldon's gripping play of the rescue work of the Salvation Army, will spend the week. Miss Isabel Randolph in the title role, and Edmund Roberts as Jim Platt, sustain their roles in masterful fashion. The stagings and the character delineations are the height of realism.

Col. William Roche announces The Struggle for next week, at the Bijou, commencing Sunday matinee. The play is one of the higher order of melodramas. Carl Hartberg, recently in the support of Mrs. Fluke in Becky Sharp, but better remembered for his impersonation of the German with David Warfield in The Music Master, has the leading role.

Messrs. Marvin & Roche announce Miss Beulah Poynter's pleasing comedy-drama of Missouri swamp life, The Little Girl that He Forgot, at their Alhambra Theatre for the week commencing Sunday matinee, September 17. Miss Agnes Biall has succeeded to the title role this season.

Clyde Fitch's last play, The City, which the Shuberts have had on tour for the past two seasons, will be the offering for the coming week at the Marlowe Theatre. The excellent Marvin Stock Company, with Albert Phillips, Lella Shaw, Sam Meharry and Alice Condou in the posts of honor, will delineate it.

Hanson's Fantasma, a brilliant combination of pantomime, illusion and spectacular extravaganzas, will hold the boards at the National Theatre for the coming week, commencing tomorrow matinee.

Suffrage and Love, a two-act comedy, translated from the Swedish of the Duchess de Cagliostro by Dr. Ingeborg Rasmussen, and August Strindberg's Samn were acted last Thursday night, September 14, at the Hull House Theatre on Halsted Street, by Mme. Sonja Bernhoff-Jebe and a company of American and Norwegian players.

Grace Hayward has returned from Europe and reorganized her stock company that she maintains at the Warrington Opera House in Oak Park. Her players this season include Charles W. Dingle, Lew J. Welton, Chester Wallace, David Marlowe, Walter Watson, Dolle Davis, Collette Powers, Rose Pointer, Frank H. Livingston, William Webb and Robert Jones.

A sprinkler standpipe and high-pressure system for lighting fire, the invention of W. J. Reilly, engineer of the La Salle Opera House, has been adopted by the Chicago city council as the official apparatus for theatrical use. The device has been in use for the past year at the La Salle.

Mikhail Mordkin's All-Star Imperial Russian Ballet, with Mme. Anna Pavlova in the company, is announced for a series of spectacular entertainments at the Auditorium November 13, 18 and 19.

Addison Burkhardt, one of the authors of Louisiana Lou, now appearing at the La Salle, is collaborating with Charles W. Collins on a musical vehicle for Nat Willis, who will be starred late in the season by a firm of producers in the East.

Chicago, Sept. 16 (Special to The Billboard). —At the end of next week, only one of the Loop section theatres will be dark, and this, the Studebaker, is scheduled to open on September 24, with Eddie Fox and company in a new musical comedy, by George V. Hobart and H. A. Du Souchet, with music by John L. Golden. This entertainment, which is founded upon the theme of The Man From Mexico, was originally named A Night Out, but it will be presented under the title of Over the River. This name was agreed upon yesterday by Charles Dillingham and F. Ziegfeld, Jr., its producers. The name is due to the chief incident in the piece, the sending of a convivial man-about-town to Blackwell's Island reformatory, which is "over the river" from Gotham.

On September 24, The Girl I Love will begin its engagement of three weeks at the Auditorium as the annual attraction of the Policemen's Benevolent Association.

On September 25, at the Lyric, the All-Star revival of Pinafore will take place, with Fay Templeton, De Wolf Hopper, Eugene Cowles, Edith Decker, Arthur Aldridge, George MacFarlane, Alice Brady, and others.

Future attractions at the Loop theatres are announced as follows: Edith Tallaferro and company, in Rebecca of Sunnyside Farm, at the Illinois, on October 1; Alla Nazimova, in Alcegaon Boyesons, The Other Mary, at Powers, on October 2; Philip Barakofsky's farce, Over Night, at the Princess, on October 2; C. M. S. McElhan's, An Affair of the Barracks, at the Grand, October 2; Leo Ditrichstein and company, in The Concert at the Blackstone, about October 15; Walter Browne's morality play, Everywoman, at the Auditorium, on October 16, with Jane Oaker, Frederick Warde, Marie Wainwright and others in the cast.

Boccaccio will be the opera that will occupy the talents of Col. William Thompson's Opera Company at the Angelus next week, commencing Monday night. It will be the introductory vehicle for Mme. Alda Hemmi, who has appeared with many notable opera companies. Arthur Deane, the possessor of a beautiful tenor voice, will have a prominent part in the opera. Patronage at the Angelus is steadily increasing, and Col. Thompson's efforts to provide the best of the operatic classics at popular prices is meeting well-deserved success. Among the operas scheduled for early future production at the Angelus are: The Bohemian Girl and Carmen.

At the Chicago Opera House, Dustin and William Farnum and company are meeting with great success in the military play, The Littlest Rebel.

Thomas W. Ross, entering his fifth week in An Everyday Man at the Cort Theatre, is turning them away. H. B. Lonsdale, recently of the cast of Dear Old Billy, at the Whitney, has succeeded C. B. Wells, who is ill.

Holbrook Blinn, in the role of Michael Reggan, is adding tremendously to his reputation at the Garrick. His vehicle, The Boss, is one of the best expositions of latter-day American life that Chicago has seen since The Lion and the Mouse. Mande Fealy and H. A. La Motte assist in garnering the laurels.

Thomas A. Wise and John Barrymore will play Uncle Sam for three more weeks at the Olympic Theatre. The first change in the cast will occur Monday night, when Georgia O'Ramey will displace Josephine Brown.

William Hodge, in the Tarkington-Wilson play The Man From Home, continues to draw capacity houses at the Grand. The same generous patronage is accorded Ziegfeld's Follies at the Colonial. Grace Leigh has left the company.

There is a new "bad-er" in the cast producing The Deep Purple, at McVicker's Theatre. He is Lyster Chambers, who has replaced Louis Morrell. The Armstrong-Mizner melodrama is playing to the full capacity of the house every evening. Edwin Arden, who is now acting the role of the heroic mining man in the play, will leave The Deep Purple at the end of the Chicago run to go into the support of Mme. Simone (Le Bary), and will take part with her in Rostand's La Princesse Lointaine, called in Louis Parker's version, My Lady of Dreams.

Louisiana Lou, with Alexander Carr, Eva Fallon, Mary Quive, Sophie Tucker, and a cast of celebrities, begins its third week at the La Salle Opera House, with generous patronage. Its pungent humor and melodious score evokes favorable comment from all who see it.

The Criterion Theatre, heretofore the home of melodrama, and for years the headquarters of Lincoln J. Carter, has been leased to Max Hanisch, a Philadelphia promoter of the German drama in the German language. The house which has been rechristened the Deutsches Theatre, opens tonight with a performance of Johann Strauss' delightful three-act operetta, The Gypsy Baron. It will run for a week. The interesting company comprises the flower of the German singing talent in light opera in America, among them artists being Remy Marsano, of Berlin's Royal Opera and the Metropolitan; Emilie Schoenfeldt, of the Residenz Theatre, of Hanover, and Angelo Lippich, a handsome tenor from Vienna. There is a singular chorus of thirty, and sixteen musicians, under the baton of Herr Martin Ballmann.

There will be a change of attractions at the Lyric Theatre on Sunday, September 17, Lew Dockstader and His Minstrels opening to a matinee audience. Among the well-known fun-makers in the company are Nauty, Copeland, Albright, Romaine, Gilletti, La Pearl and Ferandon.

Fifty cages of animals from all parts of the world. Our own new "HERSCHELL SPILLMAN TWENTIETH CENTURY" MERRY-GO-ROUND, purchased four weeks ago direct from the factory, carrying a thousand dollar organ. Uniformed Band. Two sensational Free Acts. Ferris Wheel. Lewis Rag Time Sensation, a Plantation Show, carrying fifteen of the best performers. This is the largest, best equipped Plantation Show ever framed. Princess Bonita, that educated horse from Brussels, featuring the thriller, the Fire Scene. Four other shows are carried. I can use two more shows and place a few well framed concessions. We don't want the strong graft. Each and every person connected with this enterprise is a lady and gentleman. Should you be such and care to join a clean company, where all are respected, equal rights to all, special privileges to none, have a business and know how to run that and leave other peoples business alone, we want you. But if you are a knocker or a boozier, no matter how large your show or how big your bank roll, don't join this show, for I will leave you set on the lot. This company has proven that clean amusement pays, having just closed our second successful engagement this season in one of Indiana's richest cities, Lafayette. Most any show can play them once, but few can do it successfully twice within eight weeks. Lodges and Secretaries of Fairs, both County and State, bear in mind this company in your future contracts. The show shall remain out all season South. Now showing Indiana's second best Fair, Terre Haute. Big Home-Coming follows on the Streets. WILL E. AIKEN.

Intimate Sketches of the Careers and Personalities of Men Powerful in the World of Amusement, Whether or Not Prominent in the Public Eye

It can be easily remarked without fear of refutation that no name, if any, is more widely and more favorably known in theatrical circles than that of Abraham Lincoln Erlanger. The mere mention of the producer's name brings up the train of successes, both before and since his association with Marc Klaw was entered into, that pays homage to his business acumen. Today he is known as New York's eminent theatrical figure, the E. of the firm of K. & E., the large producers, as well as having heavy and active interests in Klaw & Erlanger's Exchange, the firm of Hayman, Klaw & Erlanger, Klaw & Erlanger Amusement Company, the K. & E. Construction Company, the New York Theatre Co., the K. & E. New Orleans Theatre Co., the Illinois Amusement Co., Power's Theatre Co., Chicago; Frohman, Rich & Harris, Boston, and is also prominently interested in many other corporations. His success is the more pronounced because of his humble start and the rigid but ambitious career that he outlined for himself, which culminated in the ramification of theatrical enterprises that are now under his supervision.

To Cleveland, Ohio. It is that we look for the early history of the youthful Erlanger, although his birthplace was the sister lake city of Buffalo, N. Y. He acquired with unusual rapidity the education obtainable in the public schools of the Cuyahoga City, and finished also a commercial course at the Spencerian Business College. When attending school, young Abe gave vent to his indomitable ambition by taking charge of the opera glasses and cloak room at the old Cleveland Academy of Music, in the days when it was under the management of John Ellsler. When the Euclid Avenue Opera House was built, Mr. Ellsler took young Erlanger along with him as general all-round assistant.

The venture proved a fiasco for Ellsler, and the theatre passed into the hands of Mark Hanna, who placed his cousin, Lew G. Hanna, now a major in the United States Army, in charge. Hanna recognized the ability of young Erlanger without much delay, and installed him as business manager and treasurer of the enterprise. The incident marked the birth of a new era in Cleveland theatricals, and one which subsequently made itself felt throughout the country. By his system of advertising and accomplishing publicity, Cleveland was transformed from one of the worst to the best of show towns in the country. In less than a month a promotion placed him in absolute managership of the house.

Mr. Erlanger's first regular road engagement was that of advance agent for Mr. and Mrs. George S. Knight, for a duration of two months, after which he and John H. Havlin became their managers. The tour was gratifyingly successful, and by reason of the record made, Erlanger was engaged by Chas. B. Jefferson. He managed the spring tour of Jos. Jefferson. He remained in this connection for five successive years, being obliged to travel but ten weeks out of the year. Bookings at that time were horrifyingly uncertain. Jefferson, although at popular prices, could not tell just where his bookings would take him. He had then toured the East and North for twenty-eight years. Young Erlanger arranged a tour throughout the entire South and West for Jefferson at the now current $2 price, something hitherto unaccomplished and considered an impossibility.

After the opening tour of the Jeffersons Erlanger entered into an arrangement with Marc Klaw, who was managing Effie Ellsler, and with him took charge of the route of the celebrated actress. The two young managers decided to take their star from Philadelphia to Little Rock, Ark., a distance at that time the record for a dramatic jump. The association of the two men soon became a co-partnership, which has continued for over a score of years without the slightest suggestion of a friction.

Together they bought out the old Taylor Theatrical Exchange, the first of its kind in New York, in 1894, on $500 borrowed capital, secured from the funds of old David Bidwell, the manager of the Academy of Music and St. Charles Theatre in New Orleans. They soon entered the production field. Their first venture was The Great Metropolis. This was followed by The Country Circus, A Round of Pleasure, Miss Dynamite and Jack and The Beanstalk. About ten years ago, Mr. Erlanger originated what is now known as the "Theatrical Syndicate," which has become one of the greatest theatrical powers in America, and probably in the world. He is the guiding genius of this great institution, which controls many of the principal theatres in the United States.

In 1898, Klaw & Erlanger became interested in the production of Hall Cain's The Christian, and the next year made their great production of Ben-Hur, which is in its thirteenth season and has netted them a profit of over a million and a half dollars, besides paying to the estate of General Lew Wallace something like $350,000 in royalties. One of Mr. Erlanger's greatest achievements was the building of the New Amsterdam Theatre, which represents an outlay of over $2,000,000, and generally conceded to be the finest theatre structure in the world.

Personally, Mr. Erlanger is rather reserved, but to those who know him intimately he is one of the most genial men in the world. He possesses a most lovable and sympathetic character. These attributes are not generally credited to him, but to really know him is to respect him and like him immensely. He is generous both to friends and to charitable purposes.

He is a remarkable athlete, and is an amateur boxer of note. He is also an enthusiastic horseman, and can hold his place in the saddle with the best of them. He enjoys a good dinner and a funny story, as all his associates can testify. A business man in business hours, he is a big boy and full of fun when his day's work is done.

New York, Sept. 19 (Special to The Billboard).—An impressive victory was that of George Arliss in his hanny role of Lord Beaconsfield, in Louis N. Parker's historical drama, Disraeli, at Wallack's Theatre, Monday, September 18, depicting the diplomacy of this masterful British statesman in the most triumphant stroke of his political career. The country has seen too little indeed of plays and interpreters of the stamp and merit of the new Parker drama and George Arliss. Disraeli is, to say the least, a real play, educationally, historically, artistically and dramatically. To be true, there are those who find an element of fault in the book, but there are none who cast the least disparagement on the work of the well-known exponent of sardonicism. At this late date, it is unusual when the critic, awe-inspired at the production, lays aside his careful and guarded pen to sing the unequivocal praise of the artist in the passionate tempo that characterized the reviewing columns of the New York press on Tuesday and Wednesday morning.

The World strikes the keynote of laudation by giving the following tribute: "The portrayal of Benjamin Disraeli, by George Arliss last night in the drama, Disraeli, by Louis N. Parker, at Wallack's Theatre, stamped itself immediately as an example of character delineation, which stands in a class by itself among all the attempts in recent years to represent great personages of history on the stage. Not since the curtain was drawn on the careers of Henry Irving and Richard Mansfield has a New York audience witnessed a performance that could approach it. It is also unlikely that these departed geniuses, to either of whom the role might have strongly appealed, could have excelled the sheer histrionic power with which its present actor sketched the bold outline, and then filled in the detail of what at once became a living figure.

"It is a dangerous undertaking when the stage sets out to reproduce a great world figure whose personality and career lie so close to the present that it has not been dimmed and softened in the perspective of time. So it may be argued that the Disraeli of Arliss imagination is not in every respect the Lord Beaconsfield of the third quarter of the nineteenth century in England. That may or may not be true, but it has little bearing on the present matter. The essential fact

New York, September 21 (Special to The Billboard).—Edgar Selwyn, author and leading protagonist of The Arab, welcome to our midst. You have demonstrated your ability as both writer and performer. You infuse the spirit, the color, the atmosphere, in short the Levant and the Orient, in your latest production, which visited New York at the Lyceum Theatre Wednesday, September 20, for its first metropolitan production. Your delineation of the religious-wavering and boastful dragoon, his religious conversion to the Christian Sheikh of his Syrian nomadic tribe, is the most delightful and artistic bit of work you have yet accomplished. The week has been productive of three particularly meritorious dramas: The Passers-By, the Woman and The Arab. Selwyn can well be proud to receive classification and inclusion in this splendid tri-unity.

The Sun commends the new play for its merit, its truthness to tribulation of the missionaries and the tribes that are the subjects of their endeavors. It terms the love sentiment that silvers the play throughout as most appealing. The pathos at the fall of the curtain is praised in most effusive liberality. There is but one fault it finds and that is an overweighting amount of precautions in preparing a background for the intrigue that develops the story. It pronounces the effect as a "lack of ginger" in act number one. The fault is a small one and will doubtlessly be smoothed out by the actor-author.

The Tribune finds the play a pictorial one, but of the variety that does not go deep into realities.

The Times, however, takes exception to this statement and upholds The Arab for its Oriental atmosphere and Syrian color.

The scene of the play is laid in a Syrian village east of Damascus. There are uprisings on the part of the Moslems in that district against the Christians. The young sheik's son, Jamil Abdallah Azam, is a convert to Christianity, speaks English and loves the daughter of the man in charge of the American mission. When the insurgents advance to murder all Christians, this young Moslem prevents the massacre, saves his love and at the sudden, opportune death of his father becomes sheik of his tribe and protector of the town.

The Times speaks as follows:
"For people who like the pleturea and the atmosphere of the Orient, served in melodra-

New York, September 19 (Special to The Billboard).—The Casino has become a recognized house for musical comedy successes; the latest occupant, which opened Monday, September 18, and on that enjoys the critics' predilection for a successful run is The Kiss Waltz, a Viennese operetta in two acts. The tune-fest humor that Hungary contributes to the present-day field of entertainment and also like the American adaptation of all visitors from this continental country, the latest debutante contains a pleasing plenitude of diverting specialties ably executed by competent artists. Singing, dancing, kissing, flirting, and sundry dissonance give merely a suggestion of the atmospheric levity with which a really consistent plot for musical comedy is embellished. The Times calls the new offering a musical cocktail and enumerates the various ingredients that impart its delightful theatrical palatableness.

The cast is itself counted for much in favoring the osculatory production up to the relishing point. Flora Zabelle, Robert Warwick, Eva Davenport, Charles Bigelow, Adele Rowland, Martin Brown, Elsa Ryan and Wm. Prvette were particularly responsible for the enthusiastic reception accorded the premier presentation. In fact, Alan Dale praises the work

Tim Murphy has begun his season in The New Code, which he will use until the new year, when he is to produce a new modern comedy by Paul Wistach, author of the spectacular dramatic version of Thais.

Bianche Ring in her new vehicle, The Wall Street Girl, under the sole management of Fred McKay, begins her preliminary engagement at Wilkes-Barre, Pa., October 2, whence she goes to Pittsburgh and later to Chicago to commence her metropolitan engagement in the early part of November at the Garrick Theatre.

Considerable difficulty was found in selecting a finale to the new Eddie Foy Show, Over the River. Several authors tried to write a suitable finale but without result. J. Rosamond Johnson, the colored comedian, has found the right one. His recent work in composing for the Follies Bergere's midnight review showed J. Rosamond Johnson has ability far beyond the writing of ragtime for colored and blackface acts.

Ann Warrington has been engaged by Arthur Hopkins for an important role in his production of The Fatted Calf. She is to play the part originally assigned to Julia Hanchette.

The three-hundredth performance of The Concert was given at the Belasco Theatre Tuesday night, September 19.

The company that is to play The Gamblers in the South opened at Norristown, Pa., Monday night, September 18. Charles Mackay and Lillian Kemble appeared in the leading roles.

Joe Weber will invite to the matinee on September 27 of A Man of Honor the clergymen of New York.

Miss Gertrude Elliott opened her season in Joseph M. Hill Paterson's play, Rebellion at the Royal Alexandra Theatre in Toronto, Monday night, September 18. She comes to her sister's theatre, the Maxine Elliott, on October 30. In her company are A. Scott-Gatti, Fuller Mellich and others.

Stahel McKinley Baer, niece of the late President McKinley, is being sued for $2,000 on behalf of sixteen-year-old Abraham Schultz, who was struck by her automobile at Fifth Avenue and Twentieth Street on August 18. The slinger was in the car at the time according to the complaint.

Report has it that Josephine Brown, the actress, will wed William Gillette.

The Hartford (Conn.) critics have called The Little Millionaire, the vehicle in which George M. Cohan has returned to the stage after an absence of two years, a distinct triumph. New York gets her prep at it this week.

The fifth successful week of the big new Hippodrome production, Around the World, began on Monday, September 25. New York's largest playhouse has been filled at every performance since the opening night of the new spectacle, which received the endorsement of every critic in town without a single exception.

New Play a Perfect Gem

THE WOMAN, a play by William C. DeMille.

THE CAST.

The Hon. Jim. Blake, Representative from Illinois.....John W. Cope
Tom, his son.....Harold Vosburgh
The Hon. Mark Robinson, Representative from New York.....Edwin Holt
Grace, his wife.....Jane Peyton
The Hon. Matthew Standish, an insurgent.....Cyril Hastings Esip Van Dyke, corporation counsel.....Y. & N. R. R.....Carleton Macy
The Hon. Silas Gregg, Representative from Kansas.....Stephen Fitzpatrick
The Hon. Tim Nelligan, Representative from Pennsylvania.....William Holden
Wanda Kelly, 'phone girl at the Keawlek.....Mary Nash

New York, Sept. 21 (Special to The Billboard).—David Belasco is the predominant feature of The Woman, the political drama which had its premiere at the Republic Theatre Tuesday evening, September 19. He has selected a skillfully devised play, interestingly plotted, realistically embellished and graphically languaged. For this Wm. C. DeMille deserves the credit. His product unfolds with gripping interest, works up to a veritable compelling climax and unfolds in its denouement as a rapidly, most superbly executed, gruesome a first, but relieved at the end by the cheerful chatter of Wanda Kelly, the 'phone girl, who, though humble in station, proved to be the greatest combatant next to the naked revelation of the identity of the woman in the case, that Jim Blake and his cohort of party machinists had ever met. So concentrated and closely bound is every figure one to the other that even she, though lowly operator that she seems, not only establishes her fitness as a wife to the party machine's boss, but can boast of a political pedigree that focuses the light of parental approbation upon her.

The Republic has a play that will remain with it all season. Of this there is not the slightest doubt, or else the writer is a poor discernor of public tastes and dramatic triumph. Standing out in every scene, in every situation and in every character in the head and touch of Belasco that is recognized as synonymous to technical perfection and aesthetic quintessence of the production of the drama.

WEEK IN NEW YORK CITY

ACTS NEW TO NEW YORK

Synopses of Sketches and Criticisms of Various Vaudeville Acts Making Their First Appearance in Metropolis. Criticism Determined by Opinion of Audience

FROELICH, Sketch Artist. Hammerstein's Victoria; 12 minutes; in two.

As a vaudeville act, Froelich is above par to his line of work. Froelich begins by drawing black and white sketches, making several of them neatly and rapidly. His next picture is made for comedy purposes. From a sheet of black paper he cuts the form of a dancing girl. This he places behind his sketch paper, turns on and revolves an incandescent light, which produces the effect of an Oriental dancer going through her capers. His last effort is a pretty night picture made in colors. Froelich's work commanded interest during the twelve minutes he occupied the stage.

CHESTER AND JONES, Singers and Dancers. Hammerstein's Victoria; 9 minutes; in one.

The number of two men singing and dancing sets in vaudeville is large. The majority of these acts follow one conventional routine, have little that is new worth mentioning, and naturally pass before our vision without leaving any impression. Chester and Jones, however, will not easily be forgotten by an observer of their work. It must first be told that the steps they undertake is the result of a sincere effort to relinquish the much-trodden path of conventionality to their brethren. The aftermath is that they have rounded out a finished and entertaining dancing offering. Little singing is done, a number being rendered only at the opening.

MILES, DOMINA MARINI AND MARCEL BRONSKI, Classic Dancers. Hammerstein's; 10 minutes; in one.

At the Metropolitan Opera House, Miles, Marini and Bronski will be pronounced excellent. But at Hammerstein's, principally, or even, perhaps, any other vaudeville theatre, these classic dancers will hardly create excitement. At the Victoria, Miles, Marini and Bronski danced through four numbers, of which the third, the Dying Swan dance, seemed the best liked. The act was on next to closing at Hammerstein's, but the greater number of auditors remained seated, more out of curiosity than anything else.

ALTUS-BROS., Club Jugglers. Fifth Avenue; 7 minutes; in one.

The Fifth Avenue Theatre program last week (September 18), had for its opening turn The Altus Brothers, two men whose juggling feats brought applause all through the act. The rapidity with which they work, the confidence they possess and the consequent finish of the number combine into giving The Altus Brothers as entertaining seven minute specialty as could be desired.

Current Vaudeville Bills

New York, Sept. 25 (Special to The Billboard).—Bills at local vaudeville theatres this week are:

Alhambra—Irene Franklin, Billie Reeves and Co., Joseph Hart's Honor Among Thieves, Simone de Beryl, Hoey and Lee, Avery and Hart and Sayton Trio.

Bronx—Everywife, Sam Chip and Mary Marble, Jack Wilson Co., Clarice Vance, Sig. Luciano Luca, Miller and Tempest, Harvey DeVora Trio, Meebon's Dogs and the Musical Craigs.

Bushwick—Four Mortons, Ryan-Richfield Co., Jones and Deely, Six Musical Spillers, Four Hamlin Brothers, Scott and Wilson, Ollie Young and April.

Colonial—Princess Rajah, Paul Dickey and Co., Cliff Gordon, McConnell and Simpson, Smith and Campbell, Big City Four, Four Barde, Arthur Froelich and The Daleys.

Fifth Avenue—Tony Pastor's Anniversary Week—Maggie Cline, Mrs. Annie Yeaman, Fox and Ward, Col. Sam Holaworth, Fields and Hanson, Bob Winstanley, Lottie Gilson, Luke Wilson and Wani and Curran.

Greenpoint—Victor Moore and Co., Toronto, The Chadwick Trio, Mrs. Gene Hughes and Co., Harriet Burt, Four Cloverly Girls.

Hammerstein's—Rock and Fulton, Montgomery and Moore, Edmund Hayes and Co., Ruy Cox, Chas. F. Seamon, Merrill and Otto, Oscar Loraine, Joe Morris and Chas. Allen, Van Hoven, Copeland and Payton, Hall Bros., Joo and Ella Fendler, Harrison and Buckley, Ross and Brown.

Orpheum—Coclea and Amato's Apple of Paris, Frank Fogarty, Edgar Atchison-Ely and Co., Joseph Hart's The Bathing Girls, Stepp, Melinger and King, Barnes and Crawford, Cartmell and Harris, Lane and O'Donnell and Pope and his educated dog, Uno.

WALTER AND LESTER HERE.

New York, Sept. 23 (Special to The Billboard).—Walter and Lester, comedy musicians, who bill themselves as the world's worst winners, arrived in New York, Wednesday, on the Blucher. The act is booked for a 25 weeks' tour of the Sullivan & Considine Circuit, opening September 24, at Cincinnati.

BUD AND NELLIE HEIM, Juvenile Entertainers. Fifth Avenue; 12 minutes; in two.

For a juvenile, little Bud Heim is a corking comedian. He works like a matured fun-maker. A bit of his comedy is impromptu material, which shows that the chap's powers of perception are acute. His confident bearing is rather unusual for a youngster. Nellie Heim, probably the elder of the two, lends valuable aid to Bud. The Fifth Avenue audiences delighted in the work of The Heims and applauded generously.

HAMMERSTEIN'S BILL

Dramatic Playlet Dope Principal Act on Program Last Week. Frank Fogarty, Yorke & Adams and T. Roy Barnes Share Equally as Fun Makers

New York, Sept. 23 (Special to The Billboard).—The dramatic allotment of this week's program at Hammerstein's is furnished by Herman Lieh and his company, playing Joseph Medill Paterson's story of existing cocaine traffic under the name of Dope. The playlet tells of the efforts of two reformers to stop the flourishing sale of "coke" to degenerates. A druggist's shop is the place of business. The reformers trap the druggist into selling cocaine to a boy. As the druggist passes the drug over the counter to the youth the cocaine is snatched up by one of the do-ye-good teachers to be used as evidence in the case which they hope to bring against the cocaine dispenser. It later develops that one of the reformers is interested in the firm which manufactures the "coke," and sells it to the druggist, while his companion also obtains money by the sale of the drug through her mother's ownership of the building tenanted by the druggist. The reformers, fearing the revelation of their connection with the traffic, send away the officer who has been summoned by them to arrest the druggist. Careful delineation of characters is made by Mr. Lieh, and his support, which includes Irving Williams, William Barnett, Miss Evelyn Walls, Francis K. Liew, Master Fred Tompkins and Miss Mabel Day. The company was placed to close the first half of the show.

Froelich, crayon artist, was assigned to the get-away niche, with Chester and Jones, a pair of nimble dancers, filling spot No. 2. Both turns are reviewed under New Acts.

The hoop rollers with an act like a production—The Kratons—were exceptional applause winners for so early a position as No. 3.

For the quadruple section Stella Tracey inserted a neat single act. Four numbers, namely, You Are My Harbor of Love, O'Reilly (with Tad Brogue), After the Honeymoon and That Mysterious Rag were her selections. Her final number, while singing which Miss Tracey is robed in night raiment, and during which were used shimmer light effects, is a corking finale, mainly because of the splendid manner in which it is handled.

As an extemporaneous comedian, T. Roy Barnes, of Barnes and Crawford, is, to plier an adjective from the vocabulary of the classics, "there." His foil is the late-comer, of whom there are many, especially at the Victoria.

On first after the intermission, Max Witt's Melody Lane Girls, a quartet of singing maidens, sang themselves into favor.

Yorke and Adams, following the Max Witt act, registered a success, as did Willard Simms, in Filander's Furnished Flat. Simms' efforts to paper a room are ludicrous.

Frank Fogarty, the Dublin minstrel, elicited laugh after laugh, as he always does. Miles, Domina Marini and Marcel Bronski, classic dancers, reviewed under New Acts, and Bert Melrose, the acrobatic clown, whose finish is highly sensational, wound up the program.

Irvin Simon, manager of the Hopkins Theatre, Louisville, Ky., was in New York this week, making arrangements for a book which he will use with his burlesque company to be put on the road next season. At the Hopkins Theatre, which is a Sullivan & Considine link, Mr. Simon says business is flourishing.

She was featured on the opening bill at the Bushwick Theatre, Brooklyn, last week, and was tendered an ovation.

PERTINENT PATTERN

New York, Sept. 25 (Special to The Billboard).—Commencing with next Wednesday, October 5, the Winter Garden will present Gaby Deslys, the alien of the Portuguese ex-king, in a series of the most pretentious musical comedy satires under the collective title of Revue of Revue.

Mlle. Deslys will appear as Chichine in Les Debutants de Chichine, previously offered by the famous Parisian comedienne at the Alhambra in London. The action of the piece will be conducted with much pantomime and little French, and the star will render two songs in English. Her support will include Germaine de Rene, Edgard Chatel as Flip, and Harold Crane as Durton.

The scenes represented are the Rue St. Germaine in Paris and the chamber of Chichine. A cast of two hundred people will be in her support, including Dorothy Jordan, Maud Raymond, Kato Ellmore, Lydia Barry, Frank Tinney, Harold Crane, Harry Johnson, Clarence Harvey, James B. Carson, Doris Cameron, Grace Emmons, Ernest Ilmore, Edward DeNoyer, Georgin Margeroul, Sam Williams, Mabel DeYoung, John Shrode, Rayn and Ratsch, Arthur Hill and the Four Musical Hodges.

The first scene in the Revue of Revue will depict a meeting in the clouds outside of New York Bay. Satan, the Statue of Liberty and a choice coterie of spirits will be predominating characters. An elaborate scene showing Looney Park will follow the episode in the air. Another scene will burlesque the reception of Admiral Togo while in America. The Bronx Zoo is also to be represented on the stage. The Japanese ballet and a company of Spanish dancers from London will form the concluding features.

The Fox Players are presenting in vaudeville an operetta called The Will of the Wisp. The little company includes A. Percy Woody, Miss A. Rohin, Miss Sylvia, Miss Hazel Kingdon and Miss Helen Morris.

Louise Grnetz, formerly of The Hamilins, will soon return to vaudeville as a single act. Her former partner, Richard Hamlin, is preparing material for the number.

Louise Mario, the singlor comedienne and German yodler, is presenting a new act over the United Time. Miss Mario is under the direction of Lillian A. Handy.

Richard Hamlin, the man in brown, formerly of The Hamilins, opens as a single act on the Sullivan & Considine Circuit at Spokane, Wash., October 1. Hamlin is hooked over the time for 25 weeks.

Suggestions for All-Star Bill

WEEK OF SEPT. 18

Imaginary bill framed up by New York correspondent and including acts appearing at the several vaudeville houses. Importance of act is indicated by position given:

A—Altus Brothers, Club Jugglers.

Fifth Avenue; in two.

B—Bud and Nellie Heim, Juvenile Entertainers.

Fifth Avenue; in one.

C—Simone de Beryl, Posing.

Colonial; full stage.

D—Max Witt's Melody Lane Girls, Singing.

Hammerstein's; in one.

E—Edgar Atchison Ely & Co., comedy play

let, Billy.

Colonial; full stage.

INTERMISSION.

F—Six Musical Cuttya, Musicians.

Colonial; open in full stage; Close in one.

G—Herman Lieh & Co., in Dope.

Hammerstein's; full stage.

H—Lillian Russell, Songs.

Fifth Avenue; full stage.

I—Rawson and June, Boomerang Throwers.

Fifth Avenue; full stage.

There is variety in the foregoing program. No two acts on the entire bill are alike in the matter of offering.

The ever fair Lillian Russell is given the stellar position on the bill. Surrounding her is entertainment that would cause even the most blasé of theatregoer to straighten in his seat and emit an occasional whoop. Herman Lieh must be accorded second spot in the All-Star race. The remainder of the acts are so evenly matched insofar as merit in their respective work is concerned that it is necessary to proclaim all of them a tie for third place.

TRAGEDY ON CIRCUS LOT

Three Men Killed in Pistol Duel During Concert Performance of Yankee Robinson Show—Circus Management in No Way Responsible for Tragedy

Madill, Okla., Sept. 23 (Special to The Billboard).—Friday night on the show lot at Madill, there was enacted perhaps the worst tragedy ever witnessed amid such surroundings. The Yankee Robinson Show had had a big day and people and showmen were both satisfied. Just as the night concert was about over two men forced their way into the show without paying admission. One of the management called the attention of an officer to the presence of the men who had by that time reached the end of the reserved seat section. While the officer was expostulating with the two men a liveryman who was not implicated, hunted in and took the side of the men. In an instant the argument became heated and the liveryman, who is reported to have been drinking, pulled his gun and shoved it into the face of the special sheriff. The latter drew his gun and as he did so, the liveryman shot and instantly the special officer shot the liveryman and both dropped dead on the same spot. Before they fell they fired seven shots. One of these shots hit an innocent by-stander in the neck and he died during the night. Another young man was shot in the leg. The concert was in progress at the time and the families of all three persons killed were in the tent and witnessed the tragedy. Pandemonium prevailed for several minutes on account of the excitement. No blame is attached to the show as it had absolutely no connection with the affair except that it happened to be the stage setting for the tragedy.

AIRMAN INCINERATED

Unable to Endure Jeers of Onlookers, Youthful Aviator Makes Flight, Although Knowing His Machine Was Unfit for Sailing—Is Burned to Death in Air

Troy, O., Sept. 22 (Special to The Billboard).—Another aviator was forced into the air by the jeers of the crowd, and Frank Miller, aged 23 years, a Toledo (O.) aviator, was burned to death in midair before the eyes of the terrified spectators on the Miami County Fair Grounds here. The aviator lost control of his machine when about two hundred feet in the air. As it started to fall the engine caught fire and communicated the flames to the gasoline tank, which exploded, wrapping Miller in flames. The craft struck the ground with great force, Miller's already charred body being hurled underneath the motor.

Miller's engine had been acting badly in previous flights, and he had refused to make an ascent until the crowd started to jeer and call him coward.

It is only a few weeks ago that John J. Friable, one of the leading aviators, stung by the taunts of the crowd, made an ascent in a damaged machine at Norton, Kan., and was killed.

HARRY O. STUBBS.

Mr. Stubbs is well known in theatrical circles, but especially in Columbus, O., where for the past several seasons the Stubbs-Wilson players have filled summer engagements at Olentangy Park.

RIVER AVIATOR IS CHOSEN.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 22 (Special to The Billboard).—Hugh K. Robinson, the aviator, has been nominated by the Mississippi River Flight Association to make the Minneapolis to New Orleans hydro-aeroplane flight of 1,917 miles. Robinson was selected from more than forty applicants. The start will be made from Minneapolis, October 11. He will fly for a purse of $20,000 raised by the river cities, in which he is to give exhibitions.

SOUTHERN ACTRESS DIES.

Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 18 (Special to The Billboard).—Word has been received here of the sudden death in Brooklyn, N. Y., of Miss Florence Elizabeth McHale, aged 24, a young Memphis actress, who has been playing a prominent role in Madame Sherry. The remains will arrive here September 21.

Musicians' Strike Not Felt

Chicago, September 22 (Special to The Billboard).—While Col. W. A. Thompson was cheerfully counting the money that a capacity audience had handed into the boxoffice for seats to the performance of Boccaccio Wednesday night, he was notified that the orchestra had refused to go on unless paid for the week in advance. The demand was so unwarranted and preposterous that he dismissed the strikers without further ceremony.

Col. Thompson explained to the audience, and offered them the alternative of "money back" or grand opera with piano accompaniment. The audience was game and with a loud shout agreed to the latter proposition. The ensuing performance was one of the most novel and successful ever given in America. Each number was cheered to an encore and some soloists were called back half-a-dozen times.

On Thursday eleven new faces looked out of the orchestra pit. They belonged to the new men whom Col. Thompson had hired to take the place of the strikers. He had expected that he would be able to retain his musical director, but the union called him out, and once again the Colonel had to lean into the breach and extricate his performers from the dilemma. In this instance he did it by acting as his own conductor, a role which he filled capably and to great applause. Negotiations are now under way looking to a peaceable solution of the trouble.

CURTISS AT FAIRS.

During the present season the Curtiss Exhibition Company has contracted for, and carried out, exhibitions at thirteen state fairs, viz: South Dakota, Vermont, Montana, West Virginia, Wisconsin, Missouri, Maine, Alabama, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Utah, Georgia and North Carolina. Contracts are coming in to the company's office every day from secretaries of state fairs throughout the country, particularly fairs in the Southern states.

CINCINNATI PLANS PAGEANT.

Business and commercial organizations of Cincinnati are outlining the plans for a great historical pageant, something on the order of the old Cincinnati productions, to run several weeks in September of next year. One hundred thousand dollars will be raised to carry out the scheme, $8,000 of which was subscribed at a meeting of the Cincinnati Historical Men's Association, who originated the idea.

BULLET FAILS TO MELT.

Trinidad, Col., Sept. 17 (Special to The Billboard).—Mrs. Fred Fisk, "the human target," appearing at a local vaudeville theatre, in a shooting turn, apparently catching bullets fired across the stage in her teeth, was instantly wounded here last night when the bullet, which was made out of wax, failed to melt from the heat of the explosion and struck her on the side of the head.

THEATRE MANAGER IS DEAD.

St. Louis, Mo., September 23 (Special to The Billboard).—John Fleming, for many years manager of the Grand Opera House and later of the American Theatre, died here September 20, after an illness of nearly a year. Tuberculosis was the cause of his death. Fleming had gone West about two months ago in an effort to find relief, returning to St. Louis two weeks ago. A widow and two brothers survive him.

MME. SIMONE ARRIVES.

New York, Sept. 21 (Special to The Billboard).—Mme. Simone, the French actress, arrived by the White Star liner Oceanic, Wednesday, September 20, with her husband, Claude Casimir-Perier, son of a former president of France. Mme. Simone had played nine years, getting her inspiration to start dramatically from the commendation of Bernhardt, and in that time she had appeared in only nine plays.

Mme. Simone will open at Daly's on October 9, in Bernstein's The Thief, following in The Squall, which she said had been produced in London so altered that Bernstein could not recognize it. The actress said: "I shall play it here as Bernstein wrote it. It is what you might call tense. It is not a play for young girls, it is true, but it is free from vulgarity. It is a stirring story of Paris life."

Performers Disappear Mysteriously

Kansas City, Mo., Sept. 20.

The Billboard: Gentlemen:—On Aug. 22, 1911, the Bellmouts (Harry and Pearl) and William Meyers, wife and little daughter, left here to fill an engagement as free attractions at a celebration at Houston, Mo., for Aug. 24, 25 and 26. They arrived there and completed their work, and we are advised that they left there on Sept. 21 by wagon for Cabool, Mo., (Houston being some 14 miles from Cabool, the railway station), saying they were coming to Kansas City for a few days' stay, and then to Chicago and New York, to fill time booked by Mr. Wilson, of New York. Since that time no trace of their whereabouts can be had. No reason can be assigned for their apparent disappearance, they having purchased a small farm near here, and were planning it for their future home. Their many friends fear for their safety, and desire that you give this space, that it may bring some news of them. Yours very truly, J. F. M. STINE.

MINNESOTA STREET CARNIVAL.

Lake City, Minn., Sept. 23 (Special to The Billboard).—A grand carnival and street fair will be held here October 4, 5, 6 and 7 under the auspices of the Retail Merchants' Association. Ten distinct acts have been secured at a cost of $1,000. In addition to the other carnival attractions.

Advertising literature is now being distributed and the whole country within a radius of one hundred miles will be covered. The streets will be especially illuminated every night and downtown thoroughfares will be one brilliant "white way."

FREDERICK JULIAN ILL.

Chicago, September 20 (Special to The Billboard).—Dangerously ill and in needy circumstances is Frederick Julian, one of the best-known stock actors that ever played Chicago boards. Mr. Julian is at present at the Lakeside Hospital, and his friends are seeking to raise a fund to render him more comfortable. Miss Anne Sutherland, now playing in The Deep Purple, was the leading lady of the stock company with which Mr. Julian was identified some years ago and she has started a subscription for his benefit.

A MILLION GIVEN PREMIERE.

Newburg, N. Y., Sept. 10 (Special to The Billboard).—An audience that filled the Academy of Music here tonight witnessed the premiere performance of the American version of the French farce, entitled A Million. The American adaptation is by Leo狄里施tein, and produced by Henry W. Savage. Critical opinion is that the play will be one of the biggest farcical winners in years.

Street Car Strike Hurts Fair

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 21 (Special to The Billboard).—The Michigan State Fair now going on has been hit hard by the strike of the street car men in this city. With the big eight-day fair under way only two days and thousands of visitors coming into the city the rest of the week, a tie-up of the street car lines means a probable big failure for the enterprise. The fair grounds are five miles out of the city, and the street cars are depended on almost entirely for transportation.

INCREASED SHOW LICENSE.

Fayetteville, Ark., Sept. 22 (Special to The Billboard).—The license of the Hagenbeck-Wallace Shows for their engagement in this city, September 18, was increased to $800 a performance. The circus refused to pay this amount and moved the show three miles out of town. The Wallace Show could have made money despite the high license, but did not want to establish a precedent. Twenty-five thousand people who come to Fayetteville are up in arms against the city officials. The show lost heavily by wagons sticking in the mud at the junction lots and by losing their date at Ft. Smith the next day. They, however, cancelled their date for September 20 and showed at Ft. Smith, placing them one day behind.

Circus Sale Postponed

The Assignee's Sale of the Famous Robinson Shows, which was to have taken place at Morgansfield, Ky., September 27, will not occur on that date as the circus has been taken out of the hands of W. C. Bland, assignee, and placed in charge of the Federal Court at Louisville, Ky. The Columbia Trust Company, Louisville, Ky., which is handling the affair for the court, when interviewed by The Billboard, Monday, September 25, stated that the property would be sold at auction to the highest bidder, but that the persons interested in the show have not as yet determined when the sale would take place.

BALLOONISTS FALL.

Rockville, Conn., September 21 (Special to The Billboard).—Two balloonists were injured at the fair grounds yesterday. Prof. Marsh and Eddie Berlinger made a double ascension and triple parachute drops. The combined weight of the men was too much to allow the balloon to rise to the right height to permit the several parachute drops. Berlinger's second parachute was only about fifty feet from the ground when it opened and he struck heavily, sustaining probably fatal injuries. Marsh's undulating came in attempting to open his third parachute, and as it was not opened sufficiently to check his fall, he also fell heavily.

RAILROAD RATE

In Oklahoma Lowered by State Commission—Managers Welcome New Order Which Will Also Benefit Playgoers—State Heretofore Shunned by Theatrical Companies

Theatrical people will welcome with pleasure the proposed order issued by the corporation commission of the State of Oklahoma, fixing minimum rates for handling private baggage and passenger cars for special parties between Oklahoma points. The rates will be lowered as a result.

For 18 persons using one passenger and one baggage car, the minimum charge is $25; for 36 persons, $40; for 54 persons, two passenger cars and one baggage car, $40; for 72 persons, two passengers and two baggage cars, $50; for 90 persons, two passenger cars and three baggage cars, $65.

The new order covers day coaches or Pullman cars and baggage cars owned or rented by the occupants and loaded with properties, scenery, theatrical paraphernalia or other baggage. The cars are required to be stopped 48 hours without charge.

GEORGE L. MARION SAVED

Pennsylvania Board of Pardons Commutes Death Sentence to Life Imprisonment—Marion, in a Letter to The Billboard, Thanks His Friends for Their Assistance

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., September 20 (Special to The Billboard).—George L. Marion will not hang. The death sentence was commuted by the State Board of Pardons which met this afternoon to imprisonment for life. The reasons for the commutation are now being incorporated in an opinion which will be sent by the pardon board to Governor Tener for his signature. The governor has the power to withhold his approval, but the possibility of such action is very remote, the usual procedure being to immediately approve the change of sentence as recommended.

A monster petition circulated by The Billboard and signed by thousands of members of the theatrical profession was sent to Governor John K. Tener and the pardoning authorities, and is believed to have been the chief factor in saving Marion's life.

Prominent theatrical people from all over the United States and Europe also sent letters, and a telegram was received from the Theatrical Alliance now holding a convention in San Francisco, representing the sentiment of 2,500 show people.

There is no doubt but that Marion was suffering from temporary insanity at the time of the crime. Andrew Hourigan, assistant district attorney at the time of the trial, wrote that a commutation of the sentence would meet the ends of justice, as he considered there was a doubt as to Marion's sanity. Dr. H. B. Meredith, the chief insanity expert for the prosecution, stated in a letter that "while Marion was apparently sane, still, his mind was so obscured that he probably did not realize the serious nature of his act."

Immediately upon learning of the commutation of his sentence Marion addressed the following letter to The Billboard:

County Prison, Wilkes-Barre, Pa.,
September 20, 1911.

Dear Billboard:
Please accept every manifestation of deep, sincere gratitude and thanks to The Billboard for the great part taken which went so far towards victory. Thank my brothers and sisters in our beloved profession and the amusement world generally for this true, loyal devotion during the dark hours I have passed through. I am grateful, very grateful, to them. Believe me, gratefully yours,

NOTED ACTRESS ARRIVES.

New York, Sept. 20 (Special to The Billboard).—Mme. Simone Casimir-Perler and her husband, M. Casimir-Perler, arrived in New York today and took up residence at the Hotel Plaza. Mme. Simone is one of the most notable of French actresses, and is hailed by many critics as the successor of Sarah Bernhardt. Mme. Simone is to appear under the direction of Liebler and Co., at the Century Theatre, in a series of dramas, making her American debut in The Thief.

M. Casimir-Perler, Mme. Simone Casimir-Perler's husband, is a son of the Casimir-Perler at one time president of the French Republic.

MURRY SUCCEEDS DECKER.

New York, Sept. 23 (Special to The Billboard).—James Murry has been appointed by the Shuberts to succeed Jim Decker as their general booking agent. Decker resigned the position about two weeks ago.

The Grand Opera House, Carthage, Mo., opened Sept. 23 with The Third Degree. The house has been extensively improved, the interior refurnished and the seats rearranged.

Circus Traveling in Arkansas

The Hagenbeck-Wallace Show has made some new records in circus troubles in Arkansas. One of the worst cloudbursts ever known in that state hit the show at night at Fayetteville and, with the bottom gone out of the two-mile road to the ruins, the showmen, horses and elephants had one awful night, and the trains were not loaded until afternoon of the next day. The date the show was to be in Ft. Smith, Arkansas, were pulled apart, horses had to be pulled out of the mire by teams, and many people had narrow escapes and had to be heroically rescued from frightful deaths in sink holes of mud and water. The center poles were taken off of the wagon and snaked the entire two miles on the mud-like saw logs.

Mr. Wallace got in touch with R. M. Harvey, the general agent, who happened to be in Ft. Smith, and finally decided to show Ft. Smith the next day one day behind the advertised date. Mr. Cory, assistant manager of the show, and Mr. O'Donnell, general press agent, were also in Ft. Smith, and these three did some tall hauling and arranged for the exhibition the following day. A record-breaking crowd had come to town on the date scheduled only to go home disappointed, and, of course, it was not expected that many of these would return the next day. However, the city folks turned out fairly well to the afternoon show, but the country people were missing. There was a tremendous advance sale for the APPALACHIAN EXPOSITION.

The Great Appalachian Exposition at Knoxville, Tenn., is in its second week, and special days and fine programs continue to draw large and enthusiastic crowds.

The big feature of this week is Phil Parmelee, the famous Wright aviator, who will give daily flights in a Wright biplane. During the week Parmelee will attempt to rival Becher's famous feat at Niagara by flying under the Tennessee River bridge, which is 100 feet high.

Racing opened September 21 and continued for six days, giving lovers of this form of amusement an opportunity to witness some speedy performers in action.

The bench show will also be held this week, with some of the finest dogs ever shown in the South entered. This will be followed by the poultry show, and as the South is noted for its fine breeds of chickens, it stands that this exhibition will be a high-class one.

The nightly exhibition of Paul's spectacular Battle of King's Mountain are probably the most popular exhibitions here, and every performance is witnessed by large crowds.

The free attractions will continue throughout the exhibition, with new ones added from time to time. Weber's Band concerts are very popular and Parker, in daily flights in his dirigible balloon, is always sure of a large audience. The United States life-saving crew give daily drills in the presence of throngs, and Hawaiian is doing well with two performances each day. Lottie Meyer, the diving queen,

New Arena for New York

New York, Sept. 22 (Special to The Billboard).—The razing of Madison Square Garden, slated to begin February 5, 1912, will leave the American metropolis without a home for circuses, Wild West shows, horse shows, military tournaments, athletic games, bicycle races, sportsmen's shows with indoor trap shooting and ensemble scenic effects as adjuncts, trade shows, philanthropic fairs, mass meetings and other pugilistic encounters.

Mr. Stephen M. Vanallen of Jamaica, L. I., manager of the successful new Sportsmen's Show of 1911 at Madison Square Garden, with the experienced show promoter, Mr. William J. Poth, and other associates, is engineering a project to build a new arena and exposition building as large or larger than Madison Square Garden, properly constructed and with a better location. Five sites are under consideration, but their locations are not divulged now for real estate reasons.

APPOINTS CRITICS.

Boston, Sept. 23 (Special to The Billboard).—The Dramatic League, of Boston, with a membership of 2,000, has named a committee of seven to attend all first performances at local theatres and decide whether the league shall give or withhold its support. Local managers have been asked to co-operate with the league and to furnish a list of plays expected for this season.

Polly's Farewell Season

This being the farewell season of Polly of the Circus, Frederic Thompson has surrounded Ida St. Leon with a big cast of well-known players and a production which eclipses the original one by far. J. M. Abrams, who is in advance of this production, says that he expects an even greater season, financially, than the first road tour this company had. This is Mr. Abrams' fourth season ahead of Polly. This attraction is headed coastward and when the season is ended, it will have traveled upward of 50,000 miles. The St. Leon family of five is featured.

INCORRECT REPORT CORRECTED.

New York, Sept. 23 (Special to The Billboard).—Through some misunderstanding, a report has been issued stating that "Cy Whittaker's Place" was booked for Whitney Opera House, Chicago.

Cy Whittaker's Place, a dramatization by Rev. William E. Dunnforth of Joseph C. Lincoln's popular novel, will be too large a production for the Whitney stage and its presentation there was never contemplated. The play will be given first in the Eastern cities and when it does reach Chicago will be offered at one of the larger theatres.

The Nielson and Gano Stock Company opened the season at the Elia Theatre, Renaissance, Ind., Sept. 14, and were greeted by large audiences.

The Veiled Prophet Celebration

The Veiled Prophet will visit St. Louis Tuesday night, October 3, on his annual pilgrimage, and this year in greater splendor than ever before. Historic events and personages of the eighteenth century will be the subjects portrayed by the floats, which will again number twenty-two. The chronology of subjects ranges from 1703 to 1789, almost the entire century. It is designed to give a fair representation of the historic events of the entire world and portray a character or illustrate an epoch of every nation. Contrasts in character scenes are sought after; thus, the coronation of a king and the first reception of the first American President are depicted. Emperor Joseph of Austria is shown distributing bread to the poor, while a following scene reveals the dashing Queen of Hungary on horseback.

The barbaric splendors of the Orient furnish opportunities for colorable decorations on several floats, and the general theme is decidedly instructive, not only recalling the characteristics of mighty potentates but illustrating the modes of the times.

AMUSEMENT EVENTS OF

THE GRAIN OF DUST

New Play Moulded from David Graham Phillips' Celebrated Novel Affords James K. Hackett Ideal Starring Vehicle
—Excerpts from Critics' Opinions

THE GRAIN OF DUST, a play made by Louis Evan Shipman from the novel by David Graham Phillips. Presented in Chicago at the Blackstone Theatre, September 17, 1911, by James K. Hackett and his company, with the characters cast as follows:

Frederick Norman Mr. Hackett
William Tetlow E. M. Holland
Isaac Burroughs Frazier Coulter
Clayton Fitzhugh Vaughan Trevor
James Galloway Charles Stedman
Edward Lockyer Frank Burbeck
Timson Fred A. Sullivan
Clerk Daniel Jarrett Jr.
Mrs. Clayton Fitzhugh Miss Olive Oliver
Josephine Burroughs Miss Pauline Neff
Dorothea Hallowell Miss Mary Moran

Chicago, September 18 (Special to The Billboard).—Rarely is it possible for a dramatic author to catch the full spirit of a novelist's work in preparing it for the stage. This is as true of Louis Evan Shipman's acting version of The Grain of Dust as of any of its hookish predecessors. The fault in this case, as in most instances, is the embarrassment of material afforded by the inspirational story and the dramatist's inability to utilize it in a four-act play without neglecting its salient points. To those who have read David Graham Phillips' great novel the theme of the play is in fact enough, but others may find it somewhat disjointed.

Above all else, the psychological study afforded by Frederick Norman, the fiery, resourceful young lawyer, for the cold, whimsical stenographer, is one that must necessarily command the interest of the patron. It needs, however, to make it tangible, the illumination of a multitude of sidelights that may be applied by the novelist, but which clog dramatic action when put into a play. In consequence, the character of Dorothea Hallowell, as presented on the stage, seems illogical and overdrawn. Miss Mary Moran plays the role in the conception of the author and the dramatist, but fails to make it convincing for the above-named reasons.

Mr. Hackett gives a powerful interpretation of Frederick Norman. It is doubtful if he ever has had a role that better demonstrates his technical skill. At all times he is in thorough grasp of his subject, and his demonstration of mingled strength and tenderness for the woman for love of whom he sacrifices his career, is the height of artifice.

E. M. Holland as William Tetlow, the pedantic, unimaginative office man, has a bit in which he acquits himself with his usual artistry. Frazier Coulter as Isaac Burroughs, the captain of finance, plays his part in masterful fashion. The supporting characters are sustained in capable manner.

Excerpts from the opinion of the Chicago critics follow:

Percy Hammond in the Tribune—"The Grain of Dust emerges from the process of dramatization a plain and somewhat aimless story about a corporation lawyer who fell in love with his amanuensis, broke his appointment to marry the daughter of a mighty client, married the typist instead, permitted himself thereupon to be ruined by the mighty client, lost his wife, regained his fortune, regained his wife, and was happy at the terminal.

"It is said to be somewhat aimless because its romantic section, which involved, in the novel, a vast amount of sham psychology, is indefinitely recited—its incidents are baldly stated, without the explanation demanded by their peculiar nature. Thus, the lady of the

THE LADIES' LION

Jefferson De Angelis Inaugurates Illinois Theatre 1911-12 Season in a New Musical Play of His Own Writing, Which is Pronounced Entertaining

THE LADIES' LION, a musical play by Jefferson De Angelis and W. J. Fraacls. Presented by Jefferson De Angelis and company in Chicago, at the Illinois Theatre, September 16, 1911, with the following cast:

Lieutenant Fussy Jefferson De Angelis
Captain George Fairweather Frank Rushworth
Signor Roselli Hubert Wilke
Bill Blowhard Charles Prince
Second Lieutenant Fairweather Morgan Williams
Beatrice Florence Martia
Rose Hardy Annabelle Whitford
Tomasso Thomas Gaffola
Antonio Eugene Francis
Marie Anna Millward
Felichs Carol Oty

Chicago, September 20 (Special to The Billboard).—Jefferson De Angelis is partial to the oldstyle comic opera. This fact was demonstrated to playgoers at the premiere, September 16, of The Ladies' Lion, a musical play of his own construction. The event also marked the opening of the new season at the Illinois Theatre, and called forth an audience composed of the social elite of the Western metropolis. The play is somewhat reminiscent of Pinafore, with one of its scenes on the deck of a warship, and much of its humor harks back to other days. The general consensus of opinion, however, is that it is entertaining and possesses one or two lyric gems. The scenery, which Frazee & Lederer are said to have imported from Holland, will not particularly host the stock of the Dutch scenic painters. Mr. De Angelis himself, however, shows much of the art that has given him his distinct place as an ornament to the American stage.

Of the play, O. L. Hall of the Journal says:

"De Angelis proved himself a writer of generally good verse, an occasionally fair wit, and a poor plotter. His comic opera looked back to the days of Pinafore, was clothed largely in uniform, and had one of its acts on the deck of a warship. Its comic interest centered in a confusion of identities and its structure stood largely on a foundation of soliloquy. The plot seemed to have something to do with the shore adventures of a captain and a lieutenant, the first a traditional singing tenor and the latter a traditional operatic clown.

"If songs alone could make comic opera, The Ladies' Lion would have measured up to standard. It's folly to play with Cupid, says Miss Whitford, was a very pleasant thing and was good music. So was The Story of a Bell, which Miss Martin sang. Miss Martin and Rushworth joined their voices attractively in I've Been Longing, and there were some good trios and concerted numbers. De Angelis gave himself the comic songs and made the hit of the performance with one of them, which very well described the show in its refrain, which ran:

We live in the madhouse over the hills.

And play in the fields with the 'daffydils.'"

Eric Delamarter in The Inter Ocean sums up his impressions as follows:

"The Ladies' Lion, briefly, is a musical comedy rather obvious as to plot and situation, mildly diverting in dialogue and above the average in its musical score.

"The story hinges upon the same old tribulations of the good-looking naval officer with an embroidered waistcoat and an extremely romantic and persistent. His wedding to the daughter of a Monte Carlo functionary is postponed by the inadvertent arrival of this lovely

EDDIE FOY.

He will appear in Over the River, a new play, which will begin the season at the Studebaker Theatre, Chicago, September 28.

Bellew Scores in Mollusc

Chicago, September 19 (Special to The Billboard).—The new season was inaugurated at Powers' Theatre last night with the first Chicago appearance of Kyrie Bellew and company in Hubert Henry Davis' comedy, The Mollusc. "A charming trifle," "a happy play and a happy cast," and "jolly fun" are some of the critical bonquets handed to the new offering by the Chicago writers. The title of the play is applied to a lady whose habitual lassitude invites her comparison to a mollusc, and the manner in which she is cured of this fault is the theme of an evening's entertainment.

Mr. Bellew as Tom Kemp acts with his usual certain technique and attractive personality, and his comedy encounters with Miss Isabel Irving and sentimental passages with Miss Jane Laurel are a delight to the patrons. Isabel Irving is the Mollusc, and a most attractive "selfish shellfish" she is in her filmy lace and gossamer lounging gowns. The husband-victim of the Mollusc is amusingly delineated by Frank Goldsmith, ideally fitted for the role both in appearance and his acting. The role of the governess, whose growing sympathy for the husband is happily checked by the advent of Tom Kemp, the Colorado brother, is capably played by Jane Laurel. From all appearances, The Mollusc is at Powers' for a long run.

After a week of darkness, due to the cancellation of Bothwell Brown previously scheduled, The Princess Theatre will begin its new season Tuesday night with Philip Bartholomae's merry farce, Over Night, which has had a long and successful run in the East. It will be acted here by the original company, which includes Margaret Lawrence, Sallie Harris, Grace Grawford, Theresa Deagle, Ernest Truax, Wallace Worsley, and others. The play deals with the complications growing out of the separation of two couples of newlyweds, and the action takes place on a Hudson River steamer.

SAID AND SEEN IN CHICAGO

Chicago, September 23 (Special to The Billboard).—With the opening of three more theatres and a notable revival of Pinafore scheduled for the coming week, the Chicago theatrical pot is now bubbling with its usual ebullience. Sunday inaugurates the new season at the Auditorium, where Harry Askin's musical comedy, The Girl I Love, will play a three weeks' season for the benefit of the Policemen's Benevolent Association Fund. This pleasing attraction was seen at the La Salle Opera House last season. The company is new except in the case of Harry C. Lyons, who still plays the part of the chauffeur. Among the newcomers in the cast are George Fox, Ted Burns, John E. Dove, Henry Gardner, Eleanor Henry and Leonora Novasio. There is a large supporting chorus. The drill squad of the police force will be an added attraction at every performance.

On Monday night Fay Templeton will make her reappearance on the Chicago stage after an absence of five years as Buttercup in the revival of Pinafore at the Lyric. The revival, which was accorded unstinted praise when presented in New York last season, will enlist the services of a notable cast including De Wolf Hopper as Dick Deadeye, Eugene Cowles as Bill Bobstay, Robert E. Graham as Sir Joseph Porter, George J. MacFarlane as Capt. Corcoran, Edith Dicker as Josephine, Alice Brady as Hebe, Arthur Aldridge as Ralph Rackstraw, and Harold Crane as Bob Beckett.

Thursday night has been selected for the reopening of the Studebaker, upon which occasion Chicago playgoers will witness the metropolitan premiere of Over the River, the new musical show in which Edwin Foy will star. The book is from the pen of George V. Hovart and H. A. Du Souchet, and the music is by John L. Golden. The piece derives its title from the fact that convicts doing time on Blackwell's Island in New York are said to be rusticated "over the river." The play will be given its tryout at Grand Rapids, Mich., next Monday night, and will then be brought here for its final polishing. Maudie Lambert will be the prima donna. Others in the cast are the Reed Sisters, Birrell Barhaertto, Harry Hermosa, Melville Stewart, Leader Crawford, William Selker, David Andradra, the vaudeville team of West, Fields and Curroli, and forty show girls.

There will be a change of bill at the Angelus (as the Globe on Wabash Avenue is now called). Col. W. A. Thompson's opera company undertaking a revival of the tuneful opera, The Bohemian Girl. The production will be staged and costumed handsomely, and Mine, Aida Hemmi and the excellent corps of vocalists are sure to acquit themselves creditably in the parts.

Lionel Barrymore and Sidney Drew will be the headliners of the new bill that comes into

Chicago Burlesque News

Chicago, September 21 (Special to The Billboard).—Charley Howard and James E. Cooper are responsible for one of the biggest laugh successes seen in burlesque in Chicago this season. Mr. Howard plays the character of a German who is inclined to jealousy and Mr. Cooper of a gronch who hates himself. There is a strong supporting cast of clever people, some of whom have excellent voices. The costumes are abundant and beautiful, there being changes made by both principals and company for every one of the numbers. This is the last season that the company will bear this title. When it leaves "the big town" next year, the billing will read, James E. Cooper's Big Girlie Show, Beauty, Youth and Folly, and will be under the management of Mr. W. V. Jennings, who has been the pilot for the Jersey Lillie Company for the past three seasons. The leading juvenile part is capably carried by Mr. Robert Algier. Mr. Jim Dixon plays the part of Col. Holland. Marty Reagan is extremely funny in his conception of Lem Meek, or the "town constable." Johnny Walker has the part of a Scotch laddie and plays it well. The principal feminine roles are carried by Lucia Cooper, playing the part of Vop Kruger's wife; Della Shail, as the sister of the Scotch lad; Fanny St. Clair, as the widow; Gloria Martinez, as Miss Shail's school chum; and Dorothy Hayden and Jeanette Sartore, as bellboys. The opening song, Goodbye, Honor boy, Goodbye, is put on by Robert Algier and the chorus; Harsh of Love, by Fanny St. Clair and the chorus; I Am a German Millionaire, by Charley Howard and chorus; and Highland Queen, by Johnny Walker, which proved the hit of the first part songs. The other numbers put on in the first part are, Don't Blame Me, Make Me Love You As I Never Loved Before, We Don't Speak to One Another Now, and the closing Hunting chorus by the entire company in hunting costume.

The olio was opened by Alexia and Schall, comedy contortionists and dancers. The contortion work of Mr. Schall is very commendable and the dancing of the team won high favor. James C. Dixon, the street singer, rendered a number of special songs in the dramatic channel. Mr. Dixon's dramatic work in these numbers is exceptionally clever and scored heavily.

THE WEEK IN CHICAGO

ACTS NEW TO CHICAGO

Acts Making Their First Appearance in the Western Metropolis Commented upon—Suggestions Made for Their Improvement, Based on Opinion of Audience

OSCAR LEWIS AND SAM GREEN. Comedy sketch. Wilson Avenue, Chicago; fourth in five-act show. Time, 18 minutes. Opening in one, golog to full stage and closing in one.

Lewis and Green have not adhered strictly to originality in their act. One of the gentlemen appears in one, singing a song. The song goes very big but the applause is kept up by one man in the audience. This is the other party of the act, in the character of a Swede. After some parody and argument he goes on to the stage and is engaged as a cook in a restaurant. They exit and the curtain is raised showing the interior of the restaurant. There are a number of signs here displayed, which are instrumental in making the act a big laugh success. Some of them are as follows: In case of the nightmare, don't blame the horse radish; Eat here and die in the alley; Tables reserved for hogs; Spring chickens 47 years old; Seal skin biscuits with the hairy side out. The boys have wisely given the audience about two minutes to read these signs before they appear. At this point some good comedy business is introduced. The boys are teaching his new Swede cook how to prepare a steak. The Swede substitutes angar for salt and washes the steak off in an ordinary laundry tub with a wash-board. The act closes in one with singing and dancing and goes very big.

RUTH ST. DENIS. Majestic, Chicago. Seventh in nine-act show. Time, 15 minutes; full stage; special setting. Number of women, one. Number of men, four.

When the curtain is raised on Miss St. Denis' act there is an exclamation of admiration throughout the entire audience. The setting is rich and beautiful. Four of the native priests are discovered worshipping the idol. Miss St. Denis is seated on the shrine in the image of Radha, a Hindoo goddess. Before the shrine a priest is kneeling in prayer. Miss St. Denis descends from the shrine, then follows the dance of the Five Senses, which expresses the central teachings of Brahminism. There is here introduced clever pantomime acting and dancing by Miss St. Denis. The dancing (?) constitutes much running back and forth on the stage on her toes. This seemed to disappoint the audiences as they seemed to expect dancing and not art. The act went well but not as big as was expected.

MACRAE AND LEVERING. Majestic, Chicago. First in nine-act show. Time, 10 minutes; in full stage.

Here's a novelty cycle act worthy of a spot on the best bills in the best houses. There is a refreshing abundance of rich comedy throughout the act. A number of freak cycles are ridden by the comedian of the act. The straight man is one of the cleverest in his line ever seen on the Majestic stage. The team work of the duo is exceptionally clever and goes very big. In closing the act the Aerocycle is introduced by the comedian. This is an ordinary bicycle fitted with planes and propeller. It is raised from the stage by the invisible wires such as are used by the burlesque strong acts. The boys took four bows and proved a big success for an act in their position.

WELL-BALANCED BILL

Program at Majestic Theatre Last Week Includes Five Acts New to Chicago—Ruth St. Denis is Headline Attraction, but is Not Appreciated

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 20 (Special to The Billboard).—With the continued cool and favorable weather in Chicago the business in all the theatres is steadily increasing. This applies to the Majestic, which, owing to the change of policy of the American Music Hall has no important competition. The Majestic is a very large house but were there two or three hundred additional seats they could easily be disposed of about half the time during the present boom in business. The headline attraction this week is on the same order as that of last week. Both are artists but a trifle too high brow for the appreciation of the average vanderbilt audience. Ruth St. Denis is the headliner this week and while her act is no doubt the highest in art, it is not appreciated for its full value. There is a great amount of pantomime in the act but very little real dancing, and when the average vanderbilt follower sees billing announcing a dancer he naturally expects dancing. The setting for Miss St. Denis' act depicts the interior of a Hindoo temple. The light effects used are novel and pleasing to the eye. This setting is undoubtedly instrumental to a good part of the success of the act. This week finds a well-balanced variety bill. There is a noticeable absence of conflicting acts. Five acts out of the nine are new to Chicago.

The bill was opened by Macrae and Levering, in a comedy novelty cycle act. The offering is reviewed under New Acts.

Hal Merritt presents his cartoon monologue. Ipswich. Mr. Merritt offers a fairly good monologue while he is working on his cartoons. There was only one cartoon worthy of favorable mention. This represents a diving girl and, with various additions, Mr. Merritt evolves her into various characters of different types of women seen on the streets. This part was cleverly executed and well received. Mr. Merritt closes his act in a pantomime of a young lady "doing" her hair. He is exceptionally clever in this and the natural comedy introduced sends him away amid a roar of applause.

Sager Midgley and Company present a farce comedy called, Early Morning Reflections. The act is good and full of comedy but it is to be regretted that it is not original. The base of their act represents the mirror stunt used by the Hamilton Brothers, but is not worked nearly so well. It is reviewed under New Acts.

Ethel Green has been seen here before with Billy Gaston and has always been very successful. She appears working alone in a repertoire of songs, straight and character and may justly feel proud of her great success. Her offering is reviewed under New Acts.

James F. Dolan and Ida Lenhart present a burlesque mind-reading and second sight act, called Some Mind-Reader. The idea is new and original and the legitimate part of the act was received just as well as the comedy part. It is also reviewed under New Acts.

George W. Cunningham and Herman Marion offer a novelty called An Acrobatic Talk-Fest. The comedy in the act is a trifle overdone, there being too many falls and too much slapstick. However, it went very big. The acrobatic work of both gentlemen is exceedingly clever, some entirely new feats being introduced.

Good Bill at Wilson Ave. Theatre

Chicago, Sept. 21 (Special to The Billboard).—With the exception of the Rathskeller Trio, the headline act which was furnished by Frank Q. Doyle, the management of the Wilson Avenue Theatre should be grateful to the W. V. M. A. for one of the most evenly-balanced bills seen at the house in a long time. It is a purely comedy bill and this is the class of offering that seems to please the Wilson Avenue audience best. While all the acts border on comedy situations there is a contrast in the nature of each offering. In conjunction with the extraordinary offering this week, business has come back even up to last season's record when the S. R. O. sign was most always in evidence. Manager Licalzi seems highly elated over the prospect of big business for both the Wilson Avenue Theatre, of which house he is manager, and of the Willard, in which he is also interested financially. The show for the first half is opened by Frechal Brothers, European acrobatic comedians. The comedy situations are a trifle overworked at times but their har and acrobatic stunts were well liked. They work fast and smoothly and with an abundance of novel stunts.

Emil Subert appears second in place of Edith Montrose. It is not our pleasure to claim the acquaintance of Miss Montrose but here's hoping that she is not so overbearingly presumptuous as to attempt to "hail out" the audience just because they do not see fit to applaud an offering not worthy of their exertion in this particular. Any one who has played the Wilson Avenue knows that it is one of the most generous audiences in vanderbilt theatres. Emil Subert opens by singing a song which no self-respecting hearer would care to applaud very much. The song is poor and poorly rendered, and Mr. Subert "queered" himself completely with one of the most intelligent audiences by trying to call them down. Mr. Subert follows this song with a fairly good monologue and puts it over nicely, but the folks in the audience seemed to resent his opening jibe and were slow in giving him credit for an offering that may be truly termed good.

"Little" Lizzie B. Raymond, assisted by Lillian McNeill, offers a singing, talking and dancing act in full stage, the feature of which is Miss Raymond's Irish songs which score very heavily. Miss McNeill's dancing is well re-

MAZIE KING.

For the past three years Miss King has been appearing on Broadway as a feature member of Lew Fields productions of the Midnight Sons and the Hen Pecks. She is now in vanderbilt, on the Orpheum Circuit, presenting her own pantomime, entitled, The Legend of the Spring. Last spring Miss King performed the remarkable feat of walking down 2,700 steps from the top of the Metropolitan Tower, New York City, on the tips of her toes.

VAUDEVILLE CHATTER

A. Hirsch, formerly manager of a vaudeville theatre at Moose Jaw, Can., is now Chicago representative of George H. Webster and has taken in Charles H. Dontrick's Agency; all of the business going through Dontrick. Mr. Hirsch is showing himself as a hustler and sees show every night. He has pulled off some pretty big things. He secured Count the First for a week at Fargo on his way to open on the Panthea Time. Gardner, West and Sunshine opened at Fargo September 18, and Mr. Hirsch is advised that they were a big success. Mme. Gertrude opened September 25 at the Orpheum, Fargo, and will tour that circuit. Casad, Irwin and Casad start the tour on October 9. Leo Remondo and Company open October 2. This is only a few of the many acts he has secured for the Webster Circuit.

C. Matthews office has so accommodated these players. H. M. Miller is certainly making a success out of the Hamilton Theatre at 63rd and Halsted Streets. His first shows always have capacity. He gives two shows a night and three on Sunday night. Miller believes in ten cents all over the house and attributes much of the success of the Hamilton to this policy. The Western Vaudeville Managers' Association took charge of the bookings of the Wilson and Willard Theatres last week and already acts are appearing at those houses that are identified with the Association. The reported engagement of Frank Merritt and Stella Tracy seems to have been a prank on the part of their friends. It was printed in a paper at Escanaba, Mich., and clippings sent to Chicago gave rise to the report. L. O. Whittier and the Wengers left Chicago last week to begin a tour of the Hodgkins Lyric Circuit.

Parkway Theatre Establishes Record

Chicago, Sept. 22 (Special to The Billboard).—Through the engagement of the Se-Heras, one of the best mind-reading and second-sight acts and a bill of strong feature acts, the Parkway Theatre is doing the best business of the present season this week. Madame Se-Hera was featured heavily in Chicago several years ago when she was putting on all-star vanderbilt at the Auditorium. The Se-Heras offer one of the most mystifying acts ever seen in Chicago, and while the act might advantageously be cut above five minutes, it goes exceptionally big for one of this nature.

Mr. Se-Hera assists his wife and works through the audience by answering questions and having Madame identify unseen articles offered by people in the audience. No pads are used, thus proving that the talent is really genuine.

The show for the first half is opened by the Hamilton Brothers, in a knock-about act. The offering was recently reviewed in these columns. The act went very well at the Parkway and brought several encores.

Lillian Wright, Lloyd and Clayton, a trio of two gentlemen and a lady, offer a dancing act. This act was also reviewed two weeks ago when the trio appeared at the Wilson Avenue Theatre.

The Cliff Nelson Players appear third in their comedy skit called A Trip to New York. This offering was reviewed under New Acts in these columns recently. The act is filled with live comedy situations and proved the hit of the Parkway bill.

The Three Dixie Girls appear in colonial costumes and put over a very good quality of harmony and solo numbers in popular and old favorite songs. Evidently this trio of young ladies believe that "appearance is half the battle" and resultantly they win. The act scored heavily on Wednesday night and the girls were forced to respond to several encores.

The show is closed by the Se-Heras in their mind-reading and second-sight offering. As formerly stated the act would be improved by cutting about five minutes off the time. They went very big and had difficulty in getting off.

When Henry W. Savage presents Madame X in Chicago this season, Raymond will be played by Frank Herbert, who started his career only last season under the tutelage of Hart Conway. The critics spoke highly of his early attempts.

THEATRICAL EVENTS OF THE

RETURNS TO FIRST LOVE

Eva Tanguay to Become Star in New Musical Melange Under the Direction of F. Ziegfeld, Jr.—Erratic Eve will Have Proprietary Interest in Production

New York, Sept. 22 (Special to The Billboard).—Eva Tanguay, who as a result of the Percy Williams' contest at the close of the last vaudeville season was accorded the honor of being vaudeville's greatest star, has come to terms

NEW YORK BURLESQUE NOTES.

Hyde & Behmann Show at the Columbia Theatre last week, is said to be the most expensively staged and gowned of any advance burlesque that has yet appeared on Broadway. Miss Mills, the star, is said to have paid $1,200 for her gown, the Red Rose. Incidentally, these dress creations were made by Frances and embroidered by A. B. Croner.

Robie's Knickerbocker Burlesquers, with Roger Imhof, Harry Sauter, James J. Loke, Dan and Walsh, Hugh Conn, Corrine Imhof, Carol Schroeder, Zella DeLar and a beauty chorus have started on their Western trip around the Wheel, accompanied by the usual big business that follows this organization everywhere.

This season Lonis Robie is presenting The Love Kiss and for an afterpiece Casey, the Piper, is being offered. In the latter skit, Imhof, himself, is seen as the irrepressible "Casey."

As regards the equipment of scenery and costumes Robie has this season spread himself, and has provided an unusually massive production for a burlesque attraction.

EXCUSE ME IN FRENCH.

New York, Sept. 20 (Special to The Billboard).—Rupert Hughes, the author of Excuse Me, which Henry W. Savage is exploiting with three companies this season, has arranged with Alexandre Bisson, the author of Madame X, to adapt his farce into French.

A Sterling Vaudeville Bill

One of the best vaudeville bills that has been seen in Cincinnati opened at Keith's Theatre Sunday, September 24, for one week. While Miss Mabel Hite is the headliner, position to which she is entitled, there are a number of other acts on the bill than can easily be considered headliner attractions. An act which has been reviewed in these columns before and one which created more laughter than any vaudeville sketch seen here this season is Dinkelapfel's Christmas. This sketch furnished continuous uproarious laughter. Perhaps a little less German in the speaking parts would be appreciated by persons not familiar with this language. Aside from this the sketch is above criticism.

Rice, Sully and Scott, in Fun on the Tambo-line Bars, were good as the opening act, although the material they use is not at all original.

Charles Nevins and Ada Gordon find ready applause for their act, Little Miss Manicure. Miss Gordon as the Scarecrow Girl, made a pronounced hit.

Following this act, T. Eckert, tenor and pianist, and Emma Berg, soprano, offer a hit of choice opera, in which they introduce a number of vocal selections that went well with the audience. Mr. Eckert is an exceptionally good performer on the piano and gave imitations of the banjo, guitar and mandolin, etc., in a way that earned him rounds of applause. The act is well staged and the costumes used were beautiful. Mr. Eckert's rendition of Spring Time is particularly excellent.

Two very talented musicians appearing on the program as Gnerro and Carmen, offer fifteen minutes of music, which was enjoyed by the entire audience. Gnerro has an excellent stage presence and performs on the violin in a manner calculated to please the student, as well as those not familiar with this instrument. His harmonics are especially excellent, although this part of his performance was not fully appreciated by the entire audience. Carmen, a very beautiful young lady, exquisitely-gowned and bejeweled, is a master of the harp. Their act closes with a rendition of some semi-classical selections, including The Bohemian Girl, Lustspiel, Toreador Song from Carmen, Cavalleria Rusticana and Miserere from Il Trovatore. It has been a long time since Cincinnatians have had the pleasure of seeing and hearing a musical act of this quality.

Mabel Hite, in Twenty Minutes of Foolishness, gave several imitations of well-known stage celebrities in her inimitable style. She makes four changes of costume but does not keep the audience waiting as is the case with some other artists giving acts of this kind. Tom Kelly is a good pianist and a great help to Miss Hite.

Clifford and Burke have some new jokes and gags which they put over in good style.

Rice and Prevost close the well-balanced bill, which is particularly enjoyable.

Everett Wilson and Ed. Reilly have leased Joyland, a former moving picture theatre at Wilmington, Del., and opened Sept. 18 as the Lyric, with vaudeville. Sam Massel of Atlanta, Ga., is supplying the acts.

with F. Ziegfeld, Jr., to be featured as the star of a musical comedy melange, in which she is to have a proprietary interest. The deal was arranged so as to assure the erratic star an equal if not larger salary than the one she obtained last year, as well as removing the necessity of appearing twice daily. The name of the new play has not as yet been divulged, but is supposed that it will partake largely of the nature of the Ziegfeld Follies.

COHAN COMES BACK

The Yankee Doodle Boy Returns to Stage in His Latest Musical Creation, The Little Millionaire—Premiere at Hartford, September 18th

Hartford, Conn., Sept. 19 (Special to The Billboard).—The Little Millionaire, George M. Cohan's latest musical show, had its premiere at Parson's Theatre on September 18, and was accorded a warm greeting by a large audience. The plot is based upon the will of a rich woman who made it a condition of the enjoyment of her millions that if either her husband or her son married after her death without the other's consent that he should forfeit his share of the estate. The son has fallen in love with a chorus girl and the action of the play largely consists of the attempts of various people to pry him loose from her, thinking that his father would never consent to his wedding. Their efforts fail to separate the lovers and eventually it is discovered that the father also wishes to be married, so everything ends happily. The show went with a snap from start to finish. The first and third acts are regular musical comedy and the second straight farce. The author played the title role in his usual eccentric manner, not forgetting to ring to his customary song about the U. S. flag. His father and mother appeared with him and both played their parts well. Miss Lila Rhodes was excellent in the leading female part, and Tom Lewis did some fine work as Costigan, the wine agent, and was responsible for most of the humor. The production is well staged and will no doubt enjoy a long New York run. The complete cast was as follows:

Henry Spooner, a Millionaire .. Jerry J. Cohan
Robert Spooner, Just as Wealthy as his Father .. Geo. M. Cohan
George Russell, Spooner's Secretary .. George Parsons
Bill Costigan, a Wine Agent .. Tom Lewis
Roscoe Handover, a Bad Man .. Sydney Jarvis
Danny Wheeler, Robert's Chauffeur .. Earl Benham
Edward Plumber, Spooner's Butler .. Donald Crisp
Rudolph, Manager Beaux Art .. Donald Crisp
Starr at the Beaux Art .. William Ford
Mrs. Prescott, Goldie's Aunt .. Mrs. Helen F. Cohan
Goldie Gray of the Zig Zag Folly Co. .. Lila Rhodes
Bertha Brubham, Roscoe's Accomplice .. Julia Ralph
Miss Primmer .. Josephine Whitwell
Mary, Goldie's Maid .. Maudie Allen
Policeman .. Amy McGowan
Charles W. Weil

ALETHEIA AND ALEKO.

Greek exponents of Telepathy and Prophetic Vision, appearing in vaudeville.

Al. G. Field Retires Temporarily

Richmond, Va., Sept. 21 (Special to The Billboard).—Al G. Field, the veteran minstrel, owner and principal artist of Al G. Field's Minstrels for over twenty-five consecutive years has been compelled to retire, temporarily at least, from the stage, on account of bad health. Mr. Field has been suffering for some time from acute nervous indigestion, and has been worried by his physician to take things quietly and leave business alone.

NEW THEATRES FOR STAIR.

Toledo, O., Sept. 23 (Special to The Billboard).—E. D. Stair and J. M. Lowman have announced that Toledo is to have a new theatre to take the place of the old Lyceum Theatre. The new playhouse will be as fine as any in the city, and will be known as the New Lyceum. It will be constructed on either St. Clair Street, near Keith's new theatre, or on Summit Street, between Madison and Adams.

Mr. Stair is also planning a new $175,000 theatre for Cleveland, to be erected on the public square. Plans for both houses have been prepared by Architect Milan W. Johnson.

New York Manager a Bankrupt

New York, Sept. 21 (Special to The Billboard).—Herbert M. Horkheimer, theatrical manager, residing at 39 Claremont Avenue, has filed a petition in bankruptcy with liabilities of $44,398, and assets of $48 cash in two trust companies. Included in the liabilities is an action for $32,000 brought against him by Violet Dale of 517 West 113th Street. Among those he owes for salary are: Ann Warrenton, $800; Sadie Williams, $50; Gladys Clare, $50; Josephine Dougherty, $20; Miles McCarthy, $100; and William Ingersoll, $260. Among the other creditors are the Metropolitan Printing Co., $1,000; American Piny Co., $300; H. A. Groen & Bro., $1,027; Liebler & Co., $150; royalties; Darcy & Wolford, $100; royalties; H. S. Horkheimer, $1,000 services; Osborn Searle, $567; judgment; George N. Coombs, $1,250 loan; Lucille, Ltd., $450; Tappe, society milliner, $75; Shayne & Co., $450; and Lord & Taylor, $400. A year ago it was reported that Mr. Horkheimer had bought a plot of land in the Bronx to build a theatre to cost $200,000.

Aletheia and Aleko, Greek telepathists and exponents of prophetic vision, have some open time in November. They have just received their beautiful new scenic production from the painter, J. Schneider.

What the Doctor Ordered

New York, Sept. 23 (Special to The Billboard).—Metropolitan theatregoers are still holding in memory the last pleasant work of A. E. Thomas, Her Husband's Wife, which was produced here a season or more ago. They recognize in the young author one of the American type that has done much to encourage observers of the present tendencies in our theatres.

In his latest effort, the playwright attacks closer to narrative than he does to dramatic etiquette—he has infused lines of great wit and panceocy, such as will endure the Wagonwheels & Kemper production on the strength of its cleverness to the ordinary audience. The story is of fabric commonly seen before—the treatment while containing evidences of originality in development, are in the main of a revamped nature—yet the comedy, the naturalness of the conversation, the simplicity are able capable to make What the Doctor Ordered as long lived as reason should allow. The critics varied in their regard for its humor, the Tribune even finding the farce lacking in spots. The Sun looks upon the new Anzor Theatre production, which enjoyed its premiere last Wednesday night, September 20, with more optimism and extends word of congratulation to the young playwright upon the successful outlook of his production.

The Times, however, evidences no great portion of favorable prediction as the following quotation will tell: "The immediate result was a scene at the luncheon table, with the wife alternately throwing fits and plates, the first of which brought down her hair, while the second demolished the best set of china—a wedding gift from one of the mothers."

"The present season has already brought several plays in which the attempt to adjust early matrimonial difficulties has provided the main theme. As Thomas is a man of taste he could hardly have been responsible for much of the violent and ancient business with which portions of the play are padded out, and which suggested a sentimental or vaudeville lute under rather than a natural development of the comic idea he had in mind. Nor is he to be blamed for a certain quality of aggressiveness which crept into much of the acting, and which eventually became very wearing on the nerves."

"In this respect Miss Virginia Hammond was the chief offender, her misapplied pyrotechnics and peralant bobbing of many of the lines leading chiefly to that tired feeling, Mr. Fritz Wil-

BUTTERFIELD EXPANDING.

Battle Creek, Mich., Sept. 20 (Special to The Billboard).—Through a deal just closed, W. S. Butterfield of Battle Creek, secures an interest in the vaudeville theatres in Flint and Bay City. This makes a compact circuit of eight theatres. Mr. Butterfield is giving the circuit his entire attention and attractions are being booked by the Western Vaudeville Managers' Association. Besides these vaudeville houses, he is interested in two stock houses, and four one-night stand theatres, and reports that the season has opened well in all houses.

WEEK THROUGHOUT THE WORLD

THE FRIARS' TOUR

Inspired by the Success Which Attended Their Jaunt Last Summer, Stage Notables Plan Trans-continental Tour in Which Twenty-seven Cities will be Visited

Definite arrangements have been concluded for the forthcoming coast to coast tour to be made by the Friars' Club next spring and known, as was the one made last May, as the Friars' Club Frolic. The itinerary planned by the committee, which is headed by Mr. A. L. Erlanger, the general director of the enterprise, has been under consideration for the past two months and now that it has been passed upon by the officials of the various railroads, who are to carry the organization across the continent, it is in shape to be announced. Including the orchestra, the entire organization will consist of about 115 members, who will make the tour by a special train to be furnished by the Pennsylvania B. B. Co., and which will consist of six compartment cars, two dining cars, one baggage car and one combination or club car. The latter will contain for the comfort and convenience of the traveling members, a barber shop, baths, telephone services at all cities visited, valet service and any other convenience that may be necessary. At all stops special ticket service giving baseball returns and other news, will be connected with this car.

After playing an initial performance in New York City, the organization will proceed to Atlantic City, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Cincinnati, St. Louis, Kansas City, Omaha, Denver, Salt Lake City, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Oakland, Portland, Seattle, Spokane, Butte, Minneapolis, Chicago, Detroit, Toronto, Buffalo, Rochester, Boston, Providence and probably to New York for a return engagement. Altogether, 27 cities will be visited and the entire tour will cover a distance of 8,768 miles. The cost of the special train, including about 9,600 meals to be served en route, will be $37,529.

The itinerary may be changed to include a performance in Chicago on the way to the coast, and another in the same city on the company's return on its way back to New York.

The committee in charge of next year's Frolic will be the same as handled the tour given in May of the present year. As already stated, Mr. A. L. Erlanger will be the general director.

Fields to Have Chicago Theatre

Chicago, September 23 (Special to The Billboard).—In Lew Fields' American Music Hall, Chicago is to have a counterpart of the New York Winter Garden and the Folies Bergere. The date of opening has been set back to October 9, that ample time may be had for thorough preparation. The plans provide for amusement along the lines that made the Weber & Fields Music Hall one of the Broadway sensations a decade ago.

Marcus Loew and William Morris are lessees of the theatre, and the negotiations that brought Lew Fields into the game were conducted by Aaron Jones, who was at one time the sub-lessee of the property, but who is now acting solely in the capacity of agent for Messrs. Loew and Morris.

The interior of the theatre is being remodeled and refurnished and extra boxes are being added where the north promenade formerly was. The scale of prices will range from boxes at $2 to $6 for balcony admission.

The company, which is not yet complete in personnel, will be approximately as follows: Max Rogers, Carter De Haven, Bobby North, Harry Cooper, Harry Tighe, Hugh Cameron, Gertrude Quinlan and Flora Parker. Negotiations are now under way with Marie Dressler or some comedienne of equal reputation to head the aggregation.

A burlesque on Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford is contemplated for an opening number, and vaudeville acts will be interspersed. Gaby Deslys is reported to be an early attraction at the new playhouse.

SEASON OPENS WELL.

Reports from the main office of the Bijou Theatrical Enterprise Company and the Bijou Amusement Company at Battle Creek, Mich., show that the season in that state has opened very well. Besides the eight vaudeville theatres which are now all open, the one-night stand theatres, operated by the Bijou Amusement Company, have started off well. The booking for the season, while not overly heavy, shows a first-class line of attractions and what few good shows have been in the state have all been sold with the results.

The Bishop Players, which is the new stock at the Garrick Theatre, Grand Rapids, opened on September 3 to a turn-away business, and Chester Bishop catapaulted himself immediately as a capable actor.

Mr. Edward Russell is leading man and stage director of the stock company at the Bijou Theatre, Saginaw, Mich., and has been playing to satisfactory results since August 7. Both the above companies are personally under the management of W. S. Butterfield, with headquarters at Battle Creek.

TAKE MY ADVICE PREMIERE.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Sept. 17 (Special to The Billboard).—Take My Advice, William Collier's new play, was presented for the first time at the Grand Opera House last night.

Ed C. Hayes is the big scream with the John W. Vogel Minstrels.

ADVERSELY CRITICISED

Modern Marriage Has Premiere in New York, and while Play Possesses Much Cleverness, Consensus of Opinion is that Broadway Run Will be of Short Duration

New York, September 19 (Special to The Billboard).—The Harrison Rhodes three-act comedy, produced by Cyril Scott on September 16 at the Bijou, has not been acclaimed with predictions for long life by the New York critics. They acknowledge, however, its cleverness, and relish its chipper satire on the follies of up-to-date women. Their chief contention is that the story of the play is not quite suitable for light comedy. Mr. Scott is given the credit for all his talent, for he knows and possesses many of the laugh-producing devices at his fingertips. Individually, he is of stellar caliber. His cast did all within their power to shy support him, Miss Stevens, in particular, demonstrating the comedy with significant intelligence and surety. Catherine Calhoun, Loretta Wells, Margaret Seddon and Olive May all demonstrated their ability in their several roles. The press even devoted special comment to the characterization of the hesitant authoress by Miss Seddon. It is not likely that Modern Marriage will remain long on Broadway.

FLYING BANVARDS SAIL.

New York, Sept. 23 (Special to The Billboard).—The Six Flying Banvards sailed Wednesday on the Lusitania. They are booked to open at the Folies Bergere in Paris, October 1, for a month's engagement. A six weeks' stay in Brussels will follow, upon the fulfillment of which they go to London, opening December 23, and remaining in the British center until February 10. In London they will play at the Royal Agricultural Hall.

New Chicago Booking Agency

The Columbia Theatrical Exchange, a new booking agency for singers, musicians, moving picture operators and equipment, and in fact, all talent for photoplay theatres, was opened in Chicago recently.

Mr. O. C. Phillips, the general manager, has had years of experience in this line having at one time thetrea all over the United States and will be remembered by some of the best houses in this country as a feature singer. Mr. Phillips tries out each and every one of his singers personally, and can readily guarantee a manager when he is looking for talent for his theatre just what he wants. Mr. Phillips claims the friendship of probably more managers than any other one agent in his line in the West. These same managers have welcomed Mr. Phillips in this field and while the new firm has only been established two weeks the demand for singers thus far exceeds the supply. The feature of the new firm is a department of equipment which stands ready to supply machines, films, song slides, operators or talent at any time of the day or night.

Mr. Phillips may justly be called a pioneer in the moving picture game, he being one of the originators of this popular diversion.

Offices of the Columbia Theatrical Exchange are located at Room 405, 145 N. Clark Street.

SHOULD INTEREST PLAYERS.

The Pocket Umbrella Co. of Findlay, O., has recently put on the market a telescoping umbrella that is a real luxury. It telescopes into a compact form of about 15 inches long; there is no folding necessary or waste of time, but simply squeeze a little spring in the top of the umbrella, and then push in the handle, and the whole umbrella telescopes inside of itself. When telescoped it does not look bulky, but as a miniature umbrella. This umbrella can be carried in an ordinary small suit case or traveling bag, even in the hip pocket. Of course this is the only umbrella that gives its owner the proper service. When traveling you can not lose it but always have it with you. We all agree that such an umbrella has long been needed. There are thousands of traveling men who are willing to pay any price to get an umbrella which they can have with them all of the time. The company seems to understand the importance of an article like this. They spent a fortune to make it correct; every part of the umbrella is electrified, which means the umbrella looks superior to the ordinary one. It is also absolutely rust-proof. When the umbrella is open for rain or being used for a walking cane you can not tell the difference from the high-grade ordinary umbrella. Through this umbrella thousands of hats and suits of clothing will be saved every year from being spotted when caught in showers. In our opinion this umbrella will change the umbrella habit of the nations.

Bob Wingate is on his seventh week of the Inter-State Circuit, with the rest of the time to follow. Bob is making a big hit; they all like the "bones."

THE OVERTONS.

Albert DeSoto and wife, clever song and dance artists, also impersonators, known to the stage as The Overtons, are well known in the West. Mr. DeSoto is a full-blooded Indian, and an artist of ability. This team will probably be seen in the East this season.

IN MEMORIAM.

Bobby Reed, clown and concert performer, late of the 4-Paw-Sells Bros' Circus, died at his home, 189 Oliver Street, Paterson, N. J., September 18, of tuberculosis. He was also three seasons with the John Robinson's Big Show. He was buried under the auspices of the Paterson Century Lodge.

T. M. A. MEMBER HONORED.

Chicago Lodge No. 4 had its regular monthly meeting on Tuesday, September 12, in hall 913, Masonic Temple. A large and enthusiastic number of visitors and brothers attended the meeting. A most pleasant feature of the session was the presentation of a beautiful loving cup to Brother Louis M. Helurich. Our worthy secretary, H. P. Larson, made an eloquent presentation speech of some length and was cheered to the echo at its finish. The cup was from the many friends of Brother Helurich in the grand and subordinate lodges who attended the Wheeling convention and was a fitting testimonial of the friendship and esteem. Brother Helurich was so pleased with the gift that he was unable to respond in his usual eloquent manner.

T. M. A. NOTES.

An invitation is extended to all members of the T. M. A. playing Houston, Texas, to visit the new club rooms of Lodge No. 15, 1111½

Congress Avenue, where the latch-string is always out and where members can view a rare collection of photos of people prominent in the theatrical world. Members or performers are invited to mail a photo to Secretary John P. Morgan, which will be given a prominent showing. This includes Harry W. Richardson of Cincinnati and Joe Hixon of Piqua, O. Tom J. Boyie, E. K. Lathrop and Julius F. Hall are the trustees of the club, and Jim Hilliard is the steward, and everyone paying the lodge a visit is assured every courtesy possible. All theatrical papers are on file.

Richmond (Ind.) Lodge No. 98 is in a very prosperous condition. The traveling members of the order are always welcome and are made to feel themselves at home. Elmer Layman of Richmond was initiated in the lodge at a recent meeting.

Harry Superior, advance agent of Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford was in Cincinnati last week paying the way for the popular Cohen & Harris comedy. Harry is a member of Boston Lodge No. 2.

The members of the East Liverpool T. M. A. Lodge went to Beaver Falls last week, where they were royally entertained by the T. M. A.'s of that place. The journey was made on Sunday afternoon, and it was a tired crowd that came home late in the evening.

Chas. N. Le Roy, formerly with Le Roy and La Bette, contortionists, is playing through Canada, being routed to the Coast by Geo. H. Webster.

SELDEN WILL WRITE BOOK.

New York, Sept. 23 (Special to The Billboard).—Edgar Selden has contracted to write the book for the vehicle of The Broadway Gaiety Girls next season. Selden has written several burlesque successes, including the book of The Whirl of Mirth, which is one of the Western Wheel's best attractions.

MOVE INTO LARGER QUARTERS.

New York, Sept. 23 (Special to The Billboard).—After October 1, the New York Sheet Music Clearing House, of which William H. Penn is president, will be located in the Forty-fifth St. Exchange Building, at 141-147 West 45th Street. The firm now has offices in the Broadway Theatre Building. A substantial increase in business necessitates the removal into larger quarters.

M. WITMARK NOTES.

The Church City Four, who played the Witson and Willard Theatre last week, and open in St. Louis this week, has replaced some of their old numbers with the latest song successes, Good-bye, My Love, Good-bye, If All My Dreams Were Made of Gold and Neptune, which the bass of the quartette does very fine.

Billy Martyn and House Sisters, who joined the Shean and Gallagher Show at Kansas City this week, went very nicely with the new rag song, Rag-time Love, and this trio was without doubt one of the biggest hits of the show when they sang the song success of the season, Baby Rose.

The Marionette Trio, who are playing a return trip over the Webster Time, have added the song hit of the season to their act, Baby Rose, and they close their always pleasing singing act with Any Girl Looks Good in Summer.

The Southern Quartette, who played the Grand Theatre last week, were callers at the Witmark office after new numbers for their act, and decided on the new ballad, If All My Dreams were made of Gold, which looks like a big success, also the novelty song hit, Baby Rose and Frisco Rag.

Russell and Shreve, who are playing Logansport this week, went very nice the opening performance with Witmark's new rags, Ragtime Love and Frisco Rag. Both numbers took encores.

Whittier and Crossan, playing for Walter Kiefe, Bijou Theatre, Oakbrook, Wis., this week, when they sang for the first time Ernst Ball's latest ballad, Good-bye, My Love, Good-bye, were forced to repeat the second chorus. This number is a successor to In the Garden of My Heart.

The Three Dixie Girls, another one of Harry Sprigold's finds in vaudeville, opened at the Parkway Theatre, and was without doubt the best singing act that played at this house for several months. Their song hits were Witmark's Baby Rose, Take Me Back to Rahyland, Arcadia and Good-bye, My Love, Good-bye. All numbers were delivered very nicely, taking many encores and bows.

Mias White, who has been held over at the Congress for three weeks, where she has been going very big with In the Garden of My Heart, has added Ernst Ball's latest ballad hit to her act, Good-bye, My Love, Good-bye, which made her respond to an encore.

STERN & CO.

Gretta Mack is using I'm Getting Glad of Lonesome for My Old Kentucky Pal. Estelle Tobin, the cabarette, is singing the Mississippi Dippy Dip.

Billy Walsh has selected Stern's novelty song, On the R. A. R. Amy Francis is also using this number.

Some of the performers using Henry & Bryan's great song, I Like The Hat, I Like The Dress and I Like the Girl That's in It, are Gladys Rich, Dolly White, Bots Senin Sisters, Mike Fertig and Lillie Diamond.

Jack Driscoll, the tenor with the big voice, is singing nightly at the 14th St. Theatre, Krane & Goodall's ballad, I'll Go With You to the End of the World.

Miss M. B. Randall writes from San Francisco, Cal., that she is singing almost a full catalogue of Jos. W. Stern & Co.'s songs.

Leon Berg, the general representative of Hurlig & Seamon, has struck the prize winner of the entire burlesque wheel. There was considerable competition among the various song writers as to which song would receive the most encores, and it is safe to say that Leon has eclipsed them all with his latest success, entitled The Beautiful Isle of Love, with which Miss Jennie Austin is stopping the show, taking ten encores at every performance. It is predicted that at least 250,000 copies will be sold, and manager Joe Hurlig guaranteed to sell 25,000 with his own show. Jos. W. Stern & Co., who are wide awake to this, advanced Mr. Berg a large sum on this number.

MUSIC NOTES.

At the song test held at the Saratoga last evening, Rae Samuels, that unique girl rag-time songster, put over her favorite song hit, Monkey Rag, in such fine style that she received nine encores and the prize. Miss Sophie Tucker, it is reported, sang another song in place of the Monkey Rag. Miss Tucker made this song known in New York when she sang it at Hammerstein's Victoria.

Belmont and Harl are featuring a brand-new song which is the talk of their act. They will be in Chicago October 2 at the Casino Theatre.

Gilliland's Black Hussar Band has closed the summer season, which has been a very successful and profitable one.

Conrad and Widdy, now on United, are featuring the Monkey Rag. The violin rag-time play of Monkey Rag is a treat, and the boys surely are making good.

A birthday surprise party and banquet was given September 3 at Wlsted, Minn., in honor of Mrs. Dr. J. M. Prentice, wife of Dr. J. M. Prentice, proprietor of the Modern Quaker Remedy Co. The event took place in the big tent of the company after the show, the reserve seats being set aside and a large dining table set in their place. The decorations were elaborate and a fine repast was enjoyed by not only the show people, but a number of the leading citizens of Wlsted. Many costly and beautiful presents were given to Mrs. Prentice, among others a handsome diamond ring and a Hams, Tom Davis, Frank Smedley, Frank Brown, Russell Green, Billie Johnson, Joseph Paul, soa and June Rubie.

Miss Blanche Mead and her dog Sparkie have been spreading the summer with friends at Dayton, Ky., and preparing for a hard season, as she is booked solid for forty weeks.

Frank Merritt and Claudia Tracey, two vaudeville performers, were married in Calumet, Mich., September 12. The two concluded an engagement at the Grand Theatre at Escanaba the night of the 11th. Some of the audience became aware that they were to be married and all during their tour they were showered with rice.

M. E. Moore has decided to enter the vaudeville producing business in earnest, and will move from Vincennes, Ind., to Chicago, where he will open up an office. One of his acts, Lorna Jackson and the Rah-Rah Boys, is rehearsing at the Princess Theatre in Chicago under the stage direction of Hamilton Coleman. Another act, Anbria Rich and her Stage Door Johnnies, will take the road shortly.

A report from Hamilton, Ont., Can., states that several weeks ago a vaudeville performer by the name of Lee or Harry Bartell came to Hamilton to fill an engagement at the Crystal Theatre. He became ill and it is said upon representing himself as a White Rat a local physician gave him medical attendance. Upon his release from the hospital he is said to have left Hamilton owing about $150.

Wlanlager Brothers and associate players opened the season at Waukesha, Wis., in Daniel Sully's The Matchmakers. The roster of the company is as follows: John Wlanlager, Joseph Bernard, Joseph McLeod, Charles Marston, Adolph Winninger, W. Howard Fitz, Joseph Wlanlager, Mitchell Ingraham, Adele Hickey, Mary Avery, Louise Winninger and Ward Caldwell.

Victor Foster and Edna Erick have been engaged by James S. Devlin and will appear very soon in a musical comedy dance creation in one. Mr. Foster will have plenty of opportunity as a comedian, singer, dancer, and pianist. Miss Erick will be remembered as the sourette ingenue with Marie Cahill. She is a talented pianist and an accomplished singer.

The Girl and the Tramp, Company D, is playing to good business in the big one-act stands of the Central States, and will play the East, opening on three-night and one-week stands October 15. The show and people are making good, and return dates are being offered nearly everywhere. Mr. Stanora, the stage-director, is filling the position very successfully.

Lealie and Kaede are now in their sixth week on the Griffin Circuit, playing Forecaine, Ont., where the big fire was. South Forecaine has been rebuilt and two new houses opened there, the Rex, hooked by Griffin, and the Princess, hooked by H. Rich of Toronto. Both houses expect to play two vaudeville acts, one single and one double.

Lajos Ritzko, the Hungarian Gypsy violinist, who played during the summer season at Sandy Grove Park, Uniontown, Pa., has entered vaudeville, booked on the Gus Sun Circuit, and opened at the Dixie Theatre, Uniontown, September 21.

Speaker Walker has been engaged for general heavy with Kilroy & Britton's Millionaire Kid Company, playing the Stair & Elevator Time. This is Mr. Walker's fifth season under the management of Kilroy & Britton.

Lewis and Lake are more than making good with their two shows. Harry C. Lewis is managing the No. 1 Show in Calgary, and dainty Marjorie Lake (Mrs. H. C. Lewis), is managing the No. 2 Show at Van Conner.

The Woods-Ralton Co. are booked solid on the United Time by Joe Palke Smith and are meeting with their usual success everywhere. The No. 2 act of the Musical Marlaes is doing nicely on the smaller time.

Queer and Quaint have signed for their second season with the Star Show Girls (Western Wheel) and their act with the new dancing finish is getting three or four curtain calls every performance.

Manning and Butcher will not appear as a team this season; Mr. Manning has doubled up with W. J. Hargood of Wichita, and the two will do an act permitting Missa Butcher to take a rest.

Sewell Brothers, the famous Parisian Apollon, and Miss Kitty Lynn are resting in Pittsburgh after a successful tour of the Pacific Coast. They open in October, and are booked solid.

Hathaway, Madison and Mack opened their season at Shubert Theatre, Utica, N. Y., and were the hit of the bill. Thos. J. Fitzpatrick is handling the act and always has it on the go.

Bernard A. Reinhold, who is featured in Dinkeple's Christmas, has bought a large tract of land on Cedar Lake, N. J., and is building two hungalows for next summer's occupancy.

McGee and Reece write from Sydney, Australia, that they are featured at the National Amphitheatre and are very successful. They are contemplating a tour of South Africa.

Frank Whitman, "The Dancing Violinist," is still getting the applause in his sixth month at the Broadway Theatre, New York, with Lew Fields' production, The Henpecks.

Kamplin and Bell, the original "Southern Song Birds," opened on Hockias Time in South Beaumont, Texas, and are making a big hit, featuring "The Harlem Dances."

Moss and Frye, colored singers and comedians, have received a twelve weeks' contract from Waller Pleamar. Their act is going big.

rehearsing. Monkey Rag will take a prominent place in the show, which it will fill to perfection.

After the beginning of the regular theatrical season in September, A. H. Woods' next important production will be Modest Suzanne, which is at present the rage in Berlin. The book is an adaptation of the French farce, Fils a Papa, by Mars and Desvallieres, to which Jean Gilbert has given a musical setting not only extremely melodious but well orchestrated. The inevitable waltz, which in this case happens to be a very good one, a spirited Bunnell march and the song of the Chaste Suzanne will furnish new material for the whistlers and barrel organs. Manager Woods is having two American versions made of Modest Suzanne by well-known writers, and the one that looks best to him will be produced.

Miss Ruby Rotnour, who was featured in the Middle West by her father, J. B. Rotnour, in connection with the Flora-De Voss Companies, is meeting with unlimited success in singing the prima donna role in the musical comedy, Merry Mary. The company just finished a successful week at Cincinnati, where she received some very pleasing press notices.

pair of diamond earrings, presented by Dr. Prentice. Everyone had a good time and all were pleased by the novel experience. Dr. Prentice writes that he received 186 replies to a recent ad for performers in The Billboard and as a result he has been able to put together three of the strongest medicine advertising shows on the road.

Lyndon's Vaudeville Company closed its tent season September 16, and opened in opera houses September 18. The company is booked solid until Christmas, and no change will be made in the personnel with the exception of a new sketch team to take the place of Frank and Jennie Campbell, who closed September 23, to go to their home in Marine Mills, Minn., to get their children arranged for the winter. The company played return dates all summer to good business, and found The Billboard a most welcome visitor every week.

That Girl Zenola, the feature of the E. R. Benjamin Big City Show, announces that she will close with that attraction in Salt Lake City, October 7. She will go to San Francisco, and after a week's rest will open as the feature at the Cave Cafe. It is said that Zenola will receive the largest salary ever paid a dancer to appear on the West Coast. For the engagement she has selected the Dance of 1,000 Mirrors as a feature.

LONDON LETTER

Autumn Theatrical Season in "Old Lunnnon Town" Inaugurated in a Blaze of Glory—Excellent Productions at Principal Theatres, Especially Drury Lane

The autumn season of the theatres has opened in a blaze of glory. Hardly a night has passed during this last week without the appearance of some big production and, without exception, everyone has been favorably received by the public and critics alike and the chances of a really brilliant time are rosy in the extreme.

I suppose at the beginning of a new season here one can not help thinking first of all as to what is happening at His Majesty's Theatre and Drury Lane. One represents the height of drama, the other of melodrama. The latter has not opened yet, but when it does we are promised something which will beat all records. But in the case of Sir Herbert Tree's theatre the first night is already over and the new production, Macbeth, has already installed itself as one of the greatest Shakespearean successes yet accomplished in this country.

This is the cast:

Duncan	Mr. Edward O'Neill
Malcolm	Mr. Basil Gill
Donalbain	Mr. B. Ion Swinley
Macbeth	Sir Herbert Tree
Banquo	Mr. J. H. Barnes
Macduff	Mr. Arthur Boucher
Lennox	Mr. Guy B. Bathbone
Ross	Mr. Philip Merivale
Angus	Mr. Victor Willshire
Fleance	Master Charlie Thomas
Siward	Mr. William Burchill
Seyton	Mr. Cyril Swooner
A wounded soldier	Mr. Arthur Granger
A porter	Mr. Edmund Gurney
An old man	Mr. Francis Chamer
A doctor	Mr. Henry Morrell
A soldier	Mr. Alfred H. Goddard
Lady Macbeth	Miss Violet Vanhugh
Lady Macduff	Miss Viva Birkett
Geoffrey	Miss Laura Cowie
Macduff's son	Master Alfred Willmore
Heate	Miss Eva Balfour
First witch	Mr. A. E. George
Second witch	Mr. Ross Shore
Third witch	Miss Frances Dillon
First apparition	Mr. Frank Conroy
Second apparition	Master Walter Sanders
Third apparition	Master Sydney Oliver
Attendant to Lady Macbeth	Mr. William Abingdon
First murderer	Mr. S. A. Cookson
Second murderer	Mr. Clifford Heatherley
Third murderer	Mr. Edmund Goulding

Act I.—Scene 1, The Witches Flight (McCleery); scene 2, A Barren Heath (McCleery); scene 3, Corridor in the King's Palace (Craven); scene 4, Room in Macbeth's Castle (Craven); scene 5, Before the Castle (Craven); scene 6, Courtyard of the Castle (Harker).

Act II.—Scene 1, Audience Chamber in the Castle (Harker); scene 2, The Banqueting Hall (Harker).

Act III.—Scene 1, The Witches' Cavern (McCleery); scene 2, Lady Macduff's Orchard (Craven); scene 3, An English Lane (Harker); scene 4, Room in the Castle (McCleery).

Act IV.—Scene 1, The Battlements (McCleery); scene 2, Birnam Wood (McCleery); scene 3, The Battlements (McCleery).

Muscle composed by John St. A. Johnson; costumes designed by Percy Anderson. The fight in scene 3, act IV, arranged by Clifford Heatherley; the dance in scene 2, act II, by Signor Rosi.

In this amazingly spectacular production Sir Herbert Tree, as he says in a note attached to the program, "has not tried to lay stress upon the historical aspect of any period, neither has he insisted upon archaeological detail of scenery and costume. The aim has been to create the awe-inspiring atmosphere suggested by the poet; for, although there are not lacking in the play scenes of sunlit realities, yet it is mainly set in the solemn splendor of the night in which the supernatural silences and sounds are felt and heard." And everyone who has realized the splendid imagination everywhere present throughout the performance and marked the ingenuity of the stage devices used, especially in the scenes for the witches and the apparitions, will agree that this purpose has been wonderfully carried out and that the play has been presented in a manner which would have gladdened the heart of the great dramatist.

The setting is truly barbaric. And the acting, especially in that of the chief part, corresponds to the rugged and stern nature of Macbeth's surroundings. Everything is in tune. From the red hair of the Scots, the huge fierce mustaches of Macbeth and Macduff, the primitive armor of the soldiers, to the uncanny scene on the barren heath and the rough walls and battlements of the castle, everything is in perfect keeping. Likewise the martial scenes are represented with great spirit, and the fighting in the last act is the last word in realism.

Many of the stage effects are entirely new. The witches, in faxen hair and gray robes, are caused to fly on and off the stage on wires, with effects representing rapidly moving clouds. An elaborate arrangement is introduced for the movements of Banquo's ghost: while the three apparitions in the incantation scene appear out of a huge cauldron, which, later, is removed to the back of the stage to allow of the ascent, from its smoke, of Banquo's successors right up to the flies—a new effect worked on the great wheel principle. And in other scenes, in which they are not actually brought on by Shakespeare, the witches make their presence felt by thunder lighting and moaning winds, all heightening the general uncanny nature of the play.

Tree's performance is far and away the best he has ever given in any Shakespeare play. The amount of study which he must have given to the part must have been enormous, so carefully is every detail thought out, so profound is the understanding of the value of every word he speaks. For once he has dropped all his mannerisms and completely sunk himself in the character he is portraying. He is the brave, fearless soldier, gradually broken down by the weight of his crimes. The long speeches he delivers are not just the mere efforts of elocution, they are the soliloquies of an unsettled mind and a troubled soul. He is ably seconded by Boucher, both in the bringing and reception of the pitiful news of the hutchery of the mother and child, but also in his magnificent declamation after the discovery of the murder of Duncan. Miss Violet Vanhugh, however, as Lady Macbeth is hardly a success. Her speech is stilted and she plays the part with a soft womanliness entirely out of keeping. The remainder of the company are all tip-top and it would be hard to discriminate between them. Never, in fact, have I seen so large a company kept at so high a level in a piece of this magnitude. From beginning to end the production amply repays the mouths of unremitting work bestowed upon it, and from present appearances, especially in regard to the advance booking, it seems as though it has at least a six months' run in front of it—and a six months' run at His Majesty's is, to put it mildly, at least equal to a twelve months' run at the average theatre.

With Shakespeare the fashion just now, and with a promising and most popular young actress being given her first chance in a great classic part, it is not surprising that Fred Terry's new production of Romeo and Juliet can also be written down as a brilliant success. Not that one can say that Miss Neilson Terry has exactly set the town on fire with her Juliet. That would be expecting too much from so young a girl. From time immemorial in this country it has been realized that, with the piece practically consisting of two plays, although a slip of a girl can do well in the earlier scenes, yet when coming to the black tragedy of the later, none but a woman of mature years can rise to the height of passion demanded. All the same, Miss Terry does really well, even though the fulness of medieval Italian passion has so far been denied her. She plays with an engaging tenderness and in her acting there is the feeling of the impending doom. To contrast her with, say, Adeline Neilson in the part would be unfair, but all the same she gives every indication that she is in the line of the great English classic actresses and that latent within her are all the qualities of genius of the Terry family. The Romeo is Vernon Steel, one of our young acting actors, and his performance is also excellent except that he, too, is insufficiently full-blooded in the part and tries to play it with Saxony restraint rather than with the Southern overwhelming passion. The company contains many fine actors: Alfred Frydson as Capulet, Louis Calvert as Mercutio and Fisher White as Friar Lawrence. The highest personal success is that of Rosina Filippi as the nurse to Juliet: giving an entirely new interpretation to the part, full of dry humor when with Romeo and yet the immersion of womanly tenderness in her relations with Juliet. The force and sincerity of her acting when she thinks she discovers the dead body of Juliet made an enormous hit on the first night.

The play is sumptuously mounted and every detail of the richly-colored Renaissance dresses, property and scenery is archaeologically correct down to the very smallest item. The scenes, especially the ballroom, are a triumph

AUSTRALIAN LETTER

Amusement News from the Strange Land of the Antipodes, Where the First Signs of Spring Are Now Visible, and Open Air Amusements Are in Season

Sydney, N. S. W., August 30 (Special to The Billboard).—Spring will be with us in another week and then the faces of the open-air shows will beam with smiles and the money will begin to roll into the coffers of the suburban shows like water. More shows will begin to appear on the scene and all nature will take on a bright and cheerful appearance. We have had ten days of torrential downpour which has added millions sterling to the wealth of this fair land. Sousa and his band join this steamer at Auckland for the return home. Mrs. Sousa and her two daughters have had one of the finest trips of their lives, and many of the members of the band say that they are coming back to this land of sunshine to live after their engagement with the band has terminated. Sousa may have had some receptions in his travels, but I don't think he has had many where the people turned out in such force as they did in this city and where so much show was made and such a reception given as the Lord Mayor of this city gave to him and his band of sixty performers.

As already advised by me four weeks ago today, J. D. Williams, managing director, Leon Phillips, treasurer, and Alderman E. Lindsay Thompson, director and architect, of the J. D. Williams Amusement Company, Ltd. (capital only $1,000,000), left for a tour of the world, and your scribe was the last man in Australia to shake hands with Mr. Williams. When the steamer was sailing by the wharf, he reached over and extending his hand bade me, "Good-bye and good luck," and incidentally remarked, "Doc, you are the last man to shake hands with me in Australia." Well, the cable has kept us in touch with the party and the last states that they had reached Vancouver in safety and had a fine trip, and now I suppose he will keep the wires hot with new things to come forward and new improvements that will be introduced into his numerous ventures.

The Melba Theatre in Melbourne is breaking all records there, and their Columbia next door is slowly but surely on the rise and soon will be another monument to Mr. Williams' get-there policy, and I think he has already set the Australian people thinking. In Sydney, the Lyric—supposed to have been built by Mr. Spencer, but it was not—also under the control and management of Mr. Williams. With E. Donohue, well known amongst Sullivan & Considine's people, having been connected with the last-named member of the firm, he being a brother-in-law, as the manager of this theatre. You can pass there any night at 7 and see hundreds of people standing outside waiting to get in, and so it has been every day since the place opened its doors, and I guess that Mr. Spencer wishes now that he had tackled that theatre himself, instead of letting it fall into another man's hands, and J. D. W.'s wish is that he could get hold of a couple of theatres in the city in equally as fine situations as this one, and says that he may build a couple more before he is finished with the matter. There is not much chance for argument now as to the position held by parties in the moving picture business. The palm here must be given to Mr. Williams.

Messrs. West are progressing very well with the new Olympia Theatre, and when finished it will be the most modern and up-to-date place this side of the line. Messrs. West's people will open the 9th prox. at their old summer stand at the Glaciarum and, as they own the Princess next door, I hear rumors that they will produce vanderbilt there, but of that I am not sure. The Weats will open the Lyric Theatre at Manly and Lyric No. 2 at Mossman's next week, and soon the open-air shows will be in full swing, as we will see very few cold days here from this on. The backbone of the cold weather is broken, and spring, the finest season of the year, will be here in the next two weeks.

Taken on the whole this has been the most severe winter that I ever knew in Australia. We have had rain and cold enough for snow, but that is a luxury we know not of in this city, not even a frost, let alone snow; but we feel the cold as much as you do in the States and are not so well prepared for it, either.

Colonial No. 1 and Colonial No. 2 Theatres are going some and then some more, and nightly sees the sign "house full" not put up, but ocularly demonstrated by an enormous crowd awaiting the letting down of the harpers and admitting more as the ones who have seen the whole show go on.

There is much talk here of the big six days' bicycle sports that are to eventuate in this city and Melbourne, the promoter being J. D. Williams, with large money prizes, and entries are pouring in from all over the States and Europe as well. Mr. C. Post Mason, who came out here as an artist to Mr. Harry Rickards, is the manager, and looks after the dishonourment of advertising matter, etc., as well as acting as press representative for the firm and manager of Nos. 1 and 2 Colonial Theatres here. He is kept pretty busy with the many interests he has to look after, and looks well in the motor car provided by the company to run around. As time is money, it is the cheapest in the end. It looks so diminutive alongside the manager's car that it looks as though it had been picked long before it was ripe. The Crystal Palace is beginning to assume something like a star, but there is considerable excavating to be done before they will get at the cornerstone which is to be laid with great pomp and ceremony with a swell banquet thrown in. Mr. Bud Atkinson is the managing director, Mr. Charles Williams treasurer, and J. D. Williams a very large shareholder, but this is NOT a branch of the Greater J. D. Williams Amusement Company, as many suppose, but the companies' offices will all be located in that building, on the top floor, and so I presume in but a very short time the Palace opens its doors, the Greater Company will have to absorb it, for Bud tells me he is going to make them think some and then some more when he gets in opposition to them, and I guess that Bud will make good.

There are some picture shows in the suburbs that are doing just as fine a business as I would want, and a nice wad they cut up between the three partners. I know that one show at Marricksville, a suburb of this city—the Victoria Theatre—has one of the very best businesses in this country. They can seat 1,500 people and by bringing in benches, chairs, etc., they can ring in another two or three hundred, and I guess they give as good value for their patrons' money as any show in this city.

The New Broadway Theatre on George Street, West, is giving continuous shows and seems to be doing a splendid business, as I see crowds waiting outside in the evening. King's, next to the Glaciarum, are also on a good wicket. The Alhambra has changed managers. E. J. Kilpatrick has got that theatre now and he is also running continuous shows. It took J. D. Williams some time to educate them up to the continuous shows, but it took the Alhambra but little time to copy his movements.

There are so many new and large theatres opening that it will be hard to give notices to all of them in any one letter. Mr. Frank Musgrove, the lessor of the Palace and the Criterion Theatres, has bought out the Victoria Theatre on Pitt Street, and he also is running from 10:30 to 10:50 daily and doing well with moving pictures. The American, at the old Queen's Hall, which has all been rebuilt, is at the same time running continuous shows and doing alright.

At Her Majesty's Our Miss Gibbs is running. H. B. Irving having just closed a very highly successful season and opened in Melbourne on the 26th. The Merry Widow is drawing packed houses and seems to never grow old here, and the crowds that are nightly seen coming out of the Royal testify to how strong the hold is on the masses.

Another picture show of some magnitude is to be built in George Street. The architects are Messrs. Scott and Green, and the builders, Messrs. Baxter and Hepburn, have signed the contract to carry out the work in six months. The plans provide for two distinct blocks under one roof. The total frontage will be 85 feet, and the depth of each block 162 feet. A dividing wall will separate each of the blocks, and the building will consist of three stories and a basement. The site is close to Bathurst Street, on the eastern side of George Street.

Mr. George Tallis, a partner in the J. C. Williamson Company, on being interviewed said that the amalgamation of the J. C. Williamson, Ltd., and the Clarke-Meynell Proprietary, Ltd., Theatrical Companies had been the subject of negotiations for some time. The new directorate would consist of Messrs. J. C. Williamson, G. Tallis, Hugh Ward and Clyde Meynell. All the theatres at present under the two firms would be conducted by the joint company. These would comprise the following Australian theatres: Theatre Royal and Her Majesty's, Melbourne; Sir Majesty's, Theatre Royal and Criterion, Sydney; Opera House, Brisbane; Theatre Royal, Christchurch; and Opera House, Wellington. Altogether about ten or eleven companies would be conducted by the new enterprise. The new company would really come into operation on September 2, when the Melba grand opera season would commence at Her Majesty's and the Chocolate Soldier at the Theatre Royal, Melbourne.

PRIEUR OPTIMISTIC

European Film Manufacturer Discusses the Situation and Finds Moving Picture Business in a Salutary Condition in America and His Own Country

Mr. R. Prieur, head of the Lux Film Company and prominent film dealer in Europe, arrived in New York Sunday, September 10, on the Lusitania. He has much to say regarding the outlook for the film business and expresses his opinion regarding the importation of foreign films into any country, either the United States or a country of Europe.

Lux films are heavy sellers throughout all parts of Europe, and Mr. Prieur explained the basis of the cause of his success in the manufacture of films to suit so many different classes of people. For instance, he says, the Russian demands the melodramatic in his picture productions. Too much display of bloodshed and too strong a plot can not be shown to the Russian people. The Italians and Spaniards likewise are strongly inclined to the intensely dramatic production and many films which would never be permitted to be shown in England and France or America will create capacity houses in Russia, Italy and Spain. No discussion can be too frank and no treatment of the immoral character too drastic to please the eyes of these three nations.

France, while requiring a simpler treatment, is still an admirer of the strong plot. While a greater sense of honor and somewhat cleaner methods are demanded in the treatment of the villain, it is nevertheless the audience's desire that this individual be dealt with unsparingly. Comedy, likewise, must be broad and not long on subtlety. Facial expressions are not enough for the French, quick bodily action is needed to carry on the play.

In England and Germany a different condition prevails. The melodramas will not be tolerated in either of these countries. The deep plot and the strong story are demanded in Germany, but crude methods will never pass, and as for England, the simple but clever tale with little reflection on moral codes is the cry of the theatergoer. In these like the countries of North America, the strictly American film is almost the universal demand. England is the biggest market for American films, while Germany comes a close second in size.

As for the cowboy film, England and Germany divide here very sharply. Germany will have none of them. Strange as it may seem, a country long partial to deeds of valor and exhibitions of skill and personal conquest puts the taboo on tests of skill and daring as performed by the American cowboy. England, on the other hand, takes quite naturally to cowboy stuff. There is somewhat of a reason to be found for this in the fact that cowboy films are forced upon the market. To begin with,

TWO NOTABLE FILMS

Charles Dickens' Masterpiece, David Copperfield, Produced by Thanhouser Co. in Three Reels—Kalem's Colleen Bawn Draws True Picture of Irish Life

New York, Sept. 22 (Special to The Billboard).—Continued to a space of three thousand feet, three reels, this monster subject is yet one of the most brilliant productions released through the regular channels for some time. Unlike so many reproductions of famous stories of famous plays, this one would have been immensely interesting without the fame already attached to it, for it is so cleverly done and as clearly put on that it is at once intelligible and entertaining as a plain simple production.

The proper atmosphere has been obtained with stage arrangements and variety of scenes too numerous to mention. The costuming, not a easy thing to do correctly, has been carefully handled both by the director and by each actor in the cast. The numerous seaside scenes, the boarding school of Creakie's and Aunt Betsey's house are all real and natural places, well gotten up and so well connected with the play that they remain indelibly stamped upon the memory long after the film has been seen.

The production is divided into three distinct parts as well as the film itself, each part being commensurate with the divisions in the film, so that each reel is a complete story by

KALEM'S COLLEEN BAWN.

New York, Sept. 22 (Special to The Billboard).—The fact that the Kalem Company, at least one of the stock companies, went to Ireland, practically to take this picture, would suggest that a splendid production was forthcoming, while the fact that the film is the length of three ordinary reels and is to be released as one film sharpens one's expectations somewhat beyond normal. Audiences are not disappointed in this, a really magnificent production, although there is a lack of dramatic effect which it seems is noticeable. Too much should not be expected of a film of this character, however, as the plot is laid down and must be followed, and when one looks at a production of this kind he must take the dramatic qualities of it as a matter closed to discussion and view the film from the standpoint of a reproduction and not a production. As the reproduction goes, it has even surpassed the story itself as told by the author and has gone back to the tale as it was not told by the inhabitants of the little village and around which the scenes are laid.

New Leading Man with the Great Northern Film Company.

An Imp Feature Film

New York, Sept. 23 (Special to The Billboard).—Under the direction of Mr. Frank Grandin, the newly-engaged director of one of the Imp stock companies, one of the most interesting and finely done of Imp pictures has been produced. "Tween Two Loves is not a new story, but it is so old to those who know human nature that it bears repetition well. It is not a brilliantly plotted tale, although it is clearly outlined and as played moves simply.

The greatest claim the play can lay to newness is the staging and photography. The characters have been placed well in the foreground and faces have been kept turned to the camera all the time, presenting good facial expressions without ever disclosing the fact that an attempt has been made to stage the people in this way. A fire scene toward the close of the sketch is likewise well done and rich in naturalness. The property and the fire are well arranged, while the rescue which must occur is done in a most natural way and is thus truly exciting.

Good photography, careful acting, clever staging and direction and the arrangement of very few people in the cast are most noticeable points and points which go to make the film the best of a new series.

PEED IN NEW YORK.

Together with the announcement that the Yerkes Mfg. Co., manufacturers of sound effects for moving picture and dramatic playhouses has moved into the entire building at 202 E. 83rd Street, comes the news that Horace S. Peed has been engaged as representative for this concern. His past experiences in the motion picture field makes him pre-eminently fit for this new capacity. There is no doubt that he will be able to bring a lot of new and fresh ideas that will work to the advantage of his employers. Peed was formerly with the Electric Theatre Supply Co. of Philadelphia, and also operated the exchange business extensively throughout the South with headquarters at Norfolk, Va. The Yerkes Mfg. Co. has been reincorporated with a $10,000 capital.

PEARLMAN MAKES PURCHASE.

Chicago, September 23 (Special to The Billboard).—Mr. Pearlman, the well-known manufacturer and patentee of the Perfect Calcium Lights, last week purchased the Bellshie Film Exchange of Chicago. This does not mean that Mr. Pearlman will discontinue his calcium light business, but on the contrary he intends to make it even larger and to give it his entire attention, while the film exchange will be under his brother's management who has been associated with the film business for the past twelve years. Mr. S. Pearlman also has a wide knowledge of the business, having managed several branch offices for the various large film exchanges.

Although the Bellshie is not a buying exchange at the present time, it is Mr. Pearlman's intention to enter it into the class just as soon as conditions will permit. At the present time he is busily engaged in installing various systems and building up his stock so as to be prepared for the time when he will wish to commence buying new film.

Famous Baseball Pitcher Film

Chicago, Sept. 22 (Special to The Billboard).—The thousands of ball fans who daily read of Big Ed Walsh's wonderful curves, as he pitches the White Sox to victory, know but little of his past. When they see with what dexterity he handles the nautically bronchios in "Old Wyoming Days," a feature film of Western life being produced by the Western Feature Film Co. of Chicago, they will more than wonder at the ability of this man. It is amazing to see with what ease "Big Ed" handles the unbroken broncho, and with what grace he sits the saddle. If one were not so thoroughly familiar with his vocation, the impression would be that he was a veteran cow-puncher. It is said that Ed's boyhood days were spent on a Wyoming ranch.

Besides "Big Ed," the film contains innumerable scenes of Western life and Western sports. It depicts scenes of western country in a manner that leaves no room for a doubt that it is the genuine article. These pictures were taken in a typical Western Wyoming town during a Fourth of July celebration, and show the Westerner in all his glory.

It is evident that the merit of this film is being appreciated by the state right purchasers, as territory is selling fast. As a Western feature, it is claimed by those who have seen it, to have no superior.

Kalem Changes Directors

New York, Sept. 23 (Special to The Billboard).—A reorganization in the New York Stock Co. of the Kalem forces will bring one of their Western directors, Mr. Kenan Buel, to New York to take charge of the studio work there. The new studio is located at 251 West 19th Street, having been moved to these quarters from the old location along side the offices of the company on 21st Street. The stock company will be changed almost entirely as soon as Mr. Buel arrives.

Mr. George Melford, one of the most popular actors the Kalem Company employs and one of the most popular in the business, is to take Mr. Buel's place at the head of one of the Western companies in which he has been working.

CHICAGO FILM NOTES.

Mr. Charles L. Gray, who last season piloted the Two Bill pictures through Wisconsin, departed last week for that state with the feature film, "Temptations of a Great City." Wisconsin as well as Minnesota, Illinois and Indiana, is controlled by Mr. Joseph Hopp of the Standard Film Exchange. Mr. Gray's former

More K. & E. Film Trouble

New York, Sept. 22 (Special to The Billboard).—Klaw & Erlanger are again annoyed by Ben-Hur play film pirates. Last spring the successfully prosecuted film pirates in Ohio and Missouri, and it was thought that the dictation of a jail sentence in the Ohio case would prove a sufficient lesson. But it seems that another coterie of pirates began operations again. This time it was the Virginia Theatre in Washington, D. C., where the pirated film of Ben-Hur were shown.

The producing firm, through their Washington attorneys, Maddox and Gatliff, were in conference with the United States District attorney for the District of Columbia for the purpose of instituting proceedings against John Noonan, proprietor of the Virginia Theatre, and several other moving picture houses for giving performances of Ben-Hur last week. Noonan admitted giving the performances, but claimed he did not know the play was copyrighted. In the course of his statement he said he secured the film from Harry K. Lucas, of Charlotte, N. C., and that he took it, as he does other films for exhibition. The fact is that in proceedings against the Kalem Company permanent injunctions have been issued to restrain the selling of any films or of giving any performances. Ben-Hur is one of several small least recent film concerns who are peddling the films mostly to moving picture houses in obscure localities. Vigorous proceedings against Lucas for his infringement of the copyright of Ben-Hur will be instituted in the United States Court of North Carolina.

CONVENTION NOTE.

The New York Edison Co. convention of electrical supply manufacturers and current distributors held a mammoth assemblage at Spruce Lake, N. J., last week, ending Saturday, September 23. Delegates attended from all sections of the Union. The Hotel New Moontown was made headquarters and the very large overflow were accommodated in a colonial tent 50x125 feet, with four centerpieces, furnished by M. Magee & Son, tent manufacturers of New York City. A myriad of Edison electric bulbs were strung all over the outside of the inside of the big white canvas.

SALES COMPANY BALL.

The splendid efforts of the Sales Company Employees' Association and especially the officers and ball committee, have assured the success of the ball through the souvenir program advertising proposition. Nearly every concern or business man connected with the independent film business and many more who supply men, have taken advertising space in the program, and only a few more pages are to be filled.

Great interest is being manifest in the coming event, and elaborate preparations are being made for the reception of the many guests expected. The souvenir pillow covers are being made, a large order having been issued for them. The ball will no doubt surpass any similar past event both as a social and financial success.

Miscellaneous New York Theatrical News

ACTS NEW TO NEW YORK.

THE FIVE DeWOLFS, miniature musical comedy, The Fresh Air Fund; Hudson Theatre, Union Hill, N. J.; twenty minutes; full stage.

The backbone of the act which the Five DeWolfs are now presenting lies in the songs. A half-dozen numbers comprise the repertoire, which is interspersed with a little comedy talk. Like all musical comedies, there is a plot, slight though it may be. However, plot counts as little in a condensed musical piece such as this. Three of the five people in the act are juveniles. One is a lad apparently about 18 years of age, with the remaining two, both girls, a little younger. The smaller and younger of the two girls plays a "tough girl" part, which she handles admirably for one so early in years. Upon her the burden for the majority of the comedy devolves. Her young brother and sister acquit themselves with credit. Much life is infused into the piece by Julia Capota DeWolf, one of the two adults. She has one solo number, which she handles as well as any number. Her desire to have her sing another, Maurice DeWolf permits himself to remain in the background. The foundation for a pleasing act has been found. A little more comedy is the only suggestion to be made. The DeWolfs can easily do the rest.

HAL DAVIS, assisted by Miss Gertrude Perry in comedy-dramatic sketch, "What Would You Do?"; Hudson Theatre, Union Hill, N. J.; eighteen minutes; full stage.

Anything in theatricals with which the name of mother is associated, especially when it applies to a tender-hearted, loving little wife, as it does in this sketch, has a pretty good start in its battle with an audience. When it is written in the strain that "What Would You Do?" has been constructed, the hearts of the feminine contingent of the audience will be beguiled into attempting an applause act at the finish. The story tells of the ambitions of Frederick A. Douglas to become U. S. Senator. His work to attain this goal keeps him from his fireside night after night. This preys upon the wife, who endeavors to have him give up his political ambitions in favor of his home and family. He returns home one evening and announces that he is to be the next senator from his district. It means the intermittent separation of husband from his family. She argues with him to give up the position and remain at home. At first her arguments fail, but the introduction of the love theme awakes him to her side and he renounces politics. He will remain at home with his family. The work of Mr. Davis as Mr. Douglas and of Miss Perry as Mrs. Douglas was above reproach.

NEW PLAYS ON THE WAY.

New York, Sept. 21 (Special to The Billboard).—H. H. Frazee and George W. Lederer, composing the producing firm of Frazee & Lederer, have announced their plans for the season. Victor Moore will begin rehearsing a new play, "Jefferson DeAngelo," will star in a new comic opera, "The Ladies' Lion," with book by himself and score by William T. Francis. Among those in the cast are Anna Langhlin, Florence Brooks, Frank Ruehworth and Hubert Wilke.

Partners, a dramatization of E. P. Roe's novel, "He Fell in Love with His Wife," will be staged in October, with May Buckley and Fredric Burton featured. A new musical play by George W. Lederer and Annie McCree will open at the Olympic Theatre, Chicago, on October 21. Will T. Philbrick will be featured. James Montgomery's newspaper play, "Jimmy Jr.," which has been tried out in Los Angeles, will be produced.

Two musical productions will be "The Girl and the Canary," by Harry P. Smith and Victor Hollander, and "The Clairvoyant," by Edward Pele and Victor Hollander.

H. H. Frazee and A. H. Woods will make a production of the European musical success, "Modest Suzanne," by Okonowsky and Gilbert; "The Greyhound," a melodrama of the ocean liner, by Paul Armstrong and Wilson Mizner, and "The Master of the House," an adaptation of a Berlin play. Mr. Frazee will operate his Court Theatre, Chicago, as a producing house and the majority of Frazee & Lederer's new pieces will have their opening in that or some other Chicago house.

Madame Sherry is being presented by five companies. Richard Carle supported by Edna Wallace Hopper, is playing on the Pacific Coast in Jumping Jupiter. Thomas W. Ross has begun a new season in "An Everyday Man," at Chicago.

FIFTH AVENUE BILL.

New York, Sept. 23 (Special to The Billboard).—Not within a lengthy period of time has an audience assembled at the Fifth Avenue Theatre such enthusiastic appreciation and hearty demonstration of approval throughout a performance as did the assemblage Monday night when every seat in the house, from pit to dome, was occupied. To no other reason than the effective efforts of the array of artists composing the program may this unusually voluminous manifestation of approbation be ascribed. Besides, the consideration evoked by the artists was justly deserved.

The perennial lovely Lillian Russell has her name emblazoned in headlines before the Fifth Avenue this week. The fair preserver of youthful charms is a magnetic attraction, as the Fifth Avenue house receipts this week will show.

When her entrance Miss Russell was given an enthusiastic welcome. After singing three numbers she responded, by popular acclamation, with a rendition of "Evening Star," her memorable success of the Weber and Fields days. The instant applause prompted the fair one to sing another of the old-time ballads. When "We Were Boys and Girls" was the number selected. An excellent accompanist aided Miss Russell. The Altus Brothers opened the show. For seven minutes they dexterously juggled clubs; passed the mirrors with the speed of a Rube. The Altus Brothers gave the proceedings an excellent start.

Moved from Spot No. 3 to the position preceding it, Kalmer and Brown kept up the rapid whirl started by the Altus Brothers. The Helm Children, who exchanged positions with Kalmer and Brown, registered the third successive hit.

Edgar Allen Woolf has provided Mrs. Gene Hughes and Company with an excellent comedy playlet, called "Youth." Its presentation by Mrs. Hughes and her capable assistants is entirely in accord with the excellence of the piece itself. By reason of its recent introduction to Manhattan variety the playlet is reviewed under New Acts.

The eccentricities of Ed. Wynn, who always discovers that he has another joke to tell, and the dull perceptive powers of the happy delineated by Edmund Russon gives rise to the name of their offering, "Joy and Gloom," an unending laugh perpetrator. The fact that they followed two other acts whose forte was comedy did not prevent Wynn and Russon from gaining their point.

Of Lillian Russell, to whom the introductory of this review is devoted, and who followed Wynn and Russon, we need say nothing more.

Owing to illness the engagement of Walter C. Kelly was postponed and Stepp, Mehlinger and King occupied the place vacated on account of his absence. Rawson and June, with a clever exhibition of hoem-rang throwing, closed the show.

PLAYHOUSE NO. ELEVEN.

New York, Sept. 22 (Special to The Billboard).—According to the brokerage firm of Franklin T. Seaman, New York is soon to have another theatre in the Long Acre Square District. This latest playhouse—the eleventh of weakness with the public will be the first to be sent on tour, having behind it the prestige of a New York presentation.

The first of Mr. Frohman's experiments in this direction—which will not be continued unless it at once works out—will be made in the case of "Passers-By." In view of the success of this piece and the small capacity of the Criterion Theatre, Mr. Frohman means to use the Garrick as an overflow theatre for a second production of "Passers-By" in New York. Last week Mr. Frohman instructed his staff to begin at once the organization of another "Passers-By" company which will be installed in the Garrick Theatre. The production now on view at the Criterion will be duplicated; so far as possible the company will be of as good a caliber as the Criterion Theatre company; and another "Passers-By" company will begin an engagement of indefinite length at the Garrick Theatre, it is hoped, within a month.

In many respects one of the boldest moves ever attempted by a theatrical manager—that of simultaneously producing the same play at two different theatres in the same city—Mr. Frohman's plan is warmly seconded by Haddon Chambers, the author of "Passers-By," who has postponed the date of his return to London in order to remain in New York and rehearse the company for the Garrick Theatre performances of his play. Whether or not the Garrick Theatre production of "Passers-By" has an extended run, the company itself will be kept intact and later be used for Western cities, beginning at the Blackstone Theatre, Chicago. The "Passers-By" company now appearing at the Criterion Theatre will later be employed to planned within the year in the Long Acre Square District will represent an investment of nearly $500,000 including the site which is at present adorned with five old-time houses from 220 to 228 West 45th Street. The middle of October is supposed to see the removal of the buildings. The house is being built for H. H. Frazee. This will be one of the twenty-five theatres within a space of a dozen blocks. The newest built or planned are: The Gaiety, Polka Berge, Globe and Edward Rush Theatres in Forty-sixth Street; Coburn's, in Forty-third Street; the Shubert and New Theatre, in Forty-fourth Street; the Columbia, at Seventh Avenue and Forty-seventh Street; the Playhouse, in Forty-eighth Street, and the Winter Garden, at Fiftieth Street and Broadway, on the site of the old American Horse Exchange. The plans of the new theatre, which will be called the Longacre, call for a seating capacity of 1,100.

UNIQUE PLANS FOR THE GARRICK.

New York, September 23 (Special to The Billboard).—The many rumors about from time to time concerning the plans of the Garrick Theatre—that it is to be used by Henry Miller for a repertory season; that it is to house a new Charles Dillingham production; and that it is to be used by Charles Frohman's company to employ the theatre himself in a unique way, directly any of his New York productions meets with decided public approval. It is Mr. Frohman's plan to at once duplicate the production at the Garrick Theatre, let the play run there as long as it will, even when this means the presentation of the same play at two different New York theatres. It is thought that by thus reproducing in New York a play that will only be second to the original company in date, the usual objection to "second company" by out-of-town audiences and out-of-town managers will be obviated. Neither company will be regarded as inferior to the other, but the organization that first shows a sign cover Eastern territory, beginning at the Para Theatre, Boston.

So far as possible the companies will be the same in merit; both will have been rehearsed by the author, the only difference being that when each goes on tour it will be assigned to different territory.

THE COLONIAL BILL.

New York, September 23 (Special to The Billboard).—Irene Franklin is topping the Colonial bill of this week. Several additions to her repertoire have been made since last season. Wednesday night, Miss Franklin sang five numbers.

Olkie Young and April were openers. The Kemps and Simone DeBerry, in spots No. 2 and 3, respectively, are reviewed under new acts.

After the Shower, the title of the skit which Merrill and Otto are playing, is a neat little bundle of patter and songs. The first half of the show was given its finale with Edgar Atchison Ely and his company, playing the comedy playlet, Billy's Tombstones. A detailed review is given under new acts.

The Six Musical Cuttys, just back from a tour abroad, opened the second half of the show. They registered one of the hits of the show. Following Irene Franklin, Jack Wilson demonstrated his ability at impromptu burlesquing. He is ably assisted by Ada Lane and Franklin Batle. Lane and O'Donnell, the comedy member of the team doing some difficult tumbling, follow. The boys work with effective speed.

PERTINENT PATTERN.

Nellie Butler, formerly a member of Charles Frohman's comedy companies, and more recently with Blanch Walsh, in "The Other Woman," on tour seasons 1908-11, is the latest recruit to vaudeville. Nellie Revell is to be responsible for the playlet, which is to be original in theme and possessing many dramatic incidents.

Corbley and Burke, the Irish comedians, are again working together after a separation of three years. During that time each worked as a single act.

D. S. Samuels, musical director at Maxine Elliott Theatre, has established offices in the Shubert Building. Samuels has under his management several prominent artists.

New York, September 23 (Special to The Billboard).—The Curtis Trio is booked to play the W. V. A. and Interstate Circuits, opening on the former time October 23, at Lafayette, Ind.

The Grand Opera House in Brooklyn, which opened last week with "Ivan, Fox vaudeville, is managed by Lep Solomon, who was transferred from the Nemo to the Grand. His stage crew is unusually capable. It is composed of A. Gilbert, stage manager; Edward Rambonet, electrician; John Pheeny, properties; and John Simons, assistant properties.

Lillian Beach and Goldie Reinhardt, a new sister act, having been formed only two weeks ago, are playing dates in New York with a singing and talking act which they call Gabalogue.

BROADWAY TABLOIDS.

Arthur Hopkins, the author and producer of "The Fatted Calf," which comes to the Worcester Theatre for three performances, beginning Friday night, September 29, is well known in the business end of the amusement world, but this is his first venture as a playwright. His production, which he calls an optimistic comedy, was tried out at Waterbury, Conn., last summer and won much favor. Since then he has done considerable toward the betterment of the play and now feels assured of its success both in Worcester and later on in New York, where it will go for a run after the Friday and Saturday performances here. A new angle to a very serious city-life problem is handled without gloves by Mr. Hopkins in "The Fatted Calf." The subject has not been approached heretofore by any dramatist, and for this reason, as well as the fact of the play's strength, the author expects much from it. In the role of a physician of the latest scientific school, one which is extremely important to the logical denouement of the piece—Mr. Frank Sheridan will return to the legitimate stage. For the past year he has been in vaudeville, but his particular province is in the legitimate, and his return in Mr. Hopkins' play will be generally welcome. Others in the cast which will be seen here are Robert McWade Jr., well known for his work in "The Fourth Estate" and "The Commenters"; Julia Hanchette, Marjorie Wood, Mary Gross and Mary Malloy. Under the direction of Tully Marshall the company has "The Country Boy"; Lowell Sherman, last season in "The Commenters"; Julia Hanchette, Marjorie been in rehearsal in New York for three weeks.

It was to be expected that the new advantages held out by the Institute of Musical Art would be the cause of much interest in the school of which Frank Damrosch is in charge. But even he was hardly prepared for the number of students who have signified their intention of taking the examinations this week. Enrollment and examinations begin on Monday, September 25, and continue till Thursday, October 5, and there will be no examinations given on Friday, October 6, and Saturday, October 7. The term proper opens Tuesday, October 9. The announcement that the pupils in the operative classes of the Institute would have the privilege of attending dress rehearsals at the Metropolitan and that those who were found capable would be permitted to begin their careers there in small parts, was made quietly at the end of the operative season last year, but it had an immediate and far-reaching effect. It has brought encouragement to many who felt that they must go to Europe for training and a start, and will result in the operative classes at the Institute being much larger than last year. The fact that Mr. Gatti-Casazza and Mr. Herz of the Metropolitan are now members of the faculty council of the Institute has added to the reputation for efficiency enjoyed by such famous instructors as Jilika Ternina, Alfred Graudet, Sergel Kilhansky and Adriaan Brient presents the greatest opportunity ever offered to talented singers to prepare themselves for an operatic career. It is also an assurance that American singers will have an opportunity which has long been denied them—the chance to begin at home. The great hubbub of European domination in musical matters will be in a fair way to be removed when American aspirants for operatic honors come to realize what possibilities are held out to them by the Institute of Musical Art.

When the Institute of Musical Art opens on October 9, many important additions will be found in the faculty. In the department of singing the most important addition will be Mr. Sergel Kilhansky of Berlin. Mr. Kilhansky is well known not only as an excellent singer but as a prominent and successful teacher. Francis Rogers, the well-known American lyric baritone, and Mrs. Adele Laeis Baldwin, whose oratorio work has won her a prominent place in music, are also members of the faculty in the singing department. In the department of pianoforte, besides Mr. Ernesto Consolo who has been at the Institute for a year, there are three celebrated foreign teachers who will be connected with the Institute for the first time. Mr. Rene Chausard of Paris, who has held a high rank as pianist, composer and teacher; Mr. Edouard Celli, an Italian, and Manfred Munkin, a noted Belgian artist. An interesting and important addition to the stringed instruments department is Olive Mead Greene, the principal of the Olive Mead Quartet. As she is a pupil of Franz Kneisel, the head of the department, her engagement will secure uniformity of instruction throughout the department. The following prominent members of the orchestra of the Symphony Society will teach in the wind instrument department: Georges Barrere, Frederic Labate, George Szegedina, Ugo Savolini, Joseph Franzel and S. Tilkin. An important addition to the school will be made in the shape of a department of military band, which will be in charge of Arthur A. Closser. Otherwise the excellent personnel of the faculty will remain as last season.

Hildebrandt & Bedford of Auburn, N. Y., have leased from J. R. Palmer the Burritt Opera House at Weedsport, N. Y.

PLAYHOUSE NOTES.

The new Victoria Theatre, Clarkshurg, W.
Va., erected at a cost of $40,000, opened September 11, playing high-class vaudeville and moving pictures. The Victoria is up-to-date in every respect and has a seating capacity of 800. John W. Duffy is the owner and manager.
The Odeon, Fred Pickett, manager, vaudeville and pictures; Bijou, W. Simeral, manager, pictures; and the Star, Jack Marks, manager, pictures, are the other theatres in Clarkshurg, and all report good business.

After being closed several months for repairs and decorations, the Wonderland Theatre, Mankato, Minn., opened the season September 11 with vaudeville and pictures. This pretty little house, under the management of I. L.
Stone, now presents a beautiful appearance.
The Wonderland and Unique Theatres here are controlled by the American Amusement Co. at Minneapolis, which also has several other theatres throughout Minnesota.

The Dethick Opera House, at Belvidere, Ill., opened early in September under new management. McDowell Bros. having succeeded Loop and Dyrart, who run the house last year. The new managers are experienced theatrical men, and have gone to considerable expense in remodeling and redecorating the theatre.

Tim Murphy, for the third consecutive season will be the opening attraction at the Auditorium, Hattiesburg, Miss. October 2. Manager Bixler announces a fine line of attractions for the coming season. Hattiesburg is in the midst of a prosperous community, and is a good theatre town.

The New Bedford Theatre, New Bedford, Mass., is doing well with high-class road attractions part of the week, and moving pictures and vaudeville the balance. Hathaway's Theatre, in the same city, is housing the Lester Longan Stock Company, which has become very popular.

G. C. Gny, in The Cry Baby, has surrounded himself with a strong cast and will play the Northwest up into Canada. The show is all new from start to finish this season, carrying special scenery, not using a piece of house stuff. A fine line of special paper is also carried.

The Majestic, Dubuque, Iowa's, finest theatre, opened its second season September 17 with vaudeville. The Majestic is a new theatre, absolutely fireproof and up-to-the-minute in every detail. Jake Rosenthal is manager, and the house staff remains the same as last year.

The Grand Opera House at Amarillo, Texas, has not been very successful for the past two seasons, but J. D. Moore, the new manager, promises to reverse the order of things, and will present the best attractions that come to the Southwest in the attempt to do so.

The Temple Theatre, Lockport, N. Y., opened Labor Day after undergoing extensive repairs.
Henry Thurston is manager and photographs and split week vaudeville are presented. Hodge Opera House also opened Labor Day, playing Ste-ven's Uncle Tom's Cabin.

Extensive improvements are being made on the old Dixie Theatre at Cleburne, Tex., and the name will be changed to Majestic Theatre.

The house will be on the Sullivan & Considine
Circuit and will also show motion pictures. J.
F. Green is manager.

Chidester Theatre, Bowling Green, Ohio, opened September 20 with Howe's Pictures as the attraction. Manager Thomas F. Couly has booked some of the best attractions on the road and looks for the best season in the history of the house.

The Mankato Theatre, Mankato, Minn., thoroughly overhauled and redecorated, will open October 2 with Chauncey Olcott as the attraction. C. H. and J. O. Greibet are lessees and managers of the house, with Charles Richards as stage manager.

McGowan & Gilbert have taken the management of the Opera House at Newton, Kan.
They propose to regain the esteem Newlin enjoyed as a show town some ten years ago, but which was lost on account of poor management.

The Yazoo Theatre, Yazoo, Miss., has been thoroughly renovated and is now one of the finest theatres in the South. The house opened September 23 with The Gamblers. D. Weher-stein is manager of the theatre.

Bushy Brothers, lessees and managers of the Masonic Opera House, Oskaloosa, Iowa, opened the 1911-12 season with The Aviator, playing to good business. Roy Wertman has been appointed resident manager of the theatre.

W. H. Stevens will manage the new Keith Theatre in Lowell, Mass., which is about completed. Mr. Stevens formerly managed Keith houses in Haverhill and Lawrence, Mass.; Portland, Me., and Montreal.

Memorial Opera House, Mansfield, O., opened the season with The Traveling Salesman August 28.

DEATHS.

LOUCHARD—George E. Louchard, aged 41, died September 12 at St. Paul's Sanitarium, Dallas, Tex. He was born in France and had lived in Dallas for twenty-five years. He was a member of Dallas Union No. 127, Stage Employers and was past president of the Dallas and San Antonio locals. Louchard was well known in the working crews of travelling companies and was a hard worker for the union.

HUDSON—Dr. L. B. Hudson died suddenly at Elgin, Ill., September 16, of apoplexy. Dr.
Hudson was 70 years of age, and was the founder of the Illinois Comedy Co., with which he connected the medicine business thirty years ago. Four children survive him, one of whom is Dan L. Hudson, musical comedian. The remains were interred at Spring Lake Cemetery, Aurora, Ill.

MARRIAGES.

BARNETT-WORLEY—Virgil Barnett and Bessie Worley, both with the 101 Rauch Wild West Show, were recently married. Miss Worley is from Chicago.

FRANCE-BALLIS—H. H. France, scenic artist with Weaver's Associate Players, and Miss Emma Ballis, of Uniontown, Pa., were married at Greensburg, Pa., August 25.

SMALL-ELLIS—Miss Vena Ellis, snake enchantress of Macy's Fire-in-One Show (late of Jacksonville, Ill.), and J. C. Small, The Bilboard agent, and translator of Macy's Olympic Shows, were united in marriage at Nettieton, Ark., September 20, by a local justice of the peace. The entire company were witnesses to the ceremony and were the guests of

A PITIABLE CASE

In the issue of the Billboard, dated March 18, 1911, the story was told of John Birks, at one time connected with the profession of amusement, languishing in the Montana State Prison under a life sentence for a crime to which another confessed guilt on his deathbed. Birks has already served twelve years in prison for a crime committed by another.

Last spring, The Billboard assisted in raising a fund to enable Birks to hire attorneys to bring the matter to the attention of the Governor of the State and the Pardoning Board, which was done.
Matters of this kind, however, move slowly, and Birks is still in prison, deprived of his liberty for a crime committed by another. Birks was sentenced to prison by a Judge DuBose, who was afterwards sent to prison himself to serve a six months' sentence for contempt of the United States Court. It seems that Birks had incurred the enmity of DuBose shortly before his (Birks') arrest, and that DuBose was prejudiced against him. In passing sentence, Judge DuBose stated that he did not believe that Birks had fired the shot that killed the man, but that he believed that Birks knew who did, and that if Birks would tell him, he would fix the punishment at the minimum sentence of ten years. Birks did not know and could not tell him, whereupon the judge in a rage sentenced him to prison for life.

The Billboard is in possession of newspaper clippings which show Judge DuBose to have been a man of strong prejudices, one, who, when he had made up his mind in regard to a case, pulled for the side that he favored with a zeal and a persistence that left the other side altogether out of it. In the face of this evidence, it is reasonable to suppose that Birks is right when he says that DuBose was prejudiced.

A. J. Galen, State Attorney-General of Montana, has investigated Birks' case, and reported favorably on it. Ex-Governor B. F. White, of Montana, president of the First National Bank at Dillon, has also interested himself and promised to bring the matter before Governor Norris.

Birks is not in need of money at the present time, but asks the members of the dramatic and amusement professions, through The Billboard, to write to Governor Edwin L. Norris and to the Board of Prison Commissioners, at Helena, Mont., and urge an immediate consideration of his case.

Readers' Column

The Billboard is desirous of obtaining the Theatre, at Chicago, Cal., and H. H. Howell, who succeeded Mr. Peters in the firm, Mr. Peters will embark in the theatrical business elsewhere.

ADVERTISING TALKS

The fact that most advertisers well know the really remarkable results obtained from advertising in The Billboard, renders it unnecessary for us to reproduce a number of letters every week from pleased advertisers expressing appreciation; but here is one just received to which we can not refrain from calling attention. Here is an advertiser who actually wants us to insert a notice to keep him from getting so many answers to his ad.

Here is what he says:

"Wapakoneta, O., Sept. 14.

"In your issue of the 2d Inst., I advertised two hundred opera chairs for sale. Sold them the next day after your paper came out, and since have had so many inquiries and have received so many letters regarding those chairs that I feel you should help me out by notifying your readers that the chairs are sold. For awhile I tried to answer all inquiries, but gave that up as a hard job. It would have required the services of a first-class stenographer. It is impossible for me to express my full satisfaction at the excellent results of your advertising columns.

"Yours very truly,

"CURRY S. PYLE."

As opera chairs are used in theatres, it is reasonable to suppose these letters were received from theatre managers. Evidently the "circus paper" has a wide circulation among the theatres.

This theatre circulation is also indicated by the great number of letters received from managers of small theatres, inquiring where they can secure attractions. They have the playhouses, but they find it difficult to book a sufficient number of good attractions to make their investment in theatre property profitable. Many of these house managers have accepted the suggestion to advertise for shows through the columns of The Bilboard. They have found this to be a perfectly satisfactory method of securing attractions and they are not compelled to pay a booking agent's commission.

If independent shows playing small time, would advertise their open dates, and managers of independent theatres would all keep cards in the paper, giving the size of their theatres and drawing population, it would enable both traveling managers and house managers to get together. Now that the season is just opening, if house managers will send in advertisements of their open dates, they will have little difficulty securing attractions to fill them.

Letters and telegrams are constantly being received from traveling companies in need of players.
Not being engaged in conducting a booking office, we are not in a position to supply them, but repertoire companies playing in the West have found that an ad in The Billboard reaches all players seeking engagements more expeditiously than a message to Broadway.

In this department THE BILLBOARD will print each week the choruses of late songs especially recommended by their publishers for use on the stage. Artists who find these numbers suitable for their act can obtain complete professional copies by addressing the publishers. This department constitutes a valuable aid for professionals, as only songs that have intrinsic merit and are especially adapted for use on the stage will be produced. Performers will, by consulting this department, be spared the time and trouble of trying numerous songs that have no particular value, or give no evidence of attaining longevity.

Resume of the Week's Important Amuse

PHILADELPHIA, PA.

The season thus far has seemed remarkably slow in getting under way, a condition that has been noted not only in Philadelphia but throughout the theatrical centers. Indications point to the fact, however, that a change is soon due. The week of September 18 brought a number of new attractions, some of them of first importance and by the early part of October there is every promise that a goodly number of productions will be under way. The weather for one thing has made theatergoing a pleasure only for the most ardent first-nighter—a fact amply attested by poor houses.

Of the plays of the week the Daniel Frohman comedy, Thy Neighbor's Wife, won the most favor. While the comedy received diverse criticism in other cities the critics were unanimous in declaring it to be an effort in the direction of characteristically American playwriting and a thoroughly laudable effort. The play at any rate proved pleasing in a large audience on opening night.

The revival of Pinafore with DeWolf Hopper and Fay Templeton apparently received its strongest welcome because of the mere presence of these two favorites but poor business was the rule.

One of the largest events was the opening of the American with the Blaney-Spooner Stock Company in The Squaw Man. This stock company will undoubtedly prove to be one of the most successful ever in this city. The cast is an excellent one and the house one of the most beautiful and best located in town. Impressive ceremonies marked the christening of the stage with wine before the rise of the curtain and S. R. O. has been the sign for the balance of the week.

The Girl in the Taxi, at the Chestnut Street Theatre with Bobby Barry, aroused only the most feeble of enthusiasm and the entire cast was far inferior to the company which appeared here last season for a run. Of the musical shows which have so far appeared, The Winning Widow, at the Grand Opera House, scored the highest. Manager W. D. Wegefath has apparently been endowed with wonderful good fortune in his attractions at this Stair & Haylin house. The musical comedy was bright and sparkling and aroused the first real feeling of the season.

Margaret Anglin, in the comedy, Green Stockings, made her initial appearance in comedy at the Adelphi and is reviewed separately.

The Chestnut Street Opera House, with the Orpheum Players, is a house which received a capacity audience every night regardless of weather or any other conditions. The Heir to the Throne was Manager Laferty's offering for the week of September 18, with The Girl with the Green Eyes to follow.

Manager William Miller of the William Penn. continues to hold vanderbilt records here with turnaway business at each performance. The Bijou, a similar house, has inaugurated the season with two shows a day instead of three with tripled results.

The smaller houses are all doing well and the field is apparently open for plenty more.

ALBANY, N. Y.

Mr. E. M. Hart, late of the Shubert Theatre, Rochester, N. Y., has started his first season as manager of Harman's Bleecker Hall, Albany, N. Y., in which post he succeeded J. Gilbert Gordon, with a fine list of attractions. All the Shubert, Brady, Liebler and Savage shows will be seen during the season, which will continue until March, 1912, when the Lytle-Vanham Stock Co. will return. The Hall is in a prosperous condition and Mr. Hart comes to Albany with many years' experience to back him. Harold Baldwin is treasurer and Charles Stowe, assistant treasurer at the Hall.

Manager E. M. Hart of Harman's Bleecker Hall, has secured the opening of Lew Fields' new show, The Never Homes, for his theatre, Sept. 25-27. Mr. Fields has been trying out his musical successes in Albany for two years, and this city expects to speed the new show on to a long Broadway run, as it did Tillie's Nightmare.

The Jolly Rascals and the Hen-Pecks. "A Kismet color in six scenes, by Glen McDonough, Baldwin Sloan and E. Ray Goetz," is the description given The Never Homes. The company comes to Albany a few days before the opening, to put the final touches on it, and with a cast including Geo. Munroe, Jess Dandy, Al Leach, Will Archie, Joseph Santley, Lillian Herlein, Jessie Clifford Vera Finlay, The Courtney Sisters, Helen Hayes and "Arcadia," will present Lew Fields' latest show, which treats of the humorous side of the future triumph of women suffrage. After the Albany engagement, the company goes to the Broadway Theatre to succeed the Hen-Pecks.

BALTIMORE, MD.

Aviation has advanced considerably from the experimental stage and the aeronauts have demonstrated its possibilities as a factor in aerial navigation. Up to the present time, the aeroplane has been used as a thrill for the amusement of the public and as a means to attain speed records. Its use as a vehicle for social visiting is a novelty. Lieut. John Rodgers of the United States Navy, has become an aviator and has attempted many flights with his new Wright biplane. Lieut. Rodgers left Chicago Park, the Government aviation ground, about 1 p. m. September 10, and arrived in this city about 2:30. He landed at Pimlico and replenished his stock of gasoline and then visited some friends at Roland Park. He then made several flights which amused the people in the suburbs and then flew to Havre de Grace, where he landed on his father's farm and spent a week end visit. He left Pimlico at 3:55 and arrived at his father's farm at 5:35. After completing his stay at Havre de Grace he flew all the way to Annapolis.

The Industrial and Pure Food Exposition was opened with brilliant festivities by Mayor James H. Preston. The exhibition is the largest affair of its kind that has been attempted here and its brilliancy reflects great credit upon the promoters who have labored zealously for the success of this mammoth enterprise. The company erected the booths so that the exhibition would have a uniform appearance. The color scheme is white enamel woodwork with green canvas back-ground. The scene presents a striking appearance.

The show drew a good crowd opening night and it will increase as the days pass. The exhibits from the city departments attracted much attention and there is much to interest the taxpayers. The newspapers have taken keen interest in this event, which is something unusual. The American, the Sun and the News have attractive exhibits.

Many merchants and firms have attractive displays of food products and merchandise. A candy concession from Coney Island is doing a great business. The block in front of the Armory is brilliantly lighted with columns of incandescent lights. The proceeds of Wednesday night will go towards the $20,000 fund that the citizens are raising to send the Fifth Regiment to Atlanta, October 7.

Miss Vera St. Low was injured while performing on a trapeze at the fair at Prospect Park last week. She was picked up by an attendant and as her injuries were slight she was able to proceed with her performance the next day. The fair proved a great success.

S. P. Nixon of Nixon & Zimmerman, was in the city last week to inspect the improvements in the Academy of Music and was delighted patrons vanderbilt and moving picture which were very entertaining. The receipts for this attraction were always above the others and the management was highly gratified with Weaver's efforts. Captain John L. Young and Joseph Dawson, from Young's million dollar pier, were visitors at the park last Sunday as the guests of Joseph De Vito. They were much pleased with the park and expressed their delight over its attractive appearance.

The Columbia Players are receiving excellent patronage at Alhambra Theatre, whither they came after twenty-two weeks in Washington. On the opening night, 200 of their admirers from the National Capitol came over in a special on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. It is said that the same bunch will come over again on September 25. The personnel of the company is composed of people who have talent and can give a clean-cut performance with good results and this point appeals greatly to the patrons.

BOSTON, MASS.

All the Boston playhouses are now running in full swing. The New National which opened on Monday, September 18, had the largest crowd with the result. He was accomplished by his daughter, Mrs. Nixon Nirdlinger, and his two grandsons. He was en route to Staunton, Va., where his grandson, Samuel, will enter the Military Academy. While in Baltimore, Mr. Nixon was in consultation with his general manager, Thomas M. Love of Whellings, W. Va., who has consummated an important real estate deal for Mr. Nixon.

C. E. Whitehurst, owner of the Red Moon Moving Picture Theatre, has asked Building Inspector Preston to grant him permission to remove the ticket-box from its present position and place it upon the building line.

Manager Tunis F. Dean of the Academy of Music, has placed a contract for fifty uniforms which the young lady singers will wear this season. They will have a military appearance with blue dresses trimmed with gold braid and brass buttons.

Marshal Farnan states that he will positively not allow any of the Beulah Blinford films to be exhibited in any moving picture establishment. He has issued a warning to all of them.

River View Park closed for the season on September 17 and there was a great crowd present. The Royal Artillery Band entertained the patrons in their most artistic manner and it will be the leading feature at the park next season. Manager William J. Gahan is delighted with the success achieved at the park this summer. Through his managerial ability the park had the most successful summer season experienced in the sixteen years of its history. Mr. Gahan was always on the job and gave every detail his personal attention.

Frank Weaver deserves the palm for his excellent manner in packing the Park Theatre with large crowds every night. He gave the of first nighters ever known in Boston. It is estimated that fully 8,000 people greeted the opening of this modern, popular-priced amusement center. The large force of police on hand was insufficient to keep the surging mob from breaking in the front doors.

The Majestic opened with the Ahorn Opera Company, in The Bohemian Girl, which played to the usual large crowds which attend this popular opera.

Overnight, the popular comedy by Philip Bartholomae, completes its seventh and last week at the Shubert on Saturday night, September 23. The hotel clerks of Boston, on the invitation of Arthur Aylesworth who plays the part of the fresh hotel clerk, witnessed the play on Monday night.

Traveling is a Pullman car is still proving popular at the Tremont, where capacity houses are seeing the performance of Excuse Me, which has started its fifth week in Boston.

It is the universal opinion here that Raymond Hitchcock has never been better suited in a play than in The Red Widow, in which he is appearing at the Colonial.

Everyone is anxiously awaiting the arrival of the celebrated Irish players at the New Plymouth. Mr. Fred E. Wright, well known in Boston theatrical circles, will be the local manager of this house.

Zelda Sears is without a doubt unsurpassed or indeed unequalled in the presentation of the splinter type. She was very well liked in The Next Egg, at the Park, where she closes a three weeks' engagement on Saturday, September 23.

RUSSEL T. BAILEY.

ST. LOUIS, MO.

This present week has nothing in a way that is exactly new, as most of the attractions have been seen here before. The attraction that is creating the most interest is The Sign of the Rose, which Geo. Behau has made into a play this season. It is not as intense as was his vanderbilt sketch but it is pleasing good business and has received praises of the press of the city. The other attractions are plays that have been seen here before and the business is accordingly fair. Next week promises better business as we will have more that is really new, and the Century and Shubert theatres will get back to playing motion pictures. The Columbia continues to remain our only theatre for exclusive vaudeville and is doing a big business as a result. The weather has been cool and most of our audiences will quit doing business before the end of the present month. The announcement is made that the Imperial Theatre will open on October 1, with a stock company under the direction of Walter S. Baldwin, of the Baldwin-Melville Stock Company. The first production is The Christian.

The members of the New Clifford Stock Company which will open the Imperial Theatre October 1, are Franklin Clifford, leading man; Louise Dunbar, leading woman; Charles Keenan, heavy; Jack Montague, juvenile; Hugh Gibson, character man; L. O. Hart, character parts; Estelle Morton, character woman; Lillian Branscomb, ingenue; George Albert, light comedian; Elmer Buffham, stage director and C. C. Van Slyke, general business manager.

The second and last week of Lemps Park Carnival is proving better than the first. While the receipts were good, they were not up to what the management expected the first week. The weather was mostly against a carnival and this week the people are coming better. The management will make some money.

The twelfth annual fair of the St. Louis County Fair Association will open on September 21, at Creve Coeur Lake Park, and will continue for four days. Long lists of entries have been made in the various departments and the fair promises to be the most successful ever held at this writing.

The Savoy Amusement Company operating the Savoy Theatre here dissolved during the past week and was bought by a new company, who will operate it again as a motion picture house. Mr. John Adams, the well known singer of St. Louis, will assume the management of the theatre in the future.

The Gotch-Hackenschmidt pictures on view this week at the Standard Theatre here, are drawing immense business. The pictures are the best ever shown of a wrestling match, and Manager Leo, Kelechenbach of the Standard, is more than pleased his patrons with the films. The Imperial Burlesque are the regular attraction, and these pictures are run as a special feature.

It is promised that the most brilliant stock company ever present in St. Louis will be seen on October 1, when the new German Theatre season opens at the Odeon Theatre. The opening production, Die Millionen Brant, is to be elaborately put on. The company includes: Irma Giedrich, leading woman; Gustav Hausalg, leading man; Jenny Lembach, soprano.

The Bijou Theatre here was sold at auction last week for the settlement of two judgments. The place only brought something over $6,000, and the two judgments eat up all of this amount. The house will be operated this winter under new management. It is said.

Miss Maule Saunders, who fell from her horse at the Sells-Floto Shows here last week, is getting along nicely at the hospital here, and will leave for Denver, her home. She states that she expects to be able to rejoin the show, and do some riding before the close of the present season.

A bill is being introduced in the city council here for the purpose of taxing automobile shows to the extent of $200 a day. The St. Louis Automobile Show is to be held at Forest Park, Highlands, the first week in October. Whether the bill will apply to this exhibition, despite the fact it is to be given in a licensed show house, is to be determined. These shows were not taxed heretofore.

Tom Boelst, the aviator, has been asking some highly successful flights under the booking of the Eastern Theatrical Exchange of this city. He has just closed a contract to fly at the Vaudalla (Mo.) Fair, on September 25. His contracts are all made guarantee or no money.

Word comes to me from Jim Gabriel that Mr. Jack Henning has left his employ, and that he is contracting with another aviator from the Wright School. He is at present flying at the Hamilton (Mo.) Horse Show. He has his bookings way into November.

J. J. Shubert appointed Mr. Mathew Smith manager of the Garrick Theatre here to succeed Louis Judah, who resigned last week. Mr. Smith is a veteran theatrical manager. He was in charge of the Western road company of The Midnight Song last season.

The Two Bills Shows will play this city week of October 1. It will be our Annual Fall Festival week, and they should do well.

The Shubert Theatre has not as yet settled their difficulty with the musicians' union, and will continue without an orchestra for the present. The Garrick Theatre here has this season without the use of an orchestra, and as the musicians declined to have a contract for furnishing one for this theatre, they refused to play at the Shubert until the difficulty was settled, which so far has not been done. The theatre will have Dockstader's Maistris next week, and will need no orchestra.

Mr. Harry Buckley, former manager of the Garrick Theatre, and a protégé of Dan S. Fishell, is to re-enter the managerial field at the Columbia. A representative of Louis A. Colla, chief stockholder of the Columbia, said that negotiations now pending would probably result in Mr. Buckley becoming house manager of the Columbia. Mr. Buckley, according to present arrangements, will take up his duties on September 25. It must be said that the rise of Mr. Buckley in the theatrical field of St. Louis has been rapid. A few years ago he began as an employee under Dan S. Fishell at the Garrick Theatre, and realizing the worth of his ability, Dan soon saw that there was a future in this field for Buckley, and he gave him a most careful schooling, until today he is one of the bright lights of the city in the amusement Events in Big American Cities

ment field. Mr. Buckley has made a host of friends in the profession, who will be pleased to learn of his advancement and recognition of his worth.

There are lively doings in St. Louis in the advertising line. Frank L. Talbot, the manager and owner of the New Hippodrome, has decided that he will get more satisfactory service if he runs his own billposting plant and is now the only theatre manager in St. Louis who owns all his own boards and locations. The Hippodrome billposting crew which is comprised of S. S. Murphy, formerly advertising agent of the American Theatre; George Bruening, formerly of the St. Louis Billposting Co.; Charlie Slattery, formerly of the 101 Ranch, and Johnny Dix, who was connected with the same show. Jack Black has charge of the teams and wagons.

The crew have already over 700 permanent locations and expect to more than treble this by the time that the New Hippodrome opens in October.

This new billposting plant has come into existence with the most peaceable intentions in the world. Manager Talbot's orders are that there is plenty of room for everybody and that no other theatre's showing is to be interfered with. Every location he has is properly contracted for and no daubs or snipes are put up without an imprint board. This is the ideal way to go about things as no one can kick, and the theatres are not paying for a lot of paper which is to be wasted in a covering war.

WILL J. FARLEY.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

The Lombardi Grand Italian Opera Company, which is making a record both artistically and financially at Idora Park Theatre, after its six weeks' contract will play a two weeks' engagement at the Majestic Theatre, Los Angeles, and then come on to San Francisco and play Cort's New Theatre for one week, when impresario Lombardi will introduce several artists entirely new here, together with new operas, after which the company will play Cort's Northwestern houses, working to Chicago, where the entire company is booked for a season.

Pierre Grazi, impresario of the French Opera Company, left September 9, direct for Paris to attend the embarkment of his company, which will leave Cherbourg, France, on October 14, and is due to arrive here November 6, in time for the grand opening of a season of twelve weeks at the Valencia Theatre, November 13. A corps of artists is now at work here painting entirely new scenery for all the productions.

Sousa's Band of sixty people will give eight concerts here, beginning October 1, giving four afternoon and four evening concerts at Dreamland and Rink. The management is under Will L. Greenbaum. Over 2,000 seats will be offered at the popular price of 50 cents.

Emma Eames and Emilio de Gorgona will appear in joint recitals during the week of October 22. Two concerts will be given in San Francisco and one in Oakland.

During the parade of Ringlings' Circus in Stockton, September 13, Leo Dorman, a cornet player, was crushed to death before the eyes of hundreds of people. Dorman overslept, and, mistaking the parade was in motion he hurriedly dressed an cut across lots to the band wagon, and after handling his cornet to a friend he started to climb up the side of the wagon, but slipped and fell. The rear wheel of the heavy wagon passed over his body, mauling it in a frightful manner. The parade stopped and the body was taken to the morgue. Dorman was a native of Hot Springs, Ark. His father being chief of police of that city. The body was shipped East.

Fred Busey, formerly manager of the Savoy Theatre, has been engaged as advance agent at Bonita, who goes on the road with a musical comedy company under the management of Mortimer Theis.

Billboard callers this week included Princess Susana, the midge tight-wire walker; Frank Hartley, the boy juggler, who is playing over the S. & C. Circuit, and will return to England shortly, and the Bell-Boy Trio, which is also playing the S. & C. Circuit. It has been three years since their last visit here.

Percy Denton, a vaudeville singer, who left here April 18, singing his way across the continent, reached New York and was immediately arrested on a warrant secured by his wife and sent to Ludlow Street jail in lieu of $4,000 bail.

It has been reported that the receipts for the opening week of Cort's New Theatre ran close to the $20,000 mark with an exceedingly big second week. Baby Mine was the bill and scored a laughing hit.

A letter received in this office from Miss Grace Wilson, postmarked Manila, mentions that the show business there is very good, and that after filling a six weeks' engagement she departed for Bangkok, Siam, to play four weeks at the Royal Theatre, with four weeks to follow at Saigon and Singapore.

Art Hickman, formerly stage manager of the Jutes Theatre, is now manager of the Esplanade Western Company, stationed at San Rafael.

Arrangements are in progress to play Orpheum at three days a week at the Delpeubrook Theatre, Sacramento.

James Post's Musical Comedy Company is scheduled to open September 24 at the Marquith Theatre, Eureka, Cal. They are booked in double.

Wabou Creek will hold a Grape Carnival between 4 and 7.

The Spring Field, at the Columbia, opened to packed house, with a big advance sale throughout the engagement. Several old time favorites are in the cast and were given a real home welcome. They included: Tillie Sallinger, George and Moore and Jack Rafael. Judging from the demand and pronounced hit made here, this show could easily prolong their engagement at future dates prevent. The Country Boy shows, opening date September 25.

Since the opening of Cort's New Theatre, the Street is a very lively one, for Cort has the front of his theatre beautifully illuminated, which naturally draws the promenaders up hills. A big advance sale for the second offering has already been made. Miss Nobody from Starland, featuring Miss Olive Vall, opens week of September 18. Miss Vall is a San Francisco girl, making her initial appearance here at Fisher's Theatre. She has a host of friends in this city, and from all reports is now a real star.

Kunz and Kunz writes from Honolulu to this office under date September 8. After a most pleasant sea voyage, they opened at the Bijou Theatre, and caught on at once. Their high-class singing and violin numbers were appreciated and their wardrobe was pronounced the most elaborate yet seen on the Islands. They write everybody connected with the theatre are most courteous, dressing rooms large and airy, and that they are already offered time to play Hilo and the other island cities, and are exceedingly pleased with their engagement.

Allen Doone and Miss Edna Kealey are also playing the Bijou Theatre, Honolulu, where they are well known and big favorites. They are on their way to Australia. This is Mr. Doone's third season in Honolulu, where he is always welcomed.

This office received a letter dated August 12, from Hessler, the juggling comedian, postmarked Sydney, Australia, in which he writes: "He is meeting with unbounded success, playing over Brennan's Vaudeville Circuit, and that his original contract of sixteen weeks has been extended to twenty-four weeks. After finishing

KANSAS CITY, MO.

The closing week of September brings a welcome change of weather from the summer heat of the first part of the month, and now the theatres are coming into their own. These cool evenings are just what the theatregoing public needed to make them swarm to the theatres.

Kansas City is to hold open house for seven weeks this fall, the first event being the National Conservation Congress, which meets here the week of September 25; and, by the way, President Taft will be here on that date. This pleasure season, or carnival season as it might be called, will last until late November, and for each week there are a great number of interesting events scheduled for the city. Now the city is thronged and business is going at a very fast clip. Every one is anxious for business, and this attitude means for the success of the theatres.

The Willis Wood Theatre offered the week of September 24, George Behan in The Sign of the Rose.

The week of the 24th was the third and closing week of the motion picture of Dante's Inferno at the Shubert Theatre. On Monday, September 18, the pupils from the Kansas State School for the Blind were the guests of Resident

This season there are generally two headliners and sometimes more on the bills, and the bills are bigger and better in every way, showing that the Orpheum is doing a very fine business.

Inadvertently it was mentioned in these columns that Mr. Leroy Simonds was business manager at the Gillis Theatre this season. Mr. Simonds was there in that capacity last year, but has not been connected with the Gillis for some time. J. K. Sherlock, the treasurer, and E. S. Brigham, manager, are looking after the business end of the Gillis this season. The Gillis each week offers very good shows and is certainly getting the money.

The new Woodward Stock Company, which opened for the season at the Auditorium Theatre, Saturday, September 16, is going very good here. The members of the company for the most part are all strangers to Kansas City, but all seem very capable and bid fair to be as popular with the Auditorium patrons as the former Woodward Stock Companies have been. Woodward is manager of this theatre and company and all the plays are put on under his personal direction.

Wednesday, September 13, was the annual inspection of the Gayety Theatre, the Kansas City house of the Columbia Company, one of the largest of America's amusement combines and the Eastern Wheel of Amusement. The censor committee, whose duty it is to inspect all of the theatres on the circuit, and incidentally to review all of the attractions, included the following well-known amusement managers: Sam A. Scribner, general secretary of the company; Herbert Mack, manager of the Columbia Theatre, New York; Chas. H. Waldron, owner and manager of the Gayety, Boston, and Jack Singer, well-known producer and owner of the Behman Show, and a number of other attractions. The censors viewed Rose Sydell's London Burlesques, the show at the Gayety that week, and the theatre itself, and left here that night for St. Louis. Mr. Singer remained in Kansas City, however, for the opening of his new show, Painting the Town, the week of September 17.

A warrant was issued September 18, for the arrest of H. E. Tammen, at the instance of the city license inspector, Mr. Tammen, one of the owners and proprietors of the Sells-Floto Circus, which was in town for the two days of the 17th and 18th, was charged with misrepresentation in the number of cars required to transport his circus when the license to give the show was applied for by the advance agent. Mr. Tammen was not taken into custody, his personal promise to appear in the municipal court being accepted by the license inspector. Circus licenses are graded on the number of cars used. The license inspector asserted that when the Sells-Floto agent applied for the license he represented that there were but fifteen cars used in carrying the circus, and when the license inspector visited the show, he found twenty-three.

The ordinance that was recently introduced in the city council to reduce the license of theatres was referred to a committee, and up to the present that committee has made no report.

The Third Annual Missouri Valley Fair and Exposition opened Saturday, September 23, for two weeks at Electric Park. The fair was most elaborately and handsomely decorated in grains and grasses typifying the agricultural and horticultural feature of the fair, and the thousands of electric lights, from which Electric Park gets its name, were varicolored, casting a subdued and delightful light over the entire park and shows. All of the merchants and manufacturers' pavilion was taken by representative Kansas City firms, and these exhibits formed one of the features of the fair, for here it was where the fun and jollity prevailed, for souvenirs, quaint, useful and comical were distributed among the crowds, and every one liked this. There were culinary and textile exhibits, agriculture and flowers, great big red apples, for which Missouri is famed, and which seemed the largest ever exhibited, and then the poultry show, the kennel show, food show, etc. Every thing is handsomely arranged and is on a more lavish scale than the two preceding fairs. Sam Benjamin is secretary of the fair, and M. G. Helm, owner and proprietor of Electric Park, is the treasurer of the Association. Mr. Helm generously donated the use of his big amusement park for the fair. The fair extends this year for two weeks, the closing being October 8. There are special features every day and interesting programs and music by the Banda Rossa and Sorrentino, and this is a drawing card in itself, but in the evenings the park is just packed with friends and admirers, exhibitors and those interested, and then, just the curious. Business is expected to far outstrip last season's fair, which was a record-breaker, and the 1911 Missouri Valley Fair and Exposition will be written up as one big success. WILLIAM W. SHELLEY.

COLUMBUS, O.

The present season has been open two weeks. None of the house managers will have reason to complain if the past two weeks' business is a criterion on which to base the future. True, the two first-class houses are not open as yet, the Colonial playing Shubert attractions having but one show in so far. Alias Jimmy Valentine for state fair week and the New Hartman not being ready. The latter-named theatre is expected to open about October 15.

Al. Wiswell, the well-known theatrical manager, has been sent to Toledo by the Shuberts to handle their house there. Wiswell has had years of experience in the show business and will no doubt meet with his usual success in handling that plant.

The Southern Theatre, the house that for fifteen years handled the best attractions traveling, will open its doors to the many friends of stock here on next Monday night, under the able leadership of Harry O. Stubbs. There is no question in the minds of those in the "know" as to what the venture will be a pronounced success, as Columbus is noted for the exceedingly liberal treatment they give a first-class stock organization. The lends will be in the hands of Sue Van Duzer and Augustus Phillips.

WILLIAM H. CAMPBELL.

THE ORPHEUM THEATRE, MADISON, WISC.

The Orpheum will be opened about October 30, and will be under the management of O. R. Houkel, formerly business manager of the LaSalle Opera House, Chicago. The house represents an expenditure of $90,000.

his Australia engagements he is booked for a tour of New Zealand, with Africa and England to follow.

Francis Valentine big show printing plant was destroyed by fire September 15. The origin of the fire is unknown. The loss is estimated at $50,000. Messrs. Herbert and Roche, the proprietors of the above business are certainly playing in hard luck, as they have been through several previous fires, coming out with big losses.

RUBE COHEN.

LOUISVILLE, KY.

Fred Niblo, who played Maennley's Theatre, made a speech to the White Rats. Actors from all the houses were present at the meeting which was held at Hopkins' Theatre. Fred explained the object of the White Rats.

Miss Frances Adrich, who was playing with the Cross-Mullen Musical Comedy Company at Paducah, Ky., quit the show and returned home to Washington. She alleges the company assessed her several times, claiming violation of rules, against which she protested. She brought suit in a magistrate's court and secured judgment for $30. After she was awarded the verdict she said that she would buy a ticket back to her home and no more footlights for her.

The Novelty Theatre is now having the finishing touches put on. It will be the most up-to-date picture show in the South. Manager Morton Shaw of the Avenue, reports good business since his house has opened. This house is now running melodrama, having been closed for a few seasons. ARTHUR V. SIECKLER.

Manager Earl Steward and Manager Ira A. Miller of the flat production of the Inferno, to "view" the pictures. This proved very interesting, both to them and the management. The lecturer explaining the pictures added materially, but these blind pupils have an imagination of their own, and through this were enabled to "see" all of the pictures and get much pleasure therefrom. A great vote of thanks was given Mr. Steward and Mr. Miller for this treat for these poor unfortunates.

Mother was the opening for the Shubert Theatre the week of September 3, and during the month these motion pictures of Dante's Inferno have been on exhibition at the Shubert, so that the regular season may be said to commence the first of October, when from then until the close of the season there will be week after week of the attractions. The Piper, a new play, will be at the Shubert for the week of October 2, the pictures closing Sunday night, October 1.

Jason E. Ratekin, treasurer of the Grand Opera House, said in speaking of the exceptionally fine season the Grand has opened to, that the theatre had a great many surprises in store for Kansas City, and there were some splendid shows coming. "In fact, for the next six weeks, every show that is booked here will do an absolute capacity. We are sure going to be busy."

This season the Orpheum is offering eight acts, the Klondike and Concert Orchestra. Instead of seven acts, pictures and orchestra of the previous years. Business Manager Lawrence Lehnman says the acts are not shortened in any way, that the usual valuable time is given each one. The theatre commences a little earlier now than the former 2:30 and 8:30.

Additional Big City Letters will be found on page 58.

FAIRS AND EXPOSITIONS

Bumper Crops in Louisiana Insure Heavy Attendance at State Fair—Other Southern Cities Preparing for Big Fairs and Expositions—Secretaries' Reports

LOUISIANA STATE FAIR.

With the farmers rejoicing over bumper crops, the business men enjoying constantly increasing trade, two hundred country newspapers and other agencies liberally advertising the approaching event, and one million population within a radius of 100 miles to draw crowds from, the sixth annual State Fair of Louisiana, which opens at Shreveport on October 31 to run six days, promises to be the best in point of attendance and number of exhibits in the history of the fair. Judging by the splendid conditions prevailing on all sides and in all lines, this year's fair will undoubtedly be splendidly patronized.

All of the million people referred to as living within a radius of 100 miles are not citizens of Louisiana, but that is because Shreveport is in the northwestern corner of Louisiana. Many of the million reside across the boundaries in the states of Texas and Arkansas, but they look upon Shreveport as their mother city. Heretofore these states have sent big representations, and the visitors have found the show up to expectations. This year they are coming back and are going to bring neighbors with them. With very few exceptions, everybody has done well in the financial line, and all of them have money to spend, more than during the past few years, because the crops, which help the city folks as well as those in the country, are better than they have been for years. In fact, the farming results could not be much improved upon.

Profiting by experiences during the other fairs, the management this year has had the Louisiana show more systematically put before the people than during the previous year. A majority of the million people living within the 100-mile radius are furnished with copies of newspapers containing write-ups of the attractions they are to find at the fair this fall, but those who do not read the papers are having the scenes placed before them by means of thousands of big hills and posters. These are being scattered throughout this section, on every barn and fence and on many of the store buildings. The best hillposter in this section is carrying on this campaign and the reports state that the literature distributed by his agents is flooding the country.

In the cities, especially Shreveport, Dallas, Tex., and New Orleans, La., much newspaper space is being given the fair. Special articles are telling of the Louisiana exhibition and the open-air and Gladway amusements that they are going to find, as well as the big array of agricultural products and other things of educational value.

In doing their share of the advertising, the railroad companies, through their ticket agents, are distributing folders, showing the people what they have in store at Shreveport at the fair. These agents are also distributing literature in regard to the accommodations arranged for all the visitors and the unusually low rates on the railroads.

The officials of the association, especially the secretary, Louis N. Brueggerhoff, have striven as never before to furnish the best of attractions, and the list shows that the visitors are not going to be disappointed.

The reports from the section embracing the big population are to the effect that the attendance from each vicinity is going to be the largest on record, which means that the concessionaires and show people are going to enjoy a mighty good business here this year.

BIG FAIR FOR SAN ANTONIO.

San Antonio, Tex., Sept. 21 (Special to The Billboard).—Arrangements are being made for the largest fair and exposition ever held here by the International Fair Association.

A new feature this year that is attracting

PRINCE NICHOLI AND G. W. WILLARD.

The photograph from which the above illustration was reproduced was made shortly before the death of "The Little Russian Prince," who died suddenly in a railroad depot at London, Can., September 16. His manager, Mr. G. W. Lester-Willard has received many letters of condolence from friends in the profession who mourn the death of the famous midjet.

state wide attention is a monster land show bringing together all the products of the entire state in a big exposition building. Exhibits will be seen from practically every county in the state. In addition to the Texas exhibits there will be the usually large showing of natural and manufactured articles from Mexico and a monster exhibit from the island of Cuba, which has just been arranged and sent out under government supervision. The exhibit will contain a number of the articles recovered from the wreck of the Battleship Maine, which have been secured by special permission of the United States government.

The railroads have made more concessions than ever before in the history of the association and with the cheap rates that have been authorized there is very indication that all attendance records will be broken during the fair, which opens November 3 and closes November 12.

The big show will be opened by Governor O. B. Colquitt and the first two nights will be given over to the annual horse show, one of the most attractive social functions of the Southwest and about the only place where the wealth and society of America, Mexico, Cuba and South America mingle under the dazzling lights of amphitheatre and hall-room.

On five days of the fair there will be running and harness racing, the feature event being the Texas Thoroughbred Association Futurity Race for a purse of $1,000, on Wednesday, November 8.

The last day of the meet has been set aside as Mexico Day and will see a tremendous in-pouring of senoritas, Mexican officials and business men.

There will be three days of automobile races, four days devoted to a kennel show and on each day there will be special athletic contests and games.

Wortham & Allen's Shows have been hooked for the Midway attractions and the association has closed several contracts for the highest classed free attractions.

Ewing's Zonave Boys' Band has been engaged for the ten days of the show and arrangements are now being made to secure in addition one of the leading military bands of St. Louis.

The night feature will be the Palm's Last Days of Pompeii, a contract having just been closed with the Palm Company.

The International Fair and Land Show at San Antonio this year bids fair to be not only the highest thing of the kind in the state but in the entire Southwest and concession men are already piling into town to get in on the ground floor.

The association this year will pay out $50,000 in cash prizes in addition to the numerous diplomas, medals and special prizes that will be awarded.

The San Antonio hotels are already getting ready for the big thrush of visitors and many of them expect to hang out the S. R. O. sign before the exposition is formally opened.

ALABAMA STATE EXPOSITION.

This exposition is situated in the central city of the agricultural South. A navigable river and seven trunk lines of railroad gives magnificent transportation facilities. The people of this territory are fast realizing that home seekers are coming South, not only on account of a milder climate, but from the fact that one to four crops a year can be grown on the same ground. All the grasses, grain, cereals and fruits, and that greatest of all products, King Cotton, is grown in great abundance. Government experts have pronounced the soil in this territory the best in the world for all agricultural purposes. It is the finest country under the sun for the raising of thoroughbred live stock; can furnish pasture nearly the year around. Alabama knows she possesses this great wealth and is inviting first-class immigrants and foreign capital to make this their home.

Realizing that people only believe part of what they read, but are anxious to be shown, the citizens of Montgomery organized this exposition, which they are making the show window of the South's resources. Last year's exposition was the greatest agricultural display ever made in the South and the outlook this year gives promise for a much larger and grander display than ever before. Agriculture is not a lone feature, but live stock, poultry and manufacturing products are given special attention. In fact, the display of machinery and farming implements this year will cover more ground and building space than at any other fair or exposition in the South with probably one exception.

The building which is used for exhibition purposes is 200 feet square, two stories, and a 25-foot balcony space around the entire building. The negro building is 90-foot square, two stories, and of splendid architecture and well built. This is the only exposition in the United States that has a building devoted exclusively to negroes.

The track is one mile and is considered one of the best in the country. We have racing each day, our lowest purse is $400. We will also have motor-cycle races and balloon races and fifteen splendid free attractions. The Bar-koot Carnival Company, two of the best bands in the country for furnishing the music and there will be a magnificent fireworks display each night. The people of the Northern, Western and Eastern States are given a special invitation to visit this exposition. People from all over the South will be here and will extend them a hearty welcome.

SPOKANE FAIR READY.

Spokane, Wash., Sept. 23 (Special to The Billboard).—All is in readiness for the 18th annual Spokane Interstate Fair, which will be held October 2-8. Aviators Eugene Ely and Cromwell Dixon will make aeroplane flights instead of Lincoln Beachey and Boh St. Henry, as first announced. The fireworks display will be one of the big features of the night show, which will be in charge of Bert Gregory.

FAIR SECRETARIES' REPORTS.

The preliminary outlook for the annual event of the New Castle County Agricultural Fair Association at Wilmington, Del., August 29, 30, 31 and September 1, was better than ever before. Good racing, with plenty of horses, the largest exhibit of farm machinery ever shown in Delaware, a 50 per cent increase in the general exhibits, a fine list of free attractions, including the Helikvols, Polar, and Captain Winston's Trained Seals, with California, Frank's Wild West as the big pay attraction, and a lengthy list of privileges, assured the management the greatest fair in the history of the state. But the weather, however, completely spoiled the event. The heavy rainstorms that swept over the Atlantic Coast almost put this and the other fairs in this vicinity out of business. The attendance on the first day was 500; second and third days, off; fourth day, 2,000; fifth day, the only one it did not rain, 6,000.

Agricultural County Fair at St. Hyacinth, Que., Can., was held September 5 and attended by 3,000 people. In addition to the agricultural and live stock exhibits there were some interesting horse races and three good acts by equilibrista. There was also one concession on the grounds, outside of the refreshment stands, and this did a good business.

Aeroplane flights by a Curtiss aviator was the big drawing card for the Clay County Fair Association's annual fair at Clay Center, Kan., September 5 to 8. There was also a good racing program and fine concerts by a military band, as well as the usual agricultural and live stock exhibits, which, owing to the good industrial conditions prevailing in the neighborhood, were very numerous and of a high class. The privileges all did well and were the best in this line ever seen at the fair. The attendance was as follows: first day, entrance day; second day, 3,000; third day, 7,000, in spite of the bad weather; fourth day, 5,000.

A total attendance of 125,000 was reported from the Western Fair, held at London, Ont., Can., September 5 to 16. Rain on the 14th and 15th kept the attendance down on these two days, or the 150,000 would probably have been reached. There were a complete line of exhibits and attractions, and a complete list of privileges, all doing a good business.

The dates of the 1911 event of the Smith County Fair Association at Smith Center, Kan., were September 5 to 8, but rain on the 8th forced the calling off of the last day. The weather during the balance of the fair was good and brought out an attendance of 1,000 on the first day, 3,200 on the second day, and 3,000 on the third day. Flights by a Curtiss aeroplane were offered as a free attraction. A full line of privileges was carried. The association is already at work to enlarge the scope of the fair, and to make it bigger and better than ever for next year.

Prosperous industrial conditions and the best entry list and show of live stock and exhibits in floral and farm halls in the history of the society, is the report from the Coos and Essex Agricultural Society Fair held at Lancaster, N. H., September 5, 6, 7 and 8. The first day's attendance was 1,000; on the second day it rained heavily; third day, good weather brought 6,000 people to the grounds; on the fourth day the weather was cold and cloudy, which kept the attendance down to 1,500. The big free act was the Aeroplane Ladies, Alfreda and Pearl. There were also horse races, baseball games and a novelty in the shape of a pulling match between horses and cattle, automobile parades, cattle parades and band concerts. The privileges included merry-go-round, dodgers, striking machines, industrial exposition, transformation show, hoop-La, cane rack, doll rack, button pictures, souvenirs, whina, etc.

"The best fair in every particular," is the report from the annual fair of the Van Wert County Agricultural Society, held at Van Wert, Ohio, September 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8, and this in spite of the fact that it rained all day on the second day of the fair and threatened on several others. The attendance was 3,000 on the first day, 3,050 on the second day, 15,000 on the third day, 30,000 on the fourth day and 25,000 on the fifth day. The free attractions were Strobel's Aeroplane, Kirk's Vocal Orchestra, baby show, with over 100 cutties, motorcycle races, five-mile automobile race against time, and ladies and gentlemen's novelty race. The amusement privileges consisted of eight non-conflicting shows and were well patronized. No fake games or games of chance were allowed.

Rain was all that prevented the 1911 event of the Olney Agricultural Association at Olney, N. Y., from eclipsing all previous records. Good industrial conditions prevailed and the exhibits were complete in every department. Other attractions were fine harness, motorcycle and running races, baseball games, athletic sports and band concerts, with some big free acts headed by James J. Ward, who made a number of splendid flights in a Curtiss biplane. Val Lewat's Trained Leopards, Clark-Baskittans and Wallace Vocal Orchestra. The privileges were complete and included Ferris wheel, merry-go-round, circular wave, Joy Mill, Shadow of the Cross, shooting gallery, animal show, cane and doll racks, fortune telling, novelty and refreshment stands. Attendance on the first day, weather good, was 5,981; second day, rain all day, 1,874; third day, raining, 3,420; fourth day, rain in the morning, 4,410.

The Salem Fair Association had the most successful fair in their history at Salem, Ind., September 5, 6, 7 and 8. The weather was fine, with the exception of the first day, and the attendance unparalleled. The first day was entry day; second day, 3,000 were on the grounds; third day, 15,000, and fourth day, 7,500. The fair was open at night, and Wednesday night drew 2,500 and Thursday night 5,000 people. The Rozards, comedy acrobats and wire performers; O. K. Bryant, balloonist; cakewalkers, baseball games, hand concerts and fireworks made up the free acts, while 62 privileges were on the grounds, the largest number ever here. The races were the best ever held there, being well contested by high-class horses; the track record was lowered to 2:14 1-4. Dreyer's Military Band of Jeffersonville furnished the music.

"Our fair was entirely satisfactory from every point of view," is what the secretary of the Marshall County Fair Association says in regard to their annual event held at Lewisburg, Tenn., August 30, 31 and September 1. Good industrial conditions were responsible for a complete line of exhibits, and the amusement attractions were very good. This fair had more concessioners than any fair on the circuit and all made money, one of them reporting a net profit of $270. The concessionaires were united in declaring this to be the best fair and town in Middle Tennessee. The association is making arrangements to improve grounds and buildings and to make next year "the biggest and best ever."

Good industrial conditions and fine weather contributed to the success of the New London County Agricultural Society Fair at Norwich, Conn., Sept. 4, 5 and 6. The attendance on the first day was 10,000; second day, 8,000; third day, 2,000. The exhibits were well filled and there was a fine cattle and poultry show. The free attractions were Chas. Rigley, high diver; Reed's Acrobats, and La Rex and La Rex, Spanish ring act. The privileges included merry-go-round, fortune teller, hoop-La, African Dodge, games, photographs, refreshment stands, etc. The midway was somewhat short of shows, but the management will see that there is no such defect next year. New stands will be built for the next fair, the purses will also be increased and everything possible done to keep the fair up-to-date.

The annual fair of the Wellsville Fair Association was held at Wellsville, N. Y., August 22, 23, 24 and 25. Rain spoiled what promised to be a most successful fair. Industrial conditions were very good and there was a fine line of agricultural and stock exhibits, the best amusement attractions that could be obtained, including aeroplane flights by Thomas Bros.' biplane, Balton Troupe, horse races, motorcycle races, with a big midway, fall of stands, games, throws, Ferris wheel, merry-go-round, etc. It rained every day of the fair, necessitating the declaring off of the fourth day. Attendance the first day was 1,200; second day, 2,700; third day, 5,500.

Fine weather and fine crowds made the Edgar County Agricultural and Mercantile Association Fair at Paris, Ill., August 28 to September 1, a success. The attendance on the first day was 10,000; second day, 10,000; third day, 7,000; fourth day, 16,000; fifth day, 8,000. The agricultural, live stock and mercantile exhibits were complete in every respect, as were the amusement attractions and privileges.

The second annual exhibition of the Vancouver Exhibition Association, held at Vancouver, B. C., August 28 to September 4, was a success in every way. Rain kept down the attendance on the first, fifth and sixth days, but in spite of this there were 106,500 admissions for the seven days. Parker No. 1 Carnival Company furnished the amusement attractions, with Bartini Spiral Tower, Gerald's, Stahl, high dive, Zan-Folas and Stelaer Trio as the free acts. Other amusement features included horse races, with purses aggregating $32,700; motorcycle races, automobile races, horse show, hand concerts and R. C. Championship athletic sports.

All records, with the exception of attendance, were broken in this year's event of the Cedar County Fair Association at Tipton, Iowa, September 5, 6, 7 and 8, and this would also have gone by the board had the weather been at all good. First day was entry day, no admission charged; second day, 6,000 people braved the threatening rain; third day, rain, no fair; fourth day, threatening rain all day, attendance, 2,000. The exhibits and amusement attractions were the largest and best in the history of the association. The amusements included the McKenney-Acher Racing Combination, a nine different acts; baseball games, horse show and excellent horse races. The merry-go-round stands and privileges of that kind did well, but the fair was short on shows.

Orange County Fair Association held its 1911 event September 5, 6, 7 and 8 at Linn, Mo. Rain all four days kept down the attendance and marred what promised to be a very successful fair, as industrial conditions were good and the exhibits complete and of a high class. The fair, as usual, was short on concessions. The attendance on the first day was 900; second day, 2,000; third day, 2,300; and fourth day, 1,200.

September 5, 6, 7 and 8 were this year's fair dates for the annual event of the Jackson County Fair Association (Kern's Big Fair) at Murphysboro, Ill. The prospects were the best the association had ever had, and had the weather been good all former records would have been broken. As industrial conditions were good and there were complete lines of agricultural and live stock exhibits, fine amusement attractions, etc. The free acts were balloon ascension, trapeze act and Guidette's Wonder. The privileges were the usual list of stands, shows, etc. With average weather this fair is a sure winner for all classes of privileges, and they make money even when it rains. The purses in the speed ring aggregated $2,800 and attracted splendid fields of horses. All races were pulled off with the exception of two harness events on the 7th, when the track was heavy. The attendance on the first day, with rain and cloudy weather, was 2,500; second day, cloudy, 7,500; third day, rain until 10 a. m., 18,000; fourth day, clear until 2 p. m. and then a storm, 11,000. This association boasts one of the best-equipped fair grounds in the state, comprising 44 acres, with new grandstand, fences, barns, etc., and the best-regulated half-mile track in Illinois. For 1912 extensive improvements will be made and the racing feature especially exploited.

The 1911 event of the Lee County Fair Association at Donnellson, Iowa, did not get beyond the first day preparatory stage. The dates were September 6, 7 and 8, and the fair opened on the 6th with good weather and favorable prospects, but it rained so hard on the second and third days that the management were forced to declare the fair off. It was impossible to hold races of any kind. Some fine amusement attractions had been provided, with Black Bros., contortionists and acrobats; George Ogden, circus balancing act, races, baseball games, etc., as free attractions. A complete list of privileges were also on the grounds.

Everything pointed to the McCook County Fair Association having a successful event at Salem, S. D., Sept. 6, 7 and 8, but on account of heavy rains the management were forced to call off the entire fair.

The Knox County Fair and Racing Association were fortunate in having exceptionally fine weather for their fair at Galesburg, Ill., August 29, 30, 31 and September 1. The attendance on the first day was 2,000; second day, 4,000; third day, 12,000, and fourth day, 6,000. The exhibits and amusement attractions were of a high-class, and although there was a fairly large list of privileges, there were not enough to accommodate the crowds. The last two fairs have been record-breakers, and the association will attempt to do still better next year. New buildings will be built and the grounds made more attractive.

FAIR NOTES.

Secretary Paul V. Moore of the Spartanburg Fair Association has accepted the week between the North Carolina and South Carolina Fairs (October 24, 25, 26) as the date for the Spartanburg County Fair. This year's event promises to be a most successful one. Shows of the highest moral character only will be allowed on the grounds.

The Madison County Fair, Norfolk, Neb., has just completed the most successful session in the history of that organization. Record-breaking attendance was the rule.

THE WORLD O'WHEELS

Letter from E. M. Moorar to Julian T. Fitzgerald Discloses a Number of Facts of General Interest to Skaters and Rink Managers—Harley Davidson has Yearning for Stage

E. M. MOORAR OF KANSAS CITY, WRITES INTERESTING LETTER.

To Secretary Fitzgerald:—I have read with much interest your several articles with reference to forming a circuit of rinks for racing purposes. I also agree with you and Mr. Flath that this would be a great help in keeping the game alive, but I think a better plan would be to form an association of managers, and the object of same to be the general uplifting of the game and to discuss various attractions. Several years ago there was an aggregation of racers touring the country, and while they were speedy on the wheels, they were also a little speedy in other ways, and did not do much to uplift the standard of the rinks in which they appeared. I notice you refer to Mr. Sol Waterman as one who would take an interest in your project. I was associated with Mr. Waterman last summer and winter as manager of two rinks controlled by him, and I wish to state that if many of the owners of rinks tried as hard as he did to keep up the high standard of roller rinks there would be less scandal connected with the roller game. Knowing Mr. Waterman as I do, and the results of his playing the above-mentioned racers at his Coliseum Rink in Kansas City, I doubt if he could be induced to have anything to do with the racing game, if it was to be anything like it was a few years ago. If a circuit is formed and men sent around the same, they must be managed with a firm hand and conduct themselves as gentlemen when on and off the floor. Another thing that must be looked to in order to get the money is to see that the circuit chasers are not allowed to hog all the races and resort to foul tactics to get them. In reference to forming an association for managers, I suggest such men as Fred Nall, John Bell and others get together and get the small rink owners interested. By doing this ideas could be compared and various attractions discussed. Many small rinks have died because they did not know how and what kind of attractions to put on. I have run small town rinks and have found that the more local attractions and schemes you put up the better your business. Last winter I took an abandoned rink in a Missouri town; failure was predicted before the doors were opened, but I proceeded just the same, and am happy to say that I revived the game to a greater point than it originally opened with. I put on something two and three nights each week, advertised in various novel ways, and got good results. I also made Saturday afternoon a paying proposition, making it a special inducement for school children only come by giving souvenirs, such as pencils, writing tablets, individual drinking cups, and other useful articles. Now many will say: "I don't see any money in that." Well, there was, and the result was that those children looked forward to those presents on Saturday, and when they got them they went home and showed them to their parents, with the result that when we put on our night attractions the whole family turned out. I also put on two or three races every Saturday for the kids, giving them a ticket for the next Saturday as a prize. I was located in a town that had a branch factory of one of the largest shoe manufacturing concerns in the country, and where the employees were mostly girls. Now these girls could not afford to attend every night, but I got them there just the same, not by giving a ladies free night, but by judicious distribution of tickets to different ones every night and favoring none, my theory being: get the girls and the boys will follow. I could go on at length and give you a great deal more information, but as your article indicates that you are in touch with the skating world, I will not at this time take up any more of your valuable time.

HARLEY DAVIDSON STAGE-STRUCK.

It is the custom nowadays for star athletes to become the victims of the theatrical "bug." Quite often it is announced that some well-known baseball player or a man famous in some other branch of sport has deserted his game to become a "regular" actor. In other words, it is the style nowadays to go on the stage, and Harley Davidson, world's championship roller skater, is the latest to get "stylish." Harley, who is well known throughout the country, especially to those around St. Paul, his birthplace, and not for-

LOUIS RUBENSTEIN.

Mr. Rubenstein, Canadian Champion, 1878-1889, and World's Champion in 1890, has skated in all parts of the world where ice is to be found. In all his many years of competition he never met defeat, which is a record good enough for any skater to retire on.

enthusiasm for skating, notwithstanding he has grown rather stout of late. He is called upon to officiate as judge at nearly all championship events. In 1909 he was elected president of the International Skating Union of America, the governing body of skating interests in the United States and Canada.

getting dear old London town, is not yet a really and truly actor man, but he has had a taste of stage life and he likes it. Having created a taste he will not be satisfied until he has a signed contract with some big vaudeville circuit, and there is a likelihood that he will realize his ambition in the near future. Davidson was given a tryout at the Empress Theatre in St. Paul a short time ago and made a great hit, and his prospects now are good for a good, long circuit when he gets ready to start. For over twenty years the name of Davidson has been a byword in the sporting world, especially in the bicycle and skating game. The family is a famous one, nearly every member having gained distinction either on a bicycle or on rollers or steel blades. Harley's name is recorded upon all three. Years ago there were many speedy ice skaters who envied the St. Paul lad for his whirlwind ability, and then he switched to rollers and again made them all sit up and take notice. He annexed the world's speed title in a famous race at London, England, at which time he landed in a big, fat purse and carried home one of the most valuable medals ever offered for any athletic competition. There is nothing that has ever been done on the little wheels that Harley can't do, and there are a few things that he does that others have never done. He is as much at home on rollers as he used to be on the steel blades, and pulls off many difficult and classy whirls and turns that seem almost impossible. Among his feats are the spread-eagle, cutting the figure eight, and a dizzy whirl, but the most remarkable of all is the daring leap backwards over six chairs. This feature concludes his act and certainly is a thriller. After arranging his chairs in a row across the stage, Davidson dashes into the wings, mounting an incline, reappears sliding down the incline backwards and leaps over the chairs, landing as gracefully as a circus hareback rider on a well-trained horse. Davidson's act is

CARNIVAL NEWS

W. A. Davis Wins Suit of Long Standing—Cosmopolitan Shows No. 1 Dodging Floods in Kansas—Miscellaneous Amusement Notes from Representative Carnival Companies

W. A. DAVIS WINS SUIT.

Cairo, Ill., Sept. 22 (Special to The Billboard).—Suit to recover fifty acres of valuable land in the northern part of this city was won by W. A. Davis, to whose father it belonged in 1864. During the war, the elder Davis' brother, through a forged deed, set claim to the property. The case started in the courts in 1868, but a mistrial three times delayed the settlement for ten years. During that period Davis died, also the brother who claimed the property, Mrs. Davis, mother of W. A. Davis, resumed the fight and was waiting for papers and witnesses until 1905, when she died. W. A. Davis, the oldest son, then took the matter in hand, but experienced difficulty in getting matters straightened out. He finally won, however, in the Supreme Court, and the property valued at $150,000, will be divided between he and his two sisters.

Mr. Davis is well-known in the carnival business. He is now located at London, O.

BAUSCHER GOING ABROAD.

A. C. Bauscher, proprietor of the Bauscher Carnival Company, together with his wife and little daughter, will soon sail for London, England, and make an extended tour abroad. The object of Mr. Bauscher's visit to London is to see his son, who is studying music.

COSMOPOLITAN NO. 1 DODGING FLOODS.

Fort Scott, Kan., Sept. 24 (Special to The Billboard).—The Cosmopolitan Carnival Company played here September 18-23. When they arrived they found the grounds they had intended to use under twenty feet of water, caused by an 8-in. rain the night before. They soon were located in new quarters but lost Monday night's business on account of the delay. All the shows are high-class and drew the large patronage they deserve.

PARKER SHOW NOTES.

Leavenworth, Kan., Sept. 22 (Special to The Billboard).—The record week for the Parker Show No. 1 was at Vancouver, B. C., Can., though great business was encountered throughout their Canadian tour.

Magnum Budahl and Cy Cranford, who were out with the band on the No. 2 Show this season, are now in vaudeville.

Jesse M. Shout, an old trouper, was a visitor last week at the Parker factory.

The most distinguished guest at the Parker headquarters for some time was Col. Cody, who was entertained by Mr. Parker on September 13, the date of the show's engagement here.

September 13, the date of the Two Bills' Show in this city, will long be remembered by Lionel, the thirteen-year-old daughter of C. W. Parker, as the time when she was entertained by Buffalo Bill. This being her thirteenth birthday she was invited to the show as their guest and treated to many surprises, among them being a ride in the old Deadwood stage. Immediately after Col. Cody made the usual announcement she stepped into the arena and presented him with a handsome bouquet and he in return lifted her upon the horse and kissed her amid the applause of the many thousands.

The closing date of the Parker Shows No. 2 has not been set, but some time next month will see them into winterquarters.

WINSLOW SHOW NOTES.

The famous Winslow Shows are now in their third and last week of county fairs on the B. & O. Fair Circuit.

At Olney, Ill., Day and Night Fair, weather conditions were ideal, and on Thursday, over twenty-five thousand people were on the grounds. By working Labor Day in Salem, Ill., the Winslow Shows managed to have everything in the cars on Tuesday morning, at which time a big wind and rain storm totally destroyed the big top of the Starline Dramatic Company at Olney. Manager Starnes, however, managed to turn the outfit into an atrium, and continued to show. Many visits were exchanged between the two companies.

At Altamont, Ill., September 11th week, the weather was inclement. The Shelbyville Home-Coming Committee paid the show a visit and brought the news that they had engaged "Bud" Mars to make flights there.

Manager Winslow made a flying trip to Shelbyville from Altamont to arrange locations for the various attractions with the local committee.

Two new shows and a bunch of concessions joined the company at Ripewick, Ill.

Mr. Mitchell, advertising agent, had the misfortune while in St. Louis to lose his summer's savings out of his pocket.

LEONARD AMUSEMENT CO.

The Leonard Amusement Company played their final Nebraska date on Saturday, September 16, after fourteen consecutive weeks in that state. Business in Nebraska was good during the entire tour, far surpassing expectations in that line. Shows and concessions alike "cleaned up." The Southern tour starts next week at the North Arkansas Fair at Berryville, Ark.

Enoch Hutchins of the Electric Theatre, played his record house of the season September 16 at Guide Rock, Neb., where the holding capacity of his theatre was the only limit to the size of his audiences.

Mr. Leonard has been offered return dates for next season at every fair, reunion or picnic played in Nebraska this summer, which speaks well for the general character of his various shows and concessions.

Ray Willetts is now managing the big stadium and is playing to well-pleased crowds everywhere.

CARNIVAL NOTES.

While playing the beautiful little city of Alhambra, N. C., week of September 4, four members of Wolcott's Model Shows joined Alhambra Lodge No. 112, K. of P. It was through the efforts of George Slater that the lodge added these members to its roster: Harry Englander, Dave Cantos, Robert Hinghey and W. H. Garner. This brings the number of K. of P.'s with the shows up to ten. The following members of the Wolcott Shows assisted the members of the lodge in impressing the lessons of the three ranks of Knighthood: F. S. Wolcott, William Davidson, Dave Carr, W. H. Brown, George Slater and A. E. Lange. After the initiatory work an adjournment was made to the private car of Mr. Wolcott, where an elaborate and delightful banquet was served in honor of the event.

The third annual Horse Show and Business Men's Carnival at Rensselaer, Ind., was held September 13, 14, 15 and 16. The first two days of the show were marred by rain, but the large attendance of the last two days more than made it up. The exhibit of horses was very fine. The Carnival Shows that were hired to augment the Horse Show were a failure, but the free attractions, consisting of two diving horses and an aerial performance, were good, and made up to some extent for the poor paid attractions.

"Blackie," boss carnyman with the Lucas Show, passed through Norfolk, Neb., this week and reports excellent business for that show. Dr. Lucas has an exceptionally strong company and certainly made good in Norfolk during the race meet. Mrs. Helen Lucas proved a big drawing card in her extraordinary aerial acts. The Clements were also prime favorites during the week.

The Walter Savidge Amusement Company is now operating in Northeastern Nebraska and meeting with splendid success. Five thousand Indians from the Rosebud Agency came over in a body to pay the show a visit last week at Valentine, Neb., and all concessions enjoyed "a heap big time" that week.

T. O. Moss, manager of Moss Bros.' Greater Shows, has purchased the Crazy House of the Great Empire Shows, C. E. Bardell, with his plantation, snake, Count and Countess Nichols, consisting of three big shows, is again with the show.

Paris, Tenn., will hold a street fair week of October 16-21. Attractions will be furnished by the G. J. Keppler Show Co. L. F. Fielder is secretary of the event.

After a successful season at the fairs, Guthrie & Dunsforth will close their big five-in-one show and open a jungle show at Williamsburg, Pa.

This is the act that caused a sensation at the Fernbank Dam Celebration, Cincinnati, week September 3.

EDISON.

EUGENE WRAYBURN (Drama; release Oct. 3; length 1,000 feet).—(From Charles Dickens' famous novel, "Our Mutual Friend.")—Lizzie Hexam is in love with Wrayburn, who has only a passing fancy for the girl. Bradley Headstone, a suitor for the girl, is jealous of Wrayburn, but he finds her, and is followed by Headstone. Headstone attacks Wrayburn, and then the lock-keeper, who has witnessed the crime. Headstone and the lock-keeper engage in a terrible struggle, and eventually, locked in each other's embrace, plunge in together. Lizzie rescues the unconscious Wrayburn from the river, where he has been thrown by Headstone. Wrayburn awakens to the fact that he really loves the girl, and there is a happy ending.

THE SUMMER GIRL (Comedy; released October 4; length 1,000 feet).—Jack Stout is the favorite admirer of the summer girl until the arrival of his friend, Brown, who by a wonderful display of "cheek" cuts Jack out almost entirely. Brown makes an engagement to take the girl driving at 3 p. m. and then goes swimming with a friend. Jack sees an opportunity to get even, and securing some female attire he dons same and follows Brown and his friend to the lake. He awaits until they are in the water and then sits on the bank beside their clothes, opens a parasol, and becomes engrossed in a book. After a time Brown and his friend are ready to emerge, but can not on account of the stout lady sitting so near their clothes. Brown is anxious to keep his appointment, and yells frantically at the lady on the bank, but she is apparently deaf. Jack finally leaves, and discarding the female attire, meets the girl, who complains bitterly of Brown, and vows she will never speak to him again, so Jack is the happy winner.

FOUL PLAY (Drama; released Oct. 6. Part One; length 1,000 feet).—Young Arthur Wardlaw is supposed to be a model young man, but is with a wild set at college and heavily in debt. His tutor, Rev. Robert Penfold, asks him for a loan of seven hundred pounds. Arthur does not dare to ask his father for money, so forges his name to a check for two thousand pounds, which he gives to Penfold to cash, telling him to keep the seven hundred pounds and turn the balance over to him, hoping in this way to secure money to pay his debts. Penfold does so but the check is discovered to be a forgery and Penfold is arrested. Arthur is in love with Helen Rolleston, who has promised to marry him. Penfold appears to Arthur to testify and save him, but Arthur becomes ill and is unable to testify, and Penfold is condemned to five years exile and penal servitude for forgery.

FOUL PLAY (Drama; released Oct. 6. Part two. Length, 1,000).—Penfold, unjustly convicted of forgery, is released on parole in care of General Rolleston, Helen's father, in Sidney Australia, and is known as James Seaton. Seaton is employed as gardener and falls in love with Helen. Arthur Wardlaw, who has heavily invested his farm by speculating, arrives in Sidney ostensibly to make arrangements for his wedding with Helen, but really to make arrangements for scuttling his ship, the Prosperine, for insurance. Arthur goes back to London, but when it came time for Helen to sail also, the Shannon was not ready, so she sailed on the Prosperine. Seaton sails on the same ship disguised as a clergyman. John Hazel, and becomes acquainted with Helen. The mate scuttles the ship, and the crew take to the boats. Helen and Robert finally land on an uninhabited island, and build a rude hut. Meantime the mate and his crew were picked up and taken to London, where he reports the sinking of the Prosperine and receives his reward from Arthur Wardlaw. General Rolleston follows Helen in the Shannon, and Arthur, dumfounded learns that she sailed in the Prosperine, and that he was her escort.

FOUL PLAY (Drama; released Oct. 6. Part three. Length, 1,000 feet).—The months drag by for Helen and Robert on their island, and they have given up hope of being rescued. Robert tenderly cares for her and she has grown to love him. General Rolleston hopes that his daughter is still alive and has started in a vessel in search of her. The ship finally comes in sight of the island, but Helen prevents Robert from signaling, saying that she loves him and does not want to be rescued. The next morning, however, the general lands and finds his daughter, and also recognizes his convict gardener. Seaton, Robert convinces Helen of his innocence, and Helen swears to clear his name and come back for him. Robert, all alone, decides to leave, and is fortunately picked up and landed in England. Helen, true to her promise, obtains evidence and clears Robert, proving her former lover guilty of the forgery. A great wrong is righted, and Robert Penfold comes into his own.

THE MISSION WAIF (Drama; released Sept. 28; length 1,000 feet).—Mary has been adopted by the Mission Fathers when the Indians had massacred her parents. Some years later, Captain Courtney, a bandit, sought refuge at the Mission. He hid his identity and became a favorite, especially with Mary, the one-time waif. It was her first love. Mary, while walking one day, read a sign offering a reward for the person of Captain Courtney, distinguished by a crescent-shaped scar on his forehead. She took no notice at the time, but later, when the Captain declared his love for her, she seen the scar, and ordered him from the room. Courtney had not proceeded far when he discovered that the Indians had arisen, and hurried to the Mission to warn Mary and the Fathers, who escaped into an underground passage, while Courtney defended the Mission. Mary succeeded in reaching a cowboys' camp and called them to action. The Indians were put to flight, but Courtney had been killed defending the woman he loved.

THE BLACKFOOT HALF-BREED (Drama; released Sept. 29; length — feet).—Col. Baker, commander of Fort Nelson, marries Goffersocks, a full-blooded Blackfoot Indian. The fruit of their union, a beautiful daughter, Maude, is sent East to be educated. On Maude's return to the Fort, her Blackfoot mother begs her to visit the Indians. Big Chief, the chief of the tribe, covets the handsome halfbreed. Maude finds Indian life unendurable, and returns to her father. Captain Tingley, next in command to Col. Baker, is an admirer of Maude's, and their engagement is finally announced. The Blackfoot Chief is angered at Maude's return to the Fort, and to prevent hostilities, she returns to the tribe. Her mother plans to marry her to Big Chief, but Fawn, an Indian girl friend of Maude, goes to the Fort for aid, and Capt. Tingley, at the head of a party of soldiers, effects a rescue, and Maude renounces her tribe.

THE PHONEY STRIKE-BREAKERS (Comedy; release Oct. 2; length — feet).—Hugh, the ranch foreman, is in love with Molly, his employers' daughter, who reciprocates, but is inclined to put him off. Hugh, thinking he must resort to something desperate to gain her consent to marry him, conceives the idea of a fake strike on the ranch. His employers, Mr. and Mrs. Blanchard, help him along, but Molly overhears the plans and decides on a counter-plot. She collects a party of girls from the neighborhood, and equipped as cowboys, they start for the Blanchard ranch. Then when the cowboys start their phoney strike, Molly and her strike-breakers ride on the range and do the strikers' work. Hugh and his friends are surprised, and riding after the supposed strike-breaking cowboys, find that they have been bunched and that the strike-breakers are girls.

THE SAVING SIGN (Drama; release Oct. 4; length — feet).—Brown, a prospector, observes his Indian guide going through a sacred rite, and asks the meaning of it. The Indian explains it is the sign of the Great Spirit and brings good fortune. Brown discovers gold, and the Indian attributes it to the "sign." Brown tells his wife and daughter of his discovery, and shows the daughter, Ruth, the "sign." The Indians become hostile, and the settlers move into a stockade, where Ruth objects to the discipline and runs away. She is captured by the Indians, who prepare to hang her by the thumbs. Ruth looks upward and makes the "sign." The Indians are amazed. The settlers have followed Ruth's trail, and arrive just as the Indians are thrown into consternation by Ruth's "sign." The Chief delivers her to the white men, and hurls a tomahawk as a sign of peace.

THE CALIFORNIA REVOLUTION OF 1846 (Drama; release Oct. 6; length — feet).—Commander Vallejo picks Senor Jnarez as a husband for his daughter Felicia, but she is in love with Harry Cutler, a young American. Jnarez waylays Cutler and leaves him for dead. The American is found, however, and nursed back to health. Cutler plans to outwit Jnarez by raising the Bear Flag capturing Sonoma and proclaiming the California Republic. Felicia and Jnarez's wedding day is set. Cutler writes Felicia to delay it as long as possible. The Americans make their raid, capture the town, and instead of Jnarez, Cutler marches to the altar with the beautiful Spanish Senorita Felicia. The Bear Flag—the official ensign of California—was first raised by a band of American settlers in 1846, when they seized the Pueblo of Sonoma, commanded by Gen. M. G. Vallejo, and there proclaimed the "California Republic."

THE ROSE'S STORY (Drama; release Oct. 2; length 1,000 feet).—Garaid Kinney, a wealthy young man, tires of fast life and motors out into the country. He meets Myrtle Edgar, a "pretty country maiden. Attempting liberties, he is repulsed, and he sees in her a type that is new to him—one that is pure and holy. Plucking a rose, she fastens it into the lapel of his coat. The flower is a talisman to him, and he determines to lead a better life. He gradually drops his old acquaintances, and one night he thinks of the girl, and seeks her out. He finds her and tells her of his love, and of his past life, and she puts him on probation, after admitting her love. They are married, and after a few years a child comes to gladden their hearts. One night she finds between the leaves of a book a pressed rose and questioning her husband, found that it was the rose she had given him, the flower that had made a man of him and brought him a true and trusting wife. THROUGH THE AIR (Drama; release Oct. 5; length 1,000 feet).—Flo Garret, an athletic young woman, accompanies her father and a party on a prospecting trip. New Ballard, IMPS HIT THE BULLSEYE TWICE EVERY WEEK!

Think! How many film manufacturers in this wide world have brought out two REALLY GOOD films every week for the past fifty weeks? You can count them all on the thumb of one hand. And that thumb represents the "Imp." What's the use of gambling with uncertain brands of film when you can get a sure thing at no greater cost? Why not get two Imps every week? If you can't get them by fighting for them, why not try paying a little more?

one of the party, loves her, but his affection is not returned. Jack Baldwin, an aviator, is experimenting with a dirigible near the camp. He meets Flo, and they are mutually attracted. Flo's father discovers gold and stakes out a claim. Ned and a partner conceive the idea of putting the old prospector out of the way and filing on the claim. Ned shoots the old man and steals the papers. Flo witnesses the act, and after making her father comfortable, rides to frustrate the scoundrels. She meets the young aviator and tells him the story. Meantime, Ned has ridden to a settlement and secured a motor car and is speeding in the direction of the recorder's office. Jack Baldwin lends his aid, and with a duplicate description of the mine, mans his airship, and in an interesting race beats Ned to the office and files on the claim in the name of Flo, and wins the girl and the thanks of the old prospector. NESTOR.

MUTT AND JEFF IS REPORTERS
(Comedy; released Sept. 30; length — feet).—Mutt and Jeff decide that being a reporter is an easy job, and manages to connect with the daily Star. Jeff is assigned to do the society and theatrical stunt, while Mutt, the brave, is to unearth the foal doings of the underworld. Jeff is a success, makes a hit, "big scoop, engaged at enormous salary, and goes automobiling with one of the sweetest members of the gentle sex. Mutt, as usual, fails, all he gets is a "triumphing," and is kicked off the staff of the Star into the street, just in time to see Jeff and his hee-you-tee-ful lady friend in the auto. On the same reel is Getting Even.

GETTING EVEN (Comedy; length — feet).—Betty Thorne and Tom Wiley torment Betty's father to consent to their marriage, and finally Major Thorne took his cane to the young man, but Tom got away and the blow fell on the head of Parson Goodman, who was entering at that moment. Tom attempts to fool the Major by putting on a policeman's coat and hat, but the Major sees through the disguise, and Tom again makes a get-away. The Major and his gardener mistake the real policeman for Tom, and throw him through the window, with the result that the Major and the gardener are on their way to jail, while Betty and Tom were urging Parson Goodman to hurry with the marriage ceremony.

THOSE JERSEY COWPUNCHERS (Release Oct. 4; length — feet).—The Billiken Moving Picture concern go West to take pictures of Western subjects, but upon arriving there are unable to engage cowboys or Indians, as all have gone to join the moving pictures. The directors send East for their "Jersey Cowpunchers," who, to the amusement of the ranch people are soon transformed into dare-devil cowboys and blood-thirsty Indians. Then followed the rehearsal of the picture, with its many amusing, trying and exciting incidents. The actors entered thoroughly into the spirit of the story, and when the actual scenes were taken they were heartily applauded by the bystanders. They had been initiated into the making of a Western picture, and had found it both entertaining and instructive.

THANHOUSER.

YOUNG LOCHINVAR
(Drama; released Sept. 26; length — feet).—(From Sir Walter Scott's famous poem, "Lochinvar.") The "fair Ellen" was forced by her parents to consent to marry a man to whom she objected, one who was described as "a dastard in love" and "a laggard in war."

When Young Lochinvar heard the news, he rode alone to the home of Ellen, arriving just as the wedding was about to be celebrated. The kinsmen of the bride were disposed to be aggressive, but he told them that he had come "to dance but one measure, drink one cup of wine." During the dance he told her his plans, and reaching the door, they leaped on his horse and were off before the Netherby clan had realized what had happened. And they never saw the "fair Ellen" again, for she became the happy bride of Lochinvar.

LOVE'S SACRIFICE (Drama; released Sept. 29; length — feet).—A middle-aged scientist marries a young girl. The girl is happy in her new home, but lonely. Her husband loves her, but is wrapped up in his profession, and she feels that she is neglected. A young man, the son of an old friend of her husband, falls in love with her. Her husband, looking out of the window, sees the young man embrace his wife, and turned from the window with a groan. Had he waited he would have seen the young woman repulse the man, and order him from the place. The husband considers what to do, and holding his wife's happiness above all else, decides to eliminate himself in a manner that would seem that he died a natural death. He tells his wife that he is going abroad on business, and goes to a part of the tropics that is practically death to a white man. The young wife later learns the destination of her husband, and posting after him, finds him sick and apparently dying, but she convinces him that he is the only man she ever loved, and nurses him back to health.

HOW HOPKINS RAISED THE RENT
(Comedy; released September 27; length — feet).—Tom Hopkins, broke, hungry and out of work, is told by his landlady to pay his room rent or get out. He saves her along and leaves the house to see what the cold world has to offer. In trying to be polite to a fat lady he tears a big hole in his trousers and puts his clothes to the bad. Noticing a restaurant, he takes a chance on a meal. The waitress

Leo Dornan, Musician with Ringling Bros.' Circus, Instantly Killed Last Week While Attempting to Board Moving Band Wagon—Miscellaneous White Top News

LEO DORNAN KILLED.

Stockton, Cal., Sept. 20 (Special to The Billboard).—Leo Dornan, a cornet player with Sweet's Concert Band with the Ringling Bros.' Circus, was instantly killed here during the parade of the show last Wednesday.

Dornan was late for the parade, but secured his instrument and uniform and ran after the band wagon. Without calling to the driver to stop, he attempted to climb on the moving vehicle, but lost his hold and fell, the front wheel passing over his body. The wagon was brought to a stop before the rear wheel touched him, and he was carried into a nearby house and medical aid summoned, but life was extinct. An inquest was held and later the body was shipped to Hot Springs, S. D., where interment took place. Many floral offerings were sent by the various employees with the show.

Dornan was twenty-five years old and the only son of James Dornan, chief of police of Hot Springs, S. D. He is survived by his father and mother. He has been with the Della Pringle Stock Company, the Alhambra Stock Company, Dr. Buckner's Company, Reed's Band of Sioux City, Ia.; El Henry's Minstrels and other organizations as well as the Ringling Show. He was also a newspaper man of considerable experience, having worked on several papers in Omaha and other Western cities, and was recently connected with the Oklahoma City News and later with the Deadwood Telegram, Deadwood, S. D.

glad of an opportunity to rest. Our business here was fine at both performances, which was quite a surprise.

Saturday, Falls City, Neb., a little town that from time to time gets all the real shows. They gave us an excellent afternoon house and a fair house at night.

In Atchison the show was compelled to pay $250 for damages to a street caused by heavy wagons hauling to the lot. Evidently the city fathers are looking forward to a social session.

At last the weather has cooled somewhat, and we all hope that it is a permanent change, and now that my fat friend, Harry Piel, has come upon the scene to annoy me, I'll close.

AMONG THE WHITE TOPS.

Maple Cliff Farm, Fayetteville, Ark., Sept. 19.

Editor The Billboard:

Yesterday, with my family, I had the pleasure of visiting the Hagenbeck-Wallace Shows at Fayetteville, my home town. "Uncle Ben" surely knows how to welcome the profession.

Last February I had the misfortune to break my leg and I have been slow in recovering. This is the first show I have seen this summer, and I wish I might be able to describe the various emotions that chased themselves up one side and down the other of my physical and sentimental being as well, but there are no words coined that will express it. An old-timer, out of the game for some time, knows how it

THE TWO BILLS' SHOW.

By F. AL. PEARCE.

The week just past has been without event, a very quiet and peaceable week indeed. Sunday, Sept. 10, was spent in Iowa, Kan., and in a very sedate manner. Had some rain in the afternoon and at night, but as the natives were all indoors; in fact, had been all the time, they did not mind the storm, and as the rain served to give us some relief from the extreme heat that we had endured for so long, we, too, were satisfied.

Monday dawned clear and warm, how warm it is impossible to describe, but it seems as though each day is trying to outdo its predecessor. Our business at Iowa, at both performances, was satisfactory. We were loaded and away early, making the run to Ottawa in good time, where we were located on the Fair Grounds, which are but a very short distance from the center of the town, and to good business.

Wednesday, Leavenworth: weather still whooping things up in the heat line, and I believe that the extreme heat had had some effect on our afternoon business through this section, though we did a very satisfactory business here. C. W. Parker, the well-known carnival man, was an interested visitor here, and entertained Col. Cody, Major Lillie and a number of the executives at his factory, which has but recently been completed.

Thursday, St. Joe, Mo. Three shows to appear here within seven days, we being the first. The warmest day of the season we experienced here, but at that had a good afternoon house. At night it commenced to rain just early enough to frighten away some that would otherwise have attended. However, the night house was far better than one would expect under the circumstances, especially so in consideration of the fact that the Barnum Show came in the next day. I have since learned that they had a day of rain, which, no doubt, interfered with their business.

Friday, Atchison. A long hard haul through mud that reached the wagon hubs and up to the axle. It was nearly noon before the entire show was on the lot with horses and men all feels to get back among the white tops, but I never saw one yet that could tell it. I think I can truthfully say I never enjoyed a circus more in my life, and I've seen all of the big ones over and over for forty-four years past. It was almost as good as the first one I ever saw, way up in Michigan, when I was only ten years old.

Anyone that says that all shows are about alike, and "they have seen them over and over; guess they won't go to this one," have a few more guesses coming. I would advise them all to revise their "ancient history," and be a boy again when the circus comes to town. The acts were good from start to finish, and many new ones that I had never seen before. They came on with a snap that kept one's attention riveted throughout, and the grouping was perfect.

Although the show lot was two and one-fourth miles from the city (new grounds, broken in for the first time, with no street car service, and the hacks charging a half dollar to haul people out), the afternoon house was a good one, despite the difficulty in reaching the show grounds. The parade had to be abandoned on account of the breaking down of several bridges with the heavy wagons on the roads leading to the grounds.

I hope you may find space to print this letter, for it was written, not "with an axe to grind" in any direction, but more to express the feelings of an old-timer, wandering for a single day among the white tops after a lengthy period of retirement to the "simple life."

THE DESTRUCTION OF MADAME EMMA LAKE'S CIRCUS AT LURAY.

A few weeks since the newspapers chronicled the death of Madame Emma Lake down in New York City from the consequence of a fall. The writer read the brief notice with attention because he witnessed a performance of Emma Lake's Circus in the summer of 1887 at Luray, Mo. In her day she was a unique and famous character in the circus ring. Buffalo Bill pronounced her the cleverest lady rider in the world. The little wagon show arrived in Luray, overland from Alexandria, on Sunday afternoon. The circus posters had been displayed for a week or more, and the entire population of the little isolated village was out to witness the arrival. Performances were given Monday afternoon and Monday evening. The tent was crowded at both times. Luray had not seen a circus since the visit of Van Amburg in 1860. The sawdust ring left by Emma Lake's Circus remained a part of the landscape for many years thereafter. Probably it was the last circus that ever visited Luray, as the town is too small to attract the big aggregations of the present time. After the close of the evening entertainment the show people gave one of those puerile concerts which have served for several generations to induce the invention of new phrases in profanity from those who are induced to pay their money to hear the silly songs, etc. The concert aroused the ire of the young men of the town and vicinity, and they burned for revenge. Many of them were recently home from the war and ready for anything. Nothing but blood could wipe out the stigma occasioned by the concert. There was a tremendous free fight in the darkness surrounding the tent following the closing numbers of the concert. It is said that physical combats originated primarily over some woman. That all wars are brought on by nagging women. That all railroad accidents can be traced to the state of mind to which some railroad operative has been reduced by some woman. So it is reasonable to assume that the fight which destroyed Emma Lake's Circus in 1887 at Luray, Mo., may after all have been over a woman. The fight lasted until long after the daylight hours of the following morning, and when it was over, Emma Lake's circus had been put out of business. Before the circus outfit succeeded in packing up and leaving the grounds and making a start for Memphis there had been a number of personal encounters where rings were formed around the combatants, who slugged one another to the best of their ability until one went down and cried "enough." At this crisis the top combatant was pulled off by the boots by applauding spectators, usually bringing up handfuls of bile and hair with him. As daylight approached the circus ears van made a start for Memphis, but was overtaken by the enemy in the valley of the Wacoada, where another desperate conflict took place. The attacking party brought axes with them, and running along by the moving wagons chopped the spokes out of the wheels. As these wagons were abandoned by the fleeing circus company the disabled vehicles were taken on the bridge and launched into the Wacoada which happened to be bank-full at the time. Miles below they floated out on the lowlands, where they remained for twenty-five years or more, objects of curiosity. Further along the attacking party overhauled the last remnant of the circus and chopped the wheels out from under it. The circus attaches throwing away harness and equipment and escaping on horseback. Madame Lake, who was a lady of resources, was far in advance in her carriage, drawn by four white horses. There was nothing in the way of horseflesh around Luray speedy enough to overtake her—although a few years later D. E. Clinton brought racing stock there that lowered the time made by Ten Broeck and Mollie McCarthy in the great race at Lexington, when the whole state of Kentucky went broke. While driving along the Luray and Memphis road two years ago we noted an old wagon wheel hub half hidden in the weeds in a fence corner near the old John Walton farm. It was the last surviving relic of Madame Emma Lake's Circus—a mute witness of wild life in Missouri before the days of railroad and automobile. A famous border character, "Wild Bill," was an ardent lover of Madame Emma Lake and had left the circus only at Alexandria, going on a boat to St. Louis. Less than a year afterward Wild Bill killed the entire McCandless gang of ten desperadoes in a hand-to-hand fight at a stage station in Western Kansas. Bill would rather fight than eat. Whenever he was in doubt whether to fight or not, like Lord Nelson, he always fought. Often when thought reverted to the incident we have wondered what would have happened if Bill had been at Luray that night.

101 CLOSES OCTOBER 21.

New York, Sept. 23 (Special to The Billboard).—Miller Brothers & Arlington's 101 Ranch Wild West Show closes its season at El Reno, Okla., October 21. The stock will be shipped to Tulsa, Okla. Where the equipment is to be wintered remains to be decided by the show's owners. There is a probability that Oklahoma will be selected in favor of New Jersey, where the show wintered last season.

At Knoxville, Ia., September 15, three baby tigers made their appearance with Gollmar Bros. Shows. The usual precautions were taken. The den was darkened and removed to a quiet part of the menagerie. A little before noon a strange noise was heard coming from the cage. Emory Styles, boss animal man, and several assistants hurried to the scene. When the cage was opened, it was found that the unnatural mother had devoured two of her offspring and was about to eat the third. One paw rested on the body of the remaining tiger, while with the other she fought the iron rods which the men quickly shoved through the bars to prevent the enraged beast from carrying out her intentions. During the excitement the tigress released her hold on the young one and the latter was drawn from the cage by means of an iron scraper. Its back was broken and it lived only a few minutes. This same female tiger has given birth to several cubs before, but has never harmed them until this time.

Local No. 42, I. A. B. P. & B., of Dallas, Tex., won the second prize of $30 in gold in the Labor Day parade this year. They had a handsomely decorated Packard automobile truck with two eight-sheet boards and two three-sheet boards, posting hills for the different theatres along the line of march. Those in line included Claude R. Hamilton, R. F. Hayes, Leonard Jones, S. G. Block, Gus Cohen and J. Stovall, Tom Henderson, Gene Verschyle, Hartheir many friends and neighbors, while the show folks enjoyed the hospitality of the townspeople.

The Bartono Wild Animal Show was struck by a cyclone at Cadillac, Mich., on the night of September 11, tripping every piece of canvas from every rope on the big top. A side wall pole struck and killed a big baboon. The damage is estimated at $650. A new top has been ordered, and in the meantime the performance will take place under the side wall.

Jule Pearce left the Hagenbeck-Wallace Shows at Evansville, Ind., Wednesday August 23, going from there direct to his home in Denver, and after spending three weeks at home, left for Chicago, where he takes the management of the Western Isle of Spice Company, opening in Chicago, Sunday, September 24.

Wm. Miller, who has managed the Downie & Wheeler sideshow all summer, severed his connection with the show at Easton, Md. He will put his own show on the road, a vaudeville company under canvas. Wm. Griner succeeds Miller as manager of the annex.

Miss Ada Sommerville, with the California Frank Show, who was injured when her horse fell on her a few days ago, is back in the ring again with a badly bruised arm, which makes it very hard to handle her dancing horse, DeArlo.

MARY CONNERS.

The above is a good likeness of Miss Connors as she appears upon her favorite riding horse. Though young in years, she has already gained considerable prominence as a principal and jockey rider, and will doubtless soon be reckoned among the most prominent of the feminine stars of the equestrian world. Unusually beautiful, active and graceful, as well as a tasty dresser, the riding numbers of the Hagenbeck-Wallace Shows are fortunate in having her as one of the principal equestriennes. Mr. George Connors, her brother, is at present the equestrian director of the Hagenbeck-Wallace Shows, and both have been re-engaged for next season.

ry Black, W. B. Dickey, Roy Cronsky, Gene Verschyle left as agent for the Anstet & Matthews Show, under canvas; Cliff Gny and Harry Paige have the plant wagon; Leonard Jones is agent for the Majestic, a vaudeville house; and R. F. Hayes has the Orpheum, a stock theatre. Tom Henderson has the Opera House.

Following the evening performance of the Forepaugh-Sells Bros. Circus at Mankato, Minn., September 6, Messrs. Stone and Sizemore of the Unique Theatre entertained twelve of the performers, among whom was Billy Flatiron, the prodigious clown, with the other clowns and comedians. During the party each one gave a short specialty as well as songs and dances, and it was an evening that will always be remembered. Those present were Raymond Worth, Ed Fitzpatrick, Chas. Bray, Phil Keeler, O. E. Ogden, Earl Crawford, Walter Scott, Sam K. Otto, Frank Pike, Lou Herman, Ed Sully, Harry Bayfield, Arthur L. Sizemore, pianist; I. L. Stone, manager Wonderland Theatre; Ira Mantzke, manager Unique Theatre.

At Bellingham, Wash., September 9, while transferring a lion cage belonging to Backman's Animal Show from the lot to the train, the team became frightened and ran away. The cage was overturned and Leo, a fine specimen of the African lion, escaped, attacking and killing a horse being driven along the road. Mr. Backman, with his principal trainer, Paul Johanning, and assistants, were soon upon the scene. The beast was captured and brought back to the show lot in a shifting den and there transferred to another cage.

The No. 1 brigade of the Hagenbeck-Wallace Shows includes: R. D. Leister, mgr., with following assistants, O. Abrams, E. Leslie, R. H. Lindsay, Wm. H. Smith, Jack Broad, John Wingo, Spokane Smith, Fred Jackson and L. Girard. The brigade is doing fine work in the Lone Star State. A few records of country routes follow: R. H. Lindsay, 58 miles, 950 sheets; O. Abraham, 56 miles, 1130 sheets; Spokane Smith, 94 miles (two days), 1861 sheets; Wm. Smith, 35 miles, 1012 sheets.

The return engagement of the Downie & Wheeler Shows to Oxford, Pa., winterquarters of the show, proved highly successful, showing to packed houses both afternoon and evening. Oxford is the home of Mr. Wheeler and family and they were kept busy shaking hands with Johnny McCracken and Tom Henderson are the steer throwers with the Frank Show; Walter Rohins, Tom Henderson, Charlie Mulhall, Bee-Ho-Gray, Jose Gonzales and Yosemite Jack, are some of the broncho riders.

W. H. Murphy, the old time showman, was a Billboard caller September 12, en route to Nashville, Tenn., where he joined William Dwire, formerly of the Ringling Show, who now has a show of his own.

Earl Burgess is legal adjuster, Lee Williams, secretary and treasurer, Chas. McCrean superintendent, James Orr twenty-four-hour man, James Orr Jr. assistant treasurer, with California Frank's Wild West.

Mystia, of the circus and vaudeville team, Archie Boyer and Mystia, is now leading lady in Capt. Geo. Street's Wild West Dramatic Company, playing theatres in London, England, and the provinces.

In making the run from Bellingham, Wash., to Salem, Ore., a fatcat belonging to Backman's Animal Show, carrying canvas, pole and seat wagons, was wrecked, but fortunately no one was injured.

The California Frank Shows played to big business all last week at the New York State Fair. This show expects to close at Augusta, Ga., and will winter at the same place.

Mexican Jose Gonzales, with the California Frank Show, is still wearing his arm in a cast, which injury he received in the bucking horse act while showing Philadelphia.

Col. C. F. Hailey (California Frank) got his leg caught between an automobile and a brick wall, painfully bruising same. He is still under the doctor's care.

Grayson, the comedy sensation and principal clown, late of the Famous Robinson Shows, joined the M. L. Clark & Sons' Show at Farmington, Mo.

Charlie Mulhall, who recently had a badly sprained ankle, is riding the pony express with the California Frank Show again, although still limping.

Buster Brown, who shot one finger partially off, is still on the hospital list of the California Frank Show, not being able to use his hand. D. P. White, special agent for the Frank A. Robbins' Shows, was the guest of the Downie & Wheeler Shows at Chestertown, Md.

Sam Cross, ammunition man of the Frank Show, is the happy father of a baby boy six weeks old. Wife and child are in Augusta, Ga.

Mamie Francis is doing a record-breaking shooting act and seldom misses a shot. She is with California Frank's Wild West.

M. L. Clark & Sons' Shows have added a new dining tent, also a new dressing top. The show will stay out until Christmas.

Chas. LaComa of the LaComa Trio of acrobats with M. L. Clark & Sons' Show, was married at New Madrid, Mo.

At New Madrid, Mo., M. L. Clark & Sons' Show was visited by "Pop" Reese, at one time a famous acrobat.

Walter Shiley, the sideshow manager with the California Frank Show, purchased a new automobile.

W. P. English has been re-engaged as bandmaster of the Sells-Floto Circus for the season of 1912.

Copeland and Wetzel, aerial comedy bar act, joined the Downie & Wheeler Shows at Oxford, Pa.

Will Rogers, the roper, visited the California Frank Show in Syracuse, N. Y., last week.

Mexican Jose is chief of the cowboys and well liked by all.

I. A. B. P. & B. OF A. NOTES.

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 20 (Special to The Billboard).—Fay Bardiwell, foreman of the shop, was the real busy man Fair Week, with all the boards filled, and Fay was crowded for space. Our business agent, Harley White, has returned after a five days' visit to his childhood playground, in the wilds of Wisconsin.

Word reaches billposter's headquarters that Ed. L. Jones, Foley's best advertising agent, will not come West this winter, but will be in New York State for at least one year. Eddie missed the camp this summer, but he says he'll be the first on the ground next summer.

Eddie Clark, advertising agent for the Unique Theatre, now has two lithographers, Joe Schaefer and Deak Holmes, and by the looks of things, the town is well billed.

Word comes from Nick Pettit that he intends to winter in Minneapolis, and we are glad to have him, as it will be remembered Pettit was the first president of Local 10.

Bob Linwood reached home after an unsatisfactory season with the Fourpaw-Sells Show, and is now on the center wagon. Bob can be seen on a First Avenue South car every other evening, as the future Mrs. Bob lives out that way.

Andy Paff, helper on the midway route, intends to quit the billposting business and start a sign shop of his own. Paff is learning to letter, and after lettering eighteen boards, says, "me for a sign shop."

Fred Riley, now working on Carr's wagon, has bought a lot near Fay's place, and we expect to see some building going on around Fay's corner.

Charles Duffy has left Minneapolis, and is doing the suiping at the St. Paul shops. Duffy was always considered the best suiper in the Twin Cities.

Bill Lonabarger and Carl Munson are expected in at any time now.

ZACH LUCKENS, Treasurer, Care Shubert Theatre.

While Wheeling Park at Wheeling, W. Va., will be operated as long as the weather will permit, the vaudeville shows were discontinued September 16.

— RULES FOR —

THE GAME OF "SIXTEEN HUNDRED"

May best be described as an elaboration of Five Hundred, which in turn is a combination of Euchre and Bridge. It literally abounds in snares and pitfalls for the unwary, and subsequently provokes no end of mirth and hilarity. Price, 10 Cents.

JUST OFF THE PRESS—THE NEW MADISON'S BUDGET No. 14

By far the best book of comedy material I have ever written. Contents include 20 sure-fire parodies, 11 great monologues, 10 fine acts for two males, 6 acts for male and female, a splendid minstrel first part, an original one-act comedy, also brand-new acts for quartettes and sister teams, besides an almost endless assortment of newest gags, jokes, sidewalk patter, etc., etc.
PRICE ONE DOLLAR
 MADISON'S BUDGET No. 14 is sold with the guarantee of being absolutely satisfactory in every way or money instantly refunded. Send orders to

MOVING PICTURE PARADISE

Here, held captive, are the imaginations of master minds—here are the life reproductions of historians, the stories that will still enthrall during years to come—the tales of Knight and Lady, of blunt business men, and of the quaint characters of travel and adventure. They amuse, delight, interest and instruct you.

WE OFFER YOU IN THIS OUR WEEKLY PROGRAM

MONDAY — IMP ECLAIR YANKEE AMERICAN CHAMPION
 TUESDAY — THANH'SER BISON POWERS
 WEDNESDAY — CHAMPION SOLAX RELIANCE AMBROSIO NESTOR
 THURSDAY — REX AMERICAN ITALIA IMP
 FRIDAY — YANKEE SOLAX LUX THANH'SER BISON
 SATURDAY — POWERS ITALIA GT. NORTHERN NESTOR RELIANCE

The privilege to roam the fields of history, biography, religion and fiction in whatever direction individual bent suggests, satisfying the taste of the most exacting.

The Moving Picture Manufacturers have, through the aid of the Sales Company and the co-operation with one another, established a sale that is greater in its proportions, more far-reaching in its economical benefits, more remarkable in scope, in value and in importance than has ever been attempted since Moving Picture films have been made and sold.

The utmost care is used by our various Manufacturers in selecting scenarios and plots. Thousands are carefully examined by the film producers in their efforts to cull only the best.

Write us now if you wish to exhibit in your theatre a program that will please and interest and be appreciated by both old and young, and we will refer you to the nearest buying exchange in your vicinity punches his cheek and Tom sits there to kill time. His fingers locate a small nail in the edge of the chair. An idea! Nail in chair—nail in trousers. He curls the proprietor, who takes the check, tears it up, slips Tom a five and a few cigars. Tom warns the proprietor against such "carelessness" and starts for home. The landlady is all smiles when Tom nonchalantly hands her the five, retires to his room to repair the rent that raised the rent, and enjoy another perfect.

SALES COMPANY.

SOLAX.

AN ITALIAN'S GRATITUDE (Drama; released September 29; length, — feet).—Toney, his wife, and two beautiful children, are of the better class of Italian street musicians. Daily they play before the house of Dr. Wilson, whose little daughter, Mabel, becomes very friendly with the Italian children. Toney's little boy is seriously injured while climbing to a window. Dr. Wilson saves the child's life, but it is left a cripple. Later, while the musicians are playing near the doctor's house, little Mabel is run down by a heavy truck. Toney carries the child home, and later she dies. Toney and his wife decide they are to blame for the death of the doctor's child, and as the doctor saved their child and they killed his, they owe him a child. They offer him their beautiful daughter. The doctor craves a child's love, but does not take the girl; instead he accepts the crippled boy.

GREAT NORTHERN.

CAUGHT IN HIS OWN NET

(Drama; released Sept. 23; length, — feet).—A farmer's daughter has two admirers, one a farm laborer employed by her father and the other a young neighbor farmer of good financial standing. The father is in arrears with his rent, and the rich young suitor offers to get him out of his difficulty if he will give him his daughter's hand in marriage. The father consents, but the girl shows her objection, preferring the love of the laborer. The rejected suitor, attempting revenge, accidentally sets fire to the farmer's barn, and then tries to throw suspicion on the farmer, but two trumps have seen him enter the structure, and point him out as the real culprit. The young laborer re-enters the employ of the farmer, whom he assists financially with the winnings of a large lottery prize, and later marries the daughter.

POWERS.

LOST IN A HOTEL

(Comedy; released Sept. 19; length, — feet).—A stage-struck young lady has joined a theatrical company. In her kimono she visits the room of one of the other show girls, and after midnight, starts back to her own room, but loses her way. She gets in nearly every room in the hotel except her own, and her abrupt entrances furnishes the comedy. She decides that the "road" is no place for her, and departs for home and mother. On the same reel is An Old Nightmare.

AN OLD NIGHTMARE (Comedy; length — feet).—A group of boys are fishing by a pond. Tommy and his chum steal a pie from one of the other boys, and run away. The youngsters are wearied after their run, and fall asleep. The pie causes Tommy to dream that he robbed a bird's nest. Walking through a field, Tommy is confronted by a sparrow his own size, accused of robbery, arrested and locked in a bird cage. He is tried by the birds of the forest and sentenced to die. Just as the axe is about to descend, Tommy wakes up. His chum wakes too, and proposes that they rob a bird's nest, but not for Tommy.

RED STAR'S HONOR (Drama; released Sept. 23; length — feet).—Red Star, an Indian brave, and Jim Johnston, a cow puncher, are fast friends. A half-breed kills his employer from ambush, and Red Star is accused of the crime. Johnston believes Red Star is innocent, and intercedes for him. He pleads with his companions to allow the redskin an hour's leave to go and bid his squaw good-bye. The cowboy agrees with the understanding that if he does not return, Johnston shall expiate the crime with his own life. On the way to his tepee, Red Star is waylaid by the half-breed, who wants to hold the Indian until the cowboy is hanged. An Indian boy who witnessed the murder frustrates him by informing Red Star's squaw of things. They release Red Star, and proceed to the scene of the intended lynching, where the boy tells of witnessing the crime. Red Star is exonerated, and all hands join in a search for the guilty one, who is made to dance at the end of a rope.

CHAMPION.

BARBARA FRIETCHE

(Drama; released Oct. 2; length 950 feet).—George Mason, whose mother was a Frietche, was an ardent Unionist, but his brother William was strong for secession. Virginia, his daughter, loved George, but her sentiments were opposed to his. This gave William a footing with her that he strove to improve. About this time General Jackson was marching Northward at the head of his army. In the town of Frederick, Md., there was not a protest against the Confederate invasion, but stay, there was one, a stately flag floating from a modest brick dwelling. A score of muskets leaped forth, and the Stars and Stripes hang by a cord from the shattered flag pole. The window is raised, showing an aged but sweet face, and a pair of feeble hands grasp the flag. Then the well-remembered words: "Shoot if you must, this old gray head, but spare your country's flag." And Jackson's words as the muskets leap to the shoulders of the gray coats: "Attention! Who touches a hair of you gray head, dies the death of a dog!" And Barbara Frietche belonged to history. This glorious act decided Virginia as to her course, and her fair head found a resting place on the bosom of George Mason.

AS THINGS USED TO BE (Drama; released Oct. 4; length 950 feet).—Harry Martin loves the sister of Tom Hanson, a drunken Western gambler, and tries to reform him. Tom hates Harry, and partly succeeds in poisoning his sister's mind against him by throwing suspicion on him as a thief. In spite of this Harry saves Tom's life, and in remorse Tom confesses the trick he had played on Harry. The gambler sees the goodness of men in Harry, and changes his life for the better, to the satisfaction of the old folks, and Harry and his sweetheart find true bliss once more.

NOTICE!

—I herewith announce the installation of a Free Employment Bureau in the Laemmle Film Service offices. No charge will be made for the employment of Managers, Operators, Pianists, Singers, Ticket-takers, etc. The very highest references are required and the benefit of the entire Laemmle organization is now at your command, either in getting help or work. Write or call, tell what you want and let us do the rest, with our compliments.

NOTICE!

—If you desire to sell, let, purchase or lease a theatre or site in any part of the United States or Canada, get in touch with any of the Laemmle Film Service offices at once. We shall be glad to be of assistance and will make no charge for services.

NOTICE!

—If you are not satisfied with Independent films, it is because you are not getting the right sort of service. Why not hook up with the biggest and best film renter in the world? It doesn't cost you any more and it brings you the kind of program you ought to have. This very day is the best day to take your step toward prosperity.

Save the difference between 3 cents a K. W.—what it costs with a Brush Outfit—and the 8 to 15 cents which you are now paying the Electric Light Company.

Also save one-half of the lamp current by using 60 volt instead of 120.

Use Direct Current, which is far superior to Alternating Current.

From the Patrons View Point

What Causes People to continually patronize one Picture Theatre in preference to another? Of course, location, appearances, films, etc. have a great deal to do with it, but quality of the picture is what builds up a steady patronage that makes the business profitable.

This depends largely on your light and if you are using any other device than a to step down your current you are not getting best results.

With our machine you can produce a clear, white, steady light that won't worry your "house" by continuous flickering and will surprise you with the difference it makes with the films.

It is the only device that can be changed instantly to any of the three intensities without breaking the circuit between adjustments.

But this is not all. We will guarantee that our Compensarc

Will Cut 65% from Your Light Bill and we'll send you one on 30 days' free trial to prove it.

We have a little 22 page booklet that explains all the reasons why. If you want a better light at 1/3 your present cost, send for it today. It's free.

THE GRAIN OF DUST.

title, after leaving her husband inexplicably, returns to him inexplicably, so depriving the play of a theme which would seem to be a reason for existence. As is surmised by Mr. E. M. Holland, the genial raisonneur of the piece, she left him because she loved him, and, by the same course of explanation, returned to him because she loved him not.

Amy Leslie in The News—"Mr. Hackett seems to be a typical actor for the Blackstone, and his debut there last night in The Grain of Dust was attended by the likeliest flutter illustrated at that beautiful theatre since its opening.

"Mr. Hackett is, moreover, equipped with a play which has singular appeals and the most brilliant opportunity for Mr. Hackett's happiest manner since he decorated the Hope explosions. "It would have been, perhaps, a soothing potion to that notable romancer, David Graham Phillips, to know what an interesting play has been made of his novel, and in Louis Evan Shipman's dramatization the gentlest pruning knife, the most gracious elasticity has been bestowed upon the Phillips invention. Indeed, Mr. Shipman's play, though eloquently commercial, carries the auditor where the novel reader could not go with Mr. Phillips. For by adroit and concise dialogue, close-knit situations, cautious and exact balance of emotional eruptions, much atmosphere and character guidance not observable in the novel lie upon the surface and penetrate the depths of the story."

Ashton Stevens in the Examiner—"Louis Evan Shipman's dramatization of David Graham Phillips' novel, A Grain of Dust, is in the true sense of the phrase a big popular success—such an one as the players must have felt and foretold. It is straightaway, actable, dramatic. It gives to the actor the stuff he loves to put between his teeth (as Mr. Pinero would say, and has said).

"I predict for The Grain of Dust as profitable a success as that of Mr. Klein's The Gamblers—even though The Grain of Dust is the better play."

O. L. Hall in the Journal—"The play is not a momentous document, nor is it offered as such, but it tells its story, and its characters, with one striking exception, are rather definitely set forth. The only time within memory when Hackett has acted so well was when he brought out Sator's John Gayde's Honor. He is looking very well, thank you, and the reception his play had last night was equal to a prediction that he will be able this season to give his attention mostly to the more popular centers."

James O'Donnell Bennett in the Record-Herald—"James K. Hackett as the infatuated young lawyer gave an impersonation earnest and large in conception, but uneven and occasionally mannered in execution. The merit of his acting was vigor; the fault was an oppressive pomposity.

"Those honored veterans, E. M. Holland and Frank Barbeck—or honored experts, if they prefer that way of putting it—gave frequent lessons in emphasis and diction that were lost on most of their associates. Mr. Holland as a whimsical lawyer in middle life, who deprecates the throat-clutching tactics of his brethren of the law, was extremely deft, natural and humorous. He looked under 50, and so complete was the illusion that the spectators did not know him at his first entrance.

"Vaughan Trevor was another artist whose principal mission was to indicate that the act of acting still lives as an art while the efforts of Miss Moran and Miss Neff indicated that it is more or less in its infancy."

Eric Delamarter in Inter Ocean—"As novels of these mysterious 'money-powers' and impressive denizens of 'society' sell into the doze of heat called 'editions,' so it is probable that this new piece will endure like the Charles Dana Gibson illustrations which it resembles. It has language—large, insouciant language—with a roll and a ponderous if puzzling significance—and its situations resound with fervor.

"Mr. Hackett has a splendid company in his support. Following closely the lines indicated in the novel, he visualizes the hero as a mighty personality. He is gloriously tender with the girl, polite but stern with his enemies, and altogether demigodlike at all times, as he fittingly one who knows how to wear dress clothes and converse with a butler."

THE LADIES' LION.

past. The fussy lieutenant causes the excitement through his excessive fondness for she-society, comes to grief himself, and accidentally sets everything right in the last chapter."

Of the star, Percy Hammond of the Tribune remarks:

"One is reminded, however, that the player is the thing, and Mr. De Angelis produced. If laughter is good evidence, the equivalent of the $2 tariff for each orchestra chair. He wrote the play, and as is customary in such cases, he was kind to himself, leaving only the crumbs for the hungry Lazaruses of his cast. In The Ladies' Lion he is an amorous seaman, full of vanity over his romantic conquest, and with a light, occasionally nasty, of kissing and talking and singing about kissing. He dances frequently with his fanny legs and he has topical songs which discuss in frivolous rhyme all the usual subjects from triplets to trusts. The dangle—that never-failing source of merriment in comedy with music—is employed industriously by Mr. De Angelis twice in the course of the play. Once, after he has committed some grave misdemeanor or other against the sentimental part of the piece, he is most comical when called to account by the disturbed tenor. For five funny minutes he is unable to draw his sword from its scabbard, and, as his opponents jab and strike at him, he employs his facility of facial expression rather amusingly. At least, those present regarded it so, and the incident served to bring down the curtain on quite a demonstration."

Amy Leslie in the News is in the main commendatory.

"Its old-time atmosphere is not especially in the book or the melodies; but in the style adopted both by the star and the management in its presentation.

"Nothing novel, nothing surprising, nothing either faked or invented, enters in contact of The Ladies' Lion, and the result is rather agreeable, even if reminiscent. Several of the ensembles show the composer, W. T. Francis, in a pleasantly pretentious attitude of progressiveness, but the same old ring-around-a-rose management of the ensembles leaves the impression of ordinary quality. Nothing could squelch the battling solemnity of De Angels' splendid fun. It was a treat to enjoy his energy and watch his polish and technical strokes. He has never been more amusing and his venture will be a hit before it leaves the Illinois. It needs little pruning and only a complete rubbing up and proving the pieces."

Frederic Hatton of the Evening Post says of the score:

"The score provided by Mr. Francis is discreet and pleasing, recalling those of some of the insular musical comedies which are brought from London for our improvement by Charles Frohman. It has solos, duets, trios and counter-part ensembles in the fashion of our comic opera friends of the Gilbert and Sullivan period. And until its later act The Ladies' Lion recalls some of these worthy pieces. Then the spirit of the piece is that which Mr. Lederer has familiarized to us as French-vandeville."

Of the support Ashton Stevens of the Examiner remarks:

"Miss Martin was somewhat of a miniature Maxine Elliott in appearance—which should not offend any lady on the stage, not even Miss Elliott herself; and Miss Martin sings sweetly a song about When I Am Married (which is as far from the White We Are Married in The Belle of New York as The Ladies' Lion is from Pinaflore), and she sang a better one whose title sounds as though it might be Ding-Dong."

"Miss Whitford is thinner by several ounces than when last the footlights came between us; she looks not unlike a Ziegfeld edition of Miss Ethel Barrymore, and in her speaking voice are tones not unlike that distinguished artist's. Even a reminder of Miss Barrymore is something for which to be grateful. But just now Miss Whitford will serve her show self better by forgetting Miss Barrymore and every otherbody and remembering her lines."

"Hubert Wilke is in the cast, principally to remind us of our youth."

Jack Lait of the American adds his tribute to the cast, as follows:

"There is not a comic opera chorus. A dozen handsome women of the showgirl type serve as a chorus and as incidental players. They are distinguished more for their clothes and the grace with which they wear them than for their voices."

"Frank Rushworth as the romantic hero graces the part and Miss Florence Martin flirts opposite him, in fetching manner. Her love scenes are as colorless as those of an ingenue might be in real life. Miss Annabelle Whitford reveals a voice that even her friends never before gave her credit for, and when she learns her lines will fit comfortably into her part."

PRIEUR OPTIMISTIC.

there is a cry for American films in England, while American comedy and American drama seem too deep for the English mind, so that the exhibitor in selecting his "American films," which he feels so necessary to his program, is left none but the cowboy to choose from. Then, with the superabundance of productions of this type and the simple, open plot connected with nearly every one of these, the English exhibitor selects many of them both by the process of elimination and because of his knowledge of the English adversity to anything that might meanings or slightly covered ones.

Then, Mr. Prieur, the European manufacturer must meet the varied lot of demands and still sell his film. Few firms can afford to manufacture different films for different countries and few can afford to follow so many different lines of production as demanded by the several tastes. The Lux firm has attempted several plans to create an international film. One plan has been to produce special films from time to time, each aimed at the taste of some special country. The policy of "a good film once in a while" is an old one in the show business and while attended with disadvantages it is not lacking in advantages. At any rate, it seems a better plan than to produce each time a film which will at once please all the peoples to whom it must be shown. This latter plan will never do while there are so many films on the market and the exhibitor has his choice of so many. With so many films especially suited to the individual taste of the film for all nations, will he cast aside as mediocre?

The American manufacturer entering Europe must thus gauge his product to thus meet these sundry demands. We must also meet the somewhat ostentatious opposition to American goods which the European is raising. The European manufacturer finds it hard to understand the closed condition of the American market, so, giving up the puzzle, and only considering that it is closed, he does not look with much favor upon the growing demand for American goods with the portals of his own country and in most of the countries surrounding him and in his continent.

That there are at present being made and will in the future be made many changes is perfectly evident to Mr. Prieur. He thinks the more advanced of European manufacturers are studying the problems confronting them and he believes an early solution of some important ones will be the only thing to check the steadily increasing flow of films from America to Europe. The American, he says, will not study anything. Should he by chance see an opportunity, he will act a thousand times more quickly than the European, and he attributes the large sale of American films to progressive business methods and luck rather than to any carefully planned campaign to suit the European taste or tastes.

Mr. Prieur has little faith in the long film. He agrees it will attract a few but he sees its repellent powers. A long film must be either of a worthy theme and then necessarily a serious one or else it must be a series of light and disconnected events and will then possess a sameness and lack of variety from which filmdom is now suffering so seriously. The thousand-foot subject, in his opinion, will be the rule for some years to come, and while the adventurous manufacturer will continue from time to time to take advantage of the extraordinary offering as a drawing-card, the business as a whole will not permit of much of the long reel stuff if it will maintain its popularity as a light and wholesome amusement.

TWO NOTABLE FILMS.

self, and can, if necessary, be exhibited as a complete story. The first is David Copperfield's Younger Life; the second the story of Steerforth, and the third, The Loves of David Copperfield. The three films will be released on three consecutive Tuesdays, so that any exhibitor using but one Thanhouser film per week will be sure to get the entire production without interruption.

David Copperfield is, of course, played by three different people, but each actor carries the part well. David is not the central figure, however, as the book is not so much concerned with what David did as what he saw. The director has noticed this and has laid much emphasis upon the characters surrounding David. Thus Micawber, while a humorous character is one of the most interesting in the cast. Little Emily attracts more attention perhaps than any other single player for her size and manner provoke sympathy throughout the play both when played by the Thanhouser Kid in the first scenes and by an older actress later.

Next to Emily and Micawber, Uriah Heep is perhaps the most interesting personage both for his make up and splendid acting. Murdstone, David's foster father, has created himself a conspicuous part, and despite the disagreeable scene in which he encounters Aunt Betsey and her broom, he gains the sympathy of the audience. While we did not see Aunt Betsey drive the donkey off the lawn, we saw the lawn and Aunt Betsey in it. Her adoption of David, while occupying only a very few feet of film, is a graceful accomplishment. Her surprise is excellently expressed when David appears ragged and tattered before her eyes, while her indignation at Murdstone's attempt to take David away is nicely handled. She succeeds in creating good humor in this scene without spoiling the dramatic effect which has been created shortly previous.

Dora might have been improved, for she seems to be an almost sensible girl instead of the little doll Dickens has created her. She is pretty, however, and one can find no fault with David when he becomes infatuated with her. Perhaps her part only lacks naturalness in the light of the splendid character of the other parts, and surely she has a hard part to play.

In the hands of the director of the company the splendid play is made to live over again, each person alive before the eyes and yet of that seemingly unchangeable character as Dickens has created each. The film is the prize of the winter season so far as the season has progressed, and sets a pace which will be hard to follow by large productions coming later.

KALEM'S COLLEEN BAWN.

the Kalem Company has, while the story has not, presented the real and original scenes where the events were supposed to have occurred and probably did occur.

Thus Danny Mann's cottage has been reproduced in a splendid artistic fashion from photographs and measurements of the original cottage as it stands today. The furniture in this and many other scenes is the identical stuff supposed to have been used by the participants in the real tale and borrowed from the owners to be used in the picture. Anne Cante's castle is likewise reproduced in structure and the furniture and contents taken from the real castle and moved to the studio for the purpose of staging the scenes occurring in one of the rooms. The Colleen Bawn rock and Myles na Coppaleen's still are two of the scenes in the picture staged in the real rock and still as they are preserved today.

Some very splendid character work is done by many of the actors. Sidney Olcott as Danny Mann, Gene Gauntier as The Colleen Bawn, and Jack Clark as Myles, deserve special mention, for truly their work could not have been done better. Of the others much in general might be said, but to say that they take their places well and strongly back up the principals describes their work briefly and gives them just credit.

Like a good book, the film reads well. It has given a glimpse into Irish life which no book could have given, and aside from any interest attached to the thread of plot the production is interesting. This realistic view is necessary to the success of the story, and it is a feature by itself. With the actual scenes of the legend to work with and with enough film to properly carry out the minor details of the plot, this glimpse of Irish life is given excellent opportunity to present itself.

THE DIAMOND DRYER.

Chicago, September 23 (Special to The Billboard).—That the International Metal & Ferrotype Co. of Chicago have put something on the market is their Diamond Dryer and Follisher that is a boon to the minute photo men. It is evidenced by the many congratulatory letters they are receiving daily.

The many wonders that this little device works towards making a picture clearer and more substantial are almost unbelievable. It is so constructed that it can be instantly attached to any camera and makes the drying of the plates a matter of a few moments. Its initial cost is but a trifle and its cost of maintenance is a matter not to be counted when one sees the wonderful results which are obtained by its use. The International people claim a glossy finish can be obtained on any grade of plate and that after being put through their "diamond process" the plate will neither stick nor fade.

CHICAGO FILM NOTES.

tour of this state has made him familiar with the ground which he has to work, making it evident that his efforts will be fruitful of the best results.

Mr. Phil Lewis, who for the past few years has been associated with the Omaha office of the Chicago Film Exchange, is now in Chicago, and is again associated with the Chicago branch of this concern. Mr. Harry Lewis, his father, also returned with him. Mr. Harry Lewis while in the West brought to a close the deal which transferred the Co-operative Film Service to the William H. Swanson interests.

Mr. W. R. Rothacker, general manager of the Industrial Moving Picture Company, departed for the East on last Saturday to close several large advertising deals. Mr. Rothacker's progress in the industrial film business has been marvelous and it is due to his efforts that this branch of the business is becoming recognized as the twentieth century method of advertising.

KALEM SHOWS FEATURE.

The Kalem Company has arranged to give a series of private exhibitions of The Colleen Bawn film for exhibitors only in the following cities: Buffalo, N. Y., at the Vendome Theatre, September 25, at 10:30 a. m.; Cleveland, O., at the Hippodrome Theatre, September 26, 10:30 a. m.; Chicago, Ill., at the Theatreum Theatre, September 27, 9 a. m.; Kansas City, Mo., Yale Theatre, September 28, at 10 a. m.; St. Louis, Mo., Grand Central Theatre, September 29, 10 a. m.; Pittsburg, Pa., Arcade Theatre, September 30, 10:30 a. m.; Boston, Mass., Savoy Theatre, October 1, 10:30 a. m.; Philadelphia, Pa., Palace Theatre, October 1, 9:30 a. m.

These exhibits have been arranged in order to acquaint moving picture circles with the feature productions that the Kalem Co. has decided to make part of their policy from the present on.

MOTION PICTURE NOTES.

After a four months' stay in Europe, Carl Laemmle, president of the I. M. P. Company, writes from Berlin, Germany, that he will return to America about October 15. During Mr. Laemmle's stay abroad he has investigated the film business all over the continent and is very enthusiastic as to the future conditions. He has personally visited the film representatives and writes that film firms are eagerly sought and are giving satisfaction to exchange men and exhibitors. Mr. Laemmle writes that he will return home bringing with him many new and novel ideas for the picture and expects to spring something of a surprise in moving picture-dom. He is very much improved in health, having spent some time at Carlsbad at the famous baths, and will return eager to enter the busy career of business which has brought him success in the manufacture of films. He is very enthusiastic as to the future for the independent output.

During the absence of Bertram Adler from the Thanhouser Company, from which place he was removed to the hospital two weeks hence, a victim of typhoid, Mr. H. Z. Levine has temporarily assumed his responsibilities. Leo J. Ruhlstein was accomplishing temporarily the work of Mr. Adler until last week, when his other duties necessitated his departure from the Thanhouser forces.

Peter McCort, the theatrical agent of Denver, Colo., and handler of the K. & E. Bookings, who will in all probabilities control the new theatre now being erected, put pictures in the Tabor Opera House last summer, has expressed himself so pleased at the profitable result that he is thinking quite seriously of installing moving pictures at this same house at various intervals throughout the coming season.

Charles Simone, publicity man for the Nestor Company, is making his home at Bayonne, N. J., in order to be near the new Nestor office.

A motion picture house will soon be opened at Fulton, W. Va., a suburb of Wheeling, W. Va., by Joseph Thomas.

Ben P. Shulberg of the Evening Mail and Film Reports is now with the Rex Company.

VAUDEVILLE CHATTER.

The Empress Theatre, which has not been doing a wonderful business, had big houses last week when one of the best shows that has been organized for the Sullivan-Congress Circuit appeared there. On Wednesday night of last week the house was sold out at both shows.

C. S. Hatch, manager of the Linden, has secured the lease of a property directly across the street and will build a theatre with 2,200 seating capacity and will play pictures at the Linden.

Hen Hornstein, professional manager of the Harry Von Tiltz Music Pub. Co., returned to Chicago last week after five months in New York. Hen put over about a dozen big hits and claims that he will do the same thing this season.

Charles Colby of the J. C. Matthews Office, dropped into the Parkway one night last week as Fred Sahara of the Sherras, was walking through the auditorium picking out objects for Mrs. Sahara to identify. Sahara reached over and touched Colby and asked: "Where did you last play on the bill with this gentleman?" "At the Tivoli, in London ten years ago," came the reply, which Mr. Colby vows is correct.

Sara Brin recently appeared at the Lawndale with a degree of success which has brought her in for many compliments on the part of the theatrical colony. Miss Brin is an employee of the Hopkins Lyric Circuit and fills club engagements at night.

Charles A. Naylor of Joplin, Mo., a nephew of Charles E. Hopkins, spent several days in Chicago last week.

LONDON LETTER.

For Harker, while the music throughout is appropriately sensuous and passion-inspiring. At the first performance the prologue was spoken by Julia Neilson with her usual effectiveness. Unfortunately, somewhat of a gloom was cast by the serious illness of Fred Terry, who was to have played Mercutio and who has devoted months of hard work in preparing for the production in which he wanted to see his daughter's triumph. But he, no doubt, finds comfort in this disappointment from the fact that the production has caught the imagination of the public, and, although we may criticize the playing of Miss Terry in many ways, the public is charmed by it and the play looks like going on for a long while to come.

To come down from the heights of Shakespeare to that of modern comedy we have had Charles Hawtrey reappear in a part that not only suits him but commends itself to the onlookers. It must be a long time since he appeared in the role of anything but an irresponsible liar or a reprehensible philanderer—or both. In The Great Name, which he has adapted from the German—the first time he has done anything of the kind since he adapted The Private Secretary a quarter of a century ago—he is a very human and very lovable person, a successful composer of musical comedies, who at the crisis of another man's life does the latter a generous turn and has no reason to regret it.

John Harcourt is a successful composer of jingling melodies and the pet of the public, making fortunes with his golden, if trivial, notes. While Robert Brand, a musician who in talent and depth could "eat the head off Harcourt," can not get a hearing for his work. But there comes a time when Brand has a sympathy for which he can get a performance if only a great name is attached to it. Harcourt lends that name and under circumstances which make for magnanimity. Of course the sympathy is a success, the poor man is rendered famous and happy and everything ends happily with the marriage of almost everyone engaged in the production. The plot is a mere nothing, but the piece gives occasion for many individual clever character studies. The best of all is that of Isaac Manhard, the music publisher, played by Arthur Playfair. This is one of the funniest things seen on the stage here for quite a number of years. James Hearn as Brand also has a fine part and holds the sympathies of the house while the neglected and hard-up genius tells what the opportunity means for him. Hawtrey in his new part of the good fellow does very well, and altogether the piece is one of those light comedies which keep the audience on good terms with itself throughout and provide it with a real after-dinner amusement.

The latest recruit to actor-managership is Robert Lorraine, who lately has done more living than acting. He has taken a lease of the Criterion Theatre and will open with a revival of Man and Superman, himself playing in his old part of John Tanner. He also promises a revival of The Sloop to Conquer and intends to produce Cyrano de Bergerac. Although he has been in management on your side, Lorraine has never before attempted it here and he avers that if he repeats his American success he will be content. He ought to do well, for he is not only one of the most brilliant actors but he is also exceedingly popular personally.

The Concert opened well here, although some of the newspapers asked it for all they were worth. A good company is playing it and they get all the fun out of it, putting any amount of vim and enthusiasm into their work. Henry Ainley, the finest lover on the English stage today, has a lot more opportunity for clever character work as Onor Arany than he has had for some long time, and his impersonation of the musical, grown-up child who plays the chief part in the farce in as near perfection as could be. The producers made equally good choices, too, when they picked Irene Vanbrugh for the dapper Miss Arany and Charles Bryant for the doctor, and these three, well supported by the rest, make the piece rip from beginning to end.

One for Hammerstein! He has made the excellent discovery that aspiring composers and performers get little chance of seeing finished works on account of the prohibitive prices charged here for opera and has therefore announced his intention of deriving his program from the ranks of the music schools here. If they like to undertake this work they can see the show for nothing. The idea is undoubtedly a good one and seems to be catching on immensely.

Roster of the Ideal Amusement Co., under CARVER, is as follows: Ben Haanclmann, manager; Hober Heagan, treasurer; Bert Miller, agent; Hal Clark, leader of band; Ed Dunham, boss carver; A. Zerber, property man; Tillie Clark, Maud Miller, Kate Willson, Blanch Prescott, Paul Prescott, Henry Jones, Billie Wells, R. J. Le Band, performers.

ABORNS SIGN MISS LE BARON.

Milton and Sargent Aborn have re-engaged Louise Le Baron as prima donna contralto with the Aborn English Grand Opera Company, which opens its annual tour at Albany September 21. Miss Le Baron filled the same position with the organization last season and her re-engagement now completes the cast of the Aborn Company for the coming season.

The list of principal artists is as follows: Edith Helena, Jane Abercrombie and Elias Silverling, sopranos; Leonid Samoloff, Domenico Ruaso and Arthur Green, tenors; Louise Le Baron, Hattie Belle Ladd and Zoe Fulton, contraltos; Louis Kreidler and Renato Torti, baritones; William Schuster, basso; Philip Fein, basso; Carl Nicola, first conductor; Emanuel Camolin, assistant conductor, and others.

Meas. Aborn had contemplated starring Miss Le Baron this season, but did not succeed in securing a suitable opera for her, so she will continue with the Aborn English Grand Opera Company for another year, becoming a star under the Aborn banner in a new opera comique the following season.

CHANGE NAME OF THEATRE.

Frank McKee and William Harris announce with the beginning of their lease of the Majestic Theatre, at Fifty-ninth Street and Broadway, on October 1, it will be renamed the Park Theatre. This is due to their desire to disassociate this playhouse from the class of attractions seen there during the past season; and also to apply an historic name to a New York theatre.

The New Park Theatre will open under the management of Mr. McKee, October 23, when Henry B. Harris will present the latest London musical success, The Quaker Girl, now in its second year at George Edwards' Adelphi Theatre, London. Clifton Crawford will be featured, and other prominent people in the cast will be Lucy Weston Pope, Percival Knight, Maude Gay, Daphne Glenn and Nellie McHenry.

Thurston, the magician, opened his fifth annual tour at the Franklin Square Theatre, Worcester, Mass., Labor Day, to a capacity audience, matinee and evening. Mr. Thurston presented many new and startling illusions, among them being The Phantom Piano, The Spirit Paintings, and the much-talked-of Indian Rope Trick. The entire performance went without a hitch, and is pronounced by the Worcester press to be the best exhibition of magic ever presented in the city. The Lambert Brothers, late of the New York Hippodrome, have been engaged by Mr. Thurston as an extra added attraction this season.

Frederick Stanhope, stage manager and assistant producer of the New Theatre Company, has been engaged by Liebler & Co. to fill a similar position with The Blue Bird Company when that play is revised at the Century Theatre about the middle of next month. Mr. Stanhope's familiarity with the original production should be of great value to Hugh Ford, the Liebler & Co. stage director, in producing the revival.

Charles D. Jackson has completed the cast for his new comedy, The Golden Rule, Ltd., which he will produce under his own management, the season opening in New London, Conn., on September 23. Louis Morrell and Madge Tyrone will portray the leading roles. Eugene Powers and the author will assume the comedy parts. Others in the cast are Jennie Dickerson, Charlotte Townsend, Sylvia Norris, Mirzan Chedler, Patricia Fisher, Philip Sheffield, Erville Alderson and Martin J. Cady. Rehearsals will commence on Labor Day under the author's direction.

The Irish Players from the Abbey Theatre, Dublin, who have come over to America to show what an "institution" really means, have divided their entertainments into what they call "First Program," "Second Program," "Third Program" and "Fourth Program." The first will consist of A Few Words, by Mr. Yeats; The Shadow of the Glen, a comedy in one act, by J. M. Synge, followed by Birthright, a tragedy in two acts, by T. C. Murray, and concluding with Hyacinth Halvey, a comedy in one act, by Lady Gregory. The Second Program will have The Well of the Saints, a play in three acts, by J. M. Synge, and Spreading the News, a comedy in one act, by Lady Gregory. The Third will offer Kathleen in Houlahan, a tragedy in one act, by W. B. Yeats, and The Playboy of the Western World, by J. M. Synge. The Fourth Program will produce The Eloquent Dempsey, a comedy in three acts, by Wm. Boyle, and Riders to the Sea, a one-act tragedy, by J. M. Synge.

The roster of the company supporting Mr. Sanford Dodge in The Right of Way, season 1911-12, is as follows: Sanford Dodge, Thomas Eastman, Edward Robson, David Dale, Walter Robson, Andrew Castle, Harry Bernard, Forrest Cornish, Edward Williams, William Moore, Clarence Taylor, Frank Risdale, Fred Lewis, Adelle Nickerson, Louise Clark, Harriet Gay, Clara Wilson. The executive staff consists of: R. A. Johnson, manager; A. C. Godfrey, business manager; Walter Robson, stage manager; Edward Robson, master of properties. Roster of Jack Hoskins' A Millionaire Tramp Co. (Eastern): J. W. Harpstrite, business manager; Franklin McNally, Frank King, Bessie Cole, Josephine Harria, Virginia Rogers, and Francis Rogers in the title role.

It is rumored that Jackson, Mich., capitalists will soon construct a $100,000 theatre at that place.

rest, B. H. Burnside, Charles Gebest and Jean Schwartz.

Already a publicity department has been started in each one of the cities to be visited, and the purpose of the tour and the character of the entertainment to be given will be thoroughly made known in each city during the winter months.

This will be the first time in the history of theatricals that such a tour has ever been arranged, but the committee have studied the matter thoroughly and feel certain that it can be made with little inconvenience to the members of the organization, and that a substantial profit can be realized and placed to the credit of the building fund of the club.

WHAT THE DOCTOR ORDERED.

Liams may always be counted on for skillful playing, though he is not comedian enough to fill in the outlines of such a part as he had here with matter to make it thoroughly amusing.

"The best figure in the play was provided by Allan Pollock, as a particularly ampercilious and lackadaisical 'lilly-ass' type, and there was good work by William McVay, Kate Meek and Mabel Bert. The last two, however, were occasionally too slow for the general action of the piece, and their scenes were apt to drag.

"For one thing, at least, the jarring couple should have rejoined. They possessed in the person of Katherine Bayard Bell a particularly agreeable and soft-voiced maid, whose speech and action were always very soothing after the hub-bub created by the members of the family."

CIRCUS TRAVELING IN ARKANSAS

night house and had it not been for a dangerous-looking storm coming up when it was time to open the doors, there would have been a great turnout, but, as it was, there was a magnificent audience present.

At Ft. Smith the officials of the Frisco were very kind and allowed the show to unload on the main line right at the lot and the officials of the Iron Mountain also did the same with the loading. However, on account of the heavy rain which did strike after the night show, the show again had trouble loading because of the peculiar situation at the runs and the lot and did not get out of town until after daybreak the next morning, and then the show ran to Russellville, passing up Clarksville, and again being on the line.

Whoever reported to The Billboard about the show business at Ft. Smith proved to be not only a poor prophet, but an excellent purveyor of distorted statement.

The facts are these concerning the Ft. Smith circus battle. The 101 Ranch did show first, but it arrived late on account of a long run from Neosho where it had sacrificed the evening before in order to reach Ft. Smith. They were on a small lot and did not put up all of their seating capacity. They made the parade at 1 o'clock, opened the doors at 2:30, and played to less than half a house in the afternoon and possibly two-thirds of a house at night. The 101 reporter stated that the attendance at the Hagenbeck-Wallace Show indicated that the people were waiting for the third show. Now, as a matter of fact, the Hagenbeck-Wallace Show had not yet exhibited at Ft. Smith when the 101 Ranch report was written.—H. and Prince Nelson, in a loop-the-loop act, make up a list of attractions that far surpasses any ever seen in this vicinity.

This part of the exhibition has received its share of attention from the managers and neither time nor money has been spared to set a high standard of amusements.

K. G. Barknot is in full charge of the midway, and this is a sufficient guarantee that the midway will compare favorably with those of any similar exhibition. There is not a single offensive act on the street, all of the shows being clean and up-to-date. Each and every one of the shows are doing fine business, and the midway, both from an amusement and financial standpoint, is a big success. The singing of Miss Lillian La Blanche, accompanied by the Midway Band, is calling forth more than favorable comment.

H. P. Lucas of Nashville is at the head of the admission department and is handling the crowds in fine style.

Business at the Knoxville theatres has been very heavy since the start of the exposition and one and all are offering fine bills.

THE VEILED PROPHET CELEBRATION.

The subjects of the floats as arranged are: No. 1. The Veiled Prophet; 2. The Temple; 3. Reception of Washington; 4. Franklin at Court; 5. Coronation of George III; 6. Louis at Tuller; 7. Louis XV at Versailles; 8. Frederic the Great; 9. Ferdinand VI, King of Spain; 10. Joseph I of Austria; 11. Maria Theresia of Hungary; 12. Joseph of Portugal; 13. Peter the Great; 14. Stanislaus II of Poland; 15. Christian VI of Denmark; 16. Gustave III of Sweden; 17. Mahmut II, Sultan of Turkey; 18. Mikado of Japan; 19. Spanish Rule in Mexico; 20. Kien Lung of China; 21. Prince of India; 22. Nadir Shah of Persia.

After the parade the annual ball will take place in the Coliseum, which is a most exclusive society affair. The balance of the week will be given over to aeroplane flights with various kinds of machines. These will all occur in the afternoon and admission will be free. At night the theatres will furnish the only attractions. The Buffalo Bill-Pawnee Bill Wild West Show will also be an attraction during this week. WILL J. FARLEY.

UP AND DOWN BROADWAY.

George D. Baker's dramatization of Harold MacGrath's novel, The Goose Girl, has proven an instantaneous hit and Baker was riding a worthy successor to Graastark in this charming play. Another company is being organized to open October 12. This will not be in any sense a number two company. Absolutely the same scenic equipment will be carried. The cast will be as carefully chosen as the one which created the play.

Er Lawshe Jr., nine years old, who, under the stage name of Emmett Hampton, plays the role of Unborn Tyl, in The Blue Bird, was out of the cast at the New Theatre part of last week as the result of a painful accident that narrowly missed a fatal ending. He was riding his bicycle at Broadway and Ninety-eighth Street when, in turning a corner he crashed into a heavy furniture truck. He was hurled under the vehicle and saved only by the quick halt of the driver. He escaped fatal injury, however, and was soon released from the hospital.

Harry Riddings left Monday afternoon, September 18, for Hot Springs, N. C., to spend two weeks living out in the open air. While it isn't definitely settled, the impression prevails that he will return to his position as booking agent for Henry W. Savage at the end of that time.

Harry R. Truelson, formerly of California Frank's All-Star Wild West Show, has joined the Lulu Glaser Company in Miss Dudesnack, playing the part of Mr. McLean.

Charles Bird, general representative for the Shuberts, is recovering his health, which was seriously impaired by an attack of pneumonia about ten days ago. His recovery is now assured and as soon as he is able to leave the hospital, will recuperate completely in the country before resuming his office duties.

Lila Rhodes, cousin of George M. Cohan and at present a member of his company, The Little Millionaire, which enjoyed its metropolitan premiere at the Geo. M. Cohan Theatre Monday night, September 25, announces her engagement to Chas. King of the team of Brice and King. The two became friends while playing opposite the leading roles of The Yankee Prince after George M. Cohan and his sister Josephine had deserted the production. The marriage is expected to take place in February.

Word came by cable to Charles Frohman Tuesday, September 19, that Miss Pauline Chase played Ann, the leading feminine role in Man and Superman, with Robert Lorraine in the opposite part, at the Criterion Theatre, London, beginning September 26. Miss Chase will continue in the part up to the annual engagement of Peter Pan at the Duke of York's on Christmas night.

Forbes-Robertson and his company, to appear for the third consecutive season in The Passing of the Third Floor Back, will sail from England aboard the steamship Campania on October 14. Mr. Forbes-Robertson's niece, Maud Buchanan, will this year play the role of Stacia, the slavey, instead of Mollie Pearson.

The date for the opening of the new entertainment in which Gaby Deslys appears in Les Debats de Chicane, as well as the new Revue de Revue, has been definitely set for Wednesday evening, September 27.

The Banker's Daughter, written by the late Bronson Howard, produced for the first time at the Union Square Theatre on September 30, 1878, is being revived by the regular stock company at the Academy of Music this week. Mrs. Fisk began rehearsals September 20 of The New Marriage, Langdon Mitchell's comedy, at the Lyceum Theatre. The company to support Mrs. Fisk includes Joseph Kilgour, Shelley Hull, Douglas Paterson, T. Tamamoto, J. T. Chaffie, John T. Burke, Gladys Hanson, Hattie Russell, Elizabeth Fagan, Heleas van Brugh, Gilda Varesi, Edwain O'Connell and Anne Bradley.

When Over the River is produced on Broadway, Charles Dillingham and F. Ziegfeld Jr. expect to spring a sensation in the person of one of the three Methven Sisters.

Fred G. Latham, who enjoys a reputation as one of the best-known stage producers of light opera in America, has taken charge of the rehearsals of The Enchantress, by Victor Herbert, in which Kitty Gordon will be seen on Broadway next month, at the New York Theatre.

THE POCKET UMBRELLA

The evolution of the umbrella into the Pocket Umbrella is the only one which gives the proper service to the traveling people. Just drop it in your toilet bag and you find it there when caught in ruin. If no rain you can not lose it. The average person spends many times as a year for umbrellas and soiled clothing than our Pocket Umbrella costs, and still never have one which accedes most. Our Pocket Umbrella is always with you, and will last a lifetime, as same is absolutely rust-proof.

This is the only proper umbrella for a lady. Put in a leather case, as a handsome music roll. As one lady remarked when buying one, "A woman's heart could not stand the temptation of seeing one, but she must buy it."

There are no parts to be taken off or put on, but simply telescope it to about one-third its length. Any child can open it in five seconds and close it in twenty.

When wanted as a cane, it can be used as such, and it only telescopes when purposely done so. There is no difference in its appearance from any high grade umbrella.

Fill out the blank and mail today, and we will by return mail send you our booklet, which illustrates and describes the umbrella, and also our guarantee for same.

SAID AND SEEN IN CHICAGO.

The Majestic Monday afternoon. They will appear in a condensed version of Sheridan's Ivils, which they call Hot Acres. Another feature will be the appearance of the Arkaloff Ballad Orchestra, performing on their national Russian instruments. Others on the bill are Rosaby's Greater London, Felix and Cairo, Johnny Ford, the dancer, and Mullen and Coogan, eccentric comedians. The last attractions holding over are enumerated hereafter.

Kyle, Hellew and company begin a second and last week in Chicago at Hubert Henry Davis' The Mollusc. The sparkling comedy will be supplanted on October 2 by Mine, Alla Nazimova and company in a new play by a new American playwright, Algernon Hovey, son of the late Prof. Hovey.

The play which is known as The Other Mary is said to be a serious drama modeled on the Ibsen plan, and is based on the premise that the sinner has a function to perform in the scheme of life, as well as the saint. It was produced for the first time last Thursday night in Utica, N. Y., and will be presented in some other New York and Canadian towns before it comes here. Mine, Nazimova's support includes Brandon, Tynan, Malcolm Williams, Henry Stephenson, Grace Reals and Luria Moore.

William Hodge begins his final week in Chicago at The Grand from home at the Grand on Sunday night, and will then go to Milwaukee where the Tarkington-Wilson play has not yet been seen. On Sunday night, October 1, C. M. S. McLehanna's adaptation of a German piece called Kasernenluft, will be presented for the first time on a metropolitan stage at the Grand under the name, The Affair in the Barracks. The play will have its try-out for three nights in Columbus, Ohio, previously to coming here. There are thirty-four characters in the play, and the principal parts will be played by Emmett Corrigan, Emil Hoch, Walter Hiltzbeck, Menfice Johnson, Charles Balzer, Hardee Kirkland, Emmett Shackleford, Henry Schumann-Helak, William Yarrance and the Misses Suzanne Sheldon, Isetta Jewell, Helen Weatherly, Florence Lader and Ella Baker. The play is in four acts, requiring three settings, all illustrating various departments of the barracks in a German military post.

Jefferson De Anza also begins his second and final week in Chicago at The Ladies' Lion at the Illinois on Sunday night. He will be followed by Miss Edith Tallafiero in Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm, a pastoral play from the pens of Kate Douglas Wiggin and Charlotte Thompson. It ran all last season at the Republic Theatre in New York, and is scheduled for an indefinite run here. The supporting company will include Archie Boyd, Marie Day, Elizabeth Glasgow, Sam Colt, Ada Deavers, Viola Fetterman, Edith Ross and Etta Bryan.

The coming week is also the last of Holbrook Blinn and company in The Boss at the Garrick. On October 1 The Chocolate Soldier is destined to return to Chicago via the Garrick boards. Alice Yorke and Frances Hewitt will alternate in the role of the heroine; George Tallman, the original American Alekta, will sing that part; Francis J. Boyle will be the Masakroff; the character of Rumeril will be taken by Charles Rogers; Sylvia Langola will sing Popoff; Gene Lubeska, the March; and Mildred Rogers, who was one of the Boston Opera Company's favorites a year before last, will enact the role of Anrella.

James K. Hackett, in The Grail of Dust, a review of which has been elsewhere, begins his second week at the Blackstone on Sunday night. Miss Olive Harper has succeeded Miss Olive Oliver in the role of Ursula.

John Barrymore and Thomas A. Wise in The Sam begin their final fortnight at the Olympic. At the termination of their engagement, The Fortune Hunter, much changed as to cast, will return to this theatre, the scene of its triumphs.

The final two weeks of An Everyday Man, with Thos. W. Ross in the leading role, is also announced for the Cort. On October 8 and 9 Edith Ellis' dramatic version of E. P. Roe's novel, He Fell in Love with His Wife, will be presented at the Cort under the name of Partners.

Paul Farnum and William Farnum in The Little Rebel are doing the accustomed capacity business at the Chicago Opera House. They begin their fifth week here tomorrow night. Ziegfeld's Polka is still packing down after three weeks of big business at the Colonial, and the end is not yet in sight.

At the La Salle Opera House business is up to the average, with Louisiana Lou as the magnet.

The Deep Purple continues as the attraction at McVickers Theatre and the historic playhouse is playing to its accustomed large attendance. Charles Waldron replaces Edwin Arden in the role of William Lath on Sunday night. He will be remembered here through his excellent work in The Fourth Estate. Mr. Arden leaves the cast of the Armstrong-Miller play to assume the place of leading man with Miss Simons (La Bary) in New York. Sonnets will be given at the 200th Chicago performance of The Deep Purple October 2.

The success of The Gypsy Baron at the German Theatre at Sedgwick and Division Streets has encouraged the management to retain the tinsel Strauss opera for another week, with the exception of Saturday and Sunday nights and Saturday matinee, when dramatic works in German will be presented. During the season Manager Hanisch will present thirteen operettas, twelve standard plays and a number of others that are rarely seen on this side of the water. Beside The Gypsy Baron, now being played, The Rat, The Merry War, The Beggar Student, Casparone, Rococo, Patience, The Sweet Maiden and Spring Zephyr. Lehar's Merry Widow and The Rocom Vicer, Offenbach's The Grand Duchess, and La Belle Helene will be sung. Gorky, Schmitzler, D'Annunzio, Hoffmann, Sander, Hauptmann and Tchekov will be presented in twelve literary nights. Among the other works to receive presentation at the hands of the Hanisch company will be Schiller's The Robbers, Wilhelm Tell and Mary Stuart; Goethe's Faust and Goethe von Berlichingen; and Lessing's Nathan the Wise and Minna von Barnhelm.

which was a starring vehicle for Hilda Spong, will afford Marie Nelson, the leading lady, an opportunity to contrast her work as Mrs. Rutherford with that of Patricia O'Brien, in which she was the hit of the Rose Stahl vehicle, The Chorus Lady, last week.

At Chicago's only other stock house, the Marlowe, the Marvin Stock Company will present The Chorus Lady, with Lelia Shaw in the role of Patricia O'Brien. Albert Phillips will play Dan Mallory, and Daniel Reed, Alice Condon, Sam Meharry, Sydney Payne and the rest of the company will be suitably cast.

Three Twins, with all of the original effects, costume and scenic, and with a large chorus of stately show girls and agile broilers, will occupy the boards at the National for one week, commencing Sunday matinee. Mayme Gehrne heads the company.

At the Alhambra, The Black Patti, the favorite singer of the colored race, will make her farewell appearance in Chicago. This is the last of the Stahl & Hsivlin attractions that will play the Alhambra, Messrs. Marvin and Hsivlin having determined to begin operations as independent producers. The first of their offerings will be a Stuhorn Cinderella, the producing rights of which they have acquired from Mort Slinger. William Jossey, known as leading man and as author of The End of the Trail and The Little Lady of Heart's Desire, has been engaged to stage the dramatic sections of the piece, and the other plays, musical and non-musical, with which the season at the Alhambra will be filled out. Jossey will enact John Barrymore's part in A Stuhorn Cinderella, and later will play the part of Dan Mallory in The Chorus Lady.

Rose Melville, who announces her intention to retire permanently from the stage at the end of the present season, comes to the Haymarket tomorrow for a series of six Hopkins. The character of the Posy County girl is never-ending in its appeal to all classes, and the Hooper comedy-drama is always assured big business.

Thomas E. Shea returns to Chicago the coming week, opening at the Imperial commencing Sunday matinee, September 24, with a new play of his own composition entitled A Man and His Wife, which had its Chicago premiere a short time since at the Haymarket. He will play this on Sunday afternoon and night, Tuesday and Thursday matinees, and on Friday night, on Monday and Wednesday nights, and Saturday matinee he will present The Belle, and on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday nights he will be seen in Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, his masterpiece.

The Next Egg, the comedy by Anne Caldwell, in which Zeida Sears starred last season, will be the offering at the Crown for the next seven days, while at the Bijou The Convict's Daughter will hold the boards for the same period.

Ben Atwell has just announced the definite dates of the appearance of Mikail Mordkin's All-Star Imperial Russian Ballet. Chicago will see the Muscovite dancers for over a month before New York will have that opportunity. They will appear at the Auditorium November 13, 18 and 19, but they will not appear in New York until Christmas.

George Wynn, actor and stage director, has been added to the teaching forces of the Chicago Musical College School of Acting, of which J. H. Gilmore is director. Last season Mr. Wynn played E. M. Holland's part in The House of a Thousand Candles.

Elbert Hubbard will lecture at the Studebaker Sunday afternoon, October 8. The forty-sixth annual series of weekly musical and dramatic matinees by members of the faculty and pupils of the Chicago Musical College will begin in the Ziegfeld Theatre October 7 at 11 a. m.

William Faversham in Edward Knoblauch's comedy, The Faun, follows Pinaflore into the Lyric, being scheduled to open there on October 9. Another early booking at the Lyric is Harry Lander, Scotch vaudeville comedian, who will appear at the head of his own company for six days, commencing November 6.

Early future bookings at other playhouses in the Loop are: Leo Dietrichstein and company in The Consul at the Blackstone, October 15 or 16; Everywoman, with Jane Oakar, Marie Wainwright, Frederick Warde and Nestor Lennox, at the Auditorium, October 16; Excuse Me, with Scott Cooper, James Lackaye, Willis Sweetnam, John Westley, and others, at the Studebaker, October 23; and Louise Dresser, Will Philbrick and Mabel McCane in A Lovely Liar, at the Olympic, October 28.

Grace Griswold, who is a member of the company that will play Over Night at the Princess Theatre, is greatly interested in fostering the club spirit among her sister actresses and among the lady artists and musicians of her native Chicago. While playing here she intends to agitate the project to organize a club here for women along the lines of the Three Arts Club of New York and the Cushman Club of Philadelphia.

The Guest of Honor, a novel by William Hodge, who plays the leading role of the doughy Hooper at The Man from Home, has just been issued in book form, and is selling in the National Magazine and won much praise for its versatile author.

A new play by Robert Herrick and Harrison Rhodes, called The Maternal Instinct, has been chosen by the Drama Players for portrayal in their repertoire under the auspices of the Chicago Theatre Society this winter. Mr. Herrick, who is one of the leading American novelists, is a member of the faculty of the University of Chicago. His collaborator, Mr. Rhodes, is an ex-Chicagoan and well known as a journalist and writer of light fiction. With the addition of Lionel Belmore, Robert Miller, Sarah Blala, Fred Erie, Mrs. Eric, Mrs. Donald Robertson, Olive Garnett and Frank Hardin to the company in the last few days, the personnel of the organization has been completed. The tour of the Drama Players will commence at Baltimore on October 30.

Dempsey G. Wren, who was recently rejected from the regular army as being too large in physique, has joined the cast of The Little Rebel at the Chicago Opera House. He will play the part of the bodyguard of Virgil Carey.

Jack Slotkin, son of N. Slotkin, the wealthy Chicago animal dealer, has started a tour of the Southern fairs with a very attractive bird and vase wheel. He has the prettiest frame-up yet seen in fair or carnival circles, carrying his own top, with plenty of canary birds, parrots, vases, vases and china, and there is no doubt but what he will meet with deserved success.

Jack Slotkin opened, in Louisville, at the Kentucky State Fair, September 11, and reports big business. Slotkin is the young man who managed his father's Monkeyland Show on the Wisconsin Circuit of the United Fairs Booking Association last season.

C. B. Crawford of London, England, the well-known promoter of European skating rinks, was in Chicago on a business mission last week. W. G. Bean, chairman of the board of directors of the Blackpool Pleasure Beach, Ltd., of London, England, was also a Chicago visitor.

THE BILLBOARD MAIL FORWARDING SERVICE

Persons desiring to avail themselves of The Billboard's facilities for forwarding mail matter to members of the amusement profession, are requested to bear in mind that the headquarters for this gratuitous distribution of mail are at the CINCINNATI offices, where all such matter should be addressed, unless it is known that it will be more convenient for addressee to receive it through the New York, Chicago or St. Louis bureaus. In Cincinnati a corps of experienced clerks is employed for the sole purpose of recording the whereabouts of transients, and handling mail addressed to them in care of The Billboard.

The postoffices adjunct of the New York, Chicago and St. Louis bureaus of The Billboard is maintained only for the accommodation of those who can procure quicker service by having mail sent to the branch offices, where they can call for it in person, or from which it may be remailed to them with greater despatch than from the publication offices at Cincinnati. No attempt is made to handle mail addressed to the branch offices without specific instructions, while thousands of pieces of mail matter pass through the Cincinnati offices every week and are remailed to addressee from information at hand without the delay of holding and advertising these names in this list.

In addressing mail to individuals in care of The Billboard, kindly indicate what company (if any) each is identified with or in what line of the business he is engaged.

All mail advertised in this list is being held at the Cincinnati office unless otherwise indicated by the characters * (New York),  (Chicago),  (St. Louis).

WANTED AT ONCE—Singing and Dancing Comedian, Singing and dancing Soubrette, and small Chorus Girls. HARRY TREASE, Mgr. Musical Comedy Co., Airdome Theatre, Adrian, Mich.

CINCINNATI, O.

The theatres did only a fair business last week. The ideal weather outdoors seems to be more of an attraction than theatricals indoors.

George Evans and His Honey Boy Minstrels were the attraction at the Grand, and considering the fact that Dockstader's Minstrels had played the Lyric the week before, did very well. The singing was one of the strong points of the performances. Evans was just as funny as ever, and the Banjoists pleased everybody.

The Family was seen for the first time in Cincinnati at the Lyric and created a very favorable impression as a purely American drama. The presenting company is an exceptionally strong one. Mrs. L. C. Yeamans as the mother, and Miss Kathryn Stevens as the eloping daughter Madeline, being particularly good.

The famous old melodrama, The White Slave, was the offering at the Walnut, and did as good a business as any show in town. The play was exceptionally well staged, and the company could hardly be improved upon.

Keith's Columbia presented an excellent bill, with Minnie Seligman, William Bramwell, and Company in a sketch, The Drums of Doom, carrying off the honors, closely pressed by Montgomery and Moore, who are just naturally "funny." George Miller and Ed. Correll are skillful comedians. Rowena Stewart and Gladys Alexandria were well received in a sketch of stage life, called Broadway Love. Nevins and Erwood, in a black-face comedy act, The Four Regals, and Fox and Foxie also pleased.

Heuck's had a thriller, A Fugitive From Justice, which also contained some good comedy, particularly the love-making between George Sinclair as the Irish Corporal, and Edith Grey as the French Maid.

John Lawrence Players are doing exceptionally well at the New Lyceum. Last week's bill was How Women Sin and was well handled.

The Empress presented a well-balanced vaudeville bill. Dean and Price please in the opener, A Student's Apartment. The sketch, Erin's Isle, was noticeable because of the exceptionally fine singing of some popular Irish melodies. Gruet and Gruet have a colored minstrel act that is a scream. The Sarathaler Troupe of Tyrolean yodlers were fair. The amusing antics of Mme. Bartholdi's trained cockatoos pleased the crowd.

The Columbia Burlesquers at the Standard were up to the high standard set by this house since the season opened, while at People's, the Lady Buccaneers and John C. Hanson, a German comedian, kept the audience in roars of laughter.

The Auditorium, offering vaudeville, is enjoying good patronage.

The Robinson Opera House opened the latter part of September with vaudeville. The Casion Amusement Co. of Detroit, the owners, will do all the booking. Tom McEwen will be manager and George E. Harris, musical director.

Central Labor Council has written a letter to the City Council stating that in some of the moving picture shows in Cincinnati the machines are operated by inexperienced boys and men who at any moment may be instrumental in causing a large loss of life. The matter was referred to the Committee on Law, which, with the City Solicitor, will make an investigation. The outcome will probably be an ordinance compelling operators to pass a rigid examination before they are licensed. The City Building Inspector states that he has, of his own accord, thoroughly determined the competency of each applicant before granting a license, and that in his opinion, the letter has not accurately stated conditions as they exist, and intimated that the criticism is largely due to the fact that some of the operators are not members of the union.

Messrs. Helf and Moran, former Newport, Ky. boys, and now successful New York song writers, were guests of Lew Dockstader in Cincinnati during his week at the Lyric.

The Dramatic Art Academy opened for enrollment in its new and attractive location in Odd Fellows' Temple. A large and interesting supply of material has been gathered to be used in recitals and plays this season. A new feature of the Academy will be a class in the value of the drama in literature.

A Billboard visitor was Charles McClintock, who during the summer months is the general agent of the 101 Ranch Wild West Shows. Mr. McClintock was in Cincinnati ahead of W. A. Brady's Way Down East Company.

Fercy H. Levin, the well-known manager, was also a Billboard caller this week. Mr. Levin, owing to a protracted illness, has released Isabel C. Jackson, whom he managed for five seasons. He is now connected with Elchenlaub Attractions, as a manager for them in the field, and reports business way above the average.

James Hinton, former Cincinnati newspaper man, now with the Savage forces, was in Cincinnati in the interest of the English production of The Girl of the Golden West, the new Puccini opera that Savage will stage this fall.

Last but not least, The Billboard had a caller in the person of Indian Joe Gregg of Indianapolis, who had in tow a dainty little black giant named George Bell. Bell is just seven feet, several inches tall, and only weighs 320 pounds. Gregg and his "Human Smokestack" were on their way to join a carnival company up in Ohio.

DENVER, COLO.

The County and State Fairs are on in full blast around Denver. The Jefferson County Fair being held out at Lakeside, and the display of agricultural products was the greatest ever. The races were very good and above all the attendance was greater than anticipated.

The State Fair at Pueblo was held last week and the entries greater than ever before. Colorado Day was observed in fitting fashion. The races and broncho busting were the big features.

The Thirtieth Annual Territorial Fair will be held October 9 to 14 at Albuquerque and from the list of attractions we believe will be the greatest territorial fair ever held. Eugene B. Ely has been engaged for aviation flights. A big band of Navajo Indians fresh from the reservation will be the attraction for the Easterners. The Nat Reiss Carnival Company will furnish the street attractions. Altogether the fair promises to be a record-breaker.

We are advised the Union Pacific Railroad will run a special train from Denver to Cheyenne to greet young Fowler on his San Francisco to New York flight. Fowler has agreed to descend at Cheyenne for a short rest and to replenish his supply of gasoline.

Miss Ruby Burkhardt, society girl of Denver, will leave for New York in a short time to study for grand opera. After her course in New York, she will endeavor to win fame abroad. Miss Burkhardt is the most popular girl of the younger society set of Denver.

The city of Colorado Springs had a great carnival this year; now they want to make it a permanent affair and asked the city to make appropriation of $1,000 for same, but Mayor H. F. Avery said he would favor an appropriation of $500 to meet the deficit of this year's carnival, but would not favor annual appropriation.

All theatres in Denver carried a military aspect on Saturday night and Sunday night, when 1,000 soldiers from the Fort D. A. Russell, Wyoming, came to Denver in special trains to see the sights here. Every theatre, including the many picture shows, had a big sprinkling of the boys in blue.

Mrs. Emilie A. Schmidt, a Denver woman who has made good on the stage, left last week for New York, where she goes to rehearse The Motor Girl.

Suzanne La Homa, the Indian girl from Muskogee, Okla., was in Denver last week. She had Mr. Charles Wakefield Cadman give her his own interpretation of the little Indian songs of his composition, which she has embraced in her repertoire. Miss La Homa is a protege of Mme. Schumann-Heink, who heard her sing two or three years ago, and the girl has been living with the great German prima donna since then.

They say Denver can have the next annual international ball if she will only go after it. All Denver has to do, so says H. E. Moneywell, the Kansas City hallion enthusiast, is to show some enthusiasm over the sport, and that is exactly what Denver is going to do, and make a strong fight for the next meeting.

JULIAN HELBER.

SEATTLE, WASH.

The staff for the new Metropolitan Theatre, which will be opened October 2, will be as follows: George J. McKenzie, manager; William Raymond, press representative; C. J. Riley, treasurer; R. F. French, assistant treasurer; J. R. Burns, stage carpenter; Wm. Black, electrician; Herr Charles Lombard, director orchestra. This beautiful theatre will be opened by Richard Carle, October 2, in Jumping Jupiter, and will be followed by M. Gaffes' big musical girl show Bright Eyes for the week of October 15. The Girl in the Taxi, week Oct. 22, The Spring Maid, week of 29 will be given over to the Seattle Press Club, which will present The Stolen Story, for the benefit of the Building Fund.

J. Willis Sayer, dean of Seattle's theatrical writers, has been re-engaged by the Times, and took charge of the dramatic columns of that paper September 10.

Miss Dallas Chandler, appearing at Pantages Theatre week September 11, is a Seattle girl, who has made a big success on the stage. On Sunday night she was presented with a big bouquet from the Seattle Press Club, whose members she has often entertained at the club's ladies night prior to her going into vaudeville. Miss Chandler possesses a rare voice and with her new song hits, is one of the most promising of the younger set of American-born songstresses. Sullivan and Conditine have given up the venture of the Coliseum Theatre as a picture house. This house may be opened either with stock musical comedy or as the home of 10, 20 and 30c melodrama.

The Alhambra Theatre will open September 16 with an exceptionally good stock company, headed by the well-known actor, Lee Willard. Peaceful Valley will be the opening attraction.

LEM A. SHORTRIDGE.

NASHVILLE, TENN.

The Bijou Theatre, which is under the management of O. A. Neal, has a splendid list of attractions booked for the coming season of 1911-1912. Manager Neal is making friends here in Nashville, and in fact is becoming to be quite popular in every respect. Manager Neal has informed the writer that the coming season at his house, the Bijou, will be one of the highest seasons of high-class attractions ever seen in Nashville.

The Orpheum, the home of high-class vaudeville where all the big headlines are seen from week to week, is now under the management of George Hickman, formerly manager of the Rialto. The high-class vaudeville that the Orpheum is supplying, the acts being booked from the Keith Circuit is proving a big drawing card in every way. Herman Gross, formerly of the Lyric Theatre, Atlanta, and last season with the Majestic Theatre, Brooklyn, has been transferred by the Wells interests and this season is connected with the Orpheum Theatre as treasurer. Mr. Gross is widely known and liked by members of both the dramatic and vaudeville professions.

Every picture house in Nashville, including Manager Williams' $10,000 one, the Elito, is reaping a rich harvest in spite of the very hot days we are having. State Fair Week will have very little effect on any of the motion picture theatres, as the majority of amusement lovers had rather be entertained by the silent drama.

W. R. ARNOLD.

SPOKANE, WASH.

The Spokane Theatre has been refurnished inside and a new front built on, and the house is one of the most attractive of its kind in the city. Eugene Levy has leased the theatre for five years and it will be run as a photoplay and vaudeville house.

Continuous performances will be given and acts will change weekly with two changes of pictures each week. Sam Cohn is the new manager.

Practically the entire force formerly employed at the Spokane Theatre has been transferred to the Auditorium Theatre by Charles York. Who has succeeded Harry Hayward as manager. Wallace Atherton, treasurer; William Stehls, superintendent; Edward Moore, stage carpenter; William Wallace, master of properties; William Maxwell, electrician, and Guy F. Moore, head gym.

Paul Armstrong's dramatic sketch, A Romance of the Underworld, headliner at the Orpheum, week of September 10, is a very strong act. There are twenty speaking characters and three scenes. It is one of the most interesting acts seen here this season.

Eller's Royal Italian Band headed by Channing Eller and his famous leader Taddeo Girolamo played an engagement of two weeks at Natatorium Park, commencing September 12.

Coeur D'Alene Fair and Racing Association race-track opened at Alan, Idaho, September 11. The racing season will last six weeks. The race meet, it brings many strangers to Spokane and the theatres and moving picture houses report a vast increase in attendance.

E. AXELSON.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

H. A. Dorsey of Montreal, Can., president of the Park Construction Co., owning and operating the Twin-City Wonderland Park, arrived in the Mill City, Friday, September 15, to arrange for the sale or wrecking of the park here. A meeting of the directors of the park was called Tuesday, September 19, and Mr. Dorsey recommended that the buildings and amusement devices in the park be sold for whatever they would bring and that the site, comprising about twenty acres, which would make a hundred residence lots, be sold for building lots. Mr. Dorsey stated that Wonderland lost about $10,000 this season on account of unfavorable weather conditions, as the weather was mostly cold or rainy. The park made money in the month of June but lost the balance of the season. At the close of the park season this year, employees of the park presented Manager Fred H. Camp with a handsome diamond ring as a token of their appreciation of his kindness and courtesy to them in the face of this discouraging season of loss. Stuart W. Laird, superintendent of the park, was also presented with an Elk's charm.

Minneapolis and St. Paul detectives searched the house of Daniel LaBar, proprietor of the Crystal Theatre of this city, Thursday, September 14, in an endeavor to capture LaBar, who is wanted, suspected in connection with the robbery last January of the box-office safe of the St. Paul Shubert Theatre. This robbery netted the perpetrators $2,300. Mrs. LaBar was at home, but LaBar could not be found, and it was stated at the Crystal Theatre that he is away on a vacation. Ike Cohen of St. Paul, was also suspected of being implicated in this robbery and was arrested on the same day by the St. Paul police, and Harry T. Robinson was arrested in Chicago and will be brought here in connection with this robbery. Minneapolis and St. Paul police believe that LaBar will be apprehended and arrested. It is stated that others are also involved in this robbery, for which Edward A. Gerndt, night watchman at the St. Paul Shubert Theatre, was originally arrested after the robbery in January, tried and acquitted.

RODERIO STE. FLEURE.

PEORIA, ILL.

The Orpheum, home of refined vaudeville, opened its season Labor Day with a fine bill. Every bill so far has been great. The feature of this week is Billie Burke's Jardin de Paris. The bill is well balanced and one which should be liked by most anyone. The big feature for the week of September 25 is The Top O' The World Ballet with collie dogs. The policy of this theatre is to give to the public the best vaudeville at a moderate price.

The Orpheum, home of legitimate, has been very successful in securing good attractions for its many patrons. Thomas W. Ross, an Every-day Man, was presented for the first time before an audience at this theatre early in the season. There have been numerous high-class attractions since then, such as The Goddess of Liberty, with Joseph E. Howard, Harry Bulger and The Flirting Princess, etc. Black Patlie and her troupe of colored fun-makers, will amuse Thursday night. Viola Allen's great success, The Christian, will be presented at this theatre three days, commencing Thursday, September 28.

"BILLIE" SCHNOEGER.

TORONTO, ONT.

This city will boast of a splendid new arena which will be ready for use some time in December. Mr. Solman, the well-known theatrical, lacrosse and baseball magnate, will be manager of the same.

The Exhibition management is already making new plans for next year's big fair.

The Princess had a magnificent spectacle in Thais and business opened fine.

Gertrude Elliott is a big favorite here and this charming artist received a warm welcome when she opened at the Royal Alexandra in the new play, In Revolt.

She's a splendid bill headed by the Romany Opera Company.

The different places of amusement at point of attendance are doing better than last year.

JOSEPH GIMSON.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

A. C. Mayer is the new manager of the Lyceum, Empire Circuit, for many years under the management of Eugene Kernoa, who retires on account of old age.

Glen Echo Park, after a most successful season, closed on September 23.

Alma, Where do You Live? will shortly appear here for the first time.

One of the local theatres has during the past two weeks sent several special trains to Baltimore to witness the plays of a stock company there, composed mainly of Washingtonians.

Within a month another theatre will be added to the list in Washington. The new structure is of the Spanish style of architecture, strictly fireproof, located down town and will be devoted to high-class vaudeville.

The regular season at the Columbia opened on September 18, with Bailey and Austin, in The Ton O' The World, supported by an exceptionally strong company. The local press criticisms were a unit in commendation.

The Riggs estate early in the summer began razing the old-time and popular Riggs House, with adjacent buildings, and are now completing the foundations for a structure to consist of an office building and theatre. The latter is designed to be the largest playhouse in the city and has already been leased for a term of years at an unprecedented rental.

Enthusiasm in aviation at College Park is as strong at present as at any time since interest in that form of amusement started there many months ago. The Rex Smith Company is manufacturing biplanes hushly as ever, and army officers detailed for the study of aviation in all its phases are making commendable progress along every line. This week Captain Paul Hays of the army, is giving a series of exhibition flights at Harrisburg, Pa.

ED. WYNN.

RICHMOND, VA.

The Winter Carnival Palace is the latest addition to Richmond's permanent amusement enterprises.

Captain A. B. Galignon, general attorney for the Virginia Railway & Power Co., is authority for the statement that the new amusement resort will be one of the most complete of its kind in America. The spacious Horse Show Building is to be converted into a palace of pleasure offering to the amusement-seeking public a diversity of attractions including a skating rink, a dancing pavilion and band concert. Vaudeville will be installed as an added attraction before Christmas.

The big building has been turned over by the railway company to the J. H. Livingston Co., Inc., and the work of remodeling the interior is now under way. A large force of carpenters, electricians, carnival constructors and laborers, now on the job, will rush the work to completion. The Winter Carnival Palace will be thrown open to the public probably before the middle of October.

The Winter Carnival Palace will be managed by Col. J. H. Livingston, general manager of the company that bears his name.

Col. Livingston, by the way, has been engaged by the Lakeside Amusement Company of Washington, D. C., as general supervisor of park and amusements for Lakeside Park, which is on the outskirts of the National Capital. It will make frequent trips to Washington to look after the conduct of affairs at Lakeside Park, but will retain his residence in Richmond.

Another important amusement project to be launched next month is the Empire Theatre, West Broad Street, recently leased by the Dominion Amusement Company, of which Jake Wells is the head, from M. L. Hefheimer, the owner.

It is practically settled that the Empire will be the home of U. E. O. vaudeville, which means that Richmond will again have a first-class vaudeville theatre. It was Jake Wells who gave this city its first taste of the highest class of vaudeville, when in conjunction with Wilmer & Vincent, the Colonial Theatre was opened as the home of Keith vaudeville. The venture was not a financial success. That was more than three years ago, however, and the city has grown in population and the taste for the highest grade of vaudeville is more pronounced. It has been apparent for a long time that the popular demand for a high-class vaudeville theatre would justify the venture. But it remained for Mr. Wells to respond to this demand.

Probably no factor in the American theatrical field has done half so much as Mr. Wells for the amusement-seeking public in the Southern country. Through his individual efforts, more than any other, the largest and most important productions have been brought to the theatre of Virginia and the South. Fighting at times against adverse circumstances and conditions that would have discouraged a less brainy and energetic promoter, he has overcome seemingly insurmountable obstacles, and built theatre after theatre in the cities of the South. He is today the foremost figure in the Southern amusement field. This season the interests dominated by Jake Wells control and operate the best theatres in the following cities: Richmond, Norfolk, Roanoke, Lynchburg, Va.; Atlanta, Augusta, Savannah, Ga.; Nashville, Memphis, Knoxville, Chattanooga, Tenn.; Birmingham, Montgomery, Ala.; Jacksonville, Fla.; Evansville, Ind.

In addition to his interests in these theatres Mr. Wells has on tour several important attractions of the first-class and others playing the popular-price circuits. He has achieved more than any man in the history of the theatre in the South, and he is still a young man with all the vim and energy and resourcefulness that characterized him when he first started the old managers, producers and booking concerns by a brilliant series of successes, more than a decade ago.

The fact that Mr. Wells, who is a big man in ideas as well as in physical build, is standing sponsor for the first-class vaudeville theatre to open this fall is ample assurance that it will be a big success.

It is understood that the scale of prices will range from 25 to 75 cents for the night performances.

ROBERT GOLDEN.

SOUTH BEND, IND.

In all the history of the city no theatrical season has opened to so brilliant a vision as now confronts the theatregoers of South Bend. The attendance at all of the city's playhouses is very gratifying.

Mr. Harry G. Sommers is meeting with notable success in his efforts to give the patrons of the Auditorium Theatre big plays at popular prices. Mr. Sommers will shortly move his New York office to South Bend, where he will direct the booking and management of the score of houses in the Middle West now under his control.

The Oliver Opera House will this season follow its old policy of playing one-night stands of new productions.

A. L. Saville (The Old Reliable) has been re-engaged as stage manager of the Orpheum Theatre this season. He will be assisted by Mr. Earle Keene and George Connell.

South Bend has six up-to-date homes of the photoplay, all of which are making good. The Majestic Theatre in addition to the pictures, is giving its patrons two or three acts of fair vaudeville each week.

The opening of the Orpheum Theatre marks the beginning of the second season for this house. The Orpheum appeals to all classes of people and it has already reached the high-water mark of success. A glance at the bookings, together with the splendid attendance is as sure as the sun that Alvin Brothers will do another phenomenal season's business. Mr. W. E. Martin is the assistant manager and press representative.

E. S. DICKENS.

The Overlander Theatre Oklahoma City, Okla., under the management of E. J. Moore, opened for the season Sep. 16, with The Band Boss, under the direction of Sorrentino, as the attraction. A number of high-class attractions have been booked for the coming season.

FITZGERALD'S LETTER.

a good one and he is bound to make a hit wherever he may appear, for his name and fame will precede him over the entire world wherever lovers of sport may be found.

One of the leading professional roller skaters in the state of New Jersey is John Kirkbride of Irvington. Kirkbride has been racing for about five years, and has met and defeated some of the best men in the country at this sport. Prior to turning professional three years ago, Kirkbride defeated every amateur of note and won fifteen consecutive races at the Olympic Park Rink, Irvington. This record was made while he was a contestant for the silver loving cup offered by the park management to the skater winning the greatest number of races during the season. Since joining the professional ranks, Kirkbride has met and defeated such men as "Lucky" Mason, Barker, Robertson, Brower, Gogger, McCormack and "Goldie" Blackburn, on the Olympic Park Rink. In his first year as a money-chaser Kirkbride took part in two marathon races, finishing fourth in one and fifth in the other. Kirkbride is one of the first Eastern skaters to take up the professional circuit scheme, and stated that if such a circuit was formed, he would be "Johnny-on-the-Spot."

JULIAN T. FITZGERALD.

SKATING NOTES.

Robert McLean, who through the absence of Champion Lamy from the amateur ranks this winter, will try and wear Lamy's shoes, has spent a good part of his summer vacation in the Pittsburgh Athletic Club. Mac went there to accept a light position during his school vacation, and has done quite a bit of swimming to keep in shape, and from all reports will have little difficulty in rounding into shape for his hardest season in the skating game.

Manager H. C. West of the Majestic Rink, Blanchester, Ohio, is making extensive repairs and redecorations in his rink and will open about October 1. The rink has had three successful seasons, but Mgr. West expects 1911-12 to exceed any previous years, as good acts of all kinds will be booked.

Fred Martin, the California champion, is still showing the Chicago professionals how to skate. Sunday, September 10, he showed his heels to a fast bunch of skaters in a one-mile professional race defeating Al. Krueger, who finished second, and Henry Becker, third, in the fast time of 2:37.

In the race skated at Riverview Rink, Chicago on Labor Day, Fred Martin claims to have skated the mile on the hanked track in 2 minutes and 32 seconds. This mark equals the world's record made by Allie Moore in 1906 at the same rink, if the time was correct.

Allie Moore has at last been heard from. He is reported as being an Englishman now and in the future will make his home in Liverpool. It is also rumored that Mr. Moore will soon have a partner, but not a skating partner, one that he will have to team with for life.

In the professional race held at Riverview Rink, Chicago, Sunday night, September 10, a free-for-all fight between skaters was an added attraction. After the mix-up was quelled it was found that Dan Driscoll suffered a deep scalp wound. No arrests were made.

Skaters from the states of New York, New Jersey and Connecticut are all anxious for a professional racing circuit to start, and are waiting for some of the rink managers to make a move.

John Davidson, a brother of Harley and another member of the great family of skaters and athletes, is at present in Russia. John says the skating game is good over to Europe.

Madison Gardens, Chicago, is ready for the opening night, September 18. The skating fans will have a new maple floor to skate on, and all new and beautiful decorations to gaze upon.

Rodney Peters, the St. Louis, Mo., boy, and Charles L. Franka and his daughter Lillian, are performing in France.

THE KISS WALTZ ENRAPTURES.

of Brown, Bigelow and Eva Davenport to the disparagement of Flora Zabelle and Robert Warwick. In fact, he does all he can to differ with the other metropolitan critics. Where they praise the score as pretty, luring and dream-inspiring, he condemns the prevailing melody as "not intoxicating"; to the remainder of the score he shows no great animosity. Dale evidences no hesitation to include the plot for a knock and proclaims the work of Edgar Smith "quite iniquitous." The waltz he typifies as disappointing. But to offset the venom of his spleen we have the preponderance and unanimity of his brother critics who saw the selfsame performance and returned their verdict in decided favor of the new Shubert production. The following excerpts from the dailies which accorded the most detailed criticisms inform us of their approval:

"The Times"—"The Kiss Waltz, produced last evening at the Casino is a musical cocktail. In other words, it is a mixed drink—a combination of Viennese operetta and American musical comedy, with a little French spice thrown in for flavor and color. Last night's audience, which was a notable one, received the play rapturously, and there is reason to believe that the final verdict will be a favorable one, for there is much to amuse and entertain about the play and little to bore."

"The book was never stupid and some of the lines, notably those allotted to Miss Eva Davenport, were very funny. 'The Knight of the Bath in the household of Kathi Fuhringer, we are told, 'la Saturday.'

"But, after all, it is the company, which in every respect is good, the dances, the costumes and the movement of the piece, which brings it up to the level of a high success, which it assuredly should be. Almost from the beginning a speed is struck in these matters which is not allowed to flag, except for the purpose of contrast now and then."

"Flora Zabelle played what in the original piece must have been the most important part, as it was the only one of the women who had much to do with the plot."

"To Miss Zabelle and Robert Warwick fell the Kiss Waltz, and they did it extremely well, with a sensuousness and grace which caught the house. Later Miss Zabelle sang a French waltz very prettily."

Eva Davenport found a part more suited to her style of comedy than she has had a chance to disport herself in for years. She was very funny. Charles Bigelow played his part well, but had less opportunity. Count Arthur Wildenberg had one song of which he made the most."

The World—"The Casino curtain fell at 11:30 last night on a Casino triumph of the old, undoubted brand, but with modern improvements. So much fetching new music, so many pretty girls in the chorus, so much brilliancy of scenery and costumes had not been seen for a long time in the favorite old playhouse. And with all else was an amazing diversity and novelty of stage dancing and turning of stage tricks."

If it is gathered from so much declaration that 'The Kiss Waltz' scored a mighty hit at its first New York production, why that's all, and that's the way of it. There are Vienna and Composer Ziehrer to thank for a brilliant addition to the list of operetta treats previously boasting 'The Merry Widow, Madame Sherry and The Pink Lady. And there will be those to swear that the last comer is the best of all."

"The waltz? Oh, yes, it is there! The orchestra plays it, the overture, it is danced in the first act and re-danced in both acts, and miraculously soon New York will be singing the music to the accompaniment of all the restaurant orchestras. Like its predecessors from Vienna it is that kind."

"The plot? As usual in such cases, it does not matter. It involves a composer worshiped by the fair ladies of Vienna society, a titled husband not too jealous to flirt a little on his own account, a harpist who insists on being loved truly, and a lot of other people."

"There are specialties galore in the two acts of the operetta. A whimsical dancing trio by Mr. Brown, Miss Ryan and Miss Rowland, near the end of the first act—must be mentioned particularly, since the first-night witnesses seemed to want it never to atone."

ARLISS TRIUMPHANT.

is that Mr. Arliss created on the lines laid down by Mr. Parker an ideal faithful to the famous English statesman in its larger aspect, and then with the aid of splendid imagination, proceeded to make it a living, breathing figure.

"It cannot be granted that the drama, in which Disraeli stood always in the foreground, was comparable with the character itself. Mr. Parker took liberties with history but such incidents as he distorted to serve for the motive and action of the play were not always handled with skill. The deftness of Commander Walk was not to be found in the fabric, and sometimes the machinery creaked with an ominous sound."

"The incidents appropriated were the ones which were the crown" achievement of Lord Beaconsfield's political career. At the moment when Rosalia was casting hungry eyes toward India, and England was in a state of political isolation, Disraeli conceived the purchase of the Suez Canal from the bankrupt Khedive of Egypt, and the creation of a British empire in the East."

The story is not without its romantic appeal. This is sustained by a thread involving Disraeli as a matchmaker and halm-dispenser of broken hearts in the union he contrived between young Charles Viscount Deeford and Lady Clarissa Perenssey.

The Times opines as follows: "Mr. Arliss is an artist who can do all of these things and make them very telling. When the time for the dare-up comes, he knows how to make it effective through a sense of authority conveyed, not in noisy declamation, but in a direct, cutting, feverish, accumulative staccato speech, which suggests power in the man and the brain that gives the power."

"Mr. Arliss's make-up is again a veritable triumph, and it would seem that, as far as any one could do it, he conveys the pictorial suggestion needed to complete the illusion."

The conservative Tribune concludes with the following peroration to its comment on the drama: "The dramatist adheres to history about as closely as the exigencies of the theatre will permit. He is frank enough to crave indulgence for the liberties he has taken and to acknowledge that his aim has been to present the portrait of a great statesman, together with a picture of the times he moved in and the prejudices conquered. In this purpose he succeeds. And Mr. Arliss succeeds."

"The former's play is unique in its interest. The latter's performance is of a high order. Play and performance, author and star, were received and rewarded with great heartiness. The spirit of the occasion was not unlike that of a first night in the memorable times of Wallack. Disraeli will have a long run."

COUP DE THEATRE.

matic form, Edgar Selwyn's new play, 'The Arah,' that had its first performance at the Lyceum Theatre last night, will most likely prove an attractive offering. There is no gainsaying the beauty of the settings or the realism of the crowded hazard scenes, the mission grounds and home. Syria seems transplanted to West Forty-Fifth Street—with the usual reservation that theatrical transplanting must always have."

"As for the play, it is melodrama, of the flavor of Strongheart, but with a more hopeful ending and more picturesqueness—due to the locale—and more thrills."

"The play's author, Mr. Selwyn, played the role of the dragoon sheik, and found much favor with the audience by a remarkably clever delineation of a somewhat complex role. He never lost his characterization, and his simplification of the passing of the boastful guide into the Christian convert and then to the powerful sheik was excellent. Edna Baker appeared in the role of the missionary; Edward R. Mason played the Turkish governor; Walter Wilson as an American searcher for antiquities; James Seely, the missionary; and Ethel Waldron, who proved unusually adept at pantomime, had the part of Myrza, a Syrian girl."

The Sun affords the following appreciation of Selwyn's work:

"Whatever else there may be of good in 'The Arah,' produced last night at the Lyceum Theatre, there is one role in it so delightfully written and so charmingly played that the rest of the play might be very poor indeed— which it is not—and still be well worth seeing. Mr. Edgar Selwyn, actor, should be a very grateful man to Mr. Edgar Selwyn, author, for having such an entirely satisfactory interpretation made of his work."

"The part of the Arah is so well drawn and is played with such perfect sympathy and understanding by Mr. Selwyn that the faults of the rest of the company seem insignificant. As Jamil Abdullah Azam the son of a Bedouin sheik, but by circumstance, a dragoon, Mr. Selwyn seemed truly a child of the desert. He had all the Oriental's guile and the guileless."

NEW PLAY A PERFECT GEM.

as William Shakespeare is to literary perfection. The public went prepared to see the mastery of his touch—and they saw it; the play was Belascoan in its consummation of stagecraft and unqualifiedly superlative in its presentation. The vehicle was strong—but the color, the unctuousness in which its producer conceived it has made it impregnable. The critics were forced to bow their heads in realization and humbleness. Their taunts and flares, the most graphic of their actions, were powerless against the latest instance of Belascoism."

Alan Dale must be quoted in this connection. His praise is genuine, prompted only by the excellence of what he and what his critical colleagues saw: "A Representative from Illinois, a Representative from New York, another from Kansas, a fourth from Pennsylvania, got together and talked about the overcapitalization of railroads, the Mullins Bill, graft and other political delicatessen. All this went on while the audience were snugly ensconced in their seats. Then—practically instantaneously—'Like lightning the sex question shot into the fray, silencing the politics with its own particular light. And from that moment on to the close of the play, the interest was keen, absorbing, gripping, enthralling and long before the evening was over 'The Woman' had stamped itself as the first real success of the season."

"All the world loves a woman mystery. Who was the woman in M. DeMille's play who had once upon a time been mixed up actually in the immaculate life of the ambitious insurgent Standish?"

"Here was campaign material. Here was a story to work his downfall. Once published the discovery, and in fact to Standish. But who was the woman? You know, of course. You knew that she was the wife of one man and the daughter of another. You knew all that. They didn't. So you can see where the tenacity of the play comes in, with these men moving heaven and earth to discover the identity of a woman who was nearest and dearest to them."

"About nious logic and psychology, one did get a thrill or two; one did savor the extreme Joy of suspense; one did sit with bated breath, watching developments."

"And structurally 'The Woman' is splendid. There is not a word too much in it. It just forges ahead to its conclusion. Even politics later on takes on a dramatic glamor. The cynicism of the woman's father was perfectly irresistible. Graft—that favorite topic of the humorous cynic—was beaten into a new form. We were told that a reformer is a grafter out of a job; that graft is a national institution; that graft was not a man's failing, but his religion. It sounded easy to solve all the graft epigrams in 'The Woman,' but it isn't. They shone. They had the glamor of spontaneity, and there were not too many of them, but just enough."

"A telephone girl at a switchboard supplied delightful comedy. Nor was this rung in for mere vulgar sport. The girl was a holly character, as a telephone girl might be (and also mightn't be), and she was placed in the position of wishing to save the woman in the play by withholding her telephone number. This was so neatly, deftly and cleverly manipulated that it was one of the features of the play."

"The grilling of this girl at the close of the second act, interrupted by the slow descent of the curtain, was something new in playdom, and it tickled the audience hugely. I've never seen anything more telling and more artistic. But the piece was full of artistic touches. Its stinging was balanced at his best, that scene in the 'amen corner' of a Washington hotel was almost too real. It seemed to be life, not stage. The constant entrance of the page boys, the waiters, the lights on the telephone booths that behaved like the real thing—all appeared to be too true to be theatrical."

"It was a wonder of stage management—a perfect jewel of thought, precision and care. And it all told monumentally. Of course, it naturally would. There has never been a play produced at this theatre in which the details had been so laboriously considered and sketched out."

"The cast contained no stellar women, and it was none the worse for that. A fig for them! Miss Mary Nash, as the telephone girl, was exquisite throughout. Jane Peyton, as the woman, lacked charm and distinction, and her selection was not happy. Of the men, John W. Cope as her father was perfectly admirable in his first, and comic humor that never failed. Cuyler Hastings, as the man, was funereal and a bit heavy. Edwin Hoot, Stephen Fitzpatrick and William Holden were all competent. 'The Woman' is resounding. I had begun to think that every good play had been produced years ago. It hasn't. Last night gave us a corker."

MRS. GENE HUGHES AND COMPANY. In comedy playlet, Youth, Fifth Avenue; 11 minutes; full stage.

Edgar Allee Woolf is the author of the playlet, Youth. Woolf is responsible for many sketches, playlets, etc., that have been accorded favorable receptions. His latest effort shows no deterioration in his ability to grapple with a pleasing playlet for Youth is pleasing. Despite the fact that the piece runs a trifle over half an hour, the comedy does not lag.

The theme is this: After an absence of fifteen years from her home, out of which she was driven by her over-zealous aunts, Madam Cora LeGrand, or Cora the first, returns to visit her daughter, Cora the second. When it is announced to Cora the second that she is to receive a visit from her mother, Cora No. 2 immediately gathers together the old grandmother's chair, the old slippers and other comforts in order to make pleasant the visit of Cora the first.

Cora the first enters amid these preparations. Her appearance is a surprise and shock to her staid daughter and grand daughter. She is attired in the height of fashion while daughter and grand daughter make the appearance of old maids. It develops that Cora the first, after leaving her home, had gone to a far-away country and become an actress. From chorus girl she graduated to a star. The appearance of her daughter and grand daughter afford her much amusement, and immediately she plans to change the state of affairs. A dinner at Cora's is proposed.

Billy Weeks, an artist, living in the same house with the daughter and grand daughter, meets Cora the first, and at once is fascinated by the grandmother's charms. When the Recorder is proposed, Billy suggests that he act as the grandmother's escort. This suggestion puts a damper on the ambitions of the grand daughter, who is in love with Billy, but whom Billy totally disregards because of her appearance in the medieval gown. Grand daughter confides her sorrow to grandmother, who, divining the cause, brings from her trunk a beautiful gown for grand daughter. When attired in it she becomes a picture of beauty. Her prettiness weans the fickle Billy from grandmother's side to that of the grand daughter.

But grandmother still has daughter, or Cora the second to contend with. The Puritanical ways of Cora the second have driven her husband from her. The husband, unbeknown to his wife had gone to the far-away country with his mother-in-law, and watched over her as she climbed the ladder of success in the theatre. When Cora the first explains the situation to Cora the second, the latter throws aside her scrupulous attitude and consents to go to Cora's for the feast, to which the husband had also been invited. She leaves the room and a few moments later returns dressed in the same fashion as mother and daughter. Grandmother has brought together the disrupted family ties and brought youth to those in whose lives only pessimistic and old-age views existed.

Mrs. Hughes' company includes Isabel Vernon as Cora the second, Margaret Volman as Cora the third, Betty Swartz as the maid, and Lawrence C. Knapp as Billy Weeks.

ED. WYNN. assisted by Edmund Russon, in comedy skit, Joy and Gloom, Fifth Avenue; 13 minutes; in one.

Ed Wynn delineates Joy and Edmund Russon characterizes Gloom. Wynn, depicting a big, blustering youth with a self-appreciation of his own wit, insists upon telling jokes to his compulsion. Gloom possesses exasperatingly dull powers of perception. There fore Joy must explain his jokes time and time again. Then he proceeds with another joke, and another. By this time Gloom has finally discovered the point of the first joke and has his own little laugh. Wynn's style of delivering the comedy, his answers to his companion's nonsensical queries, are in source of much laughter. Whenever Wynn and Russon appear the audience will have thirteen minutes of continual merriment.

THE KEMPS. Entertainers, Colonial Theatre; 12 minutes; in one.

Bobby Kemp, of The Kemps, until a few weeks ago was the featured assistant to Alda Overton Walker in her vaudeville number. Kemp attempts practically nothing but singing in his new act. His numbers include Love Dear, My Own Adopted Child and What Makes Me Love You the Wagon. He is an excellent singer. The act was on in No. 2 spot at the Colonial, where it received the stamp of approval.

SIMONE DE BERYL. Poetess, Colonial Theatre; 20 minutes; full stage.

The word posing is not entirely appropriate to describe the work of Miss DeBeryl. Statuesque, Miss De Beryl stands upon a pedestal of stage, while upon her and the white drop in the background in flooded color designs and pictures from slides inserted in a machine which rests at the orchestra leader's stand. The effect is remarkably beautiful. At the Colonial exclamation of pleasurable surprise greeted every picture thrown upon the screen. The act provided by Simone De Beryl is exquisitely delightful.

EDGAR-ATCHISON-ELY AND COMPANY. In comedy playlet, Billy's Tombstones, Colonial Theatre; 32 minutes; special act.

Billy's Tombstones is a condensed version of the play, Billy. Kenneth Lee is the author. The set shows the deck of the steamer Florida, en route to Havana. Billy Hargreaves, a football hero, who is minus four teeth lost in a football game, but which molar he has supplanted with a false set, is in love with Beatrice Sloan, who is also a passenger on the ship. Billy proposes, and is willing to tell everything of his past life excepting one incident. Beatrice becomes suspicious. No one but Billy's sister and Billy's father for Beatrice's hand knows he has false teeth, and he is reluctant to tell his secret to Beatrice, believing that the revelation of his predicament will prompt her to reject his proposal. He makes a mess of his explanations and Beatrice leaves in a huff without learning the nature of the incident that has caused Billy so much trouble. As Billy is quivering over his misfortune, a porter opens the swing-door and announces that Billy, who loses his set of false teeth. Billy makes a futile search to recover them. The porter, passing a few moments later, finds the set, puts them in his pocket and leaves. Billy returns to continue his search. Around his mouth he has woven a handkerchief in order that no one may learn the cause of his trouble. When he removes the handkerchief and attempts to talk the syllables will not flow fluently and Billy's enunciation sounds like a foreign language. Billy is desperate. He and his sister try several ways to recover the set of teeth but are unsuccessful. During their search they are startled to hear a voice announce that a set of teeth that had been found was to be auctioned. There is a lively bidding for the possession of the "tombstones." Billy's antagonist in hoisting the price being his rival for the hand of Beatrice. Allee, Billy's sister, who, not until the price has reached one thousand dollars, hears the auctioneer announce that he is the possessor of the treasure. Beatrice, who in the meantime has learned the cause of all the excitement, comes to Billy, and begs his forgiveness for her attitude, which, of course, is readily granted, and Billy is happy.

Billy's Tombstones is amusing all the way through. Mr. Ely's company is a good one, being composed of, besides Mr. Ely, Miss Ruth Allen, Miss Helen Hammel, Pierre Lemay and Charles Cluhston.

ACTS NEW TO CHICAGO.

JAMES F. DOLAN AND IDA LENHARR. Majestic, Chicago. Fifth in nine-set show; full stage. Time, 25 minutes. Number of women, one; number of men, two.

The stage setting for this act depicts the apartment of Mme. De Shane, a mind-reader. Her manager (very well played by Hugh Mack) is doing the usual boosting stunt, announcing the wonderful cleverness of the madame and introduces Mr. Hyson Carrington Knockor of Kokomo, Ind., (played by Mr. Dolan). Mr. Knockor doubts the genuineness of Mme. De Shane's ability and is there to be shown. He is introduced to the madame and recognizes in her a mind-reader who had traveled with him in a circus several years ago. However, he does not let the madame know that he recognizes her. At this point the burlesque situations are introduced. Her manager holds up a program and asks her what it is. Of course, she is blind-folded and can not see. He taps it—she calls the turn. He next places a piece of crayon on the figure 2 on a blackboard. When the seeress hesitates the manager coughs twice and she names the number. There are a great many of these comedy situations introduced and all rewarded with hearty applause. Mr. Knockor then goes in the audience in company with the manager and selects articles submitted by the patrons. Mr. Knockor and the manager return to the stage and Mr. Knockor makes himself known to the madame. Her manager is fired and his place taken by Mr. Knockor. The act proved the laugh hit of the bill.

SAGER MIDGLEY & COMPANY. Majestic, Chicago. Third in nine-set show. Time, 13 minutes; in full stage. Number of women, one; number of men, two.

An excellent laughing act is submitted by Mr. Midgley but as formerly stated the idea is not original. The setting depicts the apartment of the Colonel. The maid and the valet are discovered after the valet has broken a large mirror. The Colonel proves to be one of these gentlemen who loves to quench his thirst with the "curse of the universe." The time is the "morning after." The valet finding one of the Colonel's wigs, puts it on for the amusement of the maid. The Colonel calls and enters, it is too late for the valet to remove the disguise. He conceals himself behind the screen and as the Colonel steps in front of the mirror frame the valet steps behind it. Some good comedy business is here introduced, but it is not nearly so well worked by this duo as by the Hanlon Brothers, as their movements do not always correspond. The Colonel is still a trifle tipsy and stumbling on some of the broken glass falls through the frame. The broken glass on the floor convinces the Colonel that he has broken the mirror himself and the result in complete acquittal for the guilty valet. The young lady appearing in the sketch in decidedly amateurish and could be left out of the act with no detrimental results, as she has very little to do or say. The act was a big hit and took several bows.

WELL-BALANCED BILL

Ruth St. Deols appeared next in her classic dances and did not go as well as might have been expected. Her offering is reviewed under New Acts.

Edward Ryan and Tierney present a rath-skeller act, using a piano, working in one. They open singing On the Boulevard, a production number. Both the boys appear in this number as Frenchmen. They do the characters very well and the song was well received. Their rendition of Oceana Roll was a big hit and Ted Snyder's new number, Mysterious Rag, worked in the spotlight, sent the boys away very big.

The Six Bracks, one of the late importations from Europe, closed the show in an acrobatic and athletic offering. These six gentlemen are all very clever, and from indications will make a big success of their American tour.

WILSON AVE. BILL.

ceived and the girls are to be congratulated on a very pretty and clever little act which is worthy of a spot on some of the best bills.

Oscar Lewis and Sam Green have a good comedy offering which is reviewed under New Acts. The Rathskeller Trio, Messrs. Mitchell, Wells and Lewis were headlined all week at the Wilson and drew capacity houses at almost every show. The boys have appeared at the Wilson before and established an enviable reputation for themselves. Mr. Mitchell's renditions at the piano go big and the singing of the other two boys is instrumental in making the act one of this theatre's record support. The trio received much enthusiastic support on behalf of the audience that it was necessary to omit the pictures at the close of the show.

CHICAGO BURLESQUE NEWS.

James E. and Lucia Cooper put on a comedy patter skit in one, Mr. Cooper in the character of a fresh mail carrier and Miss Cooper working straight. The dialogue is new and funny and the melody of popular strains at the close of their act sent them away big.

The second part is called Winning a Man, a one-act musical farce written by Leon Errol. The characters are as follows: Meyer Schlitzholz, Charley Howard; Joe Bundy, a walking delegate. James E. Cooper; Col. Mayberry, a Southerner. Jim C. Dixon; Billy Calder, a Yankee Kid; Robert Alger; Sandy McTavish, an old rebel soldier; Johnny Walker; Marcus Philpot, an old rebel soldier; William Alexis; Uncle Eph; the colonel's old servant, Marty Reagan; Harry Courtney; N. B. Hunter; Joe Flak, J. L. Scrivener; Tom Appleton; M. F. Hunter; Jack Drexel, B. B. Gallaher; Alameda Calder, Billy's sister, Lucia Cooper; Fay Wesley, her chum, Della Shail; Tavie Mayberry, the colonel's daughter, Fannie St. Clair; Eva Brighton Earle, suffragette leader, by Gloria Martinez. The numbers put on in this part are: Hello! Motor Girl, by the entire company; Over the Garden Wall, by Fannie St. Clair, Robert Alger and Charley; and a great specialty by the Symphony Quartette. These four boys worked straight and render in harmony popular numbers. They were easily the hit of the show in specialty or musical numbers and stopped the performance entirely. Their voices are not extraordinary, but their style of rendition is very good. They make a very pleasing appearance in their gray business suits.

Lucia Cooper and company put on Remick's new song, That Navajo Rag, and were compelled to repeat the chorus four times. Charley Howard and Dorothy Hayden put on a song and dance which came near repeating what the Symphony Quartet did. Gloria Martinez and company puts on a very good number called called Suffragettes and score heavily.

There's an old and true saying that "History repeats itself," and here is the proof. Last week the Bowman Bros., a headline vaudeville act, appeared at the Star & Garter heading Vanity Fair. This week Morton and Moore, another big vaudeville team, heads the Merry Whirl at the Columbia. J. C. Morton and Frank F. Moore are responsible for the success of one of the biggest and best shows on the wheel. They have already established a following in Chicago through their appearance here in variety. They were featured at the American Music Hall last season and their names on the billing for the Merry Whirl undoubtedly mean an increase in the financial department of the Columbia for the current week.

This production is put on by Gordon & North and is one of the best seen in Chicago this season. The costumes and settings have been provided without thought of expense and the result is one of the prettiest productions imaginable. Don Roth is responsible for the book. Ed Ray for the lyrics and Leo Edwards for the music.

The first part is called the Magic Ring and shows a plot the equal of which is rarely seen in burlesque. There is an abundance of clean, snappy comedy, throughout and musical numbers rendered in a very commendable manner. The plot for the second part is laid in Paris and while the idea of this part of the show has been carried out by several other burlesque shows, the Merry Whirl Company have introduced a few new ideas into the piece which are put over very well.

The principals with the Merry Whirl Company this season are as follows: James C. Morton, Frank F. Moore, Harry B. Vokes, Billy Meehan, Edwin Jerome, Roger Hurst, Marguerite Chabauty, Mina Schell, Genevieve Newman, Gladys LeRoy, Norine Fitzgerald and Olivette Tremayne.

The musical numbers are about evenly divided between specialty and popular songs. The numbers to score highest were Alexander's Ragtime Band, by Morton and Moore, and I Want a Girl, by Morgan and Rogers.
